HIGH SCHOOL PLAY JAN. 11

On Saturday evening, Jan. 11 the three act play "The Goose Hangs High" will be given in the Town Hall by the Junior-Senior classes of the Winchester High School, under the personal direction of Alice Eudora Chapman, who has many splendid dramatic productions with high school talent to her credit. The management feel sure that the forthcoming entertainment will be fully up the high class productions of the past. In the original presentation of this play Norman Trevor, a well known actor both in legitimate and screen drama, played the part of Bernard Ingalls, while Mrs. Thomas Whiffen the distinguished aged actress played Granny Bradley. Mrs. Whiffen celebrated her 80th birthday while playing the part in Boston in 1926. In our Junior-Senior Class production the gentlemanly and distinctive part of Bernard Ingalls will be portrayed by Ronald Olmstead one of our honor pupils, while the part of his wife, a most refined lovable and charming woman, will be played by Marjorie French, sister of "Art" French who scored a decided hit under Miss Chapman's direction in "The Tailor Made Man." Noel Derby, a friend of the Ingalls family will be given by Maurice Tompkins of the Junior Class. Leo Day, the social climber will be impersonated by Wilbur Callahan. Frances Rhodes of the Senior Class will do the short part of Rhoda. The stylish and opinionated Julia Murdock will be convincingly done by Janice Whittaker. Granny Bradley, an aristocratic little woman of 70 years, and one of the important parts of the play will be acted by Elizabeth Clark. Julia Murdock's son Ronald, who is somewhat dissatisfied with his surroundings, will be played by Edward Woodbury. Hugh Ingalls, the older son of Mr. and Mrs. Ingalls and his charming and dignified sweetheart, Dagmar Carroll, will be portrayed by Lois Boudin and Joy Advance, respectively. The live wire parts of the Ingalls twins, Lois and Bradley, will be given all the pep necessary in these active roles, by Jean Davis and Kezar Nichols. The very forceful part of the disagreeable Elliot Kimberley will be acted with power by Russell Franklin.

The above cast of characters are working with much interest and care under Miss Chapman's direction and if real sincere effort counts, a truly professional production ought to repay all our interested citizens who are planning to forego all engagements that they may encourage our young people in their annual dramatic event. The action of the play takes place in the living room of the Ingalls family during the Christmas vacation, Dec. 23, 29 and 30.

ADDRESSES ON THE PROPHETS FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

A series of addresses on the Hebrew Prophets and their messages for today are being given at the First Congregational Church for six successive Wednesday evenings by Prof. Frank K. Sanders, Ph.D. Professor Sanders was at one time professor of Old Testament History at the Yale Divinity School, and later Dean of the school. He has written several books on the Prophets, and is thoroughly equipt to speak on them. The public is cordially invited to hear him. His next lecture will be given next Wednesday, Jan. 11 and the subject will be "Amos, the Judean Prophet of Righteousness." Those who heard Professor Sanders last Wednesday were given a real treat.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The High School Parent Teacher Association will meet in the assembly hall on Monday, Jan. 23, at 8 p. m. An interesting program is to be presented by the Science Department. Refreshments and a social hour will follow. Parents, please reserve this date.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

One hundred per cent meetings are becoming familiar to Winchester Rotarians; the present week has contributed one and we are encouraged to believe that the future has many more in store for us.

Several things were responsible for the good attendance this week; the well nigh perfect winter's day, the first meeting of the New Year and last, but not least, the presence of our former District Governor, "Billy" Davis of Cambridge. "Billy" has always been popular with us. He was chiefly instrumental in forming the club, (we began to function in his administration), he has always kept a watchful and kindly eye on us, and he is possessed of a congenial personality.

His talk of Thursday carried conviction, that he is a Rotarian to the core, and has the power of conveying his enthusiasm to others. He made it plain that Rotary is an international organization and that our brothers over the seas are quite as earnest and hearty as ourselves in furthering the principles for which Rotary stands. It is not too much to expect that our association will exert a profound influence in causing the nations of the globe to adjust their differences on the basis of the Golden Rule.

President George announces that we may expect further accessions to our membership in the near future. This is the best of evidence that our club is in a healthy condition and in good repute with our townspeople.

We have to announce that beginning next week we shall start our exercises promptly at 12.15 p. m. instead of 12:30 p. m. as heretofore. Members will note that this is 15 minutes earlier than the previous schedule.

And now all together with "100 Per Cent" for the watchword.

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS DOWNER ANNOUNCED

A dinner given Saturday, Dec. 30, by Mr. and Mrs. Cutler B. Downer of Sheffield road, Winchester, was in honor of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Frances Downer, to Thomas McNair Righter, which was formally announced on that occasion. Mr. Righter is the son of Mrs. Thomas McNair Righter, of Princeton, N. J., formerly of Mt. Carmel, Pa., and the late Mr. Righter. Miss Downer attended the Rosemary School at Greenwich, Conn., and the Katherine Gibbs School in Boston. Mr. Righter prepared for college at Lawrenceville and is a member of the Senior class at Princeton. No announcement has been made regarding the probable time of the marriage of Miss Downer to Mr. Righter.

BELMONT TODAY AT BELMONT

Winchester High School's basketball team will strive to break into the winning column this afternoon at Belmont when it will meet Belmont High in a Middlesex League game. Belmont has for the past two seasons been instrumental in knocking Winchester out of the circuit title and the locals are out this season to get revenge. Coach Mansfield expects to start Halwartz and Kendrick at the forwards; Captain Ross at center; and Knowlton and "Barney" Murphy, guards. The boys looked both good and bad against Salem but can be relied upon to give Belmont a real battle.

The Selectmen have instructed their clerk to write the Metropolitan District Commission requesting the State to provide ladders and proper safety equipment at Mystic Lakes and other bodies of water in Winchester not under the jurisdiction of the Town. The Chief of Police has been instructed to post notices on any of the ponds under the Town's jurisdiction which he deems unsafe for skating.

SALEM EDGED WINCHESTER

An early game lead enabled Salem High School's rangy basketball team to defeat Coach Mansfield's Winchester outfit in the Salem gymnasium Wednesday evening by the close score of 24—23.

The game was played in a heated gym which was far and away too warm and the conditions seemed to bother the locals considerably.

Salem got the jump during the first half and with Captain Cecelski and Gilman, its big center, turning in some effective shooting left the floor at half time in the lead, 20—16.

Following intermission the locals came to life and succeeded in breaking up the Salem offense, permitting not a single basket during the entire third period. Guazio Amico, who replaced "Barney" Murphy toward the end of the first half, covered Cecelski so effectively that the crack Salem forward was done for the night.

Meanwhile Ray Halwartz, Winchester's veteran forward had popped up to score two fouls and a basket, knotting the count at the end of the quarter, 20 all.

Play was scarcely resumed when first Moulton and then Milner, shot baskets in rapid succession to give Salem a four point lead. Midway through the final quarter Ray cut the lead to two points with a pretty basket and in the last two minutes of play had a chance to even things when a double foul was called for him. He missed his first try, sinking the second, and leaving Salem with a one point margin which was held to the final whistle.

Winchester had several easy shots at the Salem net in the closing minutes of the game but all went wild. It really was the locals' game all the way after the half. The Winchester seconds were defeated by the Salem seconds between the halves of the main game, 15—4.

RALPH DUANE WHITNEY, Jr.

After 12 years of failing health, culminating in four years of invalidism, Ralph Duane Whitney, Jr., aged 22, son of Ralph Duane, and Grace Bruce Whitney, passed away Friday afternoon, Dec. 30, at his home, 865 Main street.

The young man was born at Westmorland, N. H., but came at an early age with his family to Woburn where he remained until coming to Winchester 12 years ago. Until forced by ill health to absent himself he had attended the public schools, having been a pupil at the Chapin and Prince buildings. He is survived by his parents and by one brother, Bruce W. Whitney of Winchester.

Funeral services were held on Saturday afternoon at the late residence and were conducted by Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. During the services Mrs. Norman Hitchcock sang "Safe in the Arms of Jesus." The interment was in Crystal Lake Cemetery, Gardner.

The Town of Concord has written the Board of Selectmen relative to the way in which the Zoning By-Laws are operating in Winchester and has requested information and suggestions regarding the installation of a similar code in that town.

REV. BENJAMIN P. BROWNE

BAPTISTS CALL PASTOR

Rev. Benjamin P. Browne Will Take Up Duties in February

The Baptist Church has called Rev. Benjamin P. Browne to be its new pastor. He will take up his duties about the first of February. Mr. Browne comes from [illegible] where he has [illegible] the First Baptist Church.

The committee found the type of man they wanted in Mr. Browne and the church called him because he seemed to have the desired qualifications needed to lead them in a forward step. He is not only considered one of the best preachers in the State of Maine, but he is noted for his earnest and energetic leadership. Mr. Browne is a native of Wiscasset and has been preaching since he was 16 years of age, being known as the boy minister of Maine. His previous pastorates were in Bath and Bangor.

His evangelical program is a valuable contribution. Wherever he has lived in the 15 years of his ministry, he has become very popular because of his ability to attract people to himself when they soon learn to believe in his genuineness.

Mr. Browne is very studious and began his early school training in the public schools of Newton and Boston. For some time he has been availing himself of the summer courses furnished by Boston University and Harvard.

While in his last field, he spent over $30,000 in improvement, and built up a large and active membership. He is popular with young people and has quite a following.

Being a man of considerable aggression, he has established the Rockland Summer Conference, which has brought some of our most distinguished speakers to Maine. He has served eight years on the Board of Managers of the United Baptists of Maine, is chairman of the Baptist State Evangelistic Committee. He Maine, is chairman of the Baptist State Ministers' Association, is on the Board of Directors of the Lord's Day League of New England and a recently elected member of the directors of the New England Evangelistic Association.

Mr. Browne is a personal friend of Dr. Massee of Tremont Temple, and has preached there as recently as last summer. He is held in high esteem by the strongest leaders in the Baptist denomination who have predicted a bright future for him.

Mrs. Browne is a very great help to her husband, being filled with abundant energy and having an attractive personality. She was president of the Boston Girls' High School, class of 1914, studied at the Gordon Bible College and the Faelton Pianoforte School, and is a chorister, organist, as well as soprano soloist. At the time of her marriage she was the soloist in the Brookline Baptist Church.

They have a delightful family of three children; Rachael, age 12; Priscilla, age 9; and Benjamin, age 6, and will make their home at 3 Webster street.

SARAH JULIA ROGERS

Sarah Julia Rogers, widow of Frederick M. Rogers, died Tuesday morning at her home, 23 Brookside road, following an illness of about a month. She was 80 years of age.

Mrs. Rogers was born at Bangor, Me., and was educated there, living in Maine until coming to Winchester seven years ago. She was a member here of the Second Congregational Church, taking an active interest in the work of the parish.

Surviving are a daughter, Mrs. F. S. Atwood, and a son, Dr. Arthur A. Rogers, both of Winchester; a sister, Mrs. H. C. Bagley of Winchester and a brother, W. S. Stewart of Manchester, N. H.

The funeral services were held on Thursday afternoon from the late residence and were conducted by the Rev. John H. Whitley, pastor of the Second Congregational Church. The interment was in Mt. Hope Cemetery, Bangor, Me.

FORMER WINCHESTER GIRL ANNOUNCED ENGAGEMENT

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Mary Aetha Bradshaw, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Edwin Bradshaw of Beacon street, Brookline, formerly of this town, to Paul Thayer Newton of New York, son of Mrs. Martha Paul Newton of that city and Scituate, and of the late George H. Newton, a well-known hotel proprietor. Miss Bradshaw was educated at the convent of the Sacred Heart, also at Lasell Seminary and at the Leland Powers School. Mr. Newton is a graduate of Amherst College, class of 1927.

CALUMET NOTES

[illegible]

... breakfast of 1928. Souvenirs were presented to each lady and gentleman on the way down. Fred Scholl prepared a bountiful and delicious meal made up of Hawaiian pineapple cocktail, fricassed with Vermont maple syrup, scalloped oysters, potato chips, buttered rolls, olives, pickles, coffee, (with and no. ?), fancy ices and cake. The party took leave shortly before one with a general pronouncement that a very good time was enjoyed.

Among those present were:

[illegible]

Some Side Lights

Excellent music was furnished by the Jordan Marsh Golden Anniversary Orchestra, the one who have had so much lately.

The hall was very prettily decorated.

The prize dances created a lot of interest and entertainment. Arthur Dickson came very near getting one of the "Lucky" number prizes but was handicapped by the fact that it was a lady's number. Nevertheless, he was gallant and presented it to Mrs. Pilkington.

President Brown almost came near getting the "Spot" dance prize but was in the same predicament as Dick, it being a lady's chance and won by Mrs. Raymond Walker, however, was nearest the spot.

Little Virginia was very charming as Miss 1928. Her dainty make up and pleasing manner captivated the audience. Her curtsey when receiving the presentation from President Brown was perfectly acknowledged and caught the crowd. Congratulations to you and yours, John.

Chairman Chase and his committee were a busy bunch. They kept things moving all the evening. The chairman was assisted by Dan Kelley, Frank Tuttle, Walter Chamberlin, Arthur Bowe, Ed. Merrill, George Willey and others.

Chairman Chase had a very bad cold and George Willey did some of the announcing for him. George is always equal to the occasion and willing also.

The souvenirs were very useful and acceptable.

Miss Frances Marsh, daughter of Mrs. [illegible] Marsh of Lloyd street, returned to her [illegible] at the Katharine Gibbs School this week after spending the Christmas recess at Bangor, Me.

SAFE BROKEN OPEN AT WEDGEMERE

When second-shift man Andrew Callahan of 7 Clark street unlocked Wedgemere Station of the B. & M. Railroad at 3:25 Sunday afternoon he discovered that sometime after 9:45 of the night previous the door to the ticket office had been forced and access to the safe had been gained by hammering the combination from the door. An examination disclosed the fact that the sum of $110 was missing from the safe.

Callahan immediately notified the police who began an investigation at once. Wedgemere is so situated as to lend itself admirably to such a job being in a lonesome spot some little distance from the roadway. The thief or thieves did their work with tools which they found in the station, indicating a certain amount of familiarity with the place.

JOSEPHINE GOODWIN

Josephine Goodwin, wife of William H. Goodwin and a former resident of this town, passed away on Tuesday, Jan. 2, at Portland, Me. Funeral services were held in Winchester this Friday morning at 11:30 in the Unitarian Church with the pastor, Rev. George Hale Reed, officiating. Burial was in Wildwood Cemetery. Mrs. Goodwin left Winchester about 10 years ago. While in town she made her home on Wildwood street in the house now occupied by Mr. E. Arthur Tutein. Her husband was until his removal to Portland prominent in Boston business circles.

THE BARTA CAMP REUNION

Elinor C. Barta, director of the Barta Camp, and a group composed of campers, councillors and parents gathered at the Winchester Country Club on Friday, Dec. 13 for a lively reunion.

As of last year all were urged to come prepared for skating. But King Winter decreeing a day or two of thaw changed that plan. However, there was plenty to do. In the dance hall, gay with holiday decorations, there were councilor and camper "stunts," moving pictures, many a lively chat before the open fire and group-singing around the piano.

A pile of attractive new catalogues and many photographs of last summer's fun reminded the girls of the jolly times of 1927 and promised the "best yet" summer-to-come.

At 1 o'clock all flocked into the sunny dining room for a delicious luncheon—then came dancing—and finally the reluctant good-byes.

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY

The Ladies' Friendly Society will meet Jan. 10 in the Unitarian Church. The executive board will meet at 11:30 a. m., Mrs. W. J. Drisko will serve luncheon at 1 o'clock. The Rev. Minna C. Budlong will be the speaker of the afternoon.

The first lesson on antiques will be given Wednesday, Jan. 11 in the afternoon at the home of Mrs. Watkins, 2 Ridgefield road. This lesson concerns early blown glass.

Assistant Cashier Henry B. Harris returned to duty at the Winchester National Bank this week after being confined for some time to his home by illness.

STORY HOUR RESUMED

The Winchester Public Library Story Hour, discontinued for the holiday season, begins again this Saturday, Jan. 7, at 3 p. m., when, it is hoped, the new plans for increasing the interest and enjoyability of the weekly meetings, and which have, for some time, been in careful formulation, will be put into practice. Circumstances have unfortunately occurred which have considerably delayed these plans; nevertheless, those in charge will make every effort to see that their benefit to the hour is interferred with as little as possible.

Since, however, he delay mentioned is a fact, it has been thought better not to make public the nature of the contemplated changes, as it is not, at present, altogether certain to just what degree they can be put into force, and the Library does not wish to disappoint the children unnecessarily by making public a program which it may not, as yet, be able to carry out. As soon as there is any certainty about the time when the new order will appear, the town is promised that it will be made known. Meanwhile, to whatever extent it is possible, the improving innovations will be introduced Saturday.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

At a bridge party at her home Saturday afternoon, Mrs. Arthur Earl Gates of Highland avenue announced the engagement of her daughter Ruth Carlisle Gates to Lyman Bradford Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Edward Smith of Wolcott terrace. Miss Gates is a member of the class of 1929 at Radcliffe College. Mr. Smith who is a member of the Kappa Sigma Fraternity and secretary of the New England Botanical Club was graduated from Harvard in 1925 and is now pursuing graduate work at the University. No date has been set for the wedding.

MASONS HELD OPEN HOUSE

About 200, one of the largest gatherings for some years, attended the annual New Year's open house held Monday from 11 until 1 o'clock in the Masonic Apartments under the auspices of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Mystic Valley Lodge, A. F. & A. M., and Winchester Royal Arch Chapter.

Worshipful Edward B. Smalley, Master of William Parkman Lodge, served as presiding officer for the informal exercises which included brief addresses by Right Worshipful William Wade of Woburn, District Deputy Grand Master of the 6th Arlington District; Senior Warden John Carruthers of Mystic Valley Lodge, High Priest Kingman P. Cass of Winchester Royal Arch Chapter and Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church.

At 12 noon Worshipful Ralph W. E. Hopper offered a toast to the Grand Master of the Most Worshipful Grand Lodge of Massachusetts, Most Worshipful Frank W. Simpson of Boston. There was a musical program played by Magee's Orchestra of seven pieces and community singing, accompanied by the orchestra and led by the inimitable George E. Willey. Several fine tenor solos were sung by Albert O. Wilson who was accompanied upon the piano by Kingman P. Cass. A light luncheon was served.

The gathering was characterized as one of the best yet held. Among those present were several whose association with local Masonry is of long standing. Numbered with the "old timers" were A. G. Dominey, Nathan Taylor and Fred E. Belcher.

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB TO HOLD ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Winchester Boat Club will be held on the evening of Wednesday, Jan. 11 at 8 o'clock at the Winchester office of the Edward T. Harrington Company, 39 Church street. This meeting will be for the purpose of electing officers and directors for the ensuing year and to transact such other business as may be brought before the meeting.

The nominating committee, composed of the following members, Messrs. Nathaniel G. Hill, Charles A. Gleason, Norman M. Mitchell, Marshall W. Symmes and James L. Fitch offers the following nominations for officers and directors of the club for the ensuing year:

President Arthur W. Topham.

MOTORISTS HELD UP IN WINCHESTER

Hold-up Men Had Revolver—Escaped in Automobile

Two hold-ups, the first occurring on High street and the second on Hutchinson road in the rear of the Country Club and near the Arlington line were reported to the police last Friday night. Those robbed in both instances were motorists, the thieves being described as young men who escaped in an automobile after threatening their victims with a revolver.

The first news which the local authorities had of the trouble was when headquarters was notified shortly after 11:15 p. m. by a man who gave his name as Edward Ball and his address as 193 Curve street, Dedham. Ball said that his machine was parked on Hutchinson road about 11:15 when it was approached by two young men, displaying a revolver and a flashlight. They demanded money and took $14 from Ball, after which they attempted to disable his machine before making their escape. The motorist was able to give the police only a meager description of the young men.

About midnight a second motorist, giving the name of Calvin D. Wentworth of 129 Lake street, Waltham, notified the police that his automobile, which was parked on High street, not far from the scene of the other robbery, had been held up at 9:30 that evening by one of two young men who in searching Wentworth for money had overlooked a $5 bill. While the first of the thieves was conducting the search the second remained in the background and following the robbery both drove away in an automobile. As in the case of the other hold-up a revolver and flashlight were used.

At Arlington police headquarters it was learned that patrolman Thomas Curran of the Arlington police had attempted to stop a flying automobile on Mystic street near the Arlington-Winchester line shortly after the hold-ups were said to have taken place. The machine had contained two men and was headed in the direction of West Medford. Later a car which the authorities believe is that used by the robbers was discovered abandoned on the Mystic Valley Parkway in the West Medford District. It had been reported earlier in the evening as stolen from Cambridge and was the property of William Cotter of 82 Lowell street, Somerville. The opinion held by the local police that the abandoned car is that used by the hold-up men in Winchester was strengthened by the fact that the report received by the Metropolitan District Police who were notified over the telephone by a woman that the car in question had been abandoned on the Parkway by two men. The Winchester authorities are investigating the whole occurrence but apparently have very little on which to work.

CARRIE A. HODGDON

Carrie A. Hodgdon, a resident here of long standing and the widow of Capt. Merrill E. Hodgdon, passed away Monday morning at her home on Washington street, following a two weeks' illness with pneumonia.

Mrs. Hodgdon was born 71 years ago at Vineyard Haven, the daughter of Capt. Richard and Caroline L. (Cottle) Norton. Her father, a sea captain, later was put in charge of the lighthouse at Tuspaulin Cove, Vineyard Haven, and it was in this salt water environment that the young girl grew to womanhood.

The call of the sea was in her blood and following her marriage in 1876 to Captain Hodgdon she shipped with her husband, sailing with him for more than 36 years.

In 1905 Mrs. Hodgdon came to Winchester and had since made her home here, her pleasing personality endearing her to all with whom she came in contact. She was a member of Vineyard Haven Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution. Surviving is one son, Merrill Hodgdon of Winchester.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon from the late residence and were conducted by the Rev. Henry E. Hodge, a former pastor of the First Baptist Church and at present pastor of the First Baptist Church at Putnam, Conn. The remains were taken to Vineyard Haven for interment Wednesday in Oak Grove Cemetery at that place.

WINCHESTER PARTY RETURNED FROM QUEBEC TUESDAY

Winchester members of Dr. Charles R. Tozier's winter sports party returned to town Tuesday afternoon from Quebec where they had been since the previous Friday with headquarters as usual at the Hotel Frontenac.

It was the fifth anniversary of the inception of the popular treks to the famous French hostelry at the "playground of the North," and in recognition of this fact the party was tendered by the Frontenac management a complimentary banquet on Friday evening with plenty of favors, noisemakers etc. The party arrived at the Chateau in time for breakfast Friday morning. The feature of the four days' stay at the Frontenac was the big masquerade ball on Saturday evening in which the members of the Winchester party participated. Motion pictures were shown on Sunday evening. Many of the local merrymakers were guests at the French New Year's Ball at the Chateau on New Year's Eve.

This year's party did not feature as many organized "team" games as in former years. Among the most popular of the new outdoor sports was "Indian Golf" a fascinating pastime played on snowshoes.

The Tozier party left Quebec at 3:30 Monday afternoon and arrived in Boston some three hours late, at 11 Tuesday forenoon. Included in the Winchester delegation were the Misses Georgiana and Barbara Watters, Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne, Miss Elizabeth Baldwin, Mr. and Mrs. James E. Downes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Harold F. Moyers, W. S. McLean, Miss Marjorie P. Root, Alden H. and Dean W. Symmes, Charles W. Tozier and "Billy" Tozier.

MOTION PICTURES AT HIGHLANDS CHURCH

Announcement was made this week by the Pastor, Rev. John H. Whitley, that on Sunday evening, Jan. 8, at 7 o'clock beautiful motion pictures depicting the 23rd Psalm, "The Lord is my Shepherd," will be shown in the Second Congregational Church on Washington street at Kenwin road. The public is cordially invited to attend.

FIRST FIRES OF 1928

The Fire Department answered its first call of the New Year on Sunday afternoon at 2:07 when Box 38 sounded at 2:07 for a fire in a shed at the rear of the residence of Carmine Tofuri at 4 Summer street. The shed was pratically destroyed before the arrival of the apparatus.

Monday morning at 7:45 Box 451 summoned the Department to the fire in Woburn at the plant of Thayer-Foss Company on Green street. The blaze was limited to an auxiliary building which was quite badly burned. Engine 1 and the Chief's car answered from Winchester.

At 3:15 Monday afternoon the men were called by telephone to put out a grass fire on Sargent road.

We are now carrying Whittemore's "Cleanall," the instant spot remover. Wilson the Stationer.

DRUNKEN DRIVER FINED

It may have been a case of too warm a welcome to the new year but at all events just three hours and twenty minutes after the arrival of 1928 a party of youthful merrymakers was stopped by Patrolman James E. Farrell of the police at the corner of Washington and Swanton streets when the progress which their Buick touring car was making excited the officer's suspicions.

Upon stopping the machine Farrell found it to be occupied by three young men and three girls. After questioning them he took the driver into custody and at Headquarters the later was booked on a charge of drunkenness and of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor. He gave his name as Herbert J. Marchand and his address as the Hotel Viking, Newport, R. I. His companions were not held by the police.

In the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning, Marchand was found guilty as charged. He was fined $50 on the drunken driving count. The other charge was filed.

BOY NARROWLY ESCAPED SERIOUS INJURY

James Scanlon, 10 year old son of Fireman and Mrs. Robert Scanlon of Lebanon street, had a narrow escape from serious injury shortly before 6 o'clock last Saturday evening when in stepping from the sidewalk in the center he ran against the side of a light truck, the property of Ralph & Smith, provision merchants of 612 Main street, the truck proceeding along Mt. Vernon street.

Young Scanlon was picked up by officer Henry Dempsey and taken to the Police Station where he was examined for possible injury by Dr. R. F. Brown. Finding the lad unhurt Dr. Brown drove him to his home in his car.

ELKS TO ENTERTAIN WOUNDED VETS

Arrangements are being made by Winchester Lodge of Elks to furnish a high class entertainment program for the wounded World War veterans at the government hospital at West Roxbury on Friday evening, Jan. 20. Cigarettes will also be provided for the boys by the members of the lodge.

The committee in charge of the arrangements include Arthur Hardy, Fred D. Clement, Nathaniel M. Nichols, Rufus Somerby and Maurice Dinneen.

We are now carrying Whittemore's "Cleanall," the instant spot remover. Wilson the Station.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

If we don't enjoy what we now have, we won't be a bit happier when we get more.

What you omitted to do yesterday may cause you some trouble today.

The essentials to happiness are something to do, something to love, and something to hope for.

Any mother who expects to enjoy her child as it matures must be alert in shaping that child's character.

Never envy a man because he is happy but try to be the same yourself.

THE TOWN OF WINCHESTER IS MORALLY, IF NOT LAWFULLY RESPONSIBLE

To the Editor of the Star:

Some few weeks ago it was my privilege to be invited to a meeting of the Winchester Legion and preceding my little movie exhibition I heard a discussion relative to a fund of $1200 which the boys have managed to scrape together.

It occurred to me then, what if instead of the monument down across the pond, there had been established a permanent fund of $50,000.00 the income of which could be used for the relief of World War Veterans, who might be in distress or need.

The fact that I was away in Europe or some other place does not excuse me from a certain responsibility of what my fellow townsmen did at a town meeting.

If I am not present and the people vote $1,200,000 for new school houses or $50 for the pound keeper's salary, I am required to pay my proportionate part of the taxes just the same.

No group of people could get together on a suitable memorial of utilitarian value, so the town-people took the easy way through the back door and not wishing to pin themselves down to an additional cent of taxes, which they knew they'd have to pay, voted "to let George do it" and raise the $50,000 by popular subscription.

In my own home, if it comes to a question between a needed new furnace and a desired oil painting, and we cannot afford both, the heater gets the right of way.

Frankly, I wasn't in favor of anything but a memorial which would be of use, especially as there are any one of a half dozen types, which would have been and still are needed.

I know that you'll say, "But what could we build with $50,000?" Not much, I'll grant, but if we had gone out for a half million for a town hall, or more or less for a library, a gymnasium, an athletic building, or an aviation field, the people would have raised the money by push and pull and today we would have a suitable and worth while memorial instead of an inanimate piece of bronze, which no one pays much attention to.

I didn't contribute to the fund for the monument, because I didn't believe in it, much as I love things artistic and beautiful, but I shall, to ease my conscience, unless the town does the right thing.

The people voted the monument and apparently many who voted failed to come across. It certainly isn't fair for Mr. Parkhurst to spend out of his pocket $5 or more thousand dollars, nor Mary Jones ten cents, and the rest of us non-contributors get off Scott free.

There's only one way for the Town of Winchester to clear its skirts of this discraceful affair and that is to incorporate in the next Town Warrant an item of $50,000 to pay for the Memorial, the amount to be spread upon the tax bills and the money paid back to Mr. Parkhurst and the other contributors.

The Town voted—the Town is responsible.

Ernest Dudley Chase

MAKE A RESOLUTION TO KEEP A RESOLUTION

Make a resolution to keep a resolution! The common fate of most New Year resolutions is well known—complete and absolute extinction before the end of the month. Head your list of resolutions with one that aims at improving your health and then concentrate all efforts toward its realization.

The boys and girls of Massachusetts have a Health Creed. The guide posts for healthy living are stated clearly and simply in this creed. Check over your living according to the standards of the children's health creed, grown-ups.

"I will strive—

To keep my body clean within and without;

To breathe pure air and to live in the sunlight;

To do no act that might endanger the health of others;

To try to learn and practise the rules of healthy living;

To work and rest and play at the right time and in the right way, so that my mind will be strong and my body healthy, and so that I will lead a useful life and be an honor to my parents, to my friends and to my country."

Make that creed your foremost resolution and live up to it and 1928 will be a healthier and happier year.

HARVARD SCOUT AND RADIO MAN GUESTS OF LEGION

It was another football night for members of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, Wednesday evening when the Legionnaires were treated to an intimate talk upon the great fall sport by "Jimmie" Knox, for many years a member of the Harvard coaching staff and long the head of the Crimson's very efficient scouting system. With "Jimmie" as the guest of the Post was "Bob" Burlen, widely known radio announcer at Station WEEI, who also entertained the local veterans with his rapid-fire address dealing with things "backstage" in the radio game.

The meeting was transferred from the Legion House on Washington street to the High School Assembly Hall and the entire school football squad, with Coaches Wendell D. Mansfield and R. V. Hayward, invited to attend as guests of the Post. Unfortunately few of the boys availed themselves of the opportunity offered to hear a recognized football authority, a varsity basketball game with Salem High School at Salem being the conflicting date.

Seated on the platform of the assembly hall with Comndr. W. Allen Wilde and Vice-Comndr. Richard Parkhurst were "Jimmie" Knox, "Bob" Burlen, former School Committeman Robert F. Guild and "Joe" Pendleton, Dean of football officials. Rufus H. "Rufe" Bond, coach of Winchester's championship eleven of 1922 and a present member of the Harvard football coaching staff, was also among the guests and there were several ex-service men present who were not members of Winchester Post.

A brief business meeting was presided over by Commander Wilde who then called upon "Bob" Guild, himself a former Harvard coach and player, to introduce "Jimmie" Knox. Mr. Guild touched briefly upon the latter's long record as a coach and scout, and aroused the laughter of his hearers when he alluded to "Jimmie" as never having coached a team defeated by Yale. While Mr. Knox is widely known in sporting circles as coach of the Harvard second team, Mr. Guild explained that he had made his chief reputation as a scout, one of the most important individuals upon the entire football roster.

Mr. Knox spoke intimately of football, stressing first the impossibility of anywhere nearly covering the subject. His point of view, that of a coach and scout, was one different from that of other speakers upon the sport whom the Legionnaires had heard on previous occasions. He limited himself to a few of the more important phases of the game and emphasized the advance which the specialist in football has over the boy who can do nothing especially well, yet is a good all around player. He spoke of the fame won by "Vic" Kennard, Harvard drop-kicking star who defeated Yale in 1908 with a field goal, and urged high school boys to perfect themselves in kicking, passing, interfering, etc., that they might more easily win recognition from varsity coaches who often overlook the mere plodder. Mr. Knox also emphasized the need for better grounding in fundamental football among high school boys, stating that many a college coach has to waste valuable time teaching new men barnyard football which should have been assimilated before college is reached. An interesting statement was that to the effect that boys are today coming to college in poorer physical condition than that attained before the ownership of automobiles became general. The speaker urged his listeners to walk and run more as the first step toward better health.

After an extensive blackboard talk on some of the technical problems met by the coach, such as adapting the defense to certain types of offense and the difficulty of getting men out of the line to form interference, Mr. Knox went rather deeply into college scouting which he favors strongly.

He likened a team without the assistance of scouting to a group of boys told that they must take examinations, yet kept in ignorance of the subjects in which they are to be quizzed. Mr. Knox stated that most college scouting was done strictly in the open and that everywhere hostile scouts were well treated by coaches and players who do everything possible to make it easy for accredited visitors.

Following Mr. Knox "Joe" Pendleton was introduced and spoke briefly relating several amusing anecdotes collected during his many years of officiating all over the country.

At this point the meeting adjourned to the Legion home where refreshments were served before "B-b" Burlen was introduced by Commander Wilde.

Mr. Burlen proved himself a fine impersonator and a master entertainer, relating humorous stories one so closely upon another that his audience was soon in high spirits.

He stated that he could not go into the technical details of radio broadcasting but was willing to answer any other questions which might come to mind. Several were shot at him at once. Among them was the querry as to why the big broadcasting hook-ups persist in using Graham McNamee for sporting events when he apparently is not well acquainted with the technical side of athletics. Particularly was McNamee's broadcast of the Stanford-Pitt game on New Year's Day criticised.

In reply Burlen stated that the radio companies gave the people what they wanted and that a majority would rather hear McNamee's chatter about the crowd and setting for games than to have the actual playing of them accurately recorded.

The speaker closed his remarks with a discussion of the trend in radio programs and the reasons for certain types of entertainment.

We are showing the new Compo-Art, an art construction game, which has the endorsement of many art instructors. The children unconsciously absorbe much valuable instruction. Wilson the Stationer.

WINCHESTER BOYS DROWN IN HORN POND

Augustine Rosa and Daniel Harrigan Broke Through Ice While Skating

Winchester's reception to the New Year was tinged with sadness when it became known through rumor that two boys, Augustine Rosa, 16, of 24 Glenwood avenue and Daniel Harrigan, 13, of 21 Glenwood avenue, had been drowned Sunday afternoon in the waters of Horn Pond in Woburn while skating on the cove at the southern extremity of the lake near the pumping station of the Woburn Water Department.

The two boys were accompanied by Joseph Shea, 13, of 17 Glenwood avenue and James Geoghegan, 13, of 23 Glenwood avenue. James Rosa, 15, brother of Augustine, was at the pond but had not ventured onto the ice.

In most places throughout the cove the ice was several inches thick but here and there were thin places, some of which were barely frozen over, was onto two such thin spots, about 75 feet apart, that first Harrigan and then Rosa skated, both boys being immediately precipitated into the icy water.

They came to the surface quickly and called for help, managing to keep themselves afloat by clinging to the jagged edges of the ice. Geoghegan and Shea, finding themselves unable to help, went ashore while James Rosa ran quickly to the pumping station where he informed engineer Edward Pollard and fireman John O'Brien of the accident. The two men obtained a ladder and some rope, hastening to the cove where the two boys were still clinging to the ice, calling for help.

Starting out over the ice, the weight of the men began to tell and it was left for the lighter James Rosa to worm his way out inch by inch with the ladder. Approaching his brother, who was the nearer, James attempted to get the ladder into a position where it could be grasped by the rapidly tiring lad. Several times as the former worked his way along Augustine's numbing hands slipped from the ice and just as James had reached a place where he could seize his brother's hands Augustine lost his grip and sank from sight.

Wasting no time, James at once turned his attention to young Harrigan but once again his courageous attempt at rescue came to late, Daniel being unable to maintain his grip upon the ice until he could be reached.

While the attempt at rescue was in progress a telephone message from the pumping station brought a fire department ladder truck, with firemen John Connell, Clarence Kerrigan, John Quigley, John McMaster and mechanician John McGann. They laid a bridge of ladders from the shore to the holes where the boys had disappeared, but were unable to do more.

Policemen arrived, and an alarm from the pumping station brought the rest of the Fire Department. Boats were obtained from a boathouse at the end of the lake, and loaded on trucks of the Horn Pond Ice Company. Firemen, under the direction of Chief Frank E. Tracey and Capt. Michael Cuneo, went to work with axes, cutting a channel from the shore for the boats.

In the first boat, after the channel had been cut, went Police Sergt. W. Henry Sweeney and patrolman Arthur A. Fay and mechanician Jack McGann. They soon discovered that the boat, unused for two and a half years, when boating on the pond was stopped, was extremely unseaworthy.

Bodies Found Quickly

However, despite the momentary danger of the boat going under, the firemen and police continued their work. Meanwhile, firemen and police were cutting another channel for a boat in which Capt. Patrick Fluherty of Engine 1 and Ladderman John Connell went out.

Both boat crews used drags. The first crew out soon found the body of Rosa, and not long afterward the second brought up the body of Harrigan. Meantime, a big crowd had gathered, with many hundreds of cars parked along Arlington road, Lake avenue, Cove street and Woburn Parkway. With a combination of squall and snow storm, conditions were very bad.

Augustine Rosa, the elder of the two victims, was born in Cambridge, son of Nicholas and Theresa Rosa. He came with his parents to make his home in Winchester several years ago and was graduated from the Waldleigh Grammar School last June, being employed at the time of his death in a local store. He was a member of St. Mary's Church. Surviving, besides his parents, are two sisters, Commella and Ida Rosa, and two brothers, Anthony and James Rosa, all of Winchester.

Daniel Harrigan was the son of John C. and Ellen Harrigan and was born in Winchester. He was a pupil in the Waldleigh School, where the flag was lent at half staff in his honor until after the funeral on Wednesday. He was a member of the Junior Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Parish and also attended St. Mary's Sunday School. Besides his parents he is survived by three sisters, Catherine, Josephine and Mary Harrigan, and by two brothers John and James Harrigan, all of Winchester.

Funeral services were held for both boys on Wednesday morning with high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church. Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley officiated at the mass for young Harrigan which was at 9 o'clock while Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan was celebrant at that for Rosa, one hour later. The latter was buried in the City Cemetery, Cambridge. Harrigan's interment took place at Calvary.

"Bugs" Don't Charge for It

Science, we are informed, is coming to the aid of farming by doing a job for him formerly done only by a kind of bacteria. The job is to take the nitrogen out of the air and turn it into a nitrogen compound which can be used as fertilizer. The bacteria do a better job than that. They put it right on the roots of the plant and don't charge a cent.—Capper's Weekly.

Some questions and answers about our Christmas Club

What is the purpose of the Christmas Club?

The purpose is to help you and others to accumulate a sum of money for a definite purpose.

In what manner does the Christmas Club accomplish this purpose?

The Christmas Club meets a popular demand by enabling those who make use of it to lay by small amounts weekly.

Does everybody pay in the same?

No, there are several classes, and the payments are different in each class.

Is there a membership fee or any cost to join?

No.

What shall I do to become a member?

All that is necessary is to go to the bank, ask to be enrolled as a member, and make the first week's payment or more.

How are the payments to be made?

Weekly, or in advance for as many weeks as you desire.

What will happen if I cannot keep up my payments?

If for any reason you discontinue your payments you will be paid the amount you have paid in, at the close of the Club term.

When and how can I withdraw?

Under no circumstances will any withdrawals, either in whole or in part, be allowed in advance. What you deposit will be held for you until the close of the Club term.

What form of receipt do I get when I make payments?

Each member is furnished with a pass book containing fifty double coupons, one of which is detached when the deposit is made, the other remaining in the book, both having been stamped paid by the bank.

What would happen if my Coupon Book was lost, stolen or destroyed?

As we have a complete record of the payments of every member, we will pay you whether you have your receipts or not. We will also give you a fresh book to go on with.

Can I become a member of more than one class?

Yes; you can join one or all of the classes.

When are payments due?

Payments are due Monday of each week, or may be made at any time during the calendar week. They may be made for as many weeks in advance as the depositor desires.

CALUMET NOTES

The 1928 New Year's card containing the "Menyou" was very attractive. It was the product of the Rust Craft Publishers, of which Ernest Chase is an official. The "Menyou" itself was a puzzle to us until we began to eat and many of us had a fine time deciphering what we were going to eat.

Fred Scholl's breakfast was very appetizing and we rather imagined he was pretty well cleaned out. It was not the scarcity, Fred, but the deliciousness.

Miss Virginia's little dog was more bashful than herself. John, true to police regulations, had him on a leash.

Mrs. Dickson had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Walter Yost of Hartford, Conn. and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Bond of Winchester.

Mr. and Mrs. Williams had as guests Mr. and Mrs. Parker.

Tonight at 6:30 the ladies will furnish a supper for members and their adult families followed by bridge. The charge will be 50 cents for either supper or bridge or for both. We predict there will be a large attendance because we all had such a good time on the previous one.

The mixed bowling will start on Monday, Jan. 30. Cards will be sent out soon, which members are requested to sign promptly and mail. It will be difficult to accommodate last comers on account of the detail involved.

On Tuesday, the regular ladies' afternoon bowling will take place. A good opportunity, ladies, to get in some practice for the mixed tournament.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 14, there will be a Smoker and African Big Game Talk and Movies by Mr. Morse of Lowell who comes very well recommended. Afterwards there will be bowling, cards, and a general good time. Saturday night lunch will be served.

Matches Begin After Holidays for Final Lap

Bowling matches in the winter tournament at the Calumet Club commenced on Tuesday evening after a curtailment of the schedule over the holidays. On this evening teams 10 and 18 each won three points both just missing a straight four by losing their second strings by three pins. Team 31 also was a three-point winner. Teams 3, 28 and 23 were the losers. Many good individual scores were made, the list being as follows:

Telling Age of Turtle

There is no sure way in which to determine the age of a hard shell turtle. In most instances the plates are examined closely with a microscope and on these plates there can be noticed scale expansion. This scale expands as the turtle grows, leaving a ring of growth. These rings are counted the same as those of a tree.

Ancient Insurance Body

The first directors' meeting of the first fire insurance company in this country was held in Philadelphia on May 11, 1752. This was the Philadelphia Contributionship for the Insurance of Houses from Loss by Fire and is still in existence. Benjamin Franklin was a member of the board of directors.

Relic of Roman Rule

A Roman memorial stone which probably dates from the Fourth century was discovered by workmen laying a drain in York, England. The find is interesting as indicating the line of the Roman road to the north of York, it being the practice in Roman times to place these memorial stones close to the roads.

Advance Information

Every trade has its stock of well-known yarns, but occasionally a new one does occur only, alas, in time to become a classic. A certain well-known newspaper man was holding forth to a group of writers among whom was a rather famous novelist. The journalist was saying that he had recently been engaged in revising the obituaries held in readiness by his paper. Turning to the novelist, he added jocosely: "I've just been writing you up."

But the novelist, apparently, had not been following very closely. Waking up with a start, he asked eagerly: "When is it going to be published?"

Honor Queen's Memory

Queen Louise of Prussia is buried in the garden of the palace at Charlottenburg in Germany. A mausoleum and a recumbent statue have been erected on the site. It is the custom among admirers of the queen to place wreaths on the grave on the anniversary of her birth or death.

Nothing Left

Little Ted, five years old, was continually losing his pencils in school. Seldom an evening went by that he didn't come home in tears because he had lost his pencils again.

To put an end to it, his mother wrote Ted's name on them one morning. That evening he came home weeping as usual.

"What's wrong?" asked his mother.

"They're gone again," stammered Ted through his tears; "name and all."

Old Nick

Old Nick is an ancient name for the devil derived from that of the Neck or Nikke, a river ocean god of the Scandinavian popular mythology. "British sailors," says Sir Walter Scott, poet and novelist "who fear nothing else, confess their terrors for this terrible being, and believe him the author of almost all the various calamities to which the precarious life of a seaman is so con[illegible] exposed."

Scott wrote this [illegible] ago, and superstition [illegible]ed since then.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NEWS

Mr. Albert Leonard Squier will present an illustrated lecture on "South America of Today" at the meeting on Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Town Hall. One of the talented musical members of the club, Mrs. Helen Hegel Smith, 'cellist will provide the musical part of the program.

Mr. Squier's South America is peculiarly his own. He has been in the places and has seen the people he talks about. He has made the largest private collections of pictures of the Southern continent. He will show over 200 of these during the lecture.

Art Committee

On Wednesday, Jan. 18 at 2:30 p. m., the Art Committee will have a lecture at the home of Mrs. Mary T. Ghirardini, 12 Foxcroft road. The lecturer, Mrs. Kojiro Tomito, will speak on "The Symbolism of Japanese Art." Her talk will be most interesting and well worth hearing.

Dramatic Committee

Tuesday, Jan. 3, the ladies of the Fortnightly enjoyed the third program in dramatic play-reading presented by the Dramatic Committee. The popularity of these afternoons has increased with each performance and after this afternoon's presentation of "Unto the Third Generation" by Frances A. Saltonstall and "Fleurrette and Company," the audience was very enthusiastic in their praise of the players and Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle by whom they were trained and coached.

Mrs. McGaragle, who is chairman of the dramatic committee explained in a few words, the presence of books in the hands of the actors as a means of avoiding the payment of royalty and introduced the cast to the audience.

The first play, "Unto the Third Generation," as its name implies was of a serious tone. The action is laid in the refined home of the aristocratic Perkins family in rural New England. Mrs. Blanche S. Reynolds, as Mrs. Mather, miss Mattie Perkins' elder sister, carried the whole play to the end of its tragic story. She made everyone feel the sorrow she had endured, the past she continued to live with and realize the truth, centuries old, "the Sins of the Father's are visited upon the Children, even unto the third and fourth Generation."

Mrs. Christine Hayden, as Matilda Perkins, bustled as only a thorough New England old maid can hustle and hustle and miss what it's all about in her feverish excitement for doing in the house and town.

But it took Mrs. Mabel G. Nichols, the 70 year old hired girl, Sophia, "to see things as is" and typify the hired girl who exists now only in legend.

Mrs. Dorothy Ward Sloeum as Lydia, Mrs. Mather's ward, brought in the fragrance and romance of youth and when Mrs. Marguerite Loftus as Gordon Merriam, an officer in the U. S. Aviation Corp, in her portrayal of the upright, eager lover, discovers that his share in paying the tragic debt compels that there shall be no third generation there is not a dry eye in the audience. What greater tribute could be given the cast?

In "Fleurxette and Company" the audience was taken to quite another atmosphere. Here in the home of an up-to-the-minute society woman during war times, Mrs. E. Pauline Buckley as Madam Dufour, engaged in a battle of wits with Miss Clara Wood as Mrs. Margaret Paynter. Chic and all French from her accent to her patriotism, we saw Mrs. Buckley sail along in her manifold role of solicitor for soldiers, chairvoyant, and blackmailer to the business like Fleurrette, who drives an honest bargain and does not let the audience forget the "and Company" her babes.

Miss Wood, in playing opposite Mrs. Buckley, played equally well her roles of ruthless vampire, unscrupulous society woman, and ended a contrite wife and loyal supporter of "Fleurxette and Company."

The afternoon closed with a dainty tea. Mrs. Christine Hayden and Mrs. Anita McGaragle presided at the tea table.

ODD FELLOWS' HOUSEWARMING ON NEW YEAR'S DAY

A New Year's housewarming was held at the Odd Fellows' Home on Vine street, during the afternoon and evening of Monday, Jan. 2. The home was visited by several hundred people during the day. Members and friends called to inspect the new quarters and visit a while with friends.

A fine supper was served to about 170 at 6:30. The first meeting in the Lodge room was held at 8 o'clock by Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows. The officers were all present to welcome a large attendance for the initial meeting of the New Year. After the meeting a progressive whist tournament was held in the banquet hall while bridge was enjoyed by others in the small hall.

A victrola and radio loaned by members furnished the music which further added to the homelike atmosphere.

Deputy Grand Master Thompson was the guest of the day.

Those who have seen the home have been loud in their praise for the way the interior has been redecorated and furnished. The members have worked untiringly to have everything in readiness for the opening party on New Years' which came up to all expectations, in that everyone had a very pleasant afternoon and evening.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The year 1928 seems destined to stand out as one of the most important of the 53 that compass the history of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

The organizations opposed to prohibition are using every means in their power by misstatements and open opposition to break down the faith of the American people in prohibition as the best method of dealing with the liquor question. This year when party platforms are being made and officers elected, from President down to the lowly office-holder, there is need of increased activity and hearty co-operation on the part of the W. C. T. U. membership. Jan. 16 marks the official death of the liquor traffic in this country and the birth of National Constitutional Prohibition.

"The greatest boon that ever came to a country." There are yet many who refuse to accept the verdict that the liquor traffic is dead for all time and who persist in trying to revive it under one form or another.

Jan. 16, 1928 is the eighth birthday of prohibition and the W. C. T. U. call upon all friends of the 18th amendment to do all in their power to counteract the misstatements of the wets.

Tell of the benefits already derived by our country in spite of lax enforcement of the law. We trust that the churches of this town will this month stress the facts of prohibition and let the general public understand that prohibition at its worst is better than the old license system.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Those who like pictures that tell an intensely interesting story should see "Spotlight," starring beautiful Esther Ralston, which is now playing at the Granada Theater in Malden. "The Spotlight" is a story of the stage with an exceptionally fine plot, one that holds the interest and keeps everybody guessing until the eminently satisfactory ending. Billy Sharp & Co. in the revue "Fingers and Feet" heads the five act bill of vaudeville the Granada is offering the last three days of this week. It is a pretentious offering with six capable artists. Croh and His Piano Hounds, an artistic novelty, is another big feature on the current variety bill.

Richard Dix in "The Gay Defender" comes to the Granada next Monday for a run of three days. "The Gay Defender" affords the star a dashing role in this stirring tale of California in the days when the "forty-niners" ruled with an iron hand. The regular five act bill of selected Granada vaudeville, together with the Symphony Orchestra, under the direction of Chester Mason, and organ specialties by Roy Frazee, will be added features for the first three days of next week.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

Winchester Branch extends to all of its friends and benefactors a sincere wish for a bright, happy and prosperous New Year. The next regular meeting will be held next Thursday evening in Whites' Hall at which time plans for our next social night which will take place Thursday evening, Jan. 26, will be made. Also reports on quarterly meeting which was held at League Clubhouse, Dec. 12.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The feature pictures at the University for four days beginning Sunday are "Judgement of the Hills" with Virginia Valli and Frankie Daro and "Silk Stockings" with Laura La Plante.

"Judgement of the Hills," a drama of the Kentucky mountaineers, is a motion picture version of "Down Our Way," the last story written by one of the most famous of native American authors, the late Larry Evans. This exceptional film is exciting much comment on account of its accurate depiction of the life of the hill district.

"Silk Stockings" starring Laura La Plante is a light, exhilarating story of a young married couple. It is one replete with gay moments and is so human that every person now married or contemplating matrimony will appreciate the farcial situations into which the young couple plunge themselves.

For the last three days of the week the outstanding picture is "Les Miserables" from the immortal story by Victor Hugo. Gabriel Gabrio, film idol of France, accomplishes a remarkable portrayal in the role of Jean Valjean, considered by many to be the most lovable character in fiction. Javert, the terrible; Father Myriel, the saintly; lovely Cosette and her poet lover;—all these are brought to life with the force of truth. The affecting sequences in the old Toulon prison are deeply moving and real. They were taken on the actual ground, with convicts as extra players. The court room at Arras, where Valjean lays down his liberty to save an innocent man—this is highly dramatic and pathetic. The stirring scenes of the historic Barricades made up a great drama within a drama. Al these flashes from a truly epic drama will live long in memory.

On the same program is "The Poor Nut" with Jack Mulhall and Charlie Murray.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S FEDERATION HELD WATCHNIGHT SERVICE

The first annual watchnight service of the newly formed Young People's Interchurch Federation was held on last Saturday evening in the chapel of the First Congregational Parish House, commencing at 11:15. President Gilbert Hook of the Federation lead the service and delivered the address. There was congregational singing with organ accompaniments by Mrs. Lena Corthell. The New Year was ushered in with appropriate ceremony at midnight.

Preceding the chapel service there was an entertainment and chalk talk by Charles Donelson well known cartoonist, attached to the staff of the Boston Herald. Many well known local characters were mentioned in the artist's humorous rapid fire wisecracking and his clever sketching was much enjoyed. Following the entertainment general dancing and bridge were enjoyed. Refreshments were served under the direction of the committee, comprising Miss Priscilla Laraway, Chairman; Miss Betty Sawyer, Gordon Gillette and Donald Bates.

WHY DR. MEAD GETS A HEARTY WELCOME

In The Jolly Samaritan, one of the score or more publications edited by Thomas Drier, this paragraph about Dr. George Mead appeared recently:

"Every once in a while I think it would be fun to be afflicted with some illness which would not interfere too much with my enjoyment of life. My reason for amusing myself with that sort of thought is that if I were ill I might be visited regularly by Dr. George Mead of Winchester. Being a healthy sort of animal I haven't starred as a patient for a long time, but Dr. Mead almost persuades me to get sick. The chances are, though, that I couldn't enjoy my sickness very long. Dr. Mead would laugh and talk me into being healthy again. I can talk about this doctor without violating any professional code because he has practically retired. As he said to me one day just before he left for the summer in the White Mountains, 'One of the advantages of being old is that one escapes being called a loafer when one loafs.' Dr. Mead's talk, plus his personality, cures many sick minds."

WOMAN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the club was held in Fortnightly Hall Wednesday afternoon with the president, Mrs. Fessenden in the chair. Before the hour of opening the program, the S. R. O. sign might have been displayed. After the routine business was dispatched the meeting took on a holiday character with Miss Helen Howe original monologist as entertainer. Miss Howe came to us sponsored by such literary lights as Professor Charles Townsend Copeland and Mr. McGregor Jenkins, so that our expectations were raised to a very high pitch; and it is not faint praise to say that we were not disappointed.

Miss Howe gave seven selections, and in each she seemed actually to be the character she was impersonating. In the boat ride selection we really felt the qualms of sea-sickness and we have called on little Ogden's mother more than once. Perhaps Miss Howe reached the high-water mark in the Cape Cod House sketch, the pathetic appeal of which brought a tear to the eye of many a listener. Altogether the afternoon furnished a rare treat to an enthusiastic audience of nearly 200 members and guests.

That the Women's Republican Club is making a distinct appeal to the people of the town is shown by the fact that in December, the busiest month of the year, 25 new names have been added to the membership bringing the total number to more than 300.

Dr. Mary T. Maynard, President of the Fortnightly and also of the Boston Parliamentary Law Club was a guest of honor and one of the speakers at the Old Glory Club President's Day, Dec. 30, at the Home Craft Demonstration Shop, 711 Boylston street, Boston.

PUPILS OF MRS. LEWIS IN RECITAL

The annual Christmas social and recital of the pianoforte pupils of Mrs. Annie Soule Lewis was held on New Year's eve in Fortnightly Hall which was well filled with parents and friends of the young performers.

A most interesting program of sufficient length was presented, featuring selections played as solos and in arrangement for four, six and eight hands. The eight hand arrangement of Engelmann's "Taps" played on one piano by Priscilla Frost, Dorothy Harrington, Beulah Desmond and Mrs. Lewis showed unusual technical proficiency and painstaking instruction. It is a musical "stunt" attempted in recital by few teachers.

The entire program was presented this year by pupils without the assistance of guest artists. As usual Mrs. Lewis added much to the enjoyment of the evening with her interpretive remarks concerning the selections played and spoke interestingly of two Christmas seasons which she had spent at Leipzig in Germany.

COLONEL CHASE TO BE GUEST AT ROYAL ARCH MEETING

Winchester Royal Arch Masons are looking forward to their regular meeting night on Jan. 20, when the Most Excellent Degree will be worked on a class of seven candidates, following which Lieut.-Col. Harry G. Chase of Boston will be the Chapter's guest for a social hour. This innovation is in line with plans to provide a special feature at each monthly meeting, among the previous speakers having been Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook and District Deputy Edwin C. Perkins.

Colonel Chase, who is Division Quartermaster of the 26th (Yankee) Division, will talk on "Danger Spots," dealing with the Balkan States of Europe, of which he has made a study for sometime. The discussion will be illustrated by charts which have been prepared under the Colonel's direction.

Few now active on the 26th Divisional Staff have performed more continuous military service. Colonel Chase first enlisted in Troop A, First Battalion of Cavalry, in 1904, transferring to the Second Brigade Staff in 1906 and later becoming 1st Lieutenant in the Signal Corps, M. V. M. By 1911 he had become Chief Divisional Signal Officer, having command of the First Field Signal Battalion with the rank of Major.

Following service on the Mexican border, he went overseas, to become Commandant of the Signal School, First Corps A. E. F., at Chatillon-sur-Seine, which later became the official training school of the A. E. F. for signal service. At the end of extended study at the University of the Sorbonne, he was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, returning home to take the post of State Quartermaster for Massachusetts, with offices in the State House. He is a graduate of the War College of the General Staff at Washington.

POLICE GET TWO GUN-MEN

Acting on Tip, With Arlington Officers, Get Wanted Young Bandits

The chance recognition by a young man of a former school-mate, followed by some effective police work on the part of Winchester and Arlington authorities led to the arrest at midnight Tuesday in Arlington of two heavily armed young men whom the local police connect with a series of robberies which have taken place on or near High street during the past few weeks.

The young robbers were arrested by Sergt. William H. Rogers and officer John Hanlon of the Winchester Police with the assistance of officers Thomas Curran and William Burns of the Arlington department in Arlington center not far from the fire station on Massachusetts avenue, after a futile effort to locate the first named at their respective homes.

At 11 o'clock Tuesday night police headquarters here was notified by the Arlington police of a holdup alleged to have taken place on Hutchinson road in Winchester, a lonely section on high land not far from High street. As in the case of previous hold-ups throughout the same district a motorist had been robbed while his machine was parked, by two men armed with revolvers and a flashlight.

Lieut. John Harrold, who was in charge at headquarters, dispatched Sergeant Rogers and officer Hanlon in the police Ford to investigate. A careful search of the vicinity of the crime disclosed nothing and the two policemen hastened to the Arlington police station in search of further evidence.

Arrived there they were told the story by one of the alleged victims, Paul Dalton of Arlington, who stated that he had been parked with a young lady friend on Hutchinson road at about 10:45 when his machine was approached by two young men. Throwing the rays of a flashlight into his face and showing a revolver they demanded his money and that of his companion. Dalton gave them his pocketbook and some jewelry, the robbers overlooking a large sum of money which he had loose in his pocket. The young lady, as the men approached the car, placed her diamond ring in her mouth and was not molested by the bandits.

Following the robbery the men disabled Dalton's machine and left in a Ford roadster. A close search resulted in Dalton's finding the part which had been removed from his automobile and he was soon able to start the motor. Making all haste he drove to Arlington where he told his story to the police. He added that while he was being robbed he thought he had recognized one of the bandits as a former schoolmate of his and named a young man who made his home in Arlington.

Accompanied by Dalton and officer Thomas Curran of the Arlington police Sergeant Rogers and officer Hanlon drove in the police Ford to 430 Massachusetts avenue where the young man named by the victim of the robbery was said to live. There it was learned that man in question was not at home but was known to be in the company of a second young man whose parents lived nearby.

At the second house the police were told that the son of the house made his home on Lewis avenue in Arlington and that he chummed habitually with the first youth wanted for the robbery.

On their way to Lewis avenue the police stopped on Massachusetts avenue near the Arlington Fire Station for a word with patrolman Burns of the Arlington department. The latter informed them that the two young men for whom they were searching were in a nearby lunch cart and had parked their machine not far from where the police were standing.

As officer Burns pointed out the car it backed away from the curb and swung into Massachusetts avenue heading toward Harvard square.

Sergeant Rogers quickly drove the police Ford directly in the path of the approaching machine and ordered its driver to stop.

As the latter did so officers Hanlon, Curran and Burns surrounded the car and quickly got its occupants out onto the street where they were arrested by Sergeant Rogers and officer Hanlon.

The young men gave their names as George Rider of 430 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, and Robert Langell of Lewis avenue, Arlington. They gave their age as 19 years. A search of their persons disclosed a .38 calibre revolver and six loose cartridges on Langell and a carton of .38 calibre cartridges, a flashlight and other burglar's paraphernalia on Rider. At the Arlington police station a further search of Rider brought to light a German automatic revolver in a shoulder holster concealed under his clothing. Rider was identified by Dalton as the man whom he had recognized while he was being robbed. The former is said to be well known in Arlington where he had formerly been employed in a garage.

The two robbers were taken to the Winchester Police Station where they were booked by Lieutenant Harrold, charged with robbery at night while armed.

In the District Court at Woburn Wednesday morning Justice Jesse W. Merton bound both robbers for appearance before the Grand Jury, bonds being set at $11,000 each. Both Rider and Langell were committed to jail at East Cambridge later in the day.

In the light of subsequent developments the capture of the two young gun-men may be looked upon as one of the most important in local police circles for some time, with the full extent of its importance yet to be determined.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace W. Ash, accompanied by Mrs. Chas. A. Burnes, sail Saturday from New York on SS. Orizaba for Havana, Cuba.

REV. BENJAMIN P. BROWNE

Pastor-elect of Our Baptist Church

As announced in the Star last week Rev. Benjamin P. Browne has accepted the call of our local Baptist Church to become its pastor and he has also resigned as pastor of the First Baptist Church of Rockland, Me. It is expected that Mr. Browne will occupy the pulpit on the first Sunday in February.

In speaking of his resignation, the Rockland Courier-Gazette said, "Mr. Browne came here from Bangor and his seven year pastorate has brilliantly fulfilled the expectations of the Rockland Church. Large congregations have attended his preaching, the church has grown in membership and flourished in its several departments of work. Between pastor and church, there has existed a closeness of fellowship rarely attained, creating ties the severing of which are genuinely regretted upon both sides. Mrs. Browne has been a strong supporter of her husband in his work. Her genius in music as leader of the choir, vocalist, and a finished performer upon organ and piano giving her high position in the church, no less than in the wider musical circles of the city. Their going to a Massachusetts field will be followed by the regrets and deep affection of both church and community."

It would appear that the local Baptist Church has secured a man of promise and one who will appreciate the large opportunity that there is offered him here for a great constructive program.

Benjamin Patterson Browne, was born in Wiscasset, Me., in 1893, and attended the public schools of Newton and Boston and the High School at Clinton, Mass. He has also taken courses at Boston University and Harvard University. He has had three pastorates: his first at Bath, where, because of his youth, he was known as the "Boy Preacher;" second at Bangor, Me., and third at Rockland, Me. As a result of his work one young man has been led into the ministry during each of these three pastorates:—during his Bath ministry, Rev. A. Bernard Webber, now pastor at Milton, Mass.; during his Bangor ministry, Rev. LeRoy Campbell, pastor at Southboro, Mass.; and during his Rockland ministry, Rev. Havener Cassens, pastor at North New Portland, Me. While at Bath, Me., the Deering Men's Club Room was built as a memorial to G. G. Deering, a prominent Bath shipbuilder. While at Bangor the church nearly doubled in membership and at Rockland, Me., he has baptized 215 during the seven years. The church has been renovated and a new organ installed at an expense of about $30,000; a summer conference was started by him, bringing distinguished scholars and preachers to Maine.

His wife, Rachael Sprague Browne, was born at Cliftondale, Mass. After her graduation from the Girls' High School at Boston she attended the Gordon Bible College and also took up music at the Faelten Pianoforte School and was a vocal pupil of Myron W. Whitney of Boston. For a time, she was soloist at the First Baptist Church in Brookline, Mass. She formerly was state secretary of the Maine World Wide Guild and for four years served as one of the directors of the Bangor Y. W. C. A. and at present is one of the directors of the Rubenstein Club of Rockland, Me.

INSTITUTE ON WORLD FRIENDSHIP

First Congregational Church

On Sunday evening, Jan. 15, a unique program will be launched in the new Parish House of the First Congregational Church. It will consist of class discussions, open forums and lectures. Well qualified leaders have been secured to take charge, and the object of the Institute is to become better acquainted with our neighbors at home and those across the sea. The most significant fact today is that the East and West have met. The problems of other nations have become our problems and the time has come when each nation must enter whole heartedly into the task of understanding one another. The men's forum this Sunday will be conducted by Luther D. Fowle, the subject being "Christian Work in Turkey." Miss Carolyn D. Smiley will have charge of the women's group. For the Junior Department we have secured the services of Mrs. Nathaniel M. Nichols and the Intermediate group will be led by three different teachers. Mr. Butler has charge of the young people's group.

At the assembly period of this first meeting Miss Rossa B. Cooley will give an illustrated lecture on, "A Negro Social Experiment."

WATERFIELD LODGE NO. 231, I. O. O. F.

On Monday evening, Jan. 16, this Lodge will observe the 109th anniversary of the order which is also the birthday of Thomas Wildey, the founder of Oddfellowship in America.

There will be a roll call and it is specially to be an "Old Timers' Night."

Past Grand Master, Dr. George L. Marshall of West Somerville will be the speaker and a most enjoyable evening is anticipated. There will be a fine collation in the banquet hall to wind up the evening.

On Friday evening, Jan. 20, the fourth mass meeting of the Prince Jonathan Association will be held at Security Lodge, I. O. O. F., Reading. There will be cars to take the Brothers and their friends who wish to go for another evening of fine entertainment. So reserve the night and lets have a good showing from Waterfield Lodge.

The tickets for the play, "The Optimist" being conducted under the direction of Charles Harrold, are now ready for sale and have started to go fast. We advise that you procure your tickets early to insure a good seat as this show will be a real one. Tickets can be found at Hoods, Herseys or the Savings Bank.

The music will be furnished by Ives' Orchestra of seven pieces under the direction of T. Parker Clarke. There will be dancing from 10:30 to 12. Don't forget that there is a new floor in the Town Hall, which will help for a pleasant evening.

DISABLED VETERANS WELFARE GROUP

Mrs. C. H. Symmes opened her charming home on Wednesday, Jan. 11 for the mid-winter meeting of the Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group.

After the Secretary's and Treasurer's reports had been read and accepted Mrs. Miller gave a most interesting word picture of the Christmas activities at the Roxbury hospital. Letters from individual boys to different members of the group showed the deep appreciation felt for the sweaters, shirts and numerous little kindly gifts. Mention should also be especially made of the 20 pounds of candy made by the Domestic Science Class at the Wadleigh School. Letters were also read from the men at Rutland whose lives were made a bit more cheerful by a warm sweater, a new shirt or a bright afghan. One especially appealing note was from a boy who said his sweater was the first Christmas gift he had received in four years.

Madam Corey announced that a generous supply of yarn had been received as a result of the appeal made over the radio and that the knitters are busy indeed.

The group wishes to express its sincere thanks to the friends who so generously made possible the gift of a radio. This is to be placed near the cot of Dr. "Jerry" Paglia who is paralized and cannot even speak, but who has a very active mind. Its benefits however, are for every man who wishes to listen and it is hoped that many weary hours will pass more happily because of it. Especially does the group appreciate the trust placed in them by these friends, some of whom have never even visited the hospital.

Following the business meeting, a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostess assisted by the following committee: Mrs. Goddu, Mrs. Hildreth, Mrs. Apsey, Mrs. Gamage and Mrs. Balcke.

WINCHESTER TO MEET WAKEFIELD

Winchester High School's basketball team sitting atop the Middlesex League by virtue of its wins over Belmont and Stoneham, meets a real test tonight in the local gymnasium at 7:30 when it will entertain the newest entrant to the circuit, Wakefield High.

The visitors are no strangers to Winchester, the two teams having met for many years when both were listed in the Suburban League. Previous meetings have always resulted in keen rivalry and tonight's battle should be a hummer. Winchester will be fighting to retain its first place rating while Wakefield will strive to knock its old rival off the peak.

Wakefield has lost both its starts to Everett and Watertown which does not mean that Winchester's opponent will be soft since the last named are strong clubs. The locals can not afford to miss many "soft" shots tonight and should take no time in tossing their foul goals. Coach Mansfield hopes to have "Livin'" McNeil in shape to play at least part of the Wakefield game thus bolstering his scoring punch considerably. The scrappy forward has been suffering from a skin infection which necessitated an operation but is about ready to go.

Tonight's game will be the first home game to be played in the evening and with an attraction like Wakefield should draw well. Next Wednesday afternoon Winchester is to play at Arlington, game called at 3 o'clock.

WINCHESTER GIRLS START TUESDAY

Winchester High School girls' basketball team will open its 1928 schedule next Tuesday afternoon at Stoneham when it will oppose the sextette of Stoneham High. The local girls have had but one game thus far, losing to a strong alumni team before the Christmas holidays. Coach Priscilla Wheeler has been working her charges hard in an effort to iron out the weakness which cropped out against the graduates and expects the locals to give Stoneham a hard game. The opening whistle will blow at 3 p. m.

CALUMET NOTES

We had a large crowd last Friday evening at the supper and bridge. It was the second entertainment of the kind and evidently profiting from a good time enjoyed on the previous occasion, our members decided they wished more of such events, judging by the enthusiasm and members present. Mrs. Ernest D. Chase, Mrs. Burton L. Gale, Mrs. J. Frank Tuttle and Mrs. Chas. F. Winship were in charge and did their best to supply the wants. The committee were hard put to supply the demands, owing to the fact that only 112 notified us that they would be present while 150 came. Fortunately they were able to procure an additional supply of food. The entertainment committee feels that members should be more considerate and realize the difficulties under which the committee works in preparing the supply of food, as it is not an easy job to feed as many extra ones, as we had last Friday evening. Members will help the committee immensely if they will send in their card or at least telephone the club house in advance that they are coming.

There were about 35 tables of bridge, the largest for sometime. Charles Barry was in charge, assisted by Mrs. Chase. Prizes were won by Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. French, Mrs. Harold Bostwick, Mrs. Merrill and Mrs. Geo. Purrington. Gentlemen's prizes were taken by Mr. Tutein, Mr. Tuttle, Mr. Brown, Mr. Dean and Mr. Starr.

We desire to again call the attention of the members to the smoker tomorrow evening. We shall have an African big game talk and movies by Mr. Morse of Lowell, who comes to entertain us out of the goodness of his heart. The pictures which Mr. Morse will show were taken by him personally and under much difficulty and danger to himself. We believe members will be well repaid for coming as they will see some extraordinary pictures. Afterwards, there will be cards, billiards, pool, bowling and a general social time. Regular Saturday night lunch.

Next Friday evening, we shall have our regular monthly ladies' and gentlemen's bowling. There will be prizes and a general good time. On the several previous occasions, members have turned out in good numbers and as the bowling season is now at its height and the mixed tournament near at hand, we anticipate a large attendance.

We would advise members to hold Friday evening, Jan. 27, for an announcement which will be given later. This event is for the whole family, and we can assure members they will be well repaid for saving the date.

Mixed bowling tournament will surely start on Monday, Jan. 30. Cards have been sent out and members are cautioned to fill in and return immediately. It looks now as if we will have a record, so members are again urged to be prompt with their applications.

Last Tuesday afternoon, the ladies held their regular monthly bowling event. Another large crowd. It looks as if the ladies were going to pile up some high scores in the mixed event. Results were as follows: 1st prize, high single flat, Mrs. Preston 101; 2nd prize, high single with handicap, Mrs. Dean Blanchard, 87 and 18—105; 3rd prize, two high strings flat, Mrs. Sears 177; 4th prize, two high strings with handicap, Mrs. E. H. Merrill, 160 and 34—194.

MUSIC GARDEN

The January meeting of the Music Garden was held at the home of Mrs. Belichon on Governors avenue, on the evening of Monday, Jan. 9. In spite of the bad weather there was a very good attendance and all agreed that the musical program was exceptionally fine. Three new members, Mrs. Everett P. Fox and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Trudeau, furnished a generous share of the program and proved to any who did not already know them by reputation, that they are artists of unusual ability. Mrs. Lochman received special thanks for so ably accompanying a great many of the numbers. And Mr. Phippen's most satisfying rendering of the Beethoven Sonate made the club rejoice that it had changed its meeting night from Tuesday to Monday.

For the next meeting, Mr. Carter, chairman of the program committee, has suggested some Swiss music which he came across quite recently. We hope he may decide to include it, as his description sounded most promising.

The program follows:

Trios
(a) Souvenir .... Ed. German
(b) Valse Gracieuse .... Ed. German
Violin, Miss Maude H. Littlefield
Clarinet, Mr. John C. Andrews
Piano, Mrs. Dora W. Andrews

SECOND THURSDAY EVENING MUSICALE

The second in the series of Thursday evening musicales arranged by the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Symmes, Madison avenue, on Jan. 5. The artist of the evening was Miss Ruth Pierce Posselt, violinist, assisted by Miss Gladys Posselt-Ondricek, pianist. The program was as follows:

Violin
(a) Variations on a Theme by Corelli ... Tartini-Kreisler
(b) Ballet Music from "Rosamunde" ... Schubert-Kreisler
(c) Sicilienne et Rigaudon ... Francoeur-Kreisler
Piano
(a) Rhapsody in C Major ...... Dohnanyi
(b) Lento .... Cyril Scott
(c) "Hungarian" .... MacDowell
Violin
(a) "On Wings of Song" ... Mendelssohn-Achron
(b) "What the Swallows Told" ... Burleigh
(c) Sielanka .... Wieniawski
(d) Gipsy Dance .... Nachez
Piano
(a) Spring Song .... Mirovitch
(b) Concert Etude .... MacDowell
Violin
(a) "D'un Matin de Printemps" ... Lili Boulanger
(b) Silhouette ...... Dvorak-Em. Ondricek
(c) Introduction et Tarantelle ... Sarasate

Miss Posselt is but 16 years of age, yet she has already given recitals in Carnegie Hall, New York, and in Symphony Hall, Boston. The audience at the Symmes House was amazed to hear such technical proficiency, such breadth of tone, and withal such powers of interpretation from so young a girl. Best of all, Miss Posselt was at all times the simple, unaffected girl who takes her music seriously, but who obviously enjoys other things in life as well. Miss Ondricek was not only an admirable accompanist, but her solo numbers were beautifully rendered.

The next recital, Feb. 2, will be at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dreier, 1 Curtis circle. The artists will be James R. Houghton, baritone and Marjorie Patten Weaver, 'cellist.

MUSICALE

If you wish to spend an enjoyable evening come to the Methodist Church on Thursday, Jan. 19 at 8 p. m. Mr. H. D. Newcombe, baritone; Mrs. Helen Edlefson Barr, soprano; Miss Ruth Dodge, violin and Miss Winnifred H. Bent, reader. Tickets $1.00.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles DeLaurier of Sheridan circle announce the engagement of their daughter Alice M. to James A. Leonard of Winchester.

RALPH W. HATCH, Assistant Treasurer

DANIEL D. BURNS

Daniel D. Burns, widely known Boston business man and vice president of A. Paul & Co., Inc. of 373 Washington street, that city, passed away Sunday evening at his home on Wildwood street, following a long illness. He was 57 years of age.

Mr. Burns was educated in the public schools of his native city, Marlboro, and at 17 was employed as bookkeeper in the Boston jewelry establishment of A. Paul & Co., Inc. where he continued until his death. He was subsequently promoted to traveling salesman and in 1922 to vice president, though he continued to represent the concern in his former capacity until his last illness.

He had made his home in Winchester for about 12 years and enjoyed a wide circle of friends both locally and in Boston business circles. He was a member of Boston Lodge, 10, B. P. O. E., and of the Jewelers' Golf Association.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Martha E. Burns, and one son, Daniel D. Burns, Jr., both of Winchester.

Funeral services were held from the late residence Tuesday morning with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley was celebrant with Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, subdeacon. Numbered among those who attended the mass were many business associates and a delegation from Boston Lodge of Elks.

James Murphy of Dorchester, Frank Pierson of Arlington, Joseph Toohey of Marlboro and William, John and Frank Russell, all of Dorchester, served as bearers. The interment was at Marlboro in the Immaculate Conception Cemetery.

SEVERAL GRASS FIRES OVER WEEK-END

Saturday proved another busy day for members of the Fire Department who made their first run at 11:27 in the morning to put out a grass fire at the residence of Mr. F. E. Gregory, 180 Forest street. At 2:40 in the afternoon there was a grass fire on Ledyard road and at 4:50, another in the rear of the Puffer Manufacturing Co. Shortly after 9 in the evening burning grass was discovered on High street near Arlington street and at 12:24 Sunday morning the last grass fire was put out at Shepard court.

LARGE COPPER STILL SEIZED BY POLICE

"An ounce of prevention is worth plenty of remedy." That probably was the way Sergt. William H. Rogers and officer James P. Donaghey of the police figured last Friday afternoon when they discovered a 40-gallon, late model copper still cached in the Highlands district of the town not far from the Stoneham line. Consequently the stalwart minions of the law took their find to headquarters where thus far its owner has not called to claim his property. The still was apparently new and was not in working condition when found by the police. The owner of the property on which it was found knew nothing of the matter and was not especially pleased at the idea of some one using his land for an embryo brewery. The prompt action of the police very probably preserved for a time at least the eyesight of many a guileless individual.

FIREMAN'S ASSOCIATION ELECTS

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Winchester Fireman's Relief Association was held on Monday evening at the Central Station with President John McCarron presiding. After the reports of the various officers had been read and accepted the following were elected to serve for the ensuing year:

President, John McCarron.

Vice-President, Deputy Chief John J. Gorman.

Secretary, J. Edward Noonan.

Treasurer, Capt. E. S. Flaherty.

Directors, Frank Duffy, Combination 1; John Richardson, Engine 1; Edward L. Callahan, Engine 3; Alexander McKenzie, Ladder 1.

Chief David H. DeCourcy, was named floor marshal for the annual ball to be held on the evening of Feb. 1 with Deputy Chief John J. Gorman, assistant marshal. The remaining officers are John McCarron, floor director; Edward L. Callahan, assistant floor director and J. Edward Noonan, chief of aids.

Egyptian Hunting Dogs

Salukis were the hunting dogs of the Pharaohs. They are unique in the canine world in that they hunt by sight and never bark.

PARLIAMENTARY LAW CLASS MEETING

Last Monday morning, at the home of Mrs. Eugene MacDonald on Bacon street, 42 members of the Women's Republican Club assembled to take advantage of the parliamentary law class under the leadership of Mrs. Electa Sherman, Boston's foremost teacher on this subject. Considering the fact of a rainy day and that these women came without solicitation beyond public announcements of the event the result of the venture was gratifying beyond expectations. Several more have registered, being unable to come to the first lesson. It is not too late now to join the class if Mrs. John H. Powers is telephoned to Win. 345. A simple knowledge of parliamentary law enables any woman to take a more interested and active part in any organized meeting she may find herself in, and today all activities, social and public, are becoming organized. A broader public-mindedness and understanding of public events due to the parliamentary procedure through which they are resolved, is another asset derived from this valuable instruction.

Mrs. Herbert S. Underwood, of 9 Central street, has kindly given the use of her home as a meeting place for the second lesson which will occur Monday morning, Jan. 16, at 10.15 o'clock.

ANNOUNCE RESIGNATION OF WELFARE WORKER

The Board of Public Welfare in announcing the resignation of Miss Marion L. Smith as executive secretary wishes to express its deep appreciation of her sincere interest in the work of the Board and for the great amount of success she has attained the last seven years, during which she has devoted her time and effort to this field of social service.

We wish her every success in whatever new endeavor she associates herself with. Undoubtedly this will be connected with social service in one of its many manifestations and to which she will necessarily bring a great deal of zeal due to her highly developed humanitarian ideals.

NO CONSOLIDATION PLANNED

Discussing the rumor which was current over the past week-end to the effect that efforts are being made to combine the Water and Sewer Departments under one superintendent, Chairman Edmund C. Sanderson of the Water Board stated to the Star on Monday that he was at a loss to know where the report originated. Mr. Sanderson said that such an idea had been considered in the past but discarded after superficial discussion. At present the thought of combining the departments is not being entertained.

WINCHESTER WON FROM BELMONT

Winchester handed Belmont its first defeat of the basketball season last Friday afternoon at Belmont when it wont a Middlesex League tilt from the charges of "Polly" Harris, 17 to 7. The victory was doubly sweet in that it has been Belmont during the past two seasons that has prevented Winchester's winning titles in the Middlesex circuit.

After the first half there was no doubt of the outcome. As a matter of fact the margin of Coach Mansfield's boys should have been considerably larger. Altogether too many close shots were missed by the locals during the afternoon. Belmont had a fair club but was by no means as strong as in previous years.

The home team scored first after the opening tap-off, McDermott dropping in a basket from scrimmage directly under the Winchester net. Knowlton counted first for the locals on a foul basket and just before the end of the quarter Kendrick shot a foul goal to tie the score at 2 all.

Immediately after the start of the second quarter Capt. "Herb" Ross tossed a floor goal and in doing so was fouled by an over-zealous Belmont guard. It was a two-shot foul and the Winchester center made them both good, giving his five a four-point lead. Sullivan closed up the gap somewhat when he got a nice basket shortly after, the goal proving the last Belmont was to get during the game.

Just before the end of the half Ross got his second basket and the teams left the floor with Winchester in the lead, 8 to 4.

The second half was all Winchester, Belmont scoring but thrice during the two periods from the foul line. Play had scarcely been resumed when Ross got his third floor goal and mid-way through the quarter Halwartz worked the ball into position under the net and counted. Soon after this Kendrick was sent to the showers and his place taken by "Barney" Murphy, the latter's guard post being filled by Gnazio Amico. Barney signalized his change of base by immediately shooting a foul basket.

Winchester was continually working the ball up the floor and into easy scoring position but time and again the shots of its players went wrong. The local defense was functioning well and Belmont apparently was only concerned with keeping Coach Mansfield's boys within reasonable bounds. Late in the game Ross scored his fourth and last basket which constituted the final points of the afternoon.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds defeated the Belmont seconds, 12 to 2. Coach Mansfield used two complete line-ups in this game and among those who saw service for the first time this season were Angelo Ghirardini and Ronie Simonds.

The summary of the main game follows:

WINCHESTER		BELMONT
Kendrick, rf		lg, Sliney
R. Murphy, rf
Halwartz, lf		rg, Flanders
		rg, Faherty
Ross, c		c, Frost
R. Murphy, rg		lf, McDermott
G. Amico, rg		lf, Skinner
Coss, rg		lf, Burns
Knowlton, lg		rf, Sullivan
A. Amico, lg		rf, White

Score: Winchester 17; Belmont 7. Floor goals: Ross 4, Halwartz, McDermott, Sullivan. Foul goals: Ross 4, Kendrick, Murphy, Knowlton, Sliney, Flanders, Sullivan. Referee: Davis. Time: four eight minute periods.

R. E. NAUMBURG WRITES FOR BOSTON TRANSCRIPT

R. E. Naumburg of Winchester is the author of "Out of Obscurity After a Century" in the annual Cotten number of the Boston Transcript published on Jan. 10. The article deals with the invention of Ring Spinning by John Thorp, an American, just 100 years ago.

Officer Charles Harrold of the Police Department recovered an abandoned Ford touring car at 1 o'clock Wednesday morning on Church street. Investigation disclosed that the machine had been stolen in Harvard square at 11 o'clock Tuesday night and was the property of Malcolm Lang of 162 Bay State road, Boston.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY EXTENSION SERVICE

The town of Winchester appropriated $200 in support of the Middlesex County Extension Service, through the trustees for county aid to agriculture, for 1927. Following is a report of the work accomplished during the year.

The agricultural work carried on this year has largely taken the form of farm visits, giving personal service wherever requested. In addition, circular letters have been sent out from the county office giving timely information on the spraying of orchards, the care of home gardens, poultry management, etc.

In home-making a series of home improvement meetings have been organized; a large group of local women are interested in this project. Millinery and furniture renovation meetings were also conducted, which were well attended.

In the boys and girls 4-H Club work 41 boys and girls were enrolled in room beautiful, clothing, garden and canning clubs. Miss Mildred Benson, Senior in the High School, served as a local leader, very efficiently assisting Mrs. Ruth Howe from the County Extension Service office. Mildred Beuson, who is preparing for college, was the State canning champion in 1925.

Margaret O'Connor was awarded a special prize in the Room Beautiful contest. Kenneth Benson did outstanding canning club work. Charles Eschbach was awarded a two-day trip to the Massachusetts Agricultural College for outstanding club work. The canning club exhibited their products in the local store of Richardson's Market.

In addition to the local work Winchester citizens attended the county picnic and the annual meeting of the Extension Service held in Waltham, and county-wide meeting in fruit growing, poultry, and dairying were made available to those interested.

The stories of two boys in Winchester—one a member of the garden club and the other of the canning club —who have done particularly well in the projects in which they enrolled.

Charles Eshback, sophomore in the High School, enrolled as a first year club member in 1926 and did such good work in his garden that he was awarded the two-day trip to the Massachusetts Agricultural College, Amherst, last July—an honor which is seldom awarded to first year members. When the time for enrolling in 1927 came around, Charles signed up for the second year. Throughout the summer he carried on the work of a very large garden entirely without aid. In addition to keeping his own home well supplied with fresh vegetables, he sold considerable. In the autumn when cleaning-up time came, he began to lay plans for 1928 so that when spring came he would have a good start. The boy who is always one jump ahead of the game is the boy who wins.

Kenneth Benson of the Wadleigh School seventh grade, is an 11-year-old boy who is made of material from which great men often grow. In 1926 he enrolled, at the age of 10, as a first year canning club member, the only boy among about 20 girls. In watching his sister, who was the 1925 canning champion in the State, he had received the impression that quality was the most important point in good canning so he set out with that as his watchword. Slow? Yes, but painstaking care went into every jar that he packed. As a result he won a consistent blue ribbon winner throughout the fair season that fall. In 1927 he enrolled again and with the experience gained the previous year he increased the number of jars canned threefold, again winning several prizes at exhibits.

Like his sister, who was enrolled as an eight-year club member in 1927, Kenneth plans to go on year after year, always improving his former record. It is a persistence of this sort that counts the most in whatever occupation a boy or girl may have.

Director County Aid to Agriculture

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

There is not a dull moment in "The Opening Night," the feature now playing at the beautiful Granada Theater in Malden, with Claire Windsor and John Bowers as the featured players. The plot opens by introducing the audience to the mechanics of the theater during the rehearsal of a new production about to open on Broadway. Claire Windsor plays the role of a stage star whose husband produces her plays. John Bowers is her leading man on the stage. The vaudeville program for the last half of this week includes Joan Jahn & the Baldwin Sisters in their pretentious stage offering "Music Hath Charms." Robbins & Jewett, two famous comedy stars in "Doin' Nuttin'," a hodge-podge of fun and nonsense, is another big vaudeville feature for today. The other three acts are up to the standard always found at the Granada.

Adolph Menjou as a musical genius of Vienna, Kathryn Carver as the beautiful girl who becomes his inspiration and finally his wife, Lina Basquette as the gorgeous dancer who lures him away from his home, and Lawrence Grant as the bewhiskered Cupid who manages to mend the broken romance—that is the cast of "Serenade," which comes to the Granada the first three days of next week with the reputation of being one of the best Paramount pictures of the season. The usual five act program of vaudeville, together with the Granada Symphony Orchestra and organ novelities by Roy Frazee, will be added features for the first three days of next week.

Eats Fruit Tree Pests

The orchard oriole, sometimes called basket bird, is found in eastern North America, over the central plains, south to the gulf of Mexico. The tribe is of sufficient numbers, says Nature Magazine, to be useful to the horticulturist as a destroyer of injurious insects and their larvae, especially those affecting fruit trees.

ANNUAL REPORT OF WINCHESTER CHAPTER OF A. R. C.

Again the Secretary of the Winchester Chapter of A. R. C. offers to the Chairman, the Executive Board and town members an annual report of activities.

The Junior Red Cross in the schools has proven in its many ways the worth of its motto, "I Serve." Under the supervision of Miss Blanche Pratt, primary grade in the elementary schools has participated in preparing material sent to hospitals and to those sick at home. Christmas and Easter boxes have been sent to soldiers in foreign lands, in the Philippines and Cuba. The Mississippi and Vermont floods gave opportunities for the pupils to respond to the call of needy children in these districts. The response was generous and whole hearted. In countless ways the ideals of health, helpfulness and courtesy have been upheld.

The Life Saving activity of the Red Cross was a project of the High School for two years, when classes were formed and many passed the Senior and Junior tests. There are four accredited Life Saving "Examiners" in Winchester, namely: Richard Clark, Wendell Mansfield, Harry Bridge and Margaret Newman. The "examiners" are prepared and have the privilege to teach Life Saving according to the high standards of Red Cross. They mark pupils as to their ability and pass on them. The standard of Red Cross Life Saving is recognized by summer camps as the best and in many camps the swimming instructor must be an accredited examiner. Al four of our examiners have done this work in summer camps. An examiner must have a license issued by headquarters at Washington renewed each year. This license is countersigned by the Chapter Chairman, thus keeping the Chapter in touch with the Examiner's work. There is no fee for this renewal other than a yearly membership in the Red Cross.

The work of production, under Mrs. Cinton K. Seymour has demonstrated that the Winchester Chapter not only meets the quota requested but far exceeds it. During the year, clothing has not only been sent to parts distant but has been supplied to the Veteran's Hospitals at West Roxbury, Chelsea, Rutland and the Naval Hospital in Newport. Thirty Christmas bags were made and filled for the regular army, and sent to the Army Base in New York for distribution. Through the kindness and busy fingers of Mrs. Mosely, a Winchester resident over 90 years old, seven children's sweaters were made and given to needy children here in town.

Publicity has been of real necessity this year, due to the several disasters, the extra drive for funds and the various activities arising therefrom. This has been ably handled by Mrs. Henry K. Fitts and many columns of space in the Star were generously contributed by Mr. Price Wilson.

Winchester Chapter has been credited with a copy of "We" by Charles Lindbergh, which was transcribed in braille by Miss Lilliau Horne of Winchester. This copy has been sent to the Perkins Institute of the Blind and no doubt will bring joy to all there who read it.

Never, in the history of the Red Cross, has a year been so filled with disasters. In March, 1927 news of the Japan disaster came. Early in April the Mississippi Flood shocked the world. Close on its heels came the St. Louis tornado—several minor tornadoes followed. Then in November, the Vermont Flood brought terror closer to our New England consciousness. The stark realization of "who next?" brought the thought that if Winchester should be visited by disaster, bringing death and destruction, the Red Cross should be first on hand with help and comfort. This feeling of comradeship with these distress surely must have prompted the splendid response to the drive for relief funds for the Mississippi flood victims. The quota requested from Washington was $1590. In three days, due to immense, immediate need, this quota doubled. In a week's time, by means of efficient pubicity and soiciting our original quota was reached. Five hundred dollars was voted from the Treasury to be added to this sum. In a short time the final total of $3756.25 was raised and sent to Headquarters.

In this recent New England Flood, no drive for extra funds was launched, but voluntary contributions were accepted. Winchester Chapter again voted $500 from its Treasury to be used for relief work. To date $446 has been voluntarily subscribed making a total of $946 which was sent promptly to relief headquarters, A. R. C.

The annual Red Cross drive, of which Mrs. J. F. Ryan was chairman, has been completed; $2157 was received, representing 1937 $1 memberships, 20 $5, 7 $10 and two $25 memberships. In a recent letter from Mr. Robert E. Boudy, director of the Eastern Area, Winchester was commended for its generous response in years past, to the annual Roll Call. "Any chapter," he writes, "which is successful in securing 15 per cent of the population of the jurisdiction of the chapter as members of the American Red Cross is making an exceptional record."

Winchester then may feel proud that in 1927 her response to "the greatest mother in the world" averaged approximately 16⅔ per cent, truly an "exceptional record."

Respectfully submitted,
Marguerite L. Loftus,
Sec. of Winchester Chapter A. R. C.

INDUSTRY USES 400,000,000 CUBIC FEET GAS EACH MONTH

During the past 15 years the use of gas in industry has steadily increased until at the present time the monthly consumption is approximately 400,000,000 cubic feet. Gas is used in thousands of manufacturing operations requiring the use of heat.

In Milwaukee a gas furnace 190 feet long treats 25 tons of maleable iron castings each days.

Syracuse, New York, has a 385-foot continuous carburizing furnace said to be the largest in the world.

Toledo, Ohio, has 24 continuous furnaces in a large automobile plant. Operations include annealing, hardening, carburizing, and heating for forging, the consumption of gas being 60,000,000 cubic feet a month. Other automobile manufacturers use gas extensively in annealing forgings and castings.

In Detroit, gas used for steel heating amounts to 85,000,000 cubic feet a month. A carburetor company uses 4,000,000 cubic feet a month for annealing castings. Steel makers are using gas extensively for heating steel prior to forging.

The American Gas Association is spending $10,000 for research with the University of Michigan to determine better ways of using gas in steelmaking.

A wire manufacturer in Worcester uses 1,250,000 cubic feet of gas per month for heating and 1,000,000 cubic feet per month for galvanizing. Another wire manufacturer in Trenton, N. J., uses 1,500,000 cubic feet a month for hardening and annealing.

Twenty-nine gas-lired furnaces are used in the production of nickel including the operation of smelting, forging and rolling, as well as annealing.

In the foundry business, gas ovens for baking casting cores are used in many places.

A brass company in Toledo uses 12,000,000 cubic feet a month for brass melting.

In St. Louis, Rochester and Milwaukee, gas is used extensively for baking enamel in the making of ceramics.

Stove manufacturers are also big users of gas for baking enamel on parts of stoves.

Gas is also used extensively in the manufacture of glass. Columbus, Ohio, uses 40,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas per month.

In New Haven, Conn., gas is used to heat an 18,000-pound galvanizing furnace.

In Milwaukee, Rochester and Columbus, gas is used in the baking of japan enamel or lacquer.

In the cutting of metals gas in being extensively substituted for the more volatile and expensive acetylene.

In Amesbury, Mass., gas is used in the manufacture of automobile bodies.

The textile industry in Pawtucket, R. I., uses gas extensively in various operations.

In St. Louis, Mo., gas-fired ovens are used in the baking trade, consuming a total of 15,000,000 cubic feet of gas per month, at a cost of 40c per thousand pounds of bread.

Columbus, Ohio, has a special automatic, continuous doughnut furnace, with a capacity of 19,000 dozen doughnuts a daily.

Haverhill, Mass., uses gas for conditioning shoes in material less time than by older methods of heating.

In Boston, Mass., gas is used as heat for oil circulation heating systems in chemical plants in the treating of chemical oils, and for heating asphalt used in insulation, and in the manufacture of roofing paper.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the parish house parlor of the First Congregational Church on Friday, Jan. 20, at 2:30 p. m. Annual business and election of officers. Speaker, Mrs. Arthur D. Gordon, State Director of Citizenship Department. Again we approach Victory Day, Jan. 16, with glad hearts, because although there have been struggles and disappointments, there have been many victories and much for which to be grateful and joyful. We look back over the years and speak with reverent voices of those who so many years ago with no flying flags, no trumpets, no army, but with faith in God, and determination to make an end of the liquor curse, started the movement known as the temperance movement. It grew rapidly, gained strength and momentum, passed milestone after milestone, including no license, and local option, until Nation wide prohibition was reached. It took years upon years of patient work, against almost insurmountable opposition. It was not a hurried procedure. Other societies and clubs joined hands with those pioneers and brought to bear on the question new methods and the inspiration of numbers; medical societies revealed astonishing facts regarding the effect of alcohol on the human body; industry showed the markedly good effect of sobriety on business, and when at last 92 out of a possible 96 legislative bodies ratified the 18th Amendment the peak of the victory was reached. The health, prosperity, and better living conditions everywhere attest the success of that wise start and sane building of more than 50 years; and now eight years of testing convince the honest thinker, he who has no axe to grind, that prohibition is the best method. In the city and perhaps even more through the countryside we feel its blessing.

As one of our sisters, Miss B. Louise Watson, puts it in a poem she sends for "Our Message," entitled

The Houses in the Clearings

Before our Prohibition they were living there in shacks,
Or in the slums where everything was state,
But now, each little back road in the country boasts new homes,
Oh, the houses in the clearings tell the tale.
They have large, artistic houses, with gardens all around,
While all about, their well dressed children play
A garage which holds an auto (and it's often not a Ford)
And at night electric lights bring back the day.

They may talk to me of liberty, may suggest some other way,
That's pleasant and that surely cannot fail;
I'll not listen, nor believe them; I'll continue still to say:
That the houses in the clearings tell the tale.

Coffined in Coconut

In Honolulu may be seen two coconut fire caskets, woven to represent in effigy King Liliuo, who reigned over Hawaii in 1500 A. D., and his great-grandson, Lenoi-kama kolikli. Inside the caskets are the bones of the kings. Such coconut fiber caskets, shaped somewhat like an Egyptian mummy case, are extremely rare. These were found in one of the ancient burial caves of Hawaii. The Hawaiians often secreted the bones of dead kings in inaccessible caves to prevent defilement by an enemy.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Don't worry so much about the things that can't be helped but do the things that can be done.

A man may last, but never lives, Who much receives, but never gives.

Young people must not waste their mental power in wishes.

Never say of another what you would not have him hear.

Gems may flash and flowers charm, but a human person is the only producer of smiles.

Take good care of what you see in the mirror in the morning —you may not see it again but others will.

The police have been charged with the responsibility of warning skaters when the ice upon the Town's ponds is deemed unsafe for use. Easily discernable placards have been printed and the police plan to post them in conspicuous places when they believe there is danger in venturing upon the ice. It is at best a thankless task and the failure to post a pond is sure to result in the harshest sort of criticism, should an accident occur. The first attempt of the authorities to warn the public were of little avail, due to the fact that nearly all the placards were torn down by the boys soon after they were posted. The police will show little leniency to any detected in such maliciousness and public can have little sympathy to offer such an offender. Parents would do well to impress upon their offspring the necessity for respecting the placards in question and with heeding the warning to keep off thin or treacherous ice. The unfortunate drownings on New Year's Day should be fresh enough in everyone's minds to make the danger involved apparent. Let us all co-operate with the authorities in their efforts to prevent a recurrence of the tragedy.

JUNIOR SERVICE LEAGUE NOTES

Junior Service League will meet this Sunday evening at 6 o'clock in the parish house. Supper will be served. The speaker will be Herbert Miller of this town. Mr. Miller is the president of the Greater Boston Unitarian Young People's Societies. Last Sunday at 7 o'clock the league attempted to hold a service in the church which was conducted by the officers. About 15 people were present.

On Saturday evening, Jan. 21, at 8 o'clock in the parish hall, the league will hold a bridge and dance. The committee in charge consists of Lawrence Keepers, Marjorie Brown and Priscilla Bodman.

It is also announced that the Inter-Church Federation will hold its next meeting in our church, Sunday, Jan. 29, at 7 o'clock, also on February 10, the Federation will hold a costume party. The place and time will be announced later.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The regular monthly meeting for January was held last evening.

Reports of the Christmas charity work were read and it certainly was most gratifying for the members to see the great good which it is possible to accomplish by the united effort of all the members.

Report of the quarterly meeting of the State Guild was heard and here again was complete gratification at the results which all the several Guilds are able to complete by their combined contributions.

The local branch extends a "double order" of congratulations to Sister Cecelia Martin upon the birth of twin daughters which arrived at the hospital last week.

Watch the "Star" for notice of our next house whist to be held on the evening of Jan. 26 under the direction of the Charitable Committee.

WINCHESTER MEN HOLD OFFICE WITH BOSTON BANKING HOUSES

The annual elections of several Boston Banking Houses, as announced this week show several Winchester men listed among the officers. Alonzo P. Weeks was named Vice President of the Merchants' National Bank, Arnold Whittaker, vice president of the Atlantic National Bank; Edwin R. Rooney, vice president of the First National Bank and Robert E. Fay, vice president and director of the Exchange Trust Company.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The late Edward O'Rourke prominent Woburn business man who passed away last week, was known to many Winchester sportsmen as a member of "Charlie" Lane's Maine fishing parties until ill health prevented his making the trips. It is said of him that he had never been heard to utter a disparaging remark about any one. This with his benevolence and unfailing good nature made him a universal favorite with the anglers.

Miss Alice W. Chamberlain of 34 Wildwood street sailed Saturday, Jan. 7, on the SS. Alsephany of the Merchants & Miners Line from Boston to Jacksonville, Fla.

Rev. and Mrs. D. Augustine Newton of Reading, former well known Winchester residents who are travelling abroad, spent Christmas Day in Jerusalem

CALUMET NOTES

Why don't members use the Golf net more? Fine chance for practice besides the exercise.

Calumet ladies are now privileged to use the bowling alleys Tuesday and Friday afternoons. This is an innovation we shall try out to see how much the ladies desire to use the alleys. Please phone the clubhouse and let us know you are coming.

Some very high individual and team strings were rolled last Monday night. Team 4 rolled a total of 1518 flat having two strings of 514 and 523. Team 10 had 1511 flat with two strings of 513 and 502. "Newt" Purrington came near equalling his three string total of 365—rolling a total of 363. "Newt" had 136 and 134. Butters had a three sting total of 329 rolling 128 and 127. Clements had a total of 322 having 120 for the high string.

"Ed" Rooney came down recently and rolled a three string total of 354. 'Ed" said this was the first time he had rolled at the Club this year. He had one high string of 147. Wonder what his score would be if he rolled regularly.

The following is the team standing ending, Jan. 12:

LADIES' FRIENDLY SOCIETY NOTES

The regular meeting of the ladies' Friendly was held Tuesday in the Unitarian Church. The executive board met at 11:30 a. m. and at 1 o'clock the members and guests were seated at a dainty luncheon served under the direction of Mrs. Drisko, Mrs. Mason and Mrs. Haven.

Following the business meeting Mrs. Livingstone delighted everyone with the following violin solos: Romance of Wieniewski; Viennese Melody arranged by Kriesler; Mazurka by Zarzycki.

The Rev. Minna C. Rudlong, field secretary of the General Alliance was very interesting with her "Experiences." She has just returned from a trip during the summer and late fall through the western part of our own country. She related many of her intimate contacts with these people she met, most of them, the second generation of the pioneers. And she showed the need and interest in a liberal religion.

Next Tuesday, Jan. 17, a get-together tea will be held in the church parlors from 3 to 5 p. m. in the afternoon. This tea will be given by the Hospitality Committee of the church and the Activities Committee of the Ladies' Friendly. It is hoped all the ladies can greet many new members.

Mrs. Lillian T. Mason is busy with the plans for the parish bridge and has arranged for ten hostesses to open their homes for this event on the afternoon of Feb. 7.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

It was stated this week that the Government had taken the contract for building the new Winchester Postoffice away from John P. Curley of Roxbury and is holding the bonding company responsible under its bond. The bonding company has taken over the work, sub-letting to E. J. Rappoli of Arlington. The new contractor proposes to complete the work by April 1 and is retaining many of the old workmen upon the job.

Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Sargent of Grove street are the parents of a son, William Henry Sargent, born last week, Tuesday.

Earle C. Andrews of 91 Church st. was drawn at last Monday evening's meeting of the Board of Selectmen to serve as a grand juror at the superior criminal court at East Cambridge.

The next meeting of the Business Women's Gymnasium Class is scheduled for Monday evening, Jan. 16, at 8 o'clock in the High School gym. Those who wish to join should make it a point that he present so the class membership will close on that date.

The Fire Department was called at 11 o'clock yesterday morning when smoke was discovered in the cellar of the residence of Mr. G. A. Dutting at 1 Ridgefield road. The trouble was traced to an electric ironer which had been left with the current switched on, becoming over-heated.

Clarence J. O'Donnell, a junior at Norwich University, is playing left guard on the Cadet basketball team this winter, according to information received here from the military college in Northfield, Vt. The Norwich court team gives promise of being one of the best the cadets have ever had. This makes the third season that the local boy has played on the varsity. O'Donnell is also the captain-elect of next year's varsity football team.

The annual dancing party of the Winchester Laundries' Mutual Benefit Association is to be held this evening in Waterfield Hall commencing at 8 o'clock. A high class orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music and the committee has been at work upon several novel features which promise to make the dance unusually interesting. The advance sale of tickets for the affair indicates a large attendance.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

A large audience assembled at the Fortnightly meeting last Monday afternoon in pleasurable anticipation of forgetting a bad bit of New England weather in a trip through "South America of Today," conducted by Mr. Albert Leonard Squier, a lecturer enthusiastically remembered in Winchester for his beautiful pictures and interesting narrative in a former lecture here.

Mr. Squier has studied, photographed, and painted South America for 15 years, and is obviously in love with his subject. He sees all things with an artist's keen perception for form, color, and significance—the breath-taking dramatic contrasts of the Andean peaks in sunset light and shadow, exquisitely effective in his handling of the slides; the cultured grace and magnificent dignity of the architecture of South America's great cities; the picturesque aspect of the Indian, sometimes forming a bit of lovely color with faded garments and brilliant baskets of fruit in the blazing southern sun, sometimes pathetic, humbly serving as a beast of burden; and, in contrast, the solemnity of mute ruins, bespeaking a grandeur of past achievement, of a culture so ancient that it is as lost in mystery as the face of the moon.

South America is a land of telling contrasts very effectively shown by Mr. Squier. Leaving the United States, the audience was conducted, with a brief stop at Jamaica, quickly through the Panama Canal to a "west coaster," a long, narrow steamship which was to conduct them down the Pacific coast of South America, an arid shore that receives no rain, but for perhaps once in 20 years.

After touching at Paita, in northern Peru, we disembarked at Callao and went inland to Lima. There we went up the Oroya road, a marvelous railroad engineering feat, which, by means of switch-backs and tunnels, ascends to the great copper mines and to a final height of 15,865 feet.

Back to the sea, skirting the coast to Mollendo, we there proceeded inland again to Arequipa, where the Harvard observatory is located and saw a most lovely peak, El Misti, pure in line as Fujiyama, with a crown like fire in the sunset glow. Here also, remote in "the ceiling of South America" we saw the ancient fortress, Sacsahuman, silent witness of achieving men before the dawn of history.

Over Lake Titicaca, highest large body of water in the world, we steamed to visit La Pas, capital of Bolivia, and thence to the great seaport of Valparaiso, second only to San Francisco on the western shores of our hemisphere. We went inland to Santiago and crossed the Andes by way of the wonderful new trans-Andean tunnel, two miles through a mountain. It led us out into the Argentine to Mendoza, where for two days and nights we travelled over fertile pampas plains, level as a floor, to Buenos Aires, capital of the Argentine and chief port for a cast country of immeasurable future opportunity.

We sailed up the Rio del Plato, and back to Montevideo, Uruguay's capital, very English in character. Northward we proceeded along the coast to Santos and Sao Paulo. Further inland we visited great coffee plantations at Campina, and returned to the sea to take ship for the final city of our trip, Rio de Janeiro, unrivalled by any city of the world for its perfect setting, a princely city guarded by encircling mountains that check rough ocean, taming it to a secure and supremely beautiful bay. The audience regretted that the trip must end, but found Rio a fitting climax to an afternoon of keen pleasure.

The musician who preceded Mr. Squier was Mrs. Helen Hegel Smith, who played "Nocturnno" by Golterman, "Minuett" by Becker, and, as encore, a "Paraphase of Old Folks at Home." The charm of her beautiful 'cello playing, with the sympathetic piano accompaniment of her sister, Mrs. George Lochman, made a very lovely prelude to the lecture.

Art Committee

On Wednesday, Jan. 18, at 2:30 p. m. the Art Committee will have a lecture at the home of Mrs. Mary T. Ghirardini 12 Foxcroft road. The lecturer, Mrs. Kojiro Tomato, will speak on "The Symbolism of Japanese Art." Mrs. Tomata is the wife of the curator of the Japanese and Chinese collection at the Museum of Fine Arts in Boston. She is a charming speaker and her lecture will be most interesting.

American Home, Education and Conservation Committees

The State Departments of American Home, Education and Conservation co-operate in holding a conference at the Hotel Bellevue, Boston on Jan. 17, 1928.

During the morning session from 10:30 to 12:30 there will be greetings from the State president, Mrs. Arthur Devens Potter, and from the General Federation chairman of Homemaking, Mrs. Harry Burnham, and two lectures, one on "The Art of Living" by Mrs. Herbert J. Gurney and the other on "Modern Problems of Family Life" by Mr. Albert J. Kennedy.

The afternoon session lasts from 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock. The outstanding features of the program will be two lectures. Mrs. Elizabeth McDonald will speak on "The Ethics of Family Life" and Prof. Frank A. Waugh will give an illustrated lecture on "What Makes a Garden." There will be music at both sessions. The public is invited.

Luncheon will be served at the hotel. Tickets must be procured by Jan. 14 from Mrs. Lauren L. McMaster, 36 Yale avenue, Wakefield.

Members of the State committee will be glad to meet local chairmen from 10 a. m. to 10:30 in the Red Cross room.

Legislative Committee

The Eighth District Legislative Conference will be held in the Woburn Woman's Club House, Jan. 20 at 3 p. m. Assistant Attorney-General Ralph W. Stearns will speak on "Law Observance" and Mrs. Joseph Fessenden on "Federation Legislation." There will also be a speaker on pending legislation.

All women interested in the question of the Federation's legislative policy will want to listen in next Wednesday morning on the Woman's Club Hour at WNAC and hear arguments for and against the policy of endorsing or not endorsing bills in the Legislature. This 10-minute talk will be given by a member of the State Legislative Committee who is also a member of our club, Mrs. Helen I. Fessenden.

Clinics

On Friday, Jan. 20 from 2 to 5 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall three clinics will be conducted by experts from William Filene's Sons Co..

Clinic 1. Arrangement of the hair.
Clinic 2. Color.
Clinic 3. Planning the wardrobe.

Under No. 3 plans will be given for a complete wardrobe or for utilizing materials already on hand. Please bring your material and gowns for remodeling. The clinics will be conducted as an open forum. Come prepared with all the questions you wish to ask.

Tea will be served under the direction of the Fortnightly Hall Committee, Mrs. Katherine A. Myott, chairman.

WINCHESTER BASKETEERS SINK STONEHAM

Winchester High School's basketball team continued its winning stride at the expense of Stoneham High Wednesday afternoon in the local gymnasium, taking a Middlesex League engagement from the hockey players, 42—15. Stoneham presented its best team since the introduction of basethall at the school some 5 years ago but to match this improvement Winchester showed its best all around game for several seasons. Especially was the floor work and defensive play of the locals high class.

The visitors got away to a quick start when Giffin, their lefty center sunk one from the foul line almost before the echoes of the opening whistle had died away. The same boy caged a pretty basket from mid-court soon after and, showing some really worth while scoring formations, Stoneham ran its lead to 6 points before Winchester got started at all.

Old reliable "Henny" Knowlton broke the ice for the locals with a foul basket to be followed in quick succession by floor goals by "Barney" Murphy and Kendrick. Murphy tossed his second basket just before the quarter ended, giving Winchester a 7—6 edge.

This was run to a 17—11 margin at the half, and thereafter things were all Winchester. Try as the visitors would their man for man defense and "long-shot" game got them nowhere. a single basket and two fouls totalling only four points during the entire second half. Coach Mansfield's boys ran up 25 points after half time in one of the best offensive efforts a Winchester team has shown in years. Kendrick, Ross and Murphy were the big guns for the locals, the latter especially showing to fine advantage.

At the beginning of the final quarter Coach Mansfield sent an entirely new team onto the floor. Simonds and Ghirardini were at the forwards, A. Amico at center and G. Amico and Coss, guards. This combination gave a good account of itself while in the battle. The first string outfit returned to action during the last three minues of the game.

Beween the halves the Winchester second team defeated the Stoneham seconds 19—7 with de Coriolis, the local center, scoring 10 of his team's points. The summary of the first game follows:

WINCHESTER		STONEHAM
Kendrick, rf		lf, Orsillo
Simonds, rf
Bidwarta, lf		rg, Olson
Ghirardini, lf		rf, O'Laughlin
Gibson, lf
Ross, c		c, Giffin

Some questions and answers about our Christmas Club

What is the purpose of the Christmas Club?

The purpose is to help you and others to accumulate a sum of money for a definite purpose.

In what manner does the Christmas Club accomplish this purpose?

The Christmas Club meets a popular demand by enabling those who make use of it to lay by small amounts weekly.

Does everybody pay in the same?

No, there are several classes, and the payments are different in each class.

Is there a membership fee or any cost to join?

No.

What shall I do to become a member?

All that is necessary is to go to the bank, ask to be enrolled as a member, and make the first week's payment or more.

How are the payments to be made?

Weekly, or in advance for as many weeks as you desire.

What will happen if I cannot keep up my payments?

If for any reason you discontinue your payments you will be paid the amount you have paid in, at the close of the Club term.

When and how can I withdraw?

Under no circumstances will any withdrawals, either in whole or in part, be allowed in advance. What you deposit will be held for you until the close of the Club term.

What form of receipt do I get when I make payments?

Each member is furnished with a pass book containing fifty double coupons, one of which is detached when the deposit is made, the other remaining in the book, both having been stamped paid by the bank.

What would happen if my Coupon Book was lost, stolen or destroyed?

As we have a complete record of the payments of every member, we will pay you whether you have your receipts or not. We will also give you a fresh book to go on with.

Can I become a member of more than one class?

Yes; you can join one or all of the classes.

When are payments due?

Payments are due Monday of each week, or may be made at any time during the calendar week. They may be made for as many weeks in advance as the depositor desires.

STORY HOUR CONTEST

The Public Library is at last able to announce the first of the innovations about which so much has been heard. A contest, participation in which is open to all children of the Story Hour age: children in the Grammar Schools of the town; was announced and outlined at last week's meeting. At least once each month a story will be told about some character of history, mythology, or literature, and the children will make use of the Library for looking up any information or story concerning that character, bringing in, at a specified time, a written report on the material found. At other times, topics of different natures will be assigned in order to make the contest as general as possible, and not partial to the child who may be particularly adapt in one direction but, perhaps, less so than another child in some other. For the response to these assignments, credit proportional to the quality of the work will be given, as well as for a number of other points such as prompt attendance, deportment, etc. In the spring, prizes will be given to the three children with the highest records, and certificates to all children attaining a given minimum.

EPIPHANY MEN HELD LADIES' NIGHT

The annual Ladies' Night of the Epiphany Men's Club was held on last Monday evening in the Parish House with a large attendance. The feature of the affair was a "complimentary dinner" prepared entirely by the men and served to the ladies and their escorts promptly at 6:30 by an efficient corps of professionally garbed club members under the direction of Head Waiter "Bill" Cole.

Chicken a la king (special), preceded by soup and served with green peas, rolls, ices, fancy cakes and coffee comprised a menu which was received with evident enjoyment by a gathering whose male members, thru long association with dinners prepared by Epiphany ladies, may easily be said to "rate" the designation, "connoisseurs."

It was a festive occasion. The tables were artistically decorated with beautiful roses, the gift of Mr. George F. Arnold, and three were favors, noise makers and the inevitable paper hats for all.

During the dinner community singing was enjoyed led by Dr. "Charlie" Kelley with Mrs. A. B. Corthell at the piano. In addition there were selections sung by a quartet of male voices from the church choir, accompanied and directed by Organist and Choirmaster J. Albert Wilson, and baritone solos by an honorary member of the Epiphany Men's Club, Mr. Edward Corthell of Newton, who was accompanied by Mrs. A. B. Corthell.

Following the dinner President E. S. Larned presided at an informal meeting which was addressed by Mrs. George W. Fitch, chairman of the Church Service League, and Mrs. Edward B. Smalley chairman of the Church Welfare Committee. The rector Rev. Truman Heminway also spoke briefly, stressing the dependence of children upon parental guidance in the solving of their many problems and pointing out the necessity for closer co-operation between the church and home.

General dancing to the strains of an electrically equipped graphophone provided by Mr. R. V. Davis rounded out the evening. Much of the credit for the success of the entire affair is due Mr. John S. Hopkins who was assisted in his efforts by Messrs. E. S. Larned, H. Fred Boglen and E. B. Smalley. The next meeting of the club is scheduled for Monday, Feb. 13.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Next Thursday evening the Court will observe its annual Installation of Officers, held always on the first Thursday in January but postponed this month on account of the illness of three of the officers.

Grand Regent Minnie A. O'Connor, P. G. R. Elizabeth C. McDonald and P. G. R. Frances T. Conlon are sufficiently recovered from their recent indisposition so that they will be able to be installed next Thursday evening, Mrs. O'Connor for a second term as chief officer of the Court, Mrs. McDonald as Treasurer for this year and Mrs. Conlon as the new Prophetess.

There has been much illness in the ranks of the Court, among those ill the past week being P. G. R. Ann C. Poland and Sisters Mollie L. Maguire and Marie Crilley. All are able to be about again.

We hope that pleasant weather and good health will conspire to produce a large membership at our Installation for a most attractive evening looms in the offing. The affair will open with a business meeting and a statement of the Court's standing which is an exceptionally good one. Then will come the Installation of officers conducted by the State Regent and her assisting suite.

That will conclude the formality of the evening and G. R. Minnie A. O'Connor will turn over the meeting to the chairman of the evening, P. G. R. Frances T. Conlon.

At attractively arranged tables the members will enjoy the annual installation supper consisting of creamed chicken in patty shells, peas, mashed potatoes, relishes, rolls, coffee and hot apple pie. This will be interspersed with the entertainment of the evening, a one'act play, "Two Black Crows," which will be enacted by Mrs. Conlon and Mrs. McDonald in both costume and color. The incidental songs of this sketch will be sung by Sister Ethel Kean and the original verses for her song-hit, "Since Henry Made a Lady out of Lizzie" were composed by Sisters McDonald, Conlon and Katharine O'Connor. The day following the installation, these verses are to be sent to the original 2 Black Crows, Moran and Mack so that our Winchester radio fans may have a chance to enjoy them. And we are not unjustifiably puffed up when we promise that these are the best verses we have yet heard on the new Ford.

Sisters Mary McGrath, Mollie Maguire and Mabel Coty will round out the evening's program in their inimitable manner and by special request Miss Coty will sing the new song which her brother, "Billy" Coty, is featuring this week on the radio, "The Morning After the Night Before."

On next Wednesday evening, Jan. 18, Mrs. Katharine Lynch, one of our Trustees will be the hostess at a bridge and whist which she will conduct at her home on Scott street, Woburn, in aid of the Charitable fund. This is not the first time that Mrs. Lynch has entertained us and the members and their friends look forward to a most enjoyable evening.

In the following week, Historian Mary E. Martin will be hostess at a similar party at her home on Pickering street, the evening to be announced later.

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 24, P. G. R. Frances T. Conlon will be the reader at the combined meeting of the Stoneham Teachers' Club and the Stoneham Parent-Teachers' Association.

YOU WON'T MIND THE SPOTLIGHT IF—

if the clothes you wear are cool, comfortable and freshly pressed, and render your disposition amiable you won't mind if folks give you the once over and tell you that you are looking fine.

YOU WON'T MIND THE SPOTLIGHT, IF—you get the habit of letting this shop keep your clothes looking like they should. Our service is complete from tailoring to cleaning and pressing.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

It is very encouraging to members of Winchester Rotary Club that practically all of our meetings are favored with a goodly number of visitors; it gives us the feeling that our gatherings must be worth while—that they are of real value to our brother Rotarians. The meeting of Thursday was in keeping with previous sessions in this respect. As usual the boys from Woburn sent a strong delegation. This being the case it was but natural that "Doc" should call for an exhibition of their well known talent for song. This was all quite correct, but who could have foreseen that Jim would sieze on this particular occasion to display his cleverness at reverse harmony or contrapuntal dynamics or whatever he may call it. We leave the result to the imagination of those who were so fortunate as to be beyond earshot.

It has geen the policy of our club from time to time, to have speakers who will give a talk descriptive of some profession or business occupation which is of particular interest to our members. The entertainment of Thursday was along this line and the subject was, "Felt and Its Manufacture." To those who may be of the opinion that this is a dry subject we give assurance that they are in error. The speaker held the closest attention of all, and at the close of his remarks received far more congratulations than is ordinarily the case. We feel confident that every man present learned something from this talk, and certainly that sort of thing is worth while.

President George gave the pleasing announcement that our club was among the leaders last month in the matter of attendance records. We wish to stay there, and we wish to do even better. Let every member take notice.

SERVICE OF LIGHTS AT EPIPHANY CHURCH

The annual service of lights in honor of the Feast of the Epiphany, which celebrates the manifestation of Christ to the world, was held in the Church of the Epiphany on last Sunday afternoon. There was the usual large attendance, the Feast of the Epiphany having especial significance for members of the Winchester parish which takes its name from this season of the church year, while others were undoubtedly attracted by the simple dignity and unusual character of the service. In brief it typifies the spreading of the gospel of Christ throughout the world by means of the church and its members, the gospel being represented by candles distributed among the congregation and lighted from those burning upon the altar.

Last Sunday evening the rector, Rev. Truman Heminway, first lighted his candle at the altar and then lighted the candles of the senior and junior wardens of the church, respectively Alfred S. Higgins and Stanley G. H. Fitch.

These in turn passed through the chancel, lighting the candles of the choir and thence to the transept where those of the Vestry were lighted. The members of the vestry in turn lighted the candles of the entire congregation, after which the church lights were turned off, leaving the high vaulted nave illuminated only by the tiny flames of the tapers.

When each candle had been lighted the congregation filed slowly by pews from the church, every precaution being taken against possible fire.

During the service the rector spoke, taking as his topic, "The Story of the Wise Men." The vested choir of 45 men and boys under the direction of organist and choirmaster J. Albert Wilson sang the anthem, "And the Glory of the Lord Shall be Revealed," from "The Messiah."

DRIVER ARRESTED FOLLOWING CRASH

Following an accident in which their machine figured Monday afternoon, two Woburn young men were taken into custody by officer John Noonan of the police, charged with drunkenness and with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor.

The accident occurred on Washington street opposite the Johnson plot, where in going north on Washington street, the Ford coupe containing the two young men struck a Buick sedan, parked at the curb, the property of Dr. R. W. Sheehy of 21 Washington street. The sedan was only slightly damaged but the Ford was badly smashed. Officer Noonan was soon on the scene and arrested the operator of the latter machine and his companion.

At headquarters the driver gave his name as William J. Mulrenan and his address as 25 Stoddard street, Woburn. He was accompanied by his brother who gave his name as John Mulrenan, Jr. and his address as Central street, Woburn. The former was charged with drunkenness and with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor and the latter with drunkenness.

Both young men appeared in the District Court at Woburn Tuesday morning when they were found guilty as charged. William was fined $50 on the operating charge while John's fine was $10.

BOSTON YOUNG PEOPLE TO CONDUCT SERVICE HERE

The young people's meeting next Sunday evening at 6 o'clock in the First Baptist Church promises to be unusually interesting in that it is to be conducted entirely by a group from the Young People's Society of the First Baptist Church in Boston. In the Baptist young people to join with cluded in the group are many college students and the program which they have arranged for their Winchester friends is to be especially attractive.

The Boston group is to arrive in Winchester Saturday evening and its members are to be the guests of the Winchester Young People's Society at the class play in the Town Hall. Following the play additional entertainment has been arranged for. The visitors are to participate in all the services at the First Baptist Church on Sunday but are especially responsible for that scheduled for 6 o'clock in the evening. Their Winchester appearance a year ago resulted in a particularly inspiring service and it is hoped to

A cordial invitation is extended by have the Boston group here annually. them on next Sunday evening.

A scientist has discovered that plant growth may be speeded up by applying manganese and other metals. It has long been known that the application in the shape of a hoe works wonders on plant growth.

After a wild chase through the south end of Woburn Monday during which several people were threatened, eight hens were killed and a cow severely bitten a maddened mongrel dog was finally cornered by Mrs. Michael Lynch at her home on Pond street. The animal had dashed into the Lynch home where Mrs. Lynch was sweeping and the lady would have been badly bitten, had she not defended herself with the broom. She finally succeeded in shutting the infuriated beast in the kitchen closet where he was finally shot by officer Alonzo O'Brien of the Woburn Police. Soon after the animal was dead Sgret. William H. Rogers of the Winchester Police arrived upon the scene, having been summoned by Mrs. Lynch. Considerable excitement was occasioned by the episode and it is fortunate that several people were not badly bitten, since the animal was thought by veterinarians to have been afflicted with rabies.

UNITARIAN MEN'S CLUB

The regular monthly meeting of the Men's Club was held last Friday evening. A supper was served at 6:30 prepared by "Bill" Wood and his able assistants. There was a fairly good crowd out but we feel there would have been more if they could have foreseen the bounteous repast which was set before us. Most of us would have been satisfied with just the fish chowder, but "Bill" had to pile on a meat order and dessert besides. There followed a brief business meeting and a lecture by Rev. John N. Mark of Arlington- a Scotchman, who gave us a talk on, "Robert Burns, the Man and Poet."

In the absence of President Kenerson, Mr. T. R. Godwin, Vice President of the Men's Club officiated.

Rev. Mr. Mark gave us a very interesting and instructive lecture. His rapid fire talk contained humor enough to keep his audience in laughter and his stories about Robert Burns were some that most of us had never heard before. We hope to have him with us again sometime.

Mr. Reed read a etter from Daniel Dennett in which he expressed his thanks for the scholarship award. This is the first made by the scholarship fund of the Unitarian Men's Club to the most deserving pupil of the Winchester High School.

It was brought out at the meeting that President Kenerson had organized the Men's Club into ten different divisions, with a chairman of each, to devise some means of earning the Club's share of funds towards the building of the Parish House. The Groups are already at work and results are sure to be obtained.

"Bill" Wood is again on the job and announces that he will have a supper-cabaret in the Town Hall sometime in February. Most of us will remember the enjoyable time we had at his cabaret last year. To make things doubly interesting, he has enlisted a committee of women to help him out and he will also be assisted by the Men's Club and the Young Peoples' Society. This ought to go over with a bang.

LEGION NOTES

Winchester Post No. 97, the American Legion, is to act as host to the Posts of District 2, Middlesex County, comprising Arlington, Woburn and Somerville, at a joint meeting of the four Posts to be held at Post Headquarters, Thursday evening, Feb. 2, at 8 o'clock. Arrangements have been completed for a capacity crowd and it is expected that early arrivals will be assured of front seats.

The District meeting will be conducted by William P. Barry Commander of District 3 and many distinguished guests of Middlesex County as well as the State Department are expected to be present.

The speaker of the evening is to be Lieut.-Col. Carroll J. Swan, a prominent Massachusetts' Legionaire who will tell of his experiences with the National Commander in his recent world tour of Europe which carried over 200 Legionaires through the allied countries of Europe where they were received by the crowned heads of several countries and accorded honors never before extended any visiting delegation. Colonel Swan would make the story of "Little Red Riding Hood" interesting and funny, what he can do with such a subject as "Legioneering in Europe" can only be found out by attendance at this meeting.

We promise all Legionaires a very entertaining evening.

MARRIED TOMORROW

The wedding of Miss Rosamond Lefavour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Lefavour of Herrick street whose engagement to Mr. Robert Wainwright Rogers of Highland Park, Ill., and New York City was announced in November last is to take place tomorrow afternoon at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York City.

Owing to the sudden death of the groom's only brother, a few weeks ago, the wedding will be very quietly observed in the presence of only the members of the immediate families. The couple expect to live in New York, where Mr. Rogers is located in business.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Mrs. Katherine Lynch, one of our Trustees, entertained the members and their friends at a bridge and whist at her home on Scott street, Woburn, on Wednesday evening. In addition to the Winchester people who attended there were many present from Woburn and Medford so that the capacity of the house was taxed to its utmost, thus giving testimony to the popularity of the hostess. The gratitude of the Court is extended to Mrs. Lynch for making possible one of the most enjoyable evenings we have experienced in a long time. And to her the Misses Lynch are due, also, the especial thanks of the Charitable Committee to whose fund the proceeds of the party will be quite a pretentious addition.

Last evening in Lyceum Hall the Court held its regular meeting and annual installation of officers. At the meeting reports were read by the chairmen of the various standing committees. All these reports showed the Court to be in splendid shape financially.

Following the regular meeting the officers for the year 1928 were installed by State Regent Kathryn T. Salmon and her suite. At the conclusion of the installation ceremonies the chairman of the evening, P.G.R., Frances T. Conlon, presented to G.R. Minnie A. O'Connor on behalf of the members a chest of community silver in the new Paul Revere pattern. This was a token of the Court's appreciation of Mrs. O'Connor's successful year of earnest endeavor in our behalf. The State Regent, also, received a bouquet of roses.

Directly after the installation the members and the visiting daughters sat down to a most appetizing supper of hot creamed chicken with all the fixin's including a dessert of hot apple pie and ice cream.

The entertainment included a Moran and Mack one-act playlet with the following taking part, P.G.R., Frances T. Conlon, P.G.R., Elizabeth C. McDonald, Mrs. Helen Studley, Mrs. Sara Cassidy. Soloist, Miss Ethel Kean. Then came song selections by Organist Mabel M. Coty and Mrs. Mary McGrath and Mrs. Mollie Maguire.

This rounded out a wonderfully succesful evening, due to the efficient work of Mrs. Conlon, Miss O'Connor and their hard-working committee.

The following officers were installed:

G. R. Mrs. Minnie A. O'Connor.
V. R. Mrs. Joseph Moffett.
Historian Miss Mary A. Martin.
Financial Secretary Mrs. Thomas Cassidy.
Treasurer—Mrs. Elizabeth C. McDonald.
Presidiscus—Mrs. Frances T. Conlon.
Monitor Mrs. John Murray.
Sentinel Mrs. Nora O'Melia.
Lecturer Mrs. Mary McGrath.
Organist Miss Mabel M. Coty.
Trustees for 3 Years—Mrs. John T. Smith, Mrs. Barry E. Brown.

The next whist in aid of the Court's charity fund will be held at the home of Historian Mary A. Martin, Pickering street, on Wednesday evening Feb. 1. Miss Martin will be assisted by Miss Dorothy Kean and Mrs. Chares McHugh.

METHODIST LADIES HELD MUSICALE

Despite the inclement weather there was a good attendance at the musicale held last evening in the Methodist Episcopal Church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid Society. The soloists were Mrs. Helen Edlefson Barr, soprano; Miss Ruth L. Dodge, violin; and Harry D. Newcombe, baritone. They were assisted by Miss Winifred H. Bent, reader; and Miss Mary H. French, Mrs. Franklin A. Bliss and Walter Arns, accompanists. The program follows:

MISS GRIFFIN'S CONDITION IMPROVED

Was Injured in Fall From Moving Automobile—Has Fractured Skull

The condition of Miss Catherine Griffin, 22, a domestic living at 73 Bacon street who was seriously injured last week Thursday afternoon in a fall from a moving automobile on Cambridge street not far from the Country Club, was reported yesterday at the Winchester Hospital as improved.

Miss Griffin was injured when she jumped from a Ford coupe, owned and operated by John T. McKeering of 37 Middlesex street, to board the 3:45 p. m. Arlington-bound electric which was coming to a stop opposite the estate of W. E. Robinson on Cambridge street.

McKeering was slowing down his machine preparatory to stopping to allow his passenger to alight when without warning Miss Griffin leaped from the car which was traveling about 15 miles an hour. She was thrown heavily and badly injured in the fall.

Stopping his machine McKeering at once went to her assistance and aided by passing motorists got the young woman into the sedan of Norman S. Van Dyke of 43 Spruce street, Watertown, in which she was driven to the Winchester Hospital by William S. Connors of 1060 South street, Watertown. Miss Griffin was accompanied to the hospital by Miss Mary Wall of 75 Bacon street and Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy who was picked up by Connors at Bacon and Church streets.

An examination by Dr. Richard W. Sherby disclosed the fact that she was suffering from a fractured skull, clavicle and scapula as well as a severe shaking up. For a time her condition was grave but gradually changed for the better until her name is no longer upon the hospital's danger list.

McKeering told the police that he had seen Miss Griffin at the corner of Oxford and Church street and that he had picked her up at her request to take her to Arlington, she having missed the car. He is a former well known crack shortstop and has many friends about town.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Another week has passed and it has been a week which has demonstrated to us of the Rotary Club that Rotary has come to be a very real thing in our lives, a thing to be cherished and a thing to be shared with our neighbors in so far as this is possible. To paraphrase a well-known slogan, "Ask the Winchesterite who is a Rotarian."

President George was in the chair today and President George really presides. We are prompted to this remark by the fact that he rarely misses an opportunity to impose a fine. This charming way of his is highly entertaining to all parties who are not guilty, it enriches the treasury, and it reduces to a minimum all laxity in observing the "Rules of the Game."

The speaker of the day was Mr. E. C. Johnson, President of the H. A. Johnson Company of Boston, Vice-President of the Boston Chamber of Commerce and formerly a Rotarian. His subject was "Vision in Business." He proved to be a man with a message and with the ability to deliver it effectively. With a mind brimful of ideas and a genius for looking into the future, he presented an address which from beginning to end was of genuine interest to his hearers.

Our thanks go to Denton for giving us the opportunity of meeting a most entertaining gentleman.

As usual we welcomed a goodly number of visitors this week. This is a most valuable feature of our meetings and surely our brother Rotarians know that they need no invitation to come.

An revoir—Jan. 26.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Announcement is made of the marriage on Sunday, Jan. 15, of Mrs. Sylvia Currier Dale of 8 Mystic avenue, formerly of Boston, to Rufus Alfred Somerby of 52 Yale street. The ceremony was performed in the home of the Redemption, Boston by the rector, Rev. Stephen Herbert Robblin. Mrs. Somerby is known in Boston musical circles as secretary to Dean Wallace Goodrich of the New England Conservatory of Music. She has been studying at the Conservatory and has been a member of the choir of the church in which she was married. Mr. Somerby is prominent in threatrical circles through his long association with the G. E. Lathron Theatres Company of Boston. He is a member of the Calumet Club and of Winchester Lodge of Elks. Mr. and Mrs. Somerby are to make their home in Winchester at 52 Yale street.

WINCHESTER MAN'S AUTO KILLS MEDFORD PEDESTRIAN

Thomas J. Collins, 72 years old, married, of 16 Alexander avenue, Medford, was instantly killed early yesterday morning, when he was struck by an auto truck owned and operated by Philip S. Savage of 61 Harvard street, Winchester, while he was crossing Summer street, near the Army Base, Boston.

The man was taken to the Haymarket Relief Station by Savage, where he was pronounced dead. His body was ordered removed to the Northern Mortuary.

Savage was arraigned in South Boston Court and a continuance was granted by Judge Edward L. Logan until next Tuesday. He was charged with manslaughter and driving so as to endanger. Savage is a Postoffice employee.

"THE OPTIMIST" GIVEN BY THE ODD FELLOWS

The Waterfield Dramatic Club composed of members of the Odd Fellow and Rebekah Lodges of this town will produce their first annual play in the Town Hall on Friday evening, Feb. 3.

"The Optimist," a farce in three acts, produced by special arrangement with Walter H. Baker Company of Boston and conched by Charles J. Harrold has as many original situations and bits of business as a centipede has feet. Can you imagine manufacturing a mummy with a love-sick swain, old rags and grease paint as the chief ingredients? Also why are shot guns and baseball bats vital to the antique business—to say nothing of sledge hammer and tooth brushes?

And why should Madame Gopher, the trance medium, faint when she suddenly discovers she isn't a liar after all? Would you stand within three feet of your best pal and listen to him make love to your girl, and hear her ask him for a kiss? The hero does in this case for her is helpless under the prevailing circumstances. The characters are more assorted than the component parts of a burning motor, and they will keep your laugh system working livelier than a cash register in a bargain basement.

This play was written by the author of "Oh, Kay!" which has been playing in New York and Boston, so if you want to hear the rafters of the old town hall ring with laughter don't delay in getting your tickets. They have been selling like hot cakes since they were released.

Eyes' Orchestra, under the leadership of T. Parker Clark, has been obtained to furnish the music for both the show, and the dancing afterwards. "Nuf sed."

Tickets may be procurred at Hersey's, Winchester Savings Bank and Hood's.

WHAT FRIDAY THE 13th MEANT TO A DISABLED VETERAN

If any resident of Winchester helives in the old superstition that Friday the 13th is Hoodoo Day all they need to do to forever dispell the apprehension it breeds is to make a visit to the Veteran's Hospital at West Roxbury and call upon Dr. "Jerry" Pagli for "Jerry" received a very fine Amrad electric radio through the efforts of the Disabled Veterans Welfare Group of Winchester on that day.

Dr. "Jerry" is a graduate of Tufts Medical School who, as a result of his participation in the World War now lies chained by paralysis to his bed. Perhaps you can in some wise imagine the delight this gift has brought to this stricken soldier, but when you know that the very joy of receiving it brought words of appreciation to his lips that had not spoken more than a few monosyllables since the war, you can more fully comprehend its value.

The radio has been placed beside Dr. "Jerry's" bed and it is the intent of the hospital attendants to see that he has the machine tuned in to his liking at all times.

With this personal enjoyment, too, Dr. "Jerry" has the happiness of knowing that all the other fellows can hear with him the music and speaking from places in the active world of men.

It was largely through the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. William Kneeland of this town that this instrument was obtained, for through Mr. Kneeland's influence the machine was purchased at a great reduction in price.

To all those who contributed toward the radio fund, Dr. "Jerry" says "I don't know when I can ever repay you" and in behalf of the Veterans' Welfare Group, the visiting committee who presented the radio say, "If you could have been there to have seen Dr. "Jerry's" countenance and to have heard his loosened tongue speak these words, you would feel that you have been miraculously paid."

POLICE CHIEF COMMENDED OFFICERS FOR ARREST OF GUN MEN

At the morning and evening roll calls at Police Headquarters Monday, Chief of Police William R. McIntosh highly commended Sergt. William H. Rogers and Patrolman John E. Hanlon for the arrest last week, Tuesday evening of the two alleged holdup men who gave their names as George Rider, 19, of 430 Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, and Robert W. Langill, 19, of 52 Lewis avenue, Arlington.

The police say that these two men are responsible for a number of holdups in Winchester and other towns the last three months.

The chief stated that the arrest on Tuesday evening by the officers was one of the best catches ever made in the history of the department. Both men were heavily armed when taken by the police and were held in $11,000 for appearance before the Grand Jury. They are charged with robbery at night while armed.

WAKEFIELD ELKS WORKED DEGREE

Winchester Lodge of Elks enjoyed one of its best meetings of the year on Tuesday evening when a large delegation from Wakefield Lodge attended as guests. The first degree was exemplified upon a class of Winchester candidates by the visiting officers. Exalted Ruler George H. Lochman presided at the meeting which was followed by an entertainment and collation. About 150 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. B. Bernard of Winchester are in Washington for the present and are among recent prominent arrivals at the Mayflower today.

CALUMET NOTES

Last Saturday evening we had a smoker and one of the largest crowds of the season turned out. Mr. Morse of Lowell gave us an interesting talk on "African Big Game," together with movies. Mr. Morse and his father made the trip and personally took the pictures. They were the best on the subject we have ever seen, bringing realism near to us. The pictures of the natives, the capturing of the tigers, elephants, etc. was shown to us by means of the movie and kept us in wonder and amazement. Mr. Morse held the attention of his audience for two hours and we were sorry when he finished.

This evening we shall have our regular monthly ladies' and gentlemen's bowling. There will be prizes and a general good time. We rather expect Chairman Pilkington will have his hands full but he says he will be able to look out for all comers.

The Men's Bowling Tournament is nearing its end—too fast to suit the participants, for we have all had a fine time this year and there has been much excitement. Some of the teams are closely hunched, both above and below the bread line and each team now is trying to keep above the line.

Team 1, composed of Snow, Priest, Blanchard, Pilkington and Cobb broke the team record for the season recently, rolling a total of 1541 with strings of 508, 505 and 528. Incidentally, it was their own record they broke for they had previously rolled 1521. Priest, Blanchard and Snow were very closely bunched for totals, rolling respectively 335, 333 and 328. This team deserves to be "No. 1."

Team 12, composed of Osgood, Richburg, Porter, Miller and S. Taylor have been showing up well after a bad start. This team lost 20 straight points. Since then, they have won 23 and lost 5.

On Friday evening, Jan. 27, we shall hold our Family Entertainment. We shall be favored with a lecture by Mr. Arthur H. Merritt of Boston. Mr. Merritt will give us a lecture on National Parks of the United States and Canada illustrated by a large number of unusually beautiful colored slides. These pictures were taken under extraordinary weather conditions, showing scenes seldom seen by tourists and full of interest to anyone who has ever visited the parks, as well as those who have not enjoyed these wonders of nature. The committee was fortunate to get Mr. Merritt on account of the big demand for the pictures and it was only through a fortunate force of circumstances that he could come out to our club. Mr. L. R. Hart, general agent of the Canadian Pacific realizes that Mr. Merritt's slides of the Canadian Pacific Rockies are the best he has ever seen and the Canadian Pacific has had their own men on such jobs for years in an endeavor to interest tourists. The coloring in some of the pictures is particularly beautiful. Members are privileged to bring members of their family and any out-of-town guests. Mr. Merritt told us a little secret the other day—all the money he takes in goes toward a fund for the education of worthy boys and girls.

WINCHESTER AT READING TONIGHT

The leadership of the Middlesex Basketball League is in the balance tonight, when Winchester's fast moving quintette clashes with Reading, last year's champions, at Reading. The locals have won three straight league games while Reading is undefeated in two circuit encounters. On the basis of comparative showings against Belmont and Stoneham, Winchester is the favorite to win tonight but the battle is sure to be a thriller. First game is called at 7:30 p. m.

CRACK GLOUCESTER FIVE TO PLAY HERE

Next Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the high school gymnasium local basketball fans will get a peek at the crack Gloucester High quintette which comes to Winchester to fill an engagement with Coach Wendell Mansfield's charges. GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"The Heart of Maryland," one of David Belasco's most successful stage plays has reached the screen at last with beautiful Dolores Costello in the leading role. This celebrated story of the North and South has lost none of its heart interest in its transference to the screen. It is now being shown at the Granada Theatre, in Malden. Claulio Coleman, one of vaudeville's most popular type comediennes, is one of the highlights on the five act bill the Granada is presenting the last three days of this week. Miss Coleman has been a vaudville headliner for years and in generally recognized as one of the most clever artists on the stage. The other four acts, including the Rosamore Revue, are up to the Granada standard.

Colleen Moore comes to the Granada the first three days of next week in her newest comedy film, "Her Wild Oat." The fair Colleen plays the part of a young girl proprietoress of a lunch cart who saves up her money for one glorious blow-out which is scheduled to last a week. Hilarious moments of comedy are the result of the young ladies' desire to live high for n time. Miss Moore is supported by a strong cast that includes Larry Kent, Owen Lee and Hallam Cooley. The regular five act bill of vaudeville will be an added feature for the first half of next week. The management of the Granada have been featuring for some time past an overture by the Symphony Orchestra and the giant organ in combination. This innovation has caught the fancy of music lovers who appreciate good music.

MUSICALE AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

An evening of music and readings in the Ladies' Parlor of the First Congregational Church, is to be given under the auspices of Group Five, Tuesday evening, Jan. 24 at 8 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Trudeau, violinist and 'cellist, Mrs. Caroline D. Gilpatric, Soprano, Miss Elsie Lyons, Reader, and other assisting artists will furnish the program.

Tickets at 50c may be purchased at Barnes' Store and at the Little Shoppe on Thompson street.

OLDER BOYS CONFERENCE

The sixth annual Older Boys' Conference of the Mystic Valley will be held on Saturday afternoon and evening, Feb. 4, in the First Baptist Church of Woburn. This conference is under the auspices of the State Y. M. C. A. and churches in the cities and towns of the Mystic Valley.

The purpose of the conference is to help boys of High School age to develop purpose toward their life work, to find the best preparation for their vocational choice, to help them recognize the place of Christian character and ideals, and to promote fellowship among boys of the Mystic Valley.

Tickets may be obtained of Gilbert Hook, 30 Dix street, Ralph McAdams, 92 Harvard street, Gordon Gillette, 25 Rangeley street, Andrew Skilling, 29 Lloyd street and Mr. Herbert E. Stone, 3 Edgehill road.

FEDERATION OF MEN'S CLUBS

Two delegates from each men's organization of the 40 Protestant churches in Woburn, Winchester, Stoneham, Wilmington, Burlington, Reading and Lexington are to meet at the Woburn Y. M. C. A. Thursday, Jan. 26 at 7:45 p. m. to organize a Federation of Protestant Church Men's Clubs. Already two meetings first in October at the Montvale Congregational Church and second in November at the Woburn Y. M. C. A. have been held discussing the proposed Federation.

Four meetings a year are planned, two for delegates to discuss the individual club problems and exchange of ideas, the other two for all club members which should make gatherings representative enough to command the best speakers in the country.

Along this line comes the invitation from the Covenant Club of the Woburn Unitarian Church to join them on Jan. 19 at 8 p. m. to hear Prof. Clarence Skinner of Tufts College and Benjamin Gerig talk on "Capital Punishment."

Last Friday evening's alarm of fire from Box 31 at 8 o'clock was found to be needless and was thought to have been caused by someone's tampering with the box, situated at the corner of Washington and Swanton streets.

PUBLIC LIBRARY STORY HOUR

The first activities in the Story Hour Prize Contest took place at the meeting last Saturday. Those children who were present have been busily looking up information and stories about Apollo, and some extremely interesting papers are expected from them, for which they will receive points counting toward the three prizes to be awarded in the spring. Children who missed out on the last meeting need not feel that the loss will materially affect their chances to win a prize, however, for there is still ample time to become registered for the contest. Such children are advised to make their entries as soon as possible, nevertheless, and the Children's Librarian is always ready to receive entries and issue the score cards.

There will be another assignment at this week's hour, and those who were present last week would do well to come around again, and bring their friends with them.

ATTENTION, FRIENDS OF VERMONT

The public libraries of Vermont have been hard hit by the recent flood. Some have been completely destroyed, others badly damaged. Many villages and rural communities have thereby lost their only cultural and recreation centers.

For example Johnson library, wiped out; Waterbury library, books and equipment totally destroyed; Montpelier library, 10,000 books and equipment gone.

The Massachusetts Library Club is asking friends of Vermont to rally to the aid of the stricken libraries. Prompt response to the call will help our northern neighbors over many a bad hour this winter.

Give books—recent hooks and good editions of standard authors are wanted. Magazines are not solicited.

Give money for the purchase of books and for supplies. Make your contributions to your wn public library which will act as the local collection agency. Distributidn to needy libraries is guaranteed by the Massachusetts Library Club Inc.

EXHIBITION OF PHOTOGRAPHS

From Jan. 16 to Feb. 4, in Winchester Public Library an exhibition of photgraphs, loaned by the Library Art Club, is being held consisting of reproductions by famous Italian masters.

Sergt. William H. Rogers with Officers James Farrell, John Hogan and Mark Kelley raided a house on Irving street last Sunday evening and siezed a quantity of wine. The owner of the premises appeared in court Monday morning to answer to the charges of keeping and exposing liquor and of keeping a disorlerly house. The case was continued until this morning.

HIGH SCHOOL PUPILS PRESENT "THE GOOSE HANGS HIGH"

Annual Senior-Junior Class Play Attracts Large Audience to Town Hall

The Senior and Junior classes of the Winchester High School presented "The Goose Hangs High," a drama in three acts by Lewis Beach, in the Town Hall before a capacity audience on last Saturday evening. The production was well up to the usual high standard of excellence set in previous seasons.

While not so funny as many class plays have been in the past, "The Goose Hangs High" was nevertheless absorbingly interesting and a vehicle admirably suited to its youthful cast, the members of which without exception portrayed their parts splendidly.

The plot concerns the adventures of the Ingals family who in attempting to send two of its members to college while otherwise living beyond their means arrive at serious financial difficulties which finally resolve themselves to the satisfaction of all.

It would be hard to single out any individual member of the big cast for especial praise. Perhaps the irrepressible Kezar Nichols in the comedy role of Bradley Ingals best pleased the large crowd and surely he and Jean Davis as Lois Ingals made the most of the Ingals hopefuls whose education was proving so costly. Elizabeth Clark as "Gram" Bradley made a fine impression while William Callahan and Russell Franklin did well with their character parts. Ronald Olmstead and Marjorie French were excellent as the heads of the house of Ingals and the remaining parts were convincingly portrayed by Maurice Tompkins Frances Rhodes, Janice Whittaker, Louis Rondina, Edward Woodbury and Joy Adrianee.

Between the acts the winners of the ticket selling competition were announced. Dorothy Friend, with 97 tickets sold, was the winner of the individual prize while Donald Dalrymple's group, comprising Guy Wilberger, Marion Bradshaw, Ernest Smith and Dorothea McKenzie, were awarded the team trophy. Music was furnished by Augustine Pistorino, pianist, and candy was sold by a group of girls under the direction of Dorothea McKenzie. At the conclusion of the production, the Coach, Miss Alice Eudora Chapman, was presented with a handsome bouquet of flowers, the gift of the cast.

The cast follows:

Bernard Ingals	Ronald Olmstead
Eunice Ingals	Marjorie French
Noel Derby	Maurice Tompkins
Leo Day	William Callahan
Rhoda	Frances Rhodes
Julia Murdock	Janice Whittaker
Mrs. Bradley	Elizabeth Clark
Hugh Ingals	Louis Rondina

WINCHESTER OUTCLASSED WAKEFIELD

Winchester won its third Middlesex League basketball game in a row last Friday evening when it defeated Wakefield High, 32—11, in the high school gymnasium. It was the first win which a local five has registered over Wakefield since Coach Mansfield assumed his duties here.

The game was rather rough in spots and by no means as one sided as the score would indicate. Wakefield had a fairly good five which should improve considerably as the season advances.

An air-tight defense prevented the visitors from taking advantage of the fact that their huge center, Greene, was eternally getting the tap, and after the first quarter the size of the score was about all there was to speculate over.

For the first time in several seasons sporadic booing broke out here and there among the local rooters. Especially was this form of rowdyism apparent when big Greene, visiting center, was ordered from the floor for exceeding his quota of fouls. Winchester rooters would do well to remember that referees can call fouls on a team for the unsportsmanlike tactics of its rooters. Not so long ago Winchester lost an important league game to Watertown because of fouls called against its team, fouls called solely because of the razzing to which the visiting players had been subjected by the Winchester fans. It was a tough break for the home club which was leading at the time the fouls were called and which would have won, had it not been for the points obtained as a result of its supporters' booing.

Winchester and Wakefield fought on fairly even terms during the first quarter which ended with Winchester leading, 7—4. The second quarter saw the locals' defense tightening appreciably with the result that the visitors were able to score but one foul goal during the entire eight points to its total and the half ended, 15—5, in its favor.

At the resumption of play Coach Mansfield sent an entirely new team onto the floor, A. Amico and McNeil were at the forward posts, Simonds at center and Coss and G. Amico, guards. Wakefield found the subs little easier than the first string outfit and was held scoreless while Simonds and McNeil tossed baskets to add to the Winchester lead. Just before the close of the period the varsity returned to action and Ross caged a floor goal as the quarter ended.

The last quarter was all Winchester, Coach Mansfield's boys rolling up 11 points to 6 for the visitors. With the game nearly ended G. Amico went in for A. Amico at left forward, the latter falling back to center. Coss and Ghirardini replaced Knowlton and Murphy at the guards.

Winchester played steady, effective game throughout, its stars being Ross, Halwartz and Murphy. Gevenovitch played best for Wakefield.

Between the halves of the first team game the Winchester seconds defeated the Wakefield seconds in what turned out to be one of the most exciting battles ever waged on the local floor. The score was 15—14 with the issue in doubt up to the very final minute of play. The local subs led at the half, 9—5, and were still in front at the three-quarters mark, 11—7. Here Wakefield got two baskets to tie the score before "Johnny" Murphy caged an important floor goal to keep the lead at home. Then Cadagen of Wakefield shot a foul basket and floor goal to give the visitors the lead, only to have Shaw toss a foul shot to even the count. There was but half a minute to go and the big crowd was in an uproar when a foul was called against Marshall of Wakefield. Murphy of Winchester did the shooting and sank the leather like nobody's business. It proved the winning point, time being called almost at once.

FIDELIS CLUB

At the regular meeting of the Fidelis Club, held last Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Mary Fitzgerald, the following officers for the year 1928 were elected:

President—Evelyn O'Connell.
Secretary—Mildred Barrett.
Treasurer—Ruth Cleary.

After the election was finished, a general discussion followed, during which plans were made for the coming year; the next social meeting is to be held in the form of a Valentine party.

The retiring President, Miss Mary A. Boyle who has held office since the founding of the club, made a very gracious acceptance of the gift presented by the girls as a token of their esteem and good wishes.

WINCHESTER GIRLS EDGED STONEHAM

Winchester High School girls' basketball team won a hair-line decision 21—20, over the Stoneham High girls in the locals' first interscholastic game of the season Tuesday afternoon at Stoneham.

Coach Wheeler's charges went out in front from the start and during the first few minutes of play seemed destined to make a runaway of the match. The Stoneham girls, however, soon struck their stride and the half ended with Winchester holding a four point advantage, 15—11.

Following intermission the game speeded up appreciably with Winchester still showing the upper hand throughout the third quarter. Stoneham came very fast toward the end of the battle and might have won but for the locals' lead. Captain "Sunny" Davis and Virginia Merrill starred for Winchester while Dodge and Spangler played well for Stoneham.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

The hospitality committee of the church and the activities committee of the Ladies' Friendly gave all the more recent members a novel introduction to the ladies of the Parish with the Get-Together tea and reception held in the Unitarian Church parlors Tuesday afternoon. Little shoulder corsages, the wearer's name, and all were busy pecking before speaking, which gave a social atmosphere to the affair.

Mrs. Reed, Mrs. Hildreth, Mrs. Young and Mrs. Nutting received the ladies and their guests in the Ladies' Parlor which Mrs. Lillian Mason had transformed into an oriental lounge. Mrs. Drisko presided at the tea table, Mrs. Arthur Kelley was in charge of the tea, while Mrs. Herbert Stone managed the ushering.

Mrs. Lillian Mason has completed all the details for the parish bridge which will be held Tuesday, Feb. 7 at 2 o'clock. The following hostesses will open their homes for this event, Mrs. Ralph Damon of Everett avenue, Mrs. Henry Goddard of Wolcott road, Mrs. Kenneth Gerrish of Maxwell road, Mrs. Godwin of Mystic Valley Parkway, Mrs. Harold Gale of Swan road, Mrs. Clifford Nutting of Calumet road, Mrs. A. T. Sisson of Mystic avenue, Mrs. Herbert Stone of Edgehill road, Mrs. E. Arthur Tutein of Wildwood street, Mrs. Herbert Wadleigh of Cabot street, Mrs. Bertram Bernard of Glengary and Mrs. Robert Orpin of Sheffield West.

There will be an all day sewing meeting of the Ladies' Friendly in the church parlors Tuesday, Jan. 24.

At the last meeting of antiques given by Mrs. Watkins at her home Wednesday afternoon, Jan. 18, a collection of Sandwich Lace Glass owned by Mrs. Charles L. Woodside of Malden was exhibited. China will be the subject of Mrs. Watkins' lecture on next Wednesday, Jan. 25.

Hazel Lafricain, the 'cellist will play in place of Marjorie Weaver, who has departed for Chicago, at the Thursday Musicale to be held Feb. 2 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Dreier, Curtis circle.

WINCHESTER RETURNS TO FORMER FIRE AGREEMENT WITH WOBURN

The report that Winchester is to answer no more Woburn fire alarms unless preceeded by three blows is rather misleading and not in accordance with the facts. Chief David H. DeCourcy of the Winchester Department stated this week that he was simply returning to the agreement which he formerly had with Woburn whereby he answered alarms from that city only when his men and apparatus were needed. The system which has been in operation, under which Winchester answered second alarms from a small box in Woburn, resulted in the local department making several unnecessary runs to fires there and it is to obviate this expensive procedure that the former agreement is being retrned to use.

Since the introduction of the two-platoon system in Woburn it is often necessary to sound two alarms for fires solely to bring the second shift men to the scene and not because outside aid is sought. Under the system being discarded Winchester was answering these alarms only to find its services not needed.

The local department will continue to answer alarms from certain boxes when previous alarms from other boxes are "in" and will respond to succeeding alarms from the same box when preceeded by three blows, followed by one round of the number. There is to be no lack of co-operation between the Winchester and Woburn Departments.

Every LaSalle is complete with all modern equipment, much of which is usually obtainable on other cars only at extra cost, and including at the new lower prices, Winter Front, Lovejoy Shock Absorbers, Exclusively Designed LaSalle Bumpers, Cowl Lamps, Cowl Band, Ventilators, Windshield Wiper, Cigar Lighter, Rear Vision Mirror, etc.

The triumphant preference accorded LaSalle during the past nine months has automatically opened the circle of LaSalle enthusiasts to all those thousands who originally viewed, admired and desired LaSalle.

LaSalle prices are now so attractively low — when value is considered — that you need not and in fact cannot forego LaSalle's surpassing excellence. For an investment of about $2500 you may now enjoy a LaSalle sedan, roomy enough for the family, endowed with the transcending riding and driving ease of Cadillac manufacture, and distinguished from the highest-priced Six and every other Eight — excepting Cadillac itself—by the famous V-type, 90-degree, 8-cylinder, heavy-duty Cadillac-built engine.

This engine alone assures long years of the most luxurious kind of motoring, in service to which no other car could be successfully subjected. And it is obvious, of course, that in its ultra-modernistic lines and colorings, its modish appointments, LaSalle is so far in advance of current practice that it is sure to be "in vogue" for many years to come.

Enjoy the prestige and satisfaction of LaSalle now! Only a small outlay is required. Appraisal value of your present car acceptable as cash. The balance payable in terms to suit your convenience.

The La Salle is manufactured completely by the Cadillac Motor Car Company within its own plants.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Happy people are those who are producing something—bored people are those who are consuming something but producing nothing.

Kindly words make the sweetest music of the world.

The greatest wealth is health the biggest fortune is happiness.

In the long run men hit only what they aim at.

Every man's task is his life preserver.

Any man who is willing to do less than his best is headed for the scrap heap.

If you do the best you can and smile—trouble will give you up as a bad job.

Recent developments have shown the wisdom of the proposal made at the last Town Meeting to purchase the Holton property on Washington street in front of the Lincoln School. The proposal was rejected as an unnecessary expenditure of money and the Town is now faced with the probability of having four dwelling houses built between Washington street and what is admitted to be one of its finest school buildings. The school will face directly upon the rear of the new houses. It can not truthfully be said that those who rejected the proposal to have the Town own this all important property were not warned of just such a contingency as has arisen. But whether the electorate in this instance has been penny wise and pound foolish is beside the point. The erection of houses in the very door-yard of the Lincoln School is to be deplored. The possibility of such construction would not have arisen had the school been placed in other sections of the community. It has been reported that there still is a possibility of the Town's being able to procure the property on which the construction has already begun. An interested party has this week been in conference with several of the Town officials. Whatever is done must be done quickly. It seems almost criminal to allow this beautiful new school to be marred as it surely will be by the erection of the proposed houses. If it is not too late, the Town should act to prevent it. Everyone has had an excellent opportunity to get the point of view of those who wisely advised purchasing the Holton property in the first place.

USE THE TELEPHONE

Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy in a statement to the Star this morning expressed the wish that parents throughout the town and especially in the Highlands District would instruct their children not to pull fire-alarm boxes for grass fires. The department has been given several needless runs as the result of such procedure with a consequent unnecessary expense to the town. A phone call to the Central Station will bring such apparatus as is necessary to handle the situation without calling out pieces of no use in coping with burning grass. It should be remembered that an alarm from a box brings most of the department's apparatus to the scene of the fire, a costly proceeding when not necessary.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

Next Friday evening, Jan. 27, the Association will conduct a pop concert and food sale in the School auditorium. The committee in charge is headed by Sec.-Treas., Frances T. Conlon and includes Mrs. Mabel Fahey, Mrs. Walter Gurney, Mrs. Harry Lindmark, Mrs. Margaret Donovan, Mrs. Louis Capone, Mrs. Margaret McGonigle, Mrs. Benjamin Newlands, Mrs. Jane King, Mrs. Margaret Haley, Mrs. Mary Peel, Mrs. William Stevenson, Mrs. Edward Dinneen, Mrs. Edward Shea, Mrs. Charlotte Moran, Mrs. Mary Humphrey and Mrs. Howard Brownell.

It is anticipated that this will be one of the largest gatherings yet conducted by the chapter, as, in addition to the attractive concert, matters of interest to the members will come before the meeting.

On Friday evening, Feb. 17, the Chapter will conduct a lecture and social hour. We have been very fortunate in securing for our speaker, Mr. Carl Shrader, State Director of Athletics for Massachusetts, who is well known for his fine ability as a speaker. He will bring to us many fine new ideas on, "how the game should be played" and no doubt will change many of our ideals about athletics of the present day. To this lecture the members of the other chapters and the general public is cordially invited.

The Chapter has presented to the school a fine new set of English semi-porcelain dishes a service for 50, and a set of five dozen community silver spoons. These will be used for the first time at our pop concert on Friday evening of next week.

WINCHESTER DEFEATED AT ARLINGTON

Winchester High School, playing far below its usual form, lost its basketball game to Arlington High at Arlington Wednesday afternoon, 45 to 23. The game was by no means as one-sided as the score would indicate.

Arlington deserved to win. It boasts a big, rangy quintet of veteran players who have been working together for the past three years. We would rate the Spy Ponders about 10 points better than Winchester with both teams going at par. Wednesday afternoon, however, Coach Mansfield's boys, especially during the first half, were away off form, failing to cover properly and being especially sour in their passing and floor work.

Arlington went to work at once and ran up a 9-point lead during the first quarter which ended 11 to 2. With the resumption of play Donahue, Arlington's left forward, dribbled up the floor and crashed into Halwartz in an attempt to shoot high. It looked like a clean case of charging, but for some unknown reason Referee Sanhorn called the foul on the Winchester man. The ruling seemed to upset the local boys while Arlington threw basketball to the winds and started to play football on the court.

For several minutes the game got away from the officials and during that time Arlington scored 6 baskets in quick succession to sew up the game beyond any possibility of a doubt. The Winchester boys were physically no match for their opponents and were merely bowled out of the way by the burly Arlington players who seemed to sense that for the time at least they could get away with the proverbial murder.

The half ended with Winchester snowed under a 28 to 6 counting, bht following half time Coach Mansfield's charges waked up somewhat.

During the last two periods the locals played Arlington even, each club scoring 17 points. Ross and Halwartz played best for Winchester with McNeil showing plenty of fight while in the game. Lowder, Donahue and McNamara starred for the victors.

Between the halves the Arlington seconds trimmed the Winchester seconds, 43 to 4, the inexperience of the local boys counting heavily against them.

WINCHESTER TOURISTS IN ST. PETERSBURG

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 20 (Special)—With a calendar chock full of smart social events and with sport contests ranging from roque to golf and horse shoes to baseball St. Petersburg formally opened its gayest winter season during the week which will extend into the middle of April.

Every hotel and apartment house is open and rapidly filling while reservations continue to pour in from every section of America.

Winchester's colony of winter visitors is increasing with the arrival of every train from the Northland and every indication points to a record breaking number registering before the first of March.

During the week, 11 tourists from Winchester registered at the Chamber of Commerce while reservations have been made for 22 due before the first of the month.

C. C. Davis, present "barnyard golf" champion will defend his laurels in the annual tourney to be held at Waterfront Park here, week of Feb. 20.

Mrs. F. P. Douglas, 145 Mt. Vernon street, is back for her 12th season and is making her home at 233 5th street, North.

Mr. and Mrs. Claud H. Fleming and Myrtle M. Fleming, 8 Glen road, have returned for their fourth season and have reopened their home at 431 5th street, North.

Miss Mary J. Hills and Miss Carrie L. Mason are enjoying their first visit here and have located at 235 3rd avenue, North.

Mrs. George E. Snelling, 15 Bayview road, has returned for her second season and is a guest at the Royal Palm Hotel.

Mr. and Mrs. Osman C. Webster, 29 Central street, have returned for their fourth season and are making their home at 419 Third avenue, North.

Dr. and Mrs. J. Edson Young are back for their fifth winter and have reopened their home at 1101 10th avenue, South.

OFFICERS ELECTED AT TRUST COMPANY

At the regular meeting of the Winchester Trust Company Wednesday evening the following officers were elected:

President—Ralph E. Joslin.
Vice-President—Freeland E. Hovey.
Vice-President—Fred L. Pattee.
Treasurer—Charles E. Barrett.
Assistant Treasurer—Helen M. Monroe.
Directors—Charles H. Barrett, Cutler B. Downer, Jere A. Downs, George A. Fernald, Freeland E. Hovey, Ralph E. Joslin, James Nowell, William L. Parsons, Fred L. Pattee, Frederic S. Snyder, Charles H. Symmes.

The company paid 6 per cent for its July dividend and 10 per cent on Jan. 3.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The program for the regular club meeting on Monday afternoon offers a rare musical treat. The artists will be Alden Davies, lyric tenor, and F. William Kempf, concert violinist. Mr. Davies won the voice prize in the music department of Bucknell University while a student there. Later he was soloist with the Harvard Glee Club and twice he has appeared as soloist with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Kempf is well known in Boston where he appeared for several years as one of the leading soloists at the Ondricek Concerts in Jordan Hall.

LITERATURE COMMITTEE

The third meeting of the Literature Group was held in Fortnightly Hall on Friday, Jan. 13, at 2:30 o'clock.

Miss Cora A. Quimby opened the program with a very interesting review of current literature from a librarian's point of view.

The subject for the afternoon was "Benjamin Franklin, the Man and His Letters," and the meeting was in charge of Mrs. Clara M. Snyder assisted by Mrs. Beatrice M. Dabney and Miss Cora A. Quimby. Mrs. Snyder and Miss Quimby were dressed as Colonial dames and Mrs. Dabney wore the black satin costume of a fine Colonial gentleman.

For the purpose of convenience, the committee divided Franklin's life into three periods. Miss Quimby read a paper about his boyhood in Boston, his trip to Philadelphia, and his early experiences in that city whose most illustrious citizen he was destined to be. Mrs. Dabney's subject was his active business, literary and scientific life. She told also of his first diplomatic mission to England. Mrs. Snyder's paper was on his later life, particularly his work in France as representative of the American colonies during the Revolution. Mrs. Marion P. Gale read "The Way to Wealth" from Father Abraham's Speech. This is one of the most characteristic of Franklin's writings and is filled with apt quotations from the famous sayings of Poor Richard.

After the meeting the audience was invited to inspect an attractive display of silver, pewter, and china all of the period of Franklin's life.

At the next meeting of the group on Monday, Feb. 6 Miss Nancy Byrd Turner, president of the Boston Manuscript Club, author, poet and critic, will give an address on the subject, "Women in Literature" and will read a group of her own poems, among them her Lindhergh poem now famous from coast to coast. Miss Turner promises to give us intimate glimpses of women writers whom she has known at the MacDowell colony in New Hampshire. Tea will be served with Mrs. Martha W. Kelley as hostess.

STOCK WINTER AND WEDGE PONDS WITH FISH!

Following is a copy of a letter sent by the Winchester Chamber of Commerce to the Water and Sewer Board.

To the Hon. Water and Sewer Board
Winchester, Mass.
Gentlemen:

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce is of the opinion and would suggest the taking of fish from the reservoirs to stock up Winter Pond and Wedge Pond, thereby giving the citizens of Winchester a chance to fish and enjoy privileges that they do not have now.

We are of the opinion that the expense would be normal. The removal to be done by the State Department of Game and Fisheries. This has been accomplished in other places in a most sanitary way.

Respectfully yours,
By George F. Arnold, President
Winchester Chamber of Commerce

Silver Kettle Candy. Winchester News Co. ja20-2t

The Rockland, Me. Courier-Gazette, in commenting upon the raising of $11,100 in two days by the members of the First Baptist Church of Rockland, has this to say about the Rev. B. P. Browne, retiring pastor, who comes to assume the leadership of the First Baptist Church of this town.—"But it has become a habit at the First Baptist Church to get into the game and put across whatever the pastor asks for, and so it was decided not to fail Mr. Browne on his last appeal." Evidently Winchester's newest clergyman is something of a hustler.

Mr. William Syer of Hancock street underwent an operation at the Winchester Hospital on Monday. He is reported as convalescing nicely at his home.

Mr. John Hart Taylor of this town suffered the loss of his father, Jacob Taylor, who passed away Monday, Jan. 16, at his home in Malden.

Mrs. H. C. Ordway is spending the cold weather at Claremont, Cal.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

A large delegation of property holders in the North End district attended last Monday evening's meeting of the Board of Selectmen to petition the Board to place an electric light as near as possible to the railroad grade crossing on Hill street. Residents of the district claim that in its present unlighted condition the crossing constitutes a distinct menace to the safety of the community. The same group also petitioned to have Chapin court accepted as a Town way. The matter of the light was referred by the Board to a sub-committee for a later report.

Members of the Police Department under the direction of Chief William R. McIntosh placed ladders on the shores of the various ponds throughout town to be used in the event of some one breaking through thin ice.

Nomination papers were put in circulation this week for Albert K. Huckins of Highland avenue who is a candidate for the Board of Public Welfare. Mr. Herbert W. Kelley, retiring member, it is reported, will not seek re-election.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Police headquarters was notified Wednesday by George Wells of 651 Washington street that three young men were loitering about his property and were taking his tools. Sergt. William H. Rogers and officer Edward O'Connell went to investigate and met the youths in question driving along Washington street on a wagon. The officers held them up but a search of their wagon revealed nothing but junk. The youths were returned to the home of Mr. Wells where the latter informed the police that he had taken a blacksmith's hammer away from them before they left his premises. After taking their names the police warned the young men to leave town at once. The latter were about 17 years old and said they came from Chelsea.

Theory vs. Practice

A "sham battle" would be a great relief to the mind if there were any assurance that a real battle would follow the pattern it lays down with any degree of respect.—Washington Star.

No Superlative

An English teacher was making it a practice of giving an SA class a review of a certain point in grammar each day. One day she said, "You may now give the adjectives I shall give you."

The entire class looked puzzled. To the first girl the teacher said "High." There was a little pause and finally in a little hesitant voice, the girl said, "hello."

Tips to Bosses

Don't hire a man with light hair and blue eyes for an office job unless you're going to give him a great deal to do and a heap of credit for doing it.

Men work harder if they think they are appreciated. Half an executive's job is to learn when and how to praise men under him.

Most of our great students, philosophers and scientists have rather dark complexions. Most of our leaders, pioneers and executives have had a leaning toward light hair, eyes and skin.

To reach people you have to approach them as friends, not as policemen or teachers.

ANNUAL MEETING OF FIRST BAPTIST SOCIETY

The annual meeting and election of officers of the First Baptist Society was held in the church auditorium on Monday evening with Moderator Daniel C. Linscott presiding. The various reports rendered indicated that the several church societies, Sunday School and organized classes are in a healthy condition. Especially were the reports of the activities of the Women's League and the E. P. H. Class worthy of commendation.

Balloting resulted in the election of the following officers:

Deacons, 4 years—Harry T. Winn, Eben Hardy.
Deaconnesses, 4 years—Mrs. W. E. Cobb, Mrs. H. C. Sanborn.
Current Expense Treasurer—W. E. Cobb.
Benevolence Treasurer—Miss Edith M. Johnson.
Financial Secretaries—J. Albert Hersey, Current Expense; Miss Lizzie E. Johnson, Benevolence.
Clerk—Harry C. Sanborn.
Moderator—Daniel C. Linscott.
Auditor—Curtis L. Furlong.
Head Usher—Jerome W. Gates.
Sunday School Superintendent—Arthur L. Winn.
Executive Committee—Alfred O. Weld, Harry W. Moulton.
Finance Committee—Alfred O Weld, chairman; John A. Finger, Alfred W. Friend.
Property Committee—E. H. Butterworth, chairman; Miss Lizzie E. Johnson, Charles A. Burnham.
Music Committee—Mrs. E. A. MacKinnon, chairman; Mrs. John L. Lutes, Mrs. Benjamin P. Brown.

FORD CRASHED INTO SYMMES CORNER HOME

The family of Mr. H. W. Haven of 212 Main street, Symmes Corner was more or less surprised shortly before 10 o'clock on Monday evening when a Ford coupe, owned by the Economy Grocery Company of Boston and driven by Solon A. Vanderpoosten of 49 Emerald street, Medford, crashed into the front of the house, smashing the porch and otherwise doing considerable damage.

Vanderpoosten stated that he was driving to Medford and had failed to make the turn in the roadway correctly due to his vision being impaired by the sleet which stuck to his windshield.

His machine ran across the Haven lawn and against the house with great force, being almost completely wrecked. Vanderpoosten was extricated by Officer Archie O'Connell and removed in the police ambulance to the emergency room at Headquarters where he was treated for numerous cuts and bruises by Dr. R. M. Burgoyne. He was later removed to his home. The remains of the Ford were towed to the Central Garage.

ODD FELLOWS OBSERVED ANNIVERSARY OF ORDER

The 109th anniversary of Odd Fellowship was observed by Waterfield Lodge, 231, I. O. O. F., with a special roll call and "Old Timers' Night" held in connection with its regular meeting last Monday evening in the new home on Vine street.

Past Grand Master, Dr. George L. Marshall of Somerville, was the speaker, taking as his topic the life and work of Thomas Wildey, the founder of Odd Fellowship in America, whose birthday it was.

Noble Grand John Lutes presided at the meeting and the roll call was read by Secretary Milton Powers. Many who have been absent from the local lodge room for some years answered to their names and thoroughly enjoyed the evening's entertainment which was concluded with a collation in the banquet hall.

LAUNDRIES' MUTUAL BENEFIT DANCE A SUCCESS

The first dance of the year to be held by the Mutual Benefit Association of the New England Laundries was well patronized Friday evening, Jan. 13 at Waterfield Hall.

The Newton and Lowell Divisions of the company were represented as well as the Winchester Laundry Division. Joyce's Orchestra from Woburn furnished music for the dancing.

The committee in charge of the affair were Louis Smith, Chairman; Geo. Widfeldt, Charles Antle, Mrs. Helen Dewar and Mrs. E. E. Parker.

During the six years the Mutual Benefit Association has been organized, its work has taken care of many employees of the company who have been ill. The many parties which have been conducted to raise funds for this purpose have always met with success, and during the year other affairs will take place.

Golfer's Alibi

On the St. Andrews links an enthusiastic player with a most irascible temper was faced with a critical short putt. He addressed his ball, studied the line, steadied himself carefully, putted—and missed.

Instinctively he glared round but the entire party might have been so many statues—not a caddie had moved, not a player had budged. His eyes roved the horizon in vain. No one outside the match was in sight. Then he gazed aloft, while breathless silence invested the scene. At last the explosion came:

"D—n that lark!"

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE NOTES

A meeting of the Winchester Chamber of Commerce was held at 5 Common street, Thursday evening, Jan. 12 and following are some of the subjects discussed.

The removal of sand and gravel in several places in our town which is getting to be a serious menace. It destroys the value of all property adjoining the sand and gravel pits. In some of them water stands and makes a prolific breeding place for mosquitoes. The disfiguring of adjoining property is a serious matter. Most of this property that is now being destroyed for residential use would have to be refilled, thereby making several unsightly dump holes. These people have legal right to remove this material. Our only redress is through the Legislature asking for protection. Our town is small in area and we need to protect ourselves.

The drawing down of the water in Winter Pond is a serious loss to our town. Previous to Woburn establishing its water supply Winter Pond was always full and overflowing.

We find that the State Department of Game and Fisheries, in other parts of the State, have had fish taken from the reservoirs and placed where ever ordered by the town at a nominal expense. Would it not be a good move on the part of our local Water and Sewer Board to ask the State to place some of the fish, to be taken from our reservoirs, in the waters of Wedge Pond and Winter Pond this next spring? The fish would not live in any of the waters that are contaminated.

It is interesting to note that the Metropolitan Park Commission have placed a directional sign at the junction of Bacon street, Fenwick road and the M. V. Parkway, at our request.

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce are informed by the officials at the State House that the plans are completed for the taking care of the overflow of the sewers in our town. The plans are now in the hands of contractors to estimate the cost.

This work cannot be accomplished too quickly for the benefit of our health.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The features at the University for four days beginning Sunday are, "The Magic Flame" with Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky and "Now We're in the Air" with those rollicking comedians Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton.

"The Magic Flame" is a circus picture of the old world. It contains all the time-honored traditional acts, lacking which no circus would be worthy the name. In addition it is the greatest romantic love story this pair has yet brought to the screen. The opening sequence shows Ronald Colman as Tito, the clown, and Vilma Banky as Bianca, the tight rope walker. Such a clown and such an acrobat! Who would suspect the cavalier Ronald of "The Night of Love" or the dashing engineer of "Barbara Worth" could don the make-up and transport himself into such a marvelous characterization?

"Now We're in the Air" is a laugh riot. Beery and Hatton as two ship stokers who are made ill even by a roller-coaster suddenly find themselves blown into the air service during war time.

For the last three days of the week the pictures are "A Gentleman of Paris" with Adolphe Menjou and "The Wreck of the Hesperus" with Virginia Bradford and Frank Marion. In "A Gentleman of Paris," Menjou is ideally cast as a gay philanderer of the French Capital. Everything goes along nicely until he becomes engaged to be married when the embarassing situations develope.

"The Wreck of the Hesperus" is a stirring sea story suggested by Longfellow's poem of the same name.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On next Thursday evening, Jan. 26 the local branch will conduct a "charity whist" under the direction of Secretary Alice Fitzgerald and Treasurer Ruth Ambrose at the home of the latter at 42 Vine street. A large attendance of members and their friends is expected. Refreshments will be served.

Then the Fun Began

A young university undergraduate had to present himself for an examination in which he was expected to read a short thesis on Greek tragedy. Knowing nothing of the subject, he asked the help of a friend, who was an expert. This gentleman wrote and gave him a masterly little treatise, of which the only fault lay in the penmanship.

At the examination all went well until the young man startled his audience with the sentence, "We now come to the tragedies of Bophocles."

"The tragedies of whom?" gasped one of the examiners.

"You mean Sophocles!" exclaimed another.

For some moments the young man gazed earnestly at the manuscript. Then he looked up with a reassured smile, and said, "No, it is distinctly Bophocles here."

Helpful Suggestion

Peter, three and a half, was caught red-handed throwing the morning's letters into the grate fire and gleefully watching the flames. It was his third offense. Seriously, his father took him in hand. "I don't want to punish you, Peter, but what shall I do to make you remember?" The young delinquent looked thoughtful; then, brightening, advised: "I'll tell you what to do, daddy—you just put it down in writing."

Happiness Note

A Plan

TO DO AWAY WITH HARD TIMES . . . . . .
TO DO AWAY WITH PANICS AND DEPRESSIONS

A Series of Articles

Now Running in the Boston Evening Transcript

The Hon. Nathan E. Miller, former governor of New York, after reading the proofs of "The Road to Plenty" wrote: "I read with such pleasure that I forgot to critize, if there was anything to criticize. You have succeeded beyond anything I should have thought possible in writing a book on economics which is as readable as a novel. If you don't make a case I am unable to find the flaw. Of course the rub will come in putting your program into effect. The lawyer, the business man, the little 'Gray Man' all will be necessary. I believe your book will have a profound influence. It certainly deserves to do so."

MRS. FEEHENY'S CONDITION SATISFACTORY

Unless some unforseen complications arise Mrs. Nora F. Feeheny, 42, wife of Timothy Feeheny of 42 Holland street, is thought to have a good chance of recovery from injuries sustained when she was struck by a train early Saturday morning near the block signal of the Boston & Maine Railroad a short distance below the Grove street bridge in West Medford.

She was seen laying in a hollow beside the inbound railroad tracks by Engineer Fred Reed of freight GB-2, bound for Boston. Reed with Conductor Fred Robshaw placed her in the caboose and at the High street crossing, West Medford square, notified the Medford Police headquarters where Lieut. Daniel W. Connors dispatched an ambulance in which she was taken to the Lawrence Memorial Hospital.

There she was attended by Dr. Charles F. Bean who found her suffering from a badly mangled right leg as well as numerous other cuts and bruises about the head and body. During the afternoon of Saturday it was deemed necessary to amputate the right leg below the knee and following the operation Mrs. Feeheny's condition was very grave. Since then she has rallied and is now thought to have a good chance of recovery.

Mrs. Feeheny was missed about 10 o'clock Friday evening when her husband, returning home from an errand to a nearby store, found she had left the house. She had been suffering from a nervous affliction and Mr. Feeheny became alarmed and at once notified the police.

Lieut. John Harrold who was in charge at headquarters sent out a searching party, comprising Sergt. William H. Rogers and officers Daniel Kelley, John Hogan, Mark Kelley, Archie O'Connell, Charles Harrold, Edward O'Connell, Ned Shea and James Farrell. Selectman Walter H. Dotten and Superintendent Harry W. Dotten of the Water Department also joined in the search with many other private individuals. The town was thoroughly scoured, especially in the vicinity of the Aberjona River and Black Ball Pond, while the authorities in surrounding cities and towns were notified by the authorities to be on the lookout.

No trace of the missing woman was found throughout the night until 4:30 Saturday morning when she was discovered by the freight engineer, laying beside the railroad tracks at West Medford.

She was not able to give a comprehensive account of her experience, but it is believed that she followed the last inbound local from Winchester Station along the tracks until she was struck by a later through train.

Famous German City

Worms is one of the most ancient cities of Germany. It is in Hesse-Darmstadt on the left bank of the Rhine. Here in 1521 Martin Luther defended his theological position at a congress of German princes, known as the diet of Worms.

A Beginner

Neophyte literally means newly-born. In the early Christian church this term was applied to a person just baptized. He was newly born in the Christian life. Hence the word neophyte is used to denote one who is beginning in anything.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The next regular meeting night of the club has been placed at the disposal of the Entertainment Committee and Chairman Anne M. Hanlon and her assistants are announcing a Social Whist for the date, Wednesday evening, Jan. 25. This is the first of the new year's socials which will be given to replenish the treasury, much depleted after the usual Christmas relief work. Of course all friends and patrons of the club are cordially invited and preparations are being made to accommodate a large gathering.

At the last club session President E. A. Scholl announced a class initiation for March. All application papers should be presented as soon as possible as this will be the last initiation under the present regime. It is hoped the drill team may exhibit on this occasion as that feature would add much to the impressiveness of the ceremony. The forming and training of this team was, and is, the biggest achievement in the club history for, in point of progress, it put us in advance of every other Emblem Club in or out of the national order. Every effort should be made to keep the team intact and ready to serve at all club functions.

The next regular session of the club will be held on Wednesday evening, Feb. 8, in Lyceum Hall. Owing to Washington's Birthday falling on the fourth Wednesday, the second meeting will be omitted and the secheduls providing for nominations for office is changed to the earlier date, Feb. 8. Election of officers for the ensuing year will take place at the first meeting in March, class initiation at the second meeting.

Bees Dumb, Says Scientist

Bees may be busy, but not bright, says J. B. Millet, a French scientist who has been investigating their efficiency in gathering honey. Experiments have proved to him that the buzzers are guided solely by odor, and they often pass by scentless flowers with stores of honey and go to those that have a sweet perfume and little sugar. He says that they even try to extract honey from perfumed artificial flowers.

Deafness Not Lasting

Airplane deafness is only a transient disability lasting at most a few hours. It is caused largely by the crack of the exhaust. The main remedies are technical, such as the use of silencers, while the aviator may use some form of ear stopper, either a simple plug of oiled cotton or mechanical stoppers attached to his cap or helmet.

Diseases Spread by Flies

The commonest diseases spread by house flies are typhoid, diphtheria, and tuberculosis, according to an answered question in Liberty.

Early English Alphabet

Bacon speaks of the alphabet as containing only 24 letters because J is a variant of I; U is a variant of V. In Bacon's day they had not definitely become separate letters of the alphabet.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL ADDITION

The work on the new hospital addition has progressed rapidly, due to the favorable weather conditions this winter. The contractor is expending every effort to have the work completed by May 1 in order that the hospital may be formally opened on National Hospital Day, May 12. All the outside work has been finished for some time, and at present the plasterers are at work inside.

Part of the rough grading of the ground and driveways around the hospital has been completed and a new and more sheltered path constructed from the Nurses' Home to the new entrance for the nurses at the south end of the hospital.

The new laundry has been in use for several months and is proving to be very efficient in its operation.

The new kitchen with its shining white tiled walls and the new equipment will be put into use this week.

The work of alterations in the rooms of the old hospital that adjoin the new part is now going on, and although it causes some confusion, due to the fact that the hospital is running to full capacity, the patients and staff are very tolerant of the necessary noise and dirt.

The furnishings committee has been extremely busy selecting the furniture and equipment to be used in this new addition. With the fine co-operation shown by the contractor, building committee, doctors, nursing staff and various other committees, the finished hospital should be perfect in all details, and be able to meet the needs of the community in every way.

The Winchester Visiting Nurse Association held its January meeting for the directors on Jan. 24. The report from the hospital showed a busy three months for October, November and December. During these months 253 patients were admitted. Forty-six babies were born at the hospital. There were 40 major operations, 101 minor operations and 2873 hospital days recorded.

The X-ray department in 1927 has served 582 patients and in 1926 512 patients.

The hospital is in need of old cloth. Pieces of cotton cloth are used to wrap the many, many packages of dressings put into the sterilizer. Old linen is sterilized ready to use in case of burns. Worn tablecloths can often be mended for use in the dining room. Old woolen cloth for polishing and soft cloths for cleaning are always needed.

These may be left at the Health Center, over Randall's store, and marked for the Winchester Hospital. Any kind, size and shape will be utilized.

AUTOMATIC BOOKKEEPING MACHINE INSTALLED AT NATIONAL BANK

An automatic bookkeeping machine that achieves results almost beyond comprehension has just been installed by the Winchester National Bank. It is the first machine of its kind to be installed in this town. It is known as a "multiple register" machine and was developed especially for bookkeeping on commercial accounts by the Burroughs Adding Machine Company.

This new machine might almost be called a mechanical bookkeeper, except that it does things that the old-time pen and ink bookkeeper couldn't do. It not only adds and subtracts automatically, but it posts ledgers and writes customers' statements. Then, just as a side line, it proves the accuracy of its own work.

One practical test of the new machine is to compute columns of figures both across the ledger page and up and down at the same time. In actual bookkeeping, this feature enables the machine to add deposits, subtract checks and extend new balances on each account, and simultaneously to carry totals of deposits, withdrawals and new balances for all accounts.

The new machine was purchased in order to speed up the handling of the bank's commercial business and to render to its depositors a neat, business-like and up-to-date statement at the end of the month.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

This evening the association will conduct a pop concert and food sale in the school auditorium. A very fine program has been arranged and a very successful food sale is anticipated. The proceeds from this sale of delicacies will be added to the moving picture machine fund.

Also there will be a very important business meeting which will be of interest to every parent in the Noonan district.

The Board of Selectmen has voted to have the Highway Department erect a fence on Fenwick road where the town's property adjoins that of the State. This fence will take care of a dangerous section where the land slopes sharply from the roadway.

FIREMAN'S BALL NEXT WEDNESDAY EVENING

Plans Completed for Splendid Entertainment Program—Dancing to Follow Show

Everything is rapidly rounding into readiness for the annual concert and ball of the Winchester Fireman's Relief Association which is to be held on next Wednesday evening, Feb. 1, in the Town Hall.

An entertainment program featuring several high class vaudeville acts will preceed the dancing and will start promptly at 8 o'clock. General dancing will begin at 10 o'clock and will continue until 1 a. m. Strachan's Orchestra has been engaged to furnish the music for the evening and these popular instrumentalists plan to give their many Winchester friends music in keeping with the splendid reputation of the band.

Chief David H. DeCourcy is to act as floor marshall with Deputy Chief John J. Gorman, assistant floor marshall. President John McCarron of the Mutual Relief Association will be floor director and Edward L. Callahan, assistant floor director. J. Edward Noonan is to serve as chief of aids.

The entertainment program is as follows:

Harry Parent (Knight of the Road), a Tramp Comedians
Buddy Page, Colored Laugh Producer, Songster and Black Bottom Specialist.
Two Helen Wagner, Kay Laverty, Lillian Ward in Songs and Specialties.
Gagens and Donahue, the Boy Dancers (Donahue is a brother of Jack Donahue, now playing with Ziedfeld Follies.
Miniature Musical Comedy Review—Six girls in Songs, Dancing and Lightning Costume Changes. (Mr. Crossen of the firm of Crossen & Moynihan, in charge of the entertainment, appears personally in this sketch.)
Celaine Sisters Two Girls and a Piano—Singing and Piano Specialties.

WINCHESTER TO PLAY AT NASHUA

Winchester High School will make its usual mid-year trip to New Hampshire this Saturday evening when it will oppose the Nashua High School basketball team on the latter's court. For several years past Winchester has played in New Hampshire with Manchester High but this year was unable to agree upon a date with its former rival.

Nashua was chosen instead and should furnish the locals with worth while opposition. Winchester is going well right now and with the sour play of the Arlington game out of its system will give most high school fives a real run for first money.

The boys are to make the trip to Nashua in private cars with the following team players likely to be in the party: Capt. Herbert Ross, Henry Knowlton, Paul Kendrick, John McNeil, Ray Halwartz, Bernard Murphy, Gnazio Amico and Peter Coss. Manager Russell Franklin and Coach Wyndell Mansfield will complete the quota.

Play will begin at 8 o'clock and there will be only one game.

PARISH OF THE EPIPHANY ELECTS

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Parish of the Epiphany was held in the church on Tuesday evening. The Rector, Rev. Truman Heminway presided and during the routine business session the usual parish reports were read and accepted. Of especial interest were the remarks of Mrs. George W. Fitch who submitted a report upon the activities of the Church Service League. Senior Warden Alfred S. Higgins received for the Parish House Building Committee.

Following the election of officers, Mr. Heminway spoke briefly upon the nature of his work and the work which the parish is doing. Remarks of appreciation were made by Junior Warden Stanley G. H. Fitch and former Warden Marcus B. May.

The parish election resulted as follows:

Warden (for 2 years)—Stanley G. H. Fitch.
Treasurer—Merton E. Grush.
Clerk—Addison R. Pike.
Vestrymen (for 3 years)—Ralph L. Garner, Robert V. Davis, Alton B. Jackson.
Delegates to Diocesan Convention—Alfred S. Higgins, Stanley G. H. Fitch, Alexander S. MacDonald.
Delegates to Archdeconry Convention—Waldo L. Hurt, Thomas W. Bradshaw, Herbert W. Kelley.
Nominating Committee (1929)—Alexander S. MacDonald, Mrs. Lena Foster Corthell, James N. Penaligan.

ANNOUNCE ENGAGEMENT OF PHILADELPHIA GIRL TO WINCHESTER MAN

Announcement has been made by Mrs. Thomas D. Barlow, formerly of Waterbury, Conn., and now of Philadelphia, of the engagement of Miss Deborah Sanford Barlow her daughter, to Robert Bancroft Moffette, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moffette of Winchester. Miss Barlow's father was former Mayor T. D. Barlow, who died in 1921. She is a graduate of Wellesley College and at present is connected with a psychiatric child's guidance clinic. Mr. Moffette is associated with the North British and Mercantile Insurance Company in Hartford.

HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

Class-Room Work Shown by Science Department

Another large audience greeted President Allen last Monday evening. The interest of parents in the school work of their children, so manifest at the first meeting of the school year, showed no abatement at the second meeting.

Two amendments to the constitution, proposed at the previous session were taken from the table and adopted unanimously. It was voted to hold five meetings of the Association during the school year at such intervals as the Executive Committee deem best, instead of continuing one meeting a month at a fixed date, as in the past. It was further voted to admit all teachers and officers of the High School to the Association as members without dues.

The executive committee has about come to the conclusion that parents are more interested in Home affairs as exemplified by local talent than in State or National matters discussed by imported speakers. With this in mind the committee decided to demonstrate to the parents, as well as conditions would permit, typical class-room work.

It is hoped that in addition to giving parents some idea of how teaching methods have changed the demonstration will, also, create a desire to visit the class-room and there observe the methods of instruction under normal conditions.

Parents are invited, encouraged and urged to visit class-rooms in the High School to better understand the changes and improvements that have been made in the machinery of education. Parents will, also, be able to see at first hand the cramped condition now prevailing in the High School, which are interfering so greatly with the efficiency desired.

During the greater part of the evening the audience enjoyed a demonstration of typical class-room work under the direction of John E. Fuller, head of the Science Department. It was explained that at first students have difficulty in getting subject matter from books. Consequently, at the beginning of the course lectures are dictated which the students are required to learn.

The interest of the students is aroused by explaining the function of the brain; what the brain is; and the possibility of the development of the brain. Nearly a dozen students assisted in the class-room work.

Esther Puffer described the "Skeleton and the Muscles," using a chart and naming the different bones and muscles of the body, and illustrated the action of the muscles by moving different parts of her own body. "Digestion and Assimilation of Food" was explained by Harold Smith. Doris Lawson traced the "Circulation of the Blood" and defined the constituents of the blood. "Classification of Animals" was explained by Susan Brown, and Gladys MacMillan compared the "Characteristics of Two Lower Animals," choosing the sea urchin and the earth wrm. Eileen Eason commented on "Fertilization and Reproduction."

"Chemical Problems" was the subject discussed by Ronald Olmstead. Herbert Ross treated the subject of "Equations" while Philip Hartshon was showing how "Formulas" are derived. Herbert Ross and Louis Pickering illustrated on the blackboard the "Simultaneous Solution of One Problem," the former by using mathematics and the latter by drawing. Donald Dalrymple used the blackboard to show the "Geometrical Proof of a Physical Principle."

All of those who took part in the demonstration of class-room work volunteered their services. No student was asked or requested to take part.

Refreshments brought the evening's entertainment to a close.

WINS IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Competing with girls from the whole eastern section of the country, Miss Mildred Benson of this town has won four of the prizes on her fruits and vegetables exhibited in the Hazel Atlas Glass Company contest at Chicago in November. The contest was held in connection with the 4-H National Congress.

Miss eBnson took two of the 10 prizes for vegetables, fifth on greens and sixth on beets. Eleven dollars was the amount of her prize money.

Mrs. Thomas L. Patten of Detroit, Mich., is the guest of Mrs. Harold B. Robinson of Fells road.

LT.-COL. CARROLL J. SWAN

LEGION POST TO ENTERTAIN

Winchester Post, No. 97, the American Legion, is to be honored by being host at a joint meeting of the Posts of District 3, Middlesex County, comprising Somerville, Arlington, Winchester and Woburn at the Legion Headquarters Thursday evening, Feb. 2. One of the largest gatherings of Legionaires ever to take place in Winchester is expected.

The Post has been very fortunate to secure as the speaker of the evening Lieut.-Col. Carroll J. Swan who brings a message of unmistakable goodwill to every Legionaire in his story of his experiences as a member of the second American Expeditionary Force to Paris, for stirring parades through the streets of Paris, the features of the National Convention of the American Legion and his participation in the Commnnders goodwill tour of Europe when over 200 Legionaires, Gold Star Mothers and members of the Legion Auxiliary toured as distinguished national guests through the allied countries of Europe. Mr. Swan's talk is not only very entertaining, but it told in his own way, known by those who have ever heard him, to be most enjoyable and filled with wit and fun.

BOARD OF PUBLIC WELFARE

Appointment of New Executive Secretary

The Board of Public Welfare has selected Miss Carolyn A. Butters as its new executive secretary. Miss Butters has had advanced courses offered to the serious worker through two consecutive years with the Boston School for Social Workers at Simmons College, and for a number of years was supervisor of the field work for students of that school in family welfare problems.

For the last four years she has concentrated on training in social problems students from public health departments at Simmons College.

Miss Butters took a course in Economics at Harvard Summer School, she has had special experience in family welfare problems, having been a district secretary for the Cambridge Family Welfare Union for 12 years and having spent three years doing preventive work for girls. The latter work covered the whole state.

Her past experience indicates that she is eminently fitted to do very successful social work in Winchester.

It is her intention to live in the town.

PAY YOUR WATER BILL

Collector of Taxes Nathaniel M. Nichols states that the expiration for the time allowed for the payment of water bills is at hand. Water bills must be paid at once or a cost charge must be added and the water shut off. A word to the wise is sufficient.

CALUMET NOTES

Members will receive a rare treat tonight in the lecture by Arthur H. Merritt of Boston. He will tell us about the National Parks in the United States and Canada, illustrated by a large number of unusually beautiful colored slides. (Please take note that these are "colored" slides). The pictures were taken personally by Mr. Merritt and under extreme difficulties. Wherever he has shown them, they have met with much response. This will be a family entertainment. Members are privileged to bring out-of-town guests.

Next Saturday evening, we shall have special bowling. Prizes will be awarded for three consecutive strings with handicap. Bowling starts at 8. There will be the regular Saturday night social with refreshments.

Entries have closed for the Mixed Tournament which will start Jan. 30. There were 17 teams of four couples each—a very sizable attendance.

Two teams from Calumet will cross swords with the University Club, Boston, Feb. 16, when we shall try to bring home the honors. Last year we had a fine time and members are privileged to watch the matches this time also. The rolling starts at 8 p. m.

Team 7, composed of "Jim" Corey, Alfred Hildreth, Wallace Flanders, "Joe" Gendron and Walter Brown, has challenged any other Calumet team to a match at Duck pins some Saturday evening in the near future. We were unaware that the club had any such thing as "Duck" pins, but found on inquiry that they had been stored away in some obscure place. Fred Scholl says he will produce them on short notice. Challengers will please make sure of their wagers.

A Father's and Son's bowling night has been broached to the bowling committee. It seems that this might be of interest, particularly as it is an innovation and we have noted on quite a few occasions that the fathers had brought their sons to the club and that there was an atmosphere of family sociability in the gathering.

Some members desire a spring tournament. The bowling committee states they would be pleased to do this but the mixed tournament takes up all the available nights until May 1 and they feel that time when summer weather is at hand and the golf courses are calling the enthusiasts that there will be but little interest after that date.

We notice that "Doc" Akins, captain of team 1, rolled a string of 136 recently. "Doc" has been a consistent roller and proves the old proverb that "practice makes perfect."

The result of the mixed bowling held on ladies' night is as follows: high ladies' single with handicap, Mrs. Little 112; high men's single with handicap, B. G. Preston 122; high two string with handicap for ladies, Mrs. Sittinger 205; high two string with handicap for men, Arthur Dickson 280. The consolation prize was won by Mrs. Potter.

We received a visit one night this week from Rev. Mr. Hook. Mr. Hook seemed to be much interested in the bowling and watched the matches with interest. We are always pleased to receive a visit from our honorary members and wish they would come more often. Mr. Hook is a bowler too, for we noticed he could hit the pins. Some team ought to sign him up for next year.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

The last lecture on antiques will be held at the home of Mrs. Watkins, Ridgefield road on Wednesday, Feb. 1. Mrs. Watkins will give "Adventures in Collecting." Tea will be served.

Many of the ladies are busy assisting in the plans for the big cabaret, which is to be given in the Town Hall, Friday evening, Feb. 10, by the Unitarian Associates. All the organizations of the church, young and old are giving of their enthusiasm and strength, and when it is all unbottled in one evening there surely will be one great bang. Mrs. Drisko is vice-chairman with Mr. Woods, chairman; Mrs. Meyer on the entertainment committee announces that there will be music by Ives' full orchestra with 120 minutes of dancing and 120 minutes of entertainment by professionals. Mr. Miller and the Sunday School teachers will see to the refreshments and Mr. Metcalf Union will have charge of the candy. Mrs. Stone and Mrs. Goddu announce that up to Feb. 1, the parish will have first choice of tables, after that date the tickets will be open to the public.

Mrs. Frank S. Pecker of Cabot street is spending the winter at Fort Lauderdale, Fla.

WOMENS' REPUBLICAN CLUB

The Womens' Republican Club has a very interesting program to offer it's members.

At the regular meeting, Wednesday, Feb. 1, Mrs. A. J. Geortge will return for the third of her most interesting lectures. She is to speak on the political situation of the moment and outstanding personalities in political life. There will be music of unusual interest to illustrate some parts of her lecture.

The Parliamentary Law Class will hold it's fourth session at the home of Mrs. Joseph Gendron, 2 Calumet road, Monday, Jan. 3 at 10.15. As there is a review at each meeting of the work of the previous lessons, members are at liberty to come to any or all of the remaining lessons.

Tickets for the bridge party to be held at the Town Hall, Tuesday, Jan. 31, may be procured from any member of the Board of Directors, or Mrs. Arthur Kelley, Win. 1389-J.

LAURA P. DAWES

Laura P. Dawes, widow of Alfred Dawes, following an illness of some duration, died early Saturday morning at the home on Brownell road of her son, Herbert N. Dawes.

Mrs. Dawes was born 82 years ago at Lancaster, the daughter of William Dexter and Lucy (Johnson) Pierce. She was educated in the Lancaster Schools and at a private school in Cambridge. For all but 40 years she made her home in Chelsea where she was a member of the Advent Christian Church. Nine years ago she came to make her home with her son in Winchester but failing health had prevented her taking any active part in community affairs. In 1862 she was married to Alfred Dawes who died July 12, 1922; leaving one son, Herbert N. Dawes of this town, the only survivor.

Funeral services were held at the late residence on Monday afternoon and were conducted by Dr. C. O. Farnham, pastor of the Advent Christian Church of Somerville. There were many beautiful flowers. Interment was in Woodlawn Cemetery, Everett.

A. A. MORRISON MOVES

On Wednesday, Feb. 1, A. A. Morrison, maker of fine candies and pastries, will remove his business from 557 Main street to 19 Mt. Vernon street, formerly occupied by the Winchester Exchange.

Workmen have been busy during the entire month of January, renovating and redecorating the store for the new tenant.

A. A. Morrison's candies and pastries are too well known in Winchester to need any mention here. Get them after Feb. 1 at 19 Mt. Vernon street, next to Ames' store.

Mr. Nathan Thumim left yesterday for Pinehurst, N. C., where he will spend the next 10 days enjoying golf and the southern climate.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR JEREMIAH MURPHY

St. Mary's Church Filled at Mass for Railroad Man on Monday

Funeral services for Jeremiah Murphy, 51, of 15 Lake street, who was killed by a train at Somerville last Friday forenoon, were held from his late residence Monday morning. St. Mary's Church was completely filled at the solemn requiem high mass which was celebrated at 9 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley with Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, subdeacon. Seated within the sanctuary were Rev. Fr. Edward D. Maguire of St. Angela's Church, Mattapan; Rev. Fr. Eugene A. Maguire of the House of the Angel Guardian, Jamaica Plain, and Rev. Fr. Francis E. Rogers of St. Theresa's Church, Watertown.

Representatives were present from the Eastern Felt Company, Boston & Maine Railroad Signal Department, Senior Class of the Winchester High School, St. Mary's Holy Name Society and Winchester Council, 210, Knights of Columbus. Floral tributes were profuse and very beautiful.

Members of Winchester Council, K. of C., including George Young, Robert H. Sullivan, Edward Goggin, Daniel Lydon, Edward F. Maguire and Edward Martin, acted as honorary pallbearers. The active bearers were Henry Longtield, John Shinnick, Edward Fleming and Patrick Murphy, all of Winchester; Edward Murphy of Somerville and Timothy Reardon of Woburn.

Interment was at Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley and Rev. Fr. Francis E. Rogers.

Sunday evening 150 members of St. Mary's Holy Name Society marched in a body from the church to the Murphy home, led by their chaplain, Rev. Father Quigley.

Jeremiah Murphy was a native of County Cork, Ireland, but had spent nearly his entire life in this country. For the past 35 years he had made his home in Winchester and had been employed since 1917 as a signalman with the Boston & Maine Railroad. Previous to that time he had been employed at the plant of the Eastern Felt Company for about 15 years. He was a member of Winchester Council, 210, Knights of Columbus, and of St. Mary's Holy Name Society.

Surviving, besides his wife, Mrs. Annie Murphy, and four sons, Thomas, Edward, Bernard and Daniel Murphy, all of Winchester, are his mother, Mrs. Mary Murphy, living in Ireland; two sisters in Ireland, Miss Ellen and Miss Maria Murphy; and six brothers, Daniel Murphy of Winchester, Michael Murphy of Revere, and Edward, Thomas, John and Dennis Murphy, in Ireland.

The deceased lost his life in the yards of the Boston & Maine Railroad near Nunnery Hill in Somerville at 10:20 o'clock last Friday morning when he was struck by an inbound Portland-to-Boston train while busy with a fellow signalman, Thomas Hanley, 38, of 11 Nelson street.

Details of the accident are meager, but the police are of the opinion that Murphy and Hanley were engaged in making repairs in connection with the signal service when they were struck by the train. It is thought that in avoiding one train the men stepped directly into the path of another, the snow squall which was in progress at the time preventing their seeing the engine until too late.

A cursory investigation indicated that both Murphy and Hanley were dangerously injured and they were taken aboard the train and to the North Station where an ambulance rushed them to the Massachusetts General Hospital.

There it was found that Murphy was dead and his body was removed to the North Grove Mortuary where it was later taken in charge by Moffette & McMullin, local undertakers.

Meanwhile Hanley was placed upon the operating table for an immediate operation. From the first physicians held out scant hope but the giant signalman's remarkable strength and endurance carried him through Friday night and until 7:45 Saturday evening when he succumbed.

The Fire Department made two runs on Monday afternoon, the first coming at 5:40 in response to an alarm from Box 52. Residents of Rangeley had thought a fire was in progress in one of the houses being constructed there. Upon arrival the firemen found a salamander burning in an effort to dry some new plastering. At 8:18 in the evening a grass fire was put out in the rear of the residence of Mr. H. . Bryer at 432 Washington street.

MRS. ALBERT LAWTON SURPRISED

Mrs. Albert Lawton of Pond street was pleasantly surprised on last Friday evening when she was tendered a shower at the home on Sheridan circle of Miss Elizabeth Nelson by the Little Flower Club, of which Mrs. Lawton is a member, and other friends.

Miss Nelson on behalf of the gathering presented the young bride with a handsome wicker chair as a token of the esteem in which she is held by her many friends. Mrs. Lawton, while taken completely by surprise, was able to graciously express her appreciation and the company then turned its attention to an entertainment program which included exhibition dancing by Miss Dorothy Kean, piano selections by Miss Helen McKittrick, Miss Mary Martin and Mrs. Hugh O'Brien and vocal solos by Mrs. Lawton. Games were enjoyed and a dainty buffet luncheon served.

The Nelson home was tastefully decorated by Miss Nelson and Miss McKittrick with yellow and orchid streamers and potted plants. Guests were present from Arlington, Burlington, Medford, Stoneham, Woburn and Winchester.

Miss Edith Kean and Albert Lawton, both of Winchester, were married on the evening of Nov. 18, 1927, in St. Mary's Rectory. The bride, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kean of 11 Linden street, has many friends among Winchester's young set while Mr. Lawton is widely known and is a member of Winchester Council, K. of C.

A large motor truck and trailer, owned by C. E. Hall & Sons, Inc., of Somerville, and driven by Leroy Heinlen of 465 Washington street, this town, narrowly avoided collision with a Boston Elevated bus last Saturday afternoon at the corner of Main and Windsor streets in Cambridge. The bus, operated by Michael F. Curran of 11 Fallon place, Cambridge, was traveling along Main street headed for Kendall square when Heinlen's truck came out of Windsor street onto Main street. In avoiding the truck Curran swerved the bus sharply and crashed into an electric light pole at the corner of the two streets. The pole was snapped short off and crashed through two windows of a nearby tailor shop. Several women occupants of the bus were said to have become hysterical during the accident but no serious injuries were reported.

TWO WOBURN MEN ARRESTED ON LARCENY CHARGE

Francis T. Connolly, 22, of Pleasant street, and Arthur Iannucci, 15, of Water street, both of Woburn, were taken into custody early Monday morning by the Winchester Police after the young man had been accused by Mrs. Antonia Scaturo of robbing her of $42 at her home, 95 Swanton street.

According to the story told the police by Mrs. Scaturo, Connolly and Iannucci, while at her home during the early hours of Monday morning, had pushed her against the wall of the house and had taken from her a pocketbook containing $42. She exhibited her torn dress to support her story.

Previous to her appearance at Headquarters, Iannucci's father had arrived there to complain to the police that his son had remained away from his home in Woburn all night and had sold two cans of milk for $1.60, retaining the money.

Patrolman Henry Dempsey was sent to the house on Irving street of John Breen where Iannucci was known to be and the boy was taken by the officer to Headquarters. Following Mrs. Seaturo's story, Sergt. Thomas Cassidy and Officer James Donaghey were sent to arrest Connolly who was found in bed at the Breen home.

Both young men denied taking the money when arraigned before Judge Morton in the District Court at Woburn. They were found guilty, however, of larceny from the person as charged and Iannucci, who was on parole from the Lyman School, was returned there by State Parole officials with the recommendation that he be remanded to the reformatory at Shirley. The case against Connolly was continued until Tuesday morning when he accepted a sentence of three months in the House of Correction.

ELKS' NIGHT AT VETERANS' HOSPITAL

Twenty-eight veterans at the West Roxbury Hospital refused to accept an outside invitation for the evening on Friday night, when they heard that Winchester Lodge of Elks was to put on its annual entertainment, and they were well rewarded for their choice, for the local organization as usual furnished what was voted as one of the best programs of the winter for the disabled veterans.

The Elks were assisted by Mrs. Charles E. Hoey and Mrs. R. K. Miller, who arranged a program with the Fortnightly Trio and Miss Winifred H. Bent and Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Trudeau. The Fortnightly Trio was composed of Mrs. Walter W. Winship, Mrs. Arthur H. Abbott and Mrs. F. E. Barnes. These ladies rendered several solos, Mrs. Frederick C. Alexander playing the piano accompaniment. Miss Bent, reader, gave a program of selections, and Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau, violin and 'cello, rendered several selections, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. George H. Lochman.

This program occupied one hour, and following it another hour's entertainment was provided under the direction of "Buddy" Shepard. During the evening the veterans were supplied with smokes by the visitors, the entertainers being accompanied by about 35 Elks and friends.

The entertainment committee of the Elks which was responsible for this annual evening at the hospital was composed of Messrs. Arthur Hardy, Nathaniel M. Nichols, Fred D. Clement, Maurice Dinneen and R. A. Somerby.

In trying to pass between the traffic signal south of the railroad crossing in the center and the repair truck of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway Company shortly before noontime last Friday, a Packard truck, owned by the Tolman Fox Corporation of 201 South street, Boston and driven by Stanley W. Field of 20 Center street, Woburn sideswiped the beacon, ripping off the warning lights on the west side. The disabled signals had to be covered with heavy canvas until reserve parts could be installed.

WINCHESTER NOSED OUT READING

Winchester High went into undisputed possession of first place in the Middlesex Basketball League last Friday evening when its fast moving quintette nosed out a scrappy Reading High five at Reading by one basket, 22—20. Not for some time has there been a more exciting game around the circuit.

The locals deserved to win and really outclassed Reading much more than the score would indicate. The team as it played last Friday showed a complete reversal of the poor form shown against Arlington, outpassing and out-maneuvering its opponents throughout the evening.

Coach Mansfield's boys started away by peppering the Reading basket in the very first minute of play only to see several sure fire goals roll out instead of in. Reading braced in its turn and finally worked the ball into scoring position, Dukelow, its ace, covering a pass from Weeks into a basket. Soon after, the same player sunk a goal from a free try before Knowlton worked his way up the floor to take a pass from Halwartz for Winchester's first tally. Burns scored again for Reading and McNeil for Winchester, the latter on a free try. Just before the quarter Weeks shot a foul basket which gave Reading a three point advantage on a 6—3 clocking.

During the second quarter Winchester got going, Ross counting on a shot from close up and then adding a foul basket for good measure. McNeil and Knowlton sank baskets in quick succession, bringing Winchester's total at half-time to 10. Dukelow got Reading's only point on a foul just before the whistle and the half ended 10—7, Winchester.

Dukelow tossed one from the foul line to start the new half but Halwartz kept Winchester's lead secure when he dribbled two-thirds of the length of the floor to shoot a pretty goal. McNeil counted for Winchester and Reading called for time.

After the rest Dukelow and Canty scored floor goals for Reading and Winchester called for a breathing spell with the score standing at 14—12. The crowd was in an uproar. McNeil was playing a man for man game with White, star Reading center, and the latter was being effectively bottled up. Ross sunk one from close up but Burns scored for Reading and the quarter ended 16—14 with Winchester in front.

Ross and Dukelow scored floor goals to keep the score in its same ratio before Halwartz counted for Winchester on a pretty pass from McNeil. Weeks then shot a sweet, long basket from mid-court for a 20—18 tally and the Reading rooters yelled for a tie score. Winchester failed to crack under the rapid pace and by dint of fast floor work and accurate passing worked the ball up the floor until McNeil scored on a pass from Ross.

The ball was centered and, getting the ball on the tap, Weeks again shot from half-court, sinking the leather for a 22—20 counting. Everyone was on his feet as Winchester kept the ball in back court until Reading charged. Then by some very accurate passing the locals worked up the floor until the whistle blew, keeping possession of the leather until the game was over.

Between the halves of the first team game Winchester's seconds nosed out the Reading seconds, 14—13, after trailing 10—3 at half time.

Reading started what turned out to be its first string line-up against the local scrubs who did a nice job in holding their opponents to a 5—1 count at the quarter. Midway through the second quarter Coach Mansfield sent in his varsity subs and Winchester began to look up. Following intermission the locals caught Reading and with three minutes to go the score was tied at 13. With the regular second team on the floor Winchester was holding its own and finally capitalized a technical foul called on Reading for stalling to win the game, Derby shooting the basket from a free try.

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Close Matches Start Week's Schedule

Some close matches opened the week's schedule in the winter tournament bowling at the Calumet Club Monday evening and some interesting strings were rolled. Team 24 captured three points from 18, the latter taking the first string by three pins and the remaining points being very hotly contested, with close scores. Twenty-three and 27 split even, the latter winning the first string by one pin. This match too, was very close throughout. Team 7, which has proven a hard nut for many aggregations to crack, took three points from 14. Individual scores were good, bad and indifferent, the following list comprising the high men for the evening:

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The more a real man knows the more he is inclined to be modest.

Most every man will travel in the direction that his vision, eyesight and mind direct him.

It is better to go to bed supperless than to rise in debt.

The misfortunes which are the hardest to bear are those which never come.

Better be wise and look simple than to look wise and be simple.

Men and women alike find no sweeter voice in this world than the one which chants their praises.

'Tis much easier to hurt than to heal.

With Town Meeting looming on the horizon the question presents itself, "What is Winchester going to do about the War Memorial?" We make no claim of originality for the question. It is one which many in town have been asking for several years past. While in a sense the erection of the statue on the high school lot was an answer to the query, there still remains one important detail to be cleared up; namely, the matter of payment. As the situation now stands Winchester has a memorial which it does not own; at least it has no moral right to claim ownership. The statue, base, site, etc., cost something less than $56,000. Of this amount $307.69 has been paid by school children of the town and $12,172.23 raised by voluntary contributions from citizens of the community. The remaining obligation has been met by one man, Hon. Lewis Parkhurst, than whom none has taken more vital interest in providing a suitable memorial to the boys who served in the cause of humanity in the World War." Mr. Parkhurst contributed liberally when the Town decided to pay for the memorial by subscription rather than taxation and advanced subsequent sums in anticipation of additional subscriptions from fellow townspeople. Unfortunately these did not materialize and after waiting more than a reasonable time Mr. Parkhurst wrote the memorial committee, offering to pay personally the entire amount involved, less the sum contributed by the school children. He further suggested with reference to the memorial that it should be said the statue had been erected by the school children with his assistance. Other contributions were to be returned to those who had made them. In answer to this proposal one citizen, ex-Selectman Jonas A. Larraway, has stated that his contribution cannot be returned. Nothing further has come to light. Is the Town satisfied to have its War Memorial a one man proposition, or a two man proposition, since Mr. Larraway insists his money is in "for keeps?" In this instance silence apparently "lends consent." Whether or not the Town approves of the statue, the site, the cost or what not is beside the point. The community obligated itself to erect the memorial and to pay for it by subscription. One man has thus far prevented the Town from proving false to its promise. What is Winchester going to do about it?

RIVERBANK LODGE

The Special Committee of the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation which has the responsibility of the lodge on their hearts, in view of the reasonable charge to the guests, seek a sum for maintenance and enlargement to insure the overhead such as insurance, fuel service, telephone, depreciation, for caretakers and development. They ask for $100,000 for this. One appeal to the patriotic and appreciative citizens of Massachusetts, rather than annual appeals, is our ideal. Everyone in the State, who is grateful to the teachers in our schools, is asked to share in this project.

Under the great oaks of Sheyhorn, on the historic path of King Philip, where the limpid Charles River, invites one to rest and play is the charming old farm-house known now as Riverbank Lodge. It is the gift of Miss Mabel Davis of Washington to the Massachusetts Teachers' Federation. The fine old mansion, well-kept and splendidly adapted, is for a rest home for all teachers. For weekend vacations or longer periods of rest, any teacher in the State may go at a moderate price for room and board. To keep the great teaching force physically "fit," to ease the strain of the classroom, to send tired teachers back to work refreshed in body and mind—is the high aim of Riverbank Lodge.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Fire Department was obliged to make a second trip to the new postoffice building Wednesday night at 9:15. A resident of Thompson street became alarmed when he saw a stream of sparks issuing from the architect's office in advance of the structure and notified Chief David H. DeCourcy at the Central Station. Upon their arrival the firemen found that the stove in the office had been left open and had become red hot. Fortunately no damage was done.

THOMAS P. HANLEY BURIED WEDNESDAY

Second Victim of Train Accident Died Saturday

St. Mary's Church was again crowded on Wednesday morning when a solemn high mass of requiem was sung for Thomas P. Hanley, 38, of 8 Nelson street, who died Saturday evening of injuries received Friday forenoon when with Jeremiah Murphy, a fellow signal man, he was struck by an inbound train in the yards of the Boston & Maine Railroad near Nunnery Hill in Somerville.

Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan was celebrant of the requiem mass with Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, subdeacon. Rev. Fr. Eugene A. Maguire of the House of the Angel Guardian, Jamaica Plain, was seated in the sanctuary and the services were attended by sisters from the Sacred Heart Convent in East Boston. Delegations were present from the Boston & Maine Railroad Signal Department, St. Mary's Holy Name Society and Winchester Council, 210, Knights of Columbus, the deceased having been Warden of the last named organization. There were many beautiful floral tributes.

Edward F. Maguire, Edmund Goggin, Edward Boyle, George Young, Robert H. Sullivan and Edward McDonald, representing Winchester Council, K. of C., served as honorary bearers and the active bearers were John Shinnick, Henry Longfield and Michael Drohan of Winchester, William Finan of Jamaica Plain and Thomas Nevin and Joseph Buckley of Lowell.

The interment was in Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley.

Thomas P. Hanley was born in Ireland, the son of Martin and Catherine Hanley. As a youth he came to this country, settling in Winchester where he had since made his home. He was for a time employed as a chauffeur but for the past 15 years had been attached to the signal service of the Boston & Maine Railroad. Besides his membership in the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Parish Mr. Hanley was a member of Winchester Council, 210, Knights of Columbus, and of District Deputy J. Harrison McMahon's K. of C. degree team of Wakefield.

Surviving, besides his parents in Ireland, are his wife, Mrs. Catherine Hanley; a daughter, Catherine and a son, Martin; all of Winchester. Three sisters, Mrs. Agnes Croston of Somerville, Mrs. Mary T. Madden of Somerville and Miss Catherine Hanley, living in Ireland, also survive him with five brothers, Patrick, Phillip and Martin Hanley of Somerville and Michael and John Hanley, in Ireland.

HIGH WIND WEDNESDAY

Winchester was visited Wednesday with a terrifically high wind which increased to gale velocity during the afternoon and early evening. Here and there throughout town damage was reported, with trees and telegraph wires suffering especially from the heavy blow.

Shortly before 4 o'clock in the afternoon the conductor of an Arlington-Wakefield electric notified Officer Ned Shea that a live wire was hanging on Washington street between Forest and Clematis streets. Officer Shea at once communicated with headquarters and Officer James Donaghey was sent to remain on guard until the arrival of the Edison repair crew. The wire was of the high tension variety conducting about 4600 volts. Contact with it would have meant instant death.

The Edison crew also had to take care of a burning wire at the corner of Washington and Irving streets, reported by Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Department, and also of several wires which were reported by ex-Selectman James J. Fitzgerald as blown from their poles on Oak street.

Several tree limbs had to be removed from wires at the corner of Central and Church streets and during the evening a part of the fence surrounding the lumber yard of the George W. Blanchard Company on upper Main street was blown down. Midway through the afternoon a heavy wood and tin ventillator was blown from the roof of the White Block, landing on Main street in front of the Hersey Hardware Store and narrowly missing an electric car and automobile.

WINCHESTER GIRLS MEET ARLINGTON

Winchester High School girls' basketball team unbeaten in interscholastic competition to date for this season will face a real test this afternoon when its members will oppose the Arlington High girls on the latters' court. Arlington always has a strong club and the rivalry existing between the two schools would result in a thrilling game. The Spy Pond lassies in particular have not forgotten the hockey defeat of last fall and will be playing to square accounts this afternoon. Game starts at 3 o'clock.

BLAZING CANVAS THREATENED NEW POST OFFICE

A fire which started shortly before 7:16 Wednesday evening in the canvas coverings used as protection against the weather threatened to destroy the new postoffice building and adjacent dwellings on Thompson street and Purrington place. The flames which reached a height of more than 40 feet were quickly extinguished by the firemen with little or no damage.

The fire apparently started when one of the big 40x20 feet sheets of canvas came in contact with one of the lighted salamanders which were being used to keep some new masonry warm until the cement could set. The salamanders which were filled with charcoal had been placed in metal containers upon stagings around the upper story of the structure, perhaps 15 or 20 feet from the ground. Canvas coverings were placed over all to break the wind and a watchman provided to see that all went well.

It seems that one of the sheets at the southwest corner of the building became loose and in flapping about knocked the cover from the salamander container and quickly became ignited. The canvas, which had been waterproofed by an oil process, was especially inflamable and the high wind soon spread the flames over the entire structure.

The fire was discovered by Edward Fitzgerald, baggage man at Winchester Station and call captain of Ladder 1. Hastening onto Thompson street he pulled an alarm from Box 23, bringing apparatus from the Central Fire Station to the scene.

The appearance of the building, covered with the burning canvas, made a sight unusual even to veteran firemen and the leaping flames soon attracted a large crowd. The chief danger was from burning pieces of canvas which were blown throughout the entire neighborhood. Burning sparks fell upon the roof of a dwelling at 16 Thompson street owned by Jonas A. Larraway while others started a fire in a pile of rubbish in a yard on Purrington place. Several lines of hose were laid by the firemen and it was remarkable with what rapidity they had the situation under control. The roofs of the houses adjoining the postoffice were wet down as a precautionary measure before the men returned to the station.

Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy stated that the whole affair tourned out unusually well. Had the fire gained even the slightest headway in the direction of the thickly housed Purrington place, it would have been next to impossible to prevent the entire district from being razed. People living in the neighborhood remained in their dwellings, adding to the danger, since fire spreads under conditions such as prevailed Wednesday evening, with lightning speed. Loss of life would have in all probability been added to property damage, had the fire been less promptly checked.

THE SIXTH ANNUAL MYSTIC VALLEY OLDER BOYS' CONFERENCE

"Whither Bound" has been chosen for the theme of the Sixth Annual Mystic Valley Older Boys' Conference, at Woburn on Saturday afternoon and evening, Feb. 4, the purpose of which conference is to help boys of High School Age to develop purpose toward their life work. The Rev. Douglas Horton, Pastor of the Lyden-Vale Congregational Church of Brookline, and author of "Out Into Life," a young speaker, with a real message, will make the principal address in the afternoon session. Subsequent to his address there will be opportunities for the boys to hear addresses and discussions on various vocational fields. Prior to the banquet there will be a recreation period at the Y. M. C. A. at Woburn, with a basketball game, and at the banquet there will be an address by an outstanding and well known college athlete.

Tickets for the Conference may be obtained from the following:

Mr. Herbert E. Stone, 3 Edgehill road, Winchester.
Mr. Andrew Skilling, 29 Lloyd Street, Winchester.
Mr. Gordon Gillette, 25 Rangeley, Winchester.
Mr. Ralph McAdams, 93 Harvard Street, Winchester.
Mr. Gilbert Hosk, 30 Dix Street, Winchester
Mr. Murray Mercer, 37 Oxford Street, Winchester.

OFFICERS OF ABERIONA COUNCIL, R. A., INSTALLED

There was a large attendance Tuesday evening at the installation of officers held by Aberiona Council, 1002, Royal Arcanum, at the lodge rooms in Odd Fellows' Hall, the new Odd Fellows' home on Vine street.

The installing officer was Supervising Deputy Grand Regent Dr. N. A. DeWitt of Cambridge who was assisted by his suite comprising grand officers from all sections of the State. Among the guests was Past Grand Regent of Rhode Island George W. Tilley, who now makes his home in Winchester. Following the installation a banquet was served, concluding with a social hour.

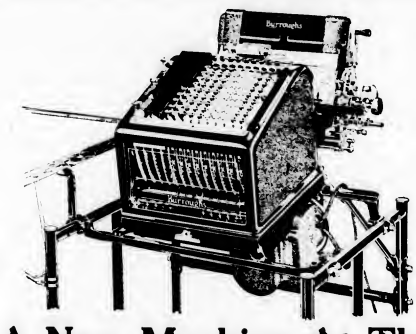
Following are the officers installed:
Regent James B. Shaw.
Vice Regent John F. Webber.
Recording Secretary Harrison Hatch.
Collector John O. Robinson.
Treasurer Walter B. Stewart.
Warden Peter M. MacDonald.
Sentry Thomas J. Kilcoyne.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Sister Marie Crilley who has been seriously ill for several weeks at her home on Pickering street, Woburn, is reported by the visiting committee as being slightly improved.

Next Friday evening Historian Mary E. Martin will be the hostess for a bridge and whist at her home on Pickering street. She will be assisted by Sisters Dorothy Kean and Catherine McHugh. With these three popular members of the Court in charge the success of the party is already assured.

Mr. Al Laforte of Main street is reported as suffering from a severe case of blood poisoning in one of his fingers.



A New Machine At The Winchester National Bank

This machine is really a wonderful set of steel brains which we are putting to work in our accounting department.

With it we can handle our figure work faster than ever before and at the same time be sure that every item in our books is right.

Helps Us Give You Better Service

By the machine method, every depositor's account is kept in balance all the time and there are no mistakes such as are unavoidable with other ways of handling figures.

The time saving made possible by the machine gives us an opportunity to improve the service to our customers in all departments of the bank.

Everything Is Done Automatically

It prints dates, adds your deposits to the old balance, subtracts checks, figures and prints your new balance. All of this is done automatically. The operator simply writes the amounts on the keyboard—the machine shifts from column to column and adds, subtracts, or prints the date as desired, without the least attention being necessary.

Come In and See It Work

There is no method of posting ledgers known which equals this Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine in either accuracy or time saving.

Come in and see our new Burroughs at work in our accounting department.

UNITARIAN ASSOCIATES WILL HOLD SUPER-CABARET

Matters are progressing very satisfactorily for the super-cabaret to be held in the Town Hall by the Unitarian Associates on Friday evening, Feb. 10.

The Associates is made up of members from the Ladies' Friendly, Men's Club and Metcalf Union. William B. Wood is general chairman and Mrs. W. J. Driskell is assistant chairman. Mrs. H. W. Hildreth, president of the Ladies' Friendly Society, is acting in an advisory capacity. Philip B. Sawyer is secretary; Mr. Everett F. Kidder, treasurer; Dr. John R. Wallace, chairman of the ticket committee and Herbert Miller, chairman of the refreshment committee. Assisting Dr. Wallace will be Mrs. Herbert E. Stone, Mrs. George Goddu and Mrs. C. O. Mason, representing the Ladies' Friendly Society. Also, Arthur Kelley, representing the Men's Club. Assisting Herbert Miller, representing the Metcalf Union, will be Marjorie Hayden and George Hayden. Members of the Union will act as ushers and serve refreshments. George Hayden will be in charge of the boys and Marjorie Hayden of girls.

There will be tables seating four. Quite a few have already been engaged and it is suggested that application be made early to avoid disappointment. There will be no favoritism shown in the awarding of tables, because they will be by the "draw" Method, each applicant having an equal chance in the selection of location.

The committee has engaged the well-known Ives' Orchestra, full size, for dancing.

Festivities will begin at 8 o'clock and "Bill" Wood has figured it out to the minutest detail and says there will be 120 minutes of dancing and 120 minutes of vaudeville.

There will be a fine array of talent for vaudeville, including both local and outside artists. You will be delighted to hear and see Tony—the Spaghetti Peddler; Orphelia Pulse—the Typical Kid; Izzy Human—the Hebrew College Freshman; Prof. Kinder Cocca Cola who will give an exhibition of mental depathe. To add to the merriment, there will be special dancing by a group of professionals. We would also call attention to the local talent which will be of superior nature. Others will be announced later.

SHARKEY—HEENEY PICTURES AT STRAND

The management of the Strand Theatre in Woburn has announced another sporting feature of interest to boxing fans for next Monday and Tuesday, Jan. 30 and 31. On those days will be shown motion pictures of the much talked of Sharkey-Heeney bout recently fought in Madison Square Garden, New York; a bout which ended in a draw after 10 rounds of rugged milling.

Boston followers of pugilism were unanimous in their opinion that Sharkey won the fight by a mile while New York opinion favored Heeney, a prime favorite in the Metropolis. Local sports followers will welcome the opportunity to form their own opinions and the Strand management is expecting to care for large audiences on the days when the film is shown.

Mr. Cereno W. Campbell well known local plumber, left his home in Woburn this week with Mrs. Campbell to spend the next two months at Daytona, Fla. This is the second trip south for the Campbells this winter and as usual they will journey to Florida by automobile.

GOING SOUTH THIS WINTER?

Taking in the West Indies?

Nothing finer could be thought for a winter vacation, but do you realize that there are over 20 different kinds of cruises to these waters, and while your ideal cruise is amongst them, there is the possibility that you might get the wrong one.

Each steamship line and tourist company naturally push their own cruise, and you owe it to yourself to investigate all of them before you make your dicision. This cannot be done without needless amount of effort in going from office to office and listening to biased judgment unless you take advantage of the general passenger representative for all the great steamship lines and tourist companies, which office is under the direction of a thoroughly experienced traveler, J. F. McGrath, Jr., 365 Main street, Woburn.

Mr. McGrath acts only in an advisory capacity, and after knowing your particular wishes can help you decide which is the best cruise for you.

With all of this at his finger tips, he can give you unbiased judgment, and, if you wish, secure for you preferred staterooms, and service and attend to many other annoying details in the preparation of a cruise of this kind. This service can be had at the office, 365 Main street, Woburn, or if you prefer in your home by appointment at your convenience day or evening. There is absolutely no charge for the service from this office as the office is supported by the great steamship companies for your convenience.

Regarding European travel. There are many radical changes in shipping taking effect this year and if you are contemplating Europe this summer, you owe it to yourself and ought to take advantage of this service, so that you will go at the right time and on the boat best suited for your particular needs.

Call Woburn 1234 and make an appointment and our representative will call, and your entire trip to Europe can be arranged in your own home and you will still go to Europe under the direction of your favorite tourist company or tourist agent.

Please understand that the McGrath office has no service of its own to sell, but being experienced in travel have been engaged by all the great travel agencies for your convenience.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Rotarians are always pleased when they can stage a celebration of some important event and at this weeks' meeting Winchester Rotarians were certainly in a mood for celebrating.

It became known that our Roscoe was willing to admit the existence of a birthday anniversary of immediate interest to himself and of some approximation to this date.

In order that Roscoe as well as all other Rotarians present might have a proper opportunity to express their emotions "Doc" temporarily resigned his post as song leader in his (Roscoe's) favor. "Jim" was kind and the versatility of our assistant song leader was apparent, and greatly appreciated; nevertheless other members of the club were very strongly of the opinion that the above event should not establish a precedent.

And now that a birthday anniversary had been observed what could be more fitting than to celebrate a birth. And so we did.

A representative of a well-known Detroit billionaire was present for the purpose of telling us about the newest member of this family of wealth. Have you guessed that we refer to Miss Elizabeth Ford?

It is evident that the latest addition to the family of Ford is immensely popular with the boys and is already a much photographed individual—two movie films were displayed to admiring Rotarians. Miss Elizabeth appears to be possessed of beauty, strength and presumably of comparative silence; we believe that she is assured of a cordial reception and attendance record still continues good. The December record was well over 90 per cent and it seems certain that we shall register an improvement in January. We can remain near the top if every man will try. Why not a 100 per cent meeting as a starter for the new month?

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. and Mrs. John Hevey of Winchester are receiving congratulations upon the birth of a daughter, born Tuesday at the Choate Hospital in Woburn. Mrs. Hevey was before her marriage Miss Margaret Sherry of Woburn. Mr. Hevey is the former high school star shortstop who since his graduation has made a name for himself as a ball player in the semi-professional ranks.

Mrs. Walter S. Wadsworth of Lawrence street was hostess Thursday morning to the councillors of the local Girl Scout troops. Sixteen attended an interesting meeting which was followed by the serving of a late breakfast.

What Mr. Babson Said About Our Loans

In a recent article, he stated that while it might not be mathematically correct to say that a co-operative bank home-building loan costs from two to three per cent less than other forms of loans, yet the borrower, in effect, gets that advantage. He refers to our practice of applying the repayments on shares. This gives the borrower the benefit of the share dividends.

There is a real advantage in co-operative bank loans which we will be pleased to explain in detail to any who may be interested.

MARY AUSTIN TO ADDRESS FORUM MEETING

Mary Austin, authoress, playwrite, student, authority on the American Indian, traveler and lecturer, a women who enjoys an international reputation in her field, is to be the speaker next Sunday afternoon at the mothly meeting of the Inter-church Forum to be held in the Church of the Epiphany.

Mrs. Austin is distinctly an American product. She was born of Colonial and Revolutionary stock, at Carlinville, Ill., and was educated in local schools and a small western university. For 16 years she lived in various small communities in the Mohave Desert where her life among the Indians together with her natural interest in their habits and customs eventually lead her to become internationally known as an Indian authority. With her literary intuitions she is said to have done more than ay other American writer to make known and appreciated the songs and myths of the Indian people.

During three years spent abroad, following 1905, Mrs. Austin was received, especially in England, with deference seldom bestowed at that time upon American authors. "What woman in Europe can equal her," said H. G. Wells, eminent English author. In 1910 she returned to New York to put on at the New Theatre her play, "The Arrow Maker," the only play with an entire east of Indian characters ever produced on the American stage.

Since that time Mrs. Austin has divided her time between New York and the Southwest with an occasional trip to Europe. She has been a prolific writer, her work appearing constantly in the Survey, The Nation and the American Mercury. She is known as the author of "The Land of Journey's Ending," "The Land of Little Rain," "Christ in Italy," "The Man Jesus," and other works on characteristically American subjects.

While she has not made a profession of lecturing, she has spoken at a number of universities, in the summer school of the University of California, before the Fabian Society of London, the Tomorrow Club of the Inter-Colonial and Lyceum Clubs of London, the Town Hall, National Arts, Queery, Liberal, both men's and women's clubs of New York City and before the American Association for Advancement of Science in Boston. For the past two years Mrs. Austin has been chiefly occupied with the foundation of a museum of Indian Arts for Indians and a revival of Spanish Colonial Arts.

The Inter-Church Forum believes its members fortunate to have an opportunity to hear this talented American woman.

SEVERAL CANDIDATES CIRCULATING PAPERS

The past week has added two new candidates to positions upon the Board of Selectmen for 1928-29. Vincent P. Clark of Church street and ex-Selectman William P. Callahan of Eaton street have taken out papers in addition to those already in circulation for Harry W. Stevens of Winthrop street.

Papers have been taken out by Dr. Harry Y. Nutter of Mt. Vernon street for Treasurer; by Samuel S. Symmes of Sanborn street for Tree Warden; by Albert K. Huckins of Highland avenue for the Board of Public Welfare; by Chief of Police William R. McIntosh of Stone avenue for Constable and by Edmund C. Sanderson of Dix street for the Water and Sewer Board.

Edward A. Tucker of Highland avenue and Fred D. Clement of Washington street have nomination papers out for election to the School Committee.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Chief McIntosh has announced that the word "Walk" is to be substituted for "Slow" in the signal light on the traffic beacon in the center, thus safeguarding pedestrians. The move was prompted by a recent accident which befell a resident of the town who was knocked down by a bicycle in crossing the center.

Miss Ruth McCall, daughter of the late Ex-Governor Samuel W. McCall, has re-enrolled at the Paul Revere Pottery School, Brighton. She was a student at the school last year.

WINCHESTER GIRLS WON BY THREE POINTS

In a hard fought game which teemed with action Coach Priscilla Wheeler's Winchester High School girls' basketball team edged the Wakefield High girls' sextette, 32—29, last Friday afternoon at Wakefield. The locals came from behind to lead at the half and were never headed thereafter.

Wakefield had a very smooth working club and showed the better passing, but Winchester's speed and aggressiveness more than offset the home team's better floor play. Mary Cutter, playing center for Winchester, was against an exceptionally rangy girl in L. Allen of Wakefield and was able to get the tap only occasionally.

Wakefield went out in front at the start and led at the end of the first quarter, 13—10. Midway through the second period Coach Wheeler sent Frances Pettingell in at Marie Merrill's guard position and the substitute gave a pretty exhibition of defensive play, breaking up the Wakefield passing game so effectively that Winchester was able to crawl up and pass its opponents at the half, leaving the floor on the long end of a 22—21 counting.

The game was a triller following intermission but Winchester managed to hold its lead through the third quarter which ended 26—25. The crowd was on edge as the game was resumed and as play drew toward the final whistle Wakefield threatened seriously to knot the count. The defensive play of the local guards, Mary O'Donnell and Frances Pettingell, was very high class during the closing minutes of the battle and the Wakefield girls were never able to draw up on even terms.

With less than two minutes to go the locals were leading 30—29 when amidst great excitement Captain "Sunny" Davis caged the basket which made Winchester's lead secure. Virginia Merrill was the game's high scorer and with "Sunny" Davis and Frances Pettingell starred for Coach Wheeler's outfit. Potter was Wakefield's outstanding player.

Between the halves of the main game the Wakefield second team defeated the Winchester scrubs by the overwhelming score of 35—9. The summary of the first team game follows:

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

At the annual meeting of the W. C. T. U. held on Friday, Jan. 20, the following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Grace M. Hamilton; Secretary, Mrs. Allena Roberts; Treasurer, Mrs. Eugenia M. Elliott. The following were elected vice-presidents to represent the various churches: First Congregational, Miss Maud McLellan, Mrs. Julia F. Barnes; Second Congregational, Mrs. Georgetta Whitley; Methodist, Mrs. Anna M. Dunning, Mrs. Capitola M. Welburn; Baptist, Mrs. Mary Winn, Mrs. Zella Kempton; Episcopal, Mrs. Josephine Arnold, Mrs. Ordelia Osborne; Unitarian, Miss Mary Swift.

Mrs. Arthur Gerdon, state director of citizenship was the speaker. She stressed the importance of knowing the record of candidates and of getting 100 per cent of our membership to the polls on election day. The eighth anniversary of the national prohibition law was celebrated on the week beginning Jan. 15. Leaders of the prohibition movement filled many of the church pulpits throughout the country and it was the unanimous opinion of these speakers, that prohibition is the best method yet found of dealing with the liquor traffic. They feel that this eight year old child is lusty and strong and they clearly forsee that at the age of 21, it will certainly have the enforcing qualities which many of its enemies feel it should have at the tender age of eight years. Mrs. Hamilton was the speaker on Sunday night at the Baptist Church in Laconia, N. H., and at the celebration banquet held in the Lincoln Park Baptist Church, West Newton on Monday evening.

NEW THEATRE IN MEDFORD

Riverside at Medford Square Latest in Vaudeville Field

Residents in this section have had another fine playhouse opened for their patronage, the new Riverside Theatre in Medford Square, which has been under construction since last summer now being completed and offering an exceptional program of photo plays and high class vaudeville. Its close and convenient location offers exceptional advantages to Winchester patrons.

This theatre dubbed the most beautiful playhouse in suburban Boston, is showing two complete bills each week, pictures and vaudeville changing on Mondays and Thursdays. Only high class acts of a nature shown in the larger cities are shown and the photo plays are all of the newest releases.

For this Friday evening and tomorrow, "The Missing Link" is to be shown. This is the play which has created such a furor throughout fildom, and is superceeded only by "Les Miserables," Victor Hugo's immortal classic, which follows next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. Next week Thursday, Friday and Saturday the play will be equally attractive, when "Painted Ponies" will be shown.

Harold K. Elliott of Linden street has been elected Senior Vice-Commander of Woburn Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

WEDDED IN NEW YORK CITY

Miss Rosamond H. Lefavour Married to Robert Wainwright Rogers

The Church of the Transfiguration, known familiarly as the "Little Church Around the Corner," in New York City, last Saturday afternoon was the scene of a wedding of much interest to a large circle of people in Winchester. The contracting parties were Miss Rosamond Hoyt Lefavour, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Asa Lefavour of Herrick street, and Mr. Robert Wainwright Rogers, son of Dr. Daniel Weston Rogers of Highland Park, Ill.

The bride was attended by her cousin, Miss Frances W. Cowles of Brookline as maid of honor, and Mr. Howard Serrell, Dartmouth, '28, of Pearl River, N. Y., cousin of the bridegroom, was his best man. Owing to the sudden death of the bridegroom's only brother, there were no other attendants and the only guests were the members of the immediate families. The ceremony was performed by the rector of the church, Rev. Randolph Ray, D.D.

The bride wore an afternoon dress of shaded rose crepe with hat to match and carried a bouquet of lilies of the valley and orchids. The maid of honor was gowned in pencil blue georgette with a hat matching in color and carried butterfly roses.

The bride was graduated from Smith College in the Class of '26, and the bridegroom was graduated in the same year from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. He is associated with a firm of naval architects in New York City. The engagement was announced in November, 1927.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

The Granada Theatre in Malden continues to be the popular rendezvous of discriminating seekers for entertainment. This house, one of the most beautiful in New England, offers a program of five acts of vaudeville, a feature picture, Symphony Orchestra and special organ novelties at each performance. The program is changed twice weekly on Monday and Thursday with continuous shows on Saturday and holidays.

"Fashion Madness," starring Claire Windsor and Reed Howes, is the current feature at the Granada. It is seldom one finds so much variety in a single feature without any sacrifice to story, consistency or probability. Miss Windsor enacts the role of Gloria Vane, a typical spoiled child, who has had her own way and expects everybody to obey her whims. Her sweetheart decides to teach her a lesson by carrying her to his camp in the Canadian woods where she will be forced to realize the deeper emotions of life. In this locale the action of the story takes place. The regular five act bill of vaudeville will also be sown today and Saturday.

"Two Flaming Youths," starring W. C. Fields and Chester Conklin, comes to the Granada for three days starting next Monday. This news will be received with enthusiasm by those who enjoy a good laugh once in awhile. Conklin and Fields make a splendid comedy combination and their picture is sure to keep any audience in a continuous state of laughter. There is not much story to it—it was made to get laughs and more than succeeds in its mission. The vaudeville bill will be an added feature for the first half of next week.

FIRST MUSICALE IN NEW CONGREGATIONAL PARISH HOUSE

A very delightful evening's entertainment was given in the Ladies' Parlor of the First Congregational Church Tuesday, Jan. 24. The musical part of the program was given by Carolyn Draper Gilpatric, soprano, accompanied by Mrs. W. A. Lefavour and by Mr. S. J. Trudeau, violinist and Mrs. Trudeau, 'cellist, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Frank Knight. Mr. and Mrs. Knight also gave piano duets.

Mabel Craig Lyons of the new School of Expression in Winchester, read delightfully from the play, "Such a Little Queen" as well as Alfred Noyes' poem "The Highwayman," responding to an enthusiastic audience with pleasing encore numbers.

Miss Doris Lawson gave two dances in old-fashioned and ultra-modern costume, with appropriate songs, while the diminutive Janet Lawson contributed another dance number and Marjorie Lawson a recitation.

Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau delighted the audience with, "The Love Song" by Flegier; "Serenade" by Tandolfs, and a duet arranged for violin and 'cello from "Le Barbier de Seville."

Mr. and Mrs. Knight played "The Gypsy March" by Carl Wolf and "Minuet Antique" by Streliski, while two quartets were played by Mr. and Mrs. Trudeau with Mr. and Mrs. Knight at the piano. These were "La Cinquentaine" by Gabriel Marie and "The Little Forget-me-not" by Allan Macbeth.

Mrs. Gilpatric sang in her usual charming manner the following group of songs:

My Lover, He Comes on the Skee	Clough-Leighter
Down In the Forest	Landon Ronald
The Little Damozel	Ivor Novello
Big Brown Bear	Mana Zucca
Song of the Open	Frank La Forge
Cunnin' Little Thing	Richard Hageman
Adoration with violin obligato by Mr. Trudeau	Maurice Telma

WINCHESTER LADIES BROADCAST FROM WNAC

The Fortnightly Trio, Mrs. W. W. Winship soprano, Mrs. F. E. Barnes, 2d, soprano and Mrs. A. H. Abbott alto, with Mrs. F. C. Alexander accompanist, gave a very enjoyable concert over radio station WNAC on Tuesday evening. The program was eagerly listened to by a host of Winchester friends, as well as by many out of town acquaintances, and the comments were most cordial. Mrs. Winship contributed several solos which were a distinct feature of the music and the ladies made a decided hit in their radio debut.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of the club was held on Monday afternoon at 2.30 p. m. with the first vice-president, Mrs. Christine E. Hayden, presiding.

The program of the Davies-Kempf Ensemble proved a delightful treat. The personnel of the ensemble included Alden Davies, tenor; F. William Kempf, violinist; Alfred Zighera, 'cellist; Bernard Zighera, harpist and Richard Walaby, pianist. The 'cellist and harpist are graduates of the Paris Conservatory of Music and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Mr. Bernard Zighera is also pianist for the orchestra and was accompanist for Mr. Koussevitsky at the concert which he gave recently.

The program was as follows:

Panis Angelius .... Franck
The Ensemble

The Blue Danube Waltzes .... Strauss
The Ensemble

Songs—
(a) Songs My Mother Taught Me .. Dvorak
(b) Clomida .... Morgan
(c) I Heard You Singing .... Coates
Mr. Davies

Cello Solos—
(a) Elegie .... Gabriel Faure
(b) Azlequin .... Popper
Mr. Alfred Zighera

In Dulci Jubilo .... Liszt
Violin, 'Cello, Harp

Songs—
(a) I'll Sing Thee Songs of Araby ... Clay
(b) Open the Door .... arr. Hughes
(c) Oh, Mother, My Love .... Furley
(d) Sea Rapture .... Coates
Mr. Davies

Harp Solos—
(a) Impromptu .... Gabriel Faure
(b) Jazz-Band .... Marcel Tournier
Mr. Bernard Zighere

Violin Solos—
(a) Air Militaire .... Prume
(b) Canebrake .... Gardner
Mr. Kempf

Lullaby .... Goddard
The Ensemble

The opening number Panis Angehieus by Franck, was given by the entire group. A solo obligato was sung by Mr. Davies in Latin. This was a very beautiful piece. The second number, "The Blue Danube Waltzes," are always enjoyed and they were well played. Mr. Davies' groups of songs were pleasing. His voice has a beautiful quality of tone and he sings with ease. As an encore to his second group, he sang "Mammy's Little Kinky Headed Boy" by Trinkhaus.

The 'cellist played two interesting selections. The first "Elegie" was a typical Faure composition with beautiful and unusual harmony. The second, "Azlequin" by Popper, was most difficult and showed the marvelous technique of the artist. Mr. Bernard Zighera played the accompaniment for these two numbers and showed that he could play as well on the piano as on the harp.

"In Dulci Jubilo" by Liszt as played by the violin, 'cello and harp was very beautiful. The instruments were muted. The melody of this piece is often heard at Christmas as a carol. The air in this arrangement was carried first by one instrument and then the others in turn with a delightful accompanying harmony.

The harp solos were very difficult members in which the artist showed his mastery of this sweet toned instrument. In "Impromptu" he brought out tone, coloring and technique in all their importance. The second number, "Jazz-Band" was an unusual composition for the harp being a descriptive one. It was hard to believe that such tones could come from the harp.

Mr. Kempf delighted the audience by playing two selections on his Grand Amati violin. This violin was made by Amati in 1624 and is valued at $12,000. There are only three like it in this country. The instrument has very sweet tones and the artist used them effectively. As an encore he played "Viennese Spirit" by Czerivoushi. Mr. Malaby played the accompaniments with rare sympathy and skill.

The closing number, "Lullaby" by Goddard was sung by Mr. Davies with the ensemble accompanying him.

The Mason and Hamlin Company through the kindness of Mr. H. B. Williams loaned the grand piano for the afternoon and this added much to the enjoyment of the program.

Art Department

Many members of the club came out for the talk upon Japanese Art at the home of Mrs. Mary T. Ghirardini, Foxcroft road on Jan. 18. The program was arranged and carried out by the Art Committee, Mrs. Dorothy M. Wills, chairman. The lecturer was Mrs. Kojira Tomita, American wife of the curator of the Chinese and Japanese collection at the Boston Museum of Fine Arts. This collection is the largest and finest of its kind in the world. Mrs. Tomita is a charming speaker and her words were closely followed by an interested audience.

Said Mrs. Tomita, Japan although she has drawn upon other countries for much of her symbollsm (mainly upon India, China, and Thibet) still possesses a great deal of indigenous symbolism of her own. Flower motifs, animal motifs and motifs that had their origin in legends and festivals are used largely.

The speaker exhibited interesting material, chiefly prints, paintings, lacquer work, pottery, fans and textiles.

In all these works of art were shown plainly the flowers, animals or birds symbolized. The first blossoms, the plum tree, (meaning courage) appear in February, while there is ice on the ground.

Later we find the bamboo (symbol of straightforwardness). It always bends but does not break. Japanese women typify this in their lives. Hardly any family is without the branches of the pine and the bamboo.

The cherry blossoms, the national flower through all the ages come in March and in the large cities, multitudes of the people view the display by daylight and the illumination at night. The lovely wisteria clusters come in April, and in May the Iris, symbol of bravery appears. The Camelia is the December flower. The 16 petaled Chrysanthemum the "Imperial Crest," is symbolic of happiness and is sacred to the Emperor and Royalty.

Many fruits are devoted to New Year's symbols. Two fine trees are placed on either side of the entrance to the homes. (The pine means faithfulness). A straw rope with pendants is stretched across the doorways to entice the sun goddess from her cave. This means cleanliness and happiness. The beautiful garments of the women, in the spring are covered with the combined flower motives, woven with other symbols.

Japanese children do not molest butterflies, for they are sacred and are supposed to carry departed souls.

The beauty of the work of writing or forming the Japanese characters was noted as really an art in itself. Paintings are more important than prints for painting was ever the classical art, while prints were made by and about the common people. Thus a wealth of symbolism abounds in everything in this oriental nation. Every student is taught first, to know an object thoroughly before painting it. For example, they will paint in a crow in three minutes because of their previous knowledge of its anatomy.

The Ghirardini home with its Japanese panel paintings on silk, incense burners, vases of rare enamel, silver cloisonne and rich embroidered covers, made a fitting background for the prints and paintings of the lecturer. Everyone remained for the Japanese tea, served in real oriental ware, with cakes and eastern confections. The servers, Mrs. Christine E. Hayden arrayed in a real mandarin coat and Mrs. Mary A. Dissell garbed in a bride's costume of red and gold completed an artistic picture.

President's "At Home"

The President's "At Home" will be held in the Fortnightly Hall on Friday, Feb. 3, from 2.30 to 5.30 p. m. All club members including waiting list members are invited to come from 2.30 to 4 p. m. and those from N to Z from 4 to 5.30 p. m. It is hoped that as many as possible will avail themselves of this opportunity to get acquainted with the other members of the club.

Literature Committee

The regular meeting of the Literature Group will be held on Monday, Feb. 6 at 2.30 p. m. in the Fortnightly Hall. Miss Nancy Byrd Turner, president of the Boston Manuscript Club, author, poet, and critic, will give an address on the subject, "Women in Literature" and will read a group of her own poems, among them her Lindbergh poem now famous from coast to coast. Miss Turner promises to give intimate glimpses of women writers whom she has known at the MacDowell colony in New Hampshire. Tea will be served with Mrs. Martha W. Kelley as hostess.

Dramatic Committee

The monthly dramatic afternoon will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 7, at 2.30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. Instead of the musical comedy which was announced in the year book, there will be three one-act plays under the direction of Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle.

Theatre Party

The club house fund committee has planned a theatre party for Thursday afternoon, Feb. 16 at the Repertory Theatre.

WINCHESTER BOY OF SIX RESCUES CHUM

Albert Cyr Had Broken Through Ice Behind Fire Station

The heroism of 6 year old Richard McCormack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas McCormack of 21 Winchester place, was all that stood between Albert Cyr, 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cyr of 19 Winchester place, and probable death by drowning last Friday afternoon when the latter broke through thin ice on the Aberjona River in the rear of the Central Fire Station. Men of the Department and others living in the vicinity were all unconscious of the thrilling drama which was being enacted so near them.

Albert and Richard were coasting on a little slope behind the fire station when young Cyr lost control of his sled which plunged over an embankment and onto the frozen surface of the river. The ice proved too thin to stand the sudden strain and the little boy was plunged into the chilling water.

Seeing that his chum was unable to extricate himself and without thought to the personal danger involved, young McCormack hastened to his assistance. Crawling out onto the ice, the plucky boy siezed his chum by the collar and after a desperate struggle succeeded in pulling him from the water. A passerby, noting the two boys on the ice, summoned the police, but upon the arrival of the officers, Richard had gotten young Cyr ashore and was helping him to his home.

The plucky little hero was not at all concerned over his accomplishment and failed entirely to realize that he had done anything out of the ordinary. Despite the fact those who know the place where the rescue occurred, who realize the risk the youngster ran, will tell you that the rescue of Albert Cyr by Richard McCormack was an act deserving of high praise. Richard is one of a family of 10 and is a pupil in the first grade of St. Mary's Parochial School. Needless to say his parents and his many friends are very proud of him.

Mrs. Katherine Sullivan of Spruce street is reported as recovering slowly from a long siege of ill health.

COLONEL CHASE GUEST OF ROYAL ARCH MASONS

Lieut.-Col. Harry G. Chase, State Quartermaster, spoke before Winchester Royal Arch Chapter at their January 20 meeting and was enthusiastically received by a large attendance. Colonel Chase gave his well-known lecture "Danger Spots" sketching various international situations which might lead to war, if peace is not scrupulously preserved by interested countries. The speaker's long military service and study of military tactics here and abroad made the talk very interesting and instructive, and many of those present lingered for a more extended discussion.

The introduction to the subject treated of the density of population in various countries, Australia having two inhabitants to the square mile, the United States seven, and Japan nearly 700. After the Treaty of Versailles, many of the combatant countries were given additional colonies, and several important seaports were redistributed. The so-called Danzig Corridor which was assigned to Poland was one result of the Treaty, leading to additional bloodshed and ill feeling, and was only straightened out by strenuous measures.

Trade routes and sources of raw material were then discussed, illustrated by colored charts and maps, and the talk was concluded by a description of various strategic land fortifications and naval bases developed before and after the World War, with comment on international results. Colonel Chase, who is a member of the Board of Governors of the Army and Navy Club of Boston, has given this talk before scores of organizations and his ready wit and genial personality brought him a cordial invitation to visit Winchester again at some future date.

Mr. and Mrs. John E. Callahan observed on last Sunday evening the 42nd anniversary of their marriage, solemnized Jan. 22, 1886, in St. Mary's Rectory by the Rev. Fr. Dennis Lee. Many out of town guests were present as well as the Winchester friends of the happy couple who were showered with congratulations and gifts of a substantial nature. Assisting in making the evening a memorable one was the presence of Mr. and Mrs. Callahan's four children, Miss Margaret Callahan, ex-Selectman William P. Callahan and Edward J. Callahan, custodian of the Town Hall, all of Winchester; and Christopher Callahan of Medford. A catered buffet luncheon was served following the reception.

Many in Winchester were interested in the bill recently introduced in the State Legislature by Representative Josiah Babcock of Milton, providing for permanent employment for life guards of the Metropolitan District Commission with pay adjustment. The introduction of the bill was made on application of William A. Murray of Dorchester, for the past several seasons life guard at Sandy Beach on Mystic Lake. Mr. Murray, who has had a long and highly creditable career as a swimming instructor, believes that in the interest of public safety the life guards of the bathing season should be the life guards of the skating season, thus reducing to a minimum the danger of drowning due to thin ice. The bill which comes up for hearing next month would affect 12 guards on the Metropolitan District Commission list, located at Mystic Lake, Revere Nantasket, Nahant and Wollaston Beach.

Mr. Charles A. Lane has been exhibiting an interesting curio in the shape of a piece of petrified tree stump which he discovered in a coal mine during a recent visit to Scranton, Pa. The piece of wood, while retaining its contour, seemed modelled from coal, so complete had the transition been. Mr. Lane stated that the tree when found was quite complete and apparently a specie of palm. The Scranton mining district contains some 600 miles of underground railway tracks which have to be more or less replaced each year because of certain acid conditions which operate below ground. While in the mines Mr. Lane with his partner, Mr. Charles A. Burnham, stood for a time directly under the Union Station of Scranton and also beneath the First Congregational Church. The latter site is marked with a huge cross.

DROVE INTO ABERJONA

About 2 o'clock this morning an automobile, while headed north along the Parkway, crashed off the road about 50 feet beyond the iron bridge near the old Bacon house at Wedgemere and plunged over an embankment into the Aberjona River.

Passing autoists noticed the machine partly submerged in the river and notified the Winchester Fire Department. A detachment, including Chief David H. DeCourcy, Deputy Chief John J. Gorman and firemen David Meskell, James Callahan, Ray Hanscom and Frank Duffy hastened to the scene in the chief's car and wire truck, taking with them the department's lifeboat and grappling irons.

Arrived at the river they found the machine, apparently a Chrysler coach, about half under water and so far as could be ascertained empty. The firemen launched their boat and made a thorough examination, but aside from pulling a coat and hat out of the river their grappling hooks raised nothing. The doors of the machine were open and the firemen believed that the occupants must have escaped, probably before the car reached the river.

Meanwhile Officers Mark Kelley and Archie O'Connell of the Winchester Police had arrived with Officers Roy Hutchins, Edward A. Herbert and Augustus C. Holton of the Metropolitan Department. A ladder truck from the Medford Fire Department was also sent to help.

It was impossible to pull the car from the river as it was imbedded in a none too firm bottom about 15 feet from the bridge wall. Its lights even while submerged, remained lighted and the whole presented a wierd picture. The firemen and police succeeded in getting the registration number before returning to their headquarters.

An investigation disclosed the fact that the car was the property of John P. Lally of 9 Richardson street and a phone call thither informed the authorities that Mr. Lally had arrived home and was in bed. In response to questions he stated that he had been driving his car toward Woburn when at a point about 50 feet from the bridge he had been driven off the road by a large automobile, going in an opposite direction. He had been unable to get his car under control and after narrowly missing a big tree the machine had plunged over the embankment and into the river. Mr. Lally stated that he was unharmed and that he had been alone in the car at the time of the accident. He notified the Central Garage to care for the car but firemen agreed that a derrick would be necessary to lift the machine from the river.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

It is reported that the near drowning tragedy in the rear of the Fire Station last week-end has prompted the town to erect a wire fence along the river bank to prevent children from getting into, or onto, as the case may be, the river. It is a step which has long been advocated by Fire Chief David H. DeCourcy who also wishes to erect a fence along Winchester place adjoining the Police Station.

PAGEANT AT METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH SUNDAY EVENING

The people of Winchester will be privileged to see a gripping religious pageant on Sunday evening, Feb. 5 at 7 o'clock when "The Hill of Desire" will be produced at the Methodist Episcopal Church under the auspices of the Stoneham M. E. Church. The pageant has twice been produced in Stoneham to capacity audiences and has also been given in Wilmington. The parts are taken by students in the Boston University School of Religious Education.

The complete program for Sunday evening follows:

Prelude ..... Brass Quartette and Orchestra
Congregational Singing
"O Come All Ye Faithful"
Scripture Reading St. Luke 2: 8-20
Prayer ..... By the Pastor
Offering
Selection From the "Messiah" ... Orchestra
The Story of "The Hill of Desire"
Rev. Mort Thornburg
"The Hill of Desire"
Written by the Class in Playwriting, School of Religious Education at Woburn under the direction of the instructor, Ethel Gesner Rockwell, season of 1927.
Angel of the Star ..... Doris Cutts
Miss Annie Murray of Woburn
Shepherd Boy ..... Roy Allin
Miss Annie Murray of Woburn
Pharisee ..... Elwyn Walker
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Meadows of Wilmington.
Priest ..... Clement Whittal
Miss Ida Osgood of Stoneham
Merchant ..... Herbert Malin
Sibyl Willis of Wilmington
Roman Soldier ..... J. Carroll Tucker
Evelyn Maynard of Wilmington
Mother and Child ..... Esther Patridge
Mrs. Laura MacKay of Stoneham
Hymn to be sung to tune of "Where Crees the Crowded Ways of Life." Composed for this pageant by Mr. and Mrs. George Meadows of Wilmington.

The poor in spirit meekly came
Seeking the star, this blessed night.
And others, too, of greater fame,
Unwortlie, claim its healing light.

But he who sees the inward parts
Desires not outward pomp and show.
He blesses only those whose hearts
With sympathy and love o'erflow.

Spirit of peace, and power and love,
Hovering o'er our hungry hearts,
We seek in hope, and only prove
Thy presence by the Star of light

The rich man's gold cannot obtain
From this hill what all desire
And pride and force must search again,
But never find the hush afire.

The smoking flax he doth not quench,
Though small their faith, he will fulfill
The hope of him whose love doth hold,
Who couch to the Holy Hill.

Benediction ..... By the Pastor
Soloist, Gertrude F. Andrews; Violinist, Charles S. Newhall; Organist, Lambert Reeves.

WINTON CLUB CHARITY BALL

A brilliant social event of the season was the annual Charity Ball given Friday evening by the Winton Club of which Mrs. William McGill is President. The party was in charge of Mrs. Kenneth Young, assisted by Mrs. Paul Avery, Mrs. Preston Cotten, Mrs. Robert Holmes, and Mrs Clifford Mason. "Winton Whimsies," most attractive cabaret numbers, arranged by Mrs. Lafayette Chamberlin, assisted by Mrs. Alfred Radley, Mrs. Joseph Worthen and Mrs. Alexander MacDonald were presented during the evening.

The first of which was "The Gay Pirates." Mr. Donald Starr led a dancing chorus of young society girls, Miss Constance Greece, Miss Medora Gale, Miss Amy Merrill, Miss Barbara Hitchcock, Miss Nancy Holden, Miss Eleanor Davy, Miss Ruth Marsters and Miss Marjorie Pitcher.

Mr. Lering Gleason and Mr. Rufus Clark in clever song and dance introduced local hits.

"The Gay Nineties" in pantomime was given by Mr. George Rivinius, Mrs. Clinton Seymour, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Whorf, Mrs. James McCormick, Mrs. Howard Morrison, Mr. Henry Sawyer and Mr. Preston Cotten.

In the last number, "Toyland," Mrs. Helen Edlefsen Barr, always a favorite, delighted the audience with her singing, and Mrs. Rufus Clark's solo dance, accompanied by a ballet chorus of club members was a pleasing finale. Those in the chorus were Mrs. Herbert Kelley, Mrs. Harold Farnsworth, Mrs. Lering Gleason and Mrs. Stewart Newton. The stage setting was especially attractive and also the decorations of the hall.

The Winton Club is a charitable organization working in aid of the Winchester Hospital. The proceeds from this entertainment maintain its linen supply.

WINCHESTER GIRLS TO PLAY MELROSE

Winchester High School girls will try to get back into a winning stride this afternoon when they will entertain the Melrose High sextette in the local gymnasium. Winchester and Melrose have been rivals on the basketball court for many years and a good game is sure to result when their respective clubs meet today. Coach Wheeler will probably start her usual lineup with Capt. "Sunny" Davis and Virginia Merrill, forwards; Mary Cutter, jumping center; "Dot" McKenzie, side center and Marce Merrill and Mary O'Donnell, guards.

FIREMAN'S BALL ATTRACTED LARGE CROWD

Town Hall Not Large Enough—Open House at Central Station

The largest crowd of the season gathered Wednesday evening in the Town Hall for the annual concert and ball of the Winchester Fireman's Relief Association. It was necessary to close the doors some time before the program started and many, including guests from out-of-town, were unable to gain access to the hall.

To accommodate them the permanent men at the Central Station kept open house during the entire evening and until after midnight, welcoming many visitors and serving a satisfying collation.

Meanwhile those fortunate enough to get into the hall were enjoying the usual entertainment program which for years has preceeded the general dancing. The Boston firm of Crossen & Moynihan furnished the talent for the evening, Mr. Crossen serving as announcer and also appearing in one of the revues. Incidental announcements were made by President John McCarron of the Firemen's Relief Association. Strachan's Orchestra played the overture and furnished the music for the dancing.

The entertainment program included the following:

Harry Parent (Knight of the Road), a Tramp Comedian.
Trio Helen Warner, Kay Laverty, Lillian Ward in Songs and Specialties.
Gagens and Donahue, the Boy Dancers (Donahue is a brother of Jack Donahue, now playing with Ziegfeld Follies.
Monahue Musical Comedy Review Six girls in Songs, Dancing and Lightning Costume Changes.
Celsine Sisters Two Girls and a Piano—Singing and Piano Specialties.
Kenneth Roemer (featured radio singer) in Selected Solos.

At the conclusion of the entertainment the floor was quickly cleared for dancing which continued until after 1 o'clock Thursday morning to the tantalizing strains of Strachan's syncopators. The hall was attractively decorated with ferns and potted plants.

While the dancing was in progress visiting firemen, town officials and others availed themselves of the opportunity to inspect the Central Fire Station where members of the local department were kept busy explaining the intricacies of their splendid apparatus.

Chief David H. DeCourcy acted as floor marshall for the dancing with Deputy Chief John J. Gorman, assistant floor marshall. President John McCarron of the Relief Association was floor director and Edward L. Callahan, assistant floor director. J. Edward Noonan was chief of aids with the following assistants, John Mulrennan, William H. Stevenson, Leigh S. Roberts, Harry Kemnton, Michael McNeil, Frederick W. Fitzgerald, John Danehy and James Hagerty.

The following committees were in general charge of the entire affair. Ball committee, Capt. E. S. Flaherty, Alexander W. McKenzie, E. D. Fitzgerald; Entertainment, Deputy Chief John J. Gorman, David J. Meskell, John Rambon; Music, Ray Hanscom, E. Fitzgerald, W. H. Stevenson; Reception Committee, J. Fitzgerald, Lieut. H. J. Skerry Thomas Gainey, George Osborne, James Callahan; Printing, J. Edward Noonan, John J. Flaherty, John Mulrennan.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL

Fall Class Receive Their Caps

Sixteen nurses who entered the Winchester Hospital last fall have completed their first period of four months instruction and have been admitted to the student body of nurses of the School of Nursing at the Hospital this week. On Wednesday Feb. 1, they received their caps, as a sign of their promotion.

Miss Charlotte Perry of Cambridge has been their theoretical instructor in the subjects of anatomy, sanitation and hygiene and bacteriology. Miss Florence Crimmings, assistant superintendent at the Hospital has given them their practical instruction in hospital procedure and therapeutics.

These students have made an excellent record and the superintendent of the hospital has received favorable comments several times from patients on their technique and training.

The following girls have passed the examination required:

Miss Maria Ames, Fort Fairfield, Me.
Miss Lucy Anderson, Wakefield.
Miss Lauraun Blaisdell, Stoneham.
Miss Sarah Brayden, Winchester.
Miss Edith Gorham, Stoneham.
Miss Margaret Knott, Clinton.
Miss Vesta L. Vesse, Plymouth
Miss Marjorie Pense, Rochester, N. H.
Miss Anna S Revoire, Hinckley, Me.
Miss Emma Revoire, Hinckley, Me.
Miss Alice M. Spear, Walpa
Miss Louise Wyatt, Jamaica Plain.
Miss Ruth F. Whitten, Melrose.
Miss Catherine M. Winchell, S. Royalton, Vt.
Miss Jane H. Yetter, Winchester.
Miss Edith Young, Stoneham.

Mr. C. Tussey, star Norwich football player, spent the week-end with his parents in Winchester.

DRESS PARADE

"Dress Parade" the realistic moving picture of life at West Point starring William Boyd and Bessie Love which the Winchester Post, No. 97, the American Legion, is to show at the Town Hall on Saturday, Feb. 18, has already proven its popularity by being first shown at the Keith-Albee Theatre of Boston as their first program of the new year and has during the past few weeks been featured at the leading theatres throughout Boston.

The scenes for this picture were taken entirely "on location" at West Point. There were not even the customary studio scenes. The interior views had to be so real that the directors insisted that they be made in the halls, chapel and rooms of the military academy. Not only are there many scenes of over 1500 of the well known cadets on "Dress Parade," but scores of others depicting all phases of the life at West Point.

In addition to "Dress Parade" the Post has secured two reels taken by Pathe News dealing entirely with the New York to Paris flight of Col. Charles A. Lindburgh, his preparation for the flight and his receptions at Paris, Washington and New York. In no other manner can one gain such intimate knowledge of the characteristics of Colonel Lindbergh and of his super-human ability to fly an aeroplane in spite of the greatest odds as by seeing this splendid collection of films taken in Los Angeles, Chicago, Roosevelt Field, Paris, Washington and New York.

Arrangements have been made to secure the interesting film of the National Convention of the American Legion held in September at Paris, of the departure of thousands of Legionaires and their families from debarkation points and their arrival in France, the receptions which they were accorded and the most wonderful parade ever held in Paris.

It is planned for a matinee performance at 2:30 at which admission of 15c for school schildren and 25c for adults will be charged and an evening performance at 8 o'clock at which 50c will be charged for admission.

Tickets may be obtained at Hevey's Pharmacy and Legion headquarters any evening or from any member of the committee composed of Vincent P. Clarke, chairman, Andrew Anderson, George Barbaro, Jack Moynihan and Robert W. Hamilton.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

Next Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 7, at 2 o'clock the Parish Bridge will be held simultaneously in the homes of Mrs. Ralph Damon, Mrs. Henry Goddard, Mrs. Kenneth Gerrish, Mrs Godwin, Mrs. Harold Gale, Mrs. Clifford Mason, Mrs. A. T. Sisson, Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mrs. Robert Orpin, Mrs. E. A. Tutein, Mrs. Herbert Wadleigh and Mrs. Bertram Bernard, who are acting as hostesses for the big party and have planned an attractive ten for the occasion.

The ladies who are working with the Unitarian Associates for the cabaret to be held Feb. 10, in the Town Hall report dazzling progress. Some of the novelties which have leaked through are Winchester's own Helen Barr in a specialty act; Stanley Greenlaw, a musical saw; Sam Lyons in character impersonations; Dana Beautiful and a novelty musical act. Many of the tables are sold, tickets can be procured from Dr. Wallace, Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mrs. Clifford Mason, Mr. Daniel Higgins, Mrs. George Goddu, Mr. Arthur Kelley and Mrs. Irving Gamage. A large group of the ladies will decorate the hall and they promise to quite change the place.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

On Feb. 1 the Women's Republican Club held its monthly meeting in the Fortnightly Hall with an attendance of 118. Mrs. Fessenden the president called the meeting to order. The secretary's report was read and accepted. It was reported that about $150 was made at the bridge party on Tuesday, Jan. 31.

The next Parliamentary Law Class will meet at Mrs. Bradley's 3 Blackhorse terrace at 10:15 a. m. Eighteen new members have come into the club since the last meeting making a total of 316 members to date.

Mrs. Fessenden gave notice of a class of Republicanism at 46 Beacon street open to any Republican woman. This is given under the auspices of the Political Department of the State Republican Club and the State Committee. The Club voted to send our president as a delegate to this school.

Mrs. Woodside spoke briefly as a member of the Town Committee on registration giving the dates as Feb. 16, 17, 20, and 21 when new voters may register.

Mrs. A. J. George gave the last of her series of lectures. Her topic was "Outstanding Personalities in Political Life."

Tea was served as the close of the program.

MASONS TO HAVE ROAST BEEF DINNER

Next Thursday evening's meeting of Mystic Valley Lodge of Masons is to be preceeded by a catered roast beef dinner to be served in the Masonic Apartments at 6:30 p. m. The regular lodge session will be opened at 7:30. The Master Mason Degree is to be worked upon a class of candidates, the charge being given by Rt. Wor. Warner R. Crowell, district deputy grand master of the sixth district. There will be music by the Pilerim Male Quartette and a general social hour following the meeting.

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Jones of Glen road left yesterday for a visit with relatives at Miami, Fla.

CALUMET NOTES

We thank Mr. Arthur H. Merritt for giving us such an enjoyable entertainment last Friday evening. Mr. Merritt gave us a talk on the national parks in the United States and Canada and his talk was illustrated by a large number of unusually beautiful colored slides. The pictures were taken by him personally and obtained with much difficulty and danger to himself. How he obtained some of them is a wonder to us. The pictures were indeed beautiful and instructive. They were beautiful for their natural color effect and the subjects chosen made them a wonderment to the audience. They were without doubt the most beautiful and realistic pictures we have ever seen of that section. Starting at Pikes Peak, we were taken through the Yellowstone, Columbia River Highway, Rainier Park and Mountain up to Vancouver, then across the Canadian Pacific to Lake Louise and Banff and on to Niagara Falls. Mr. Merritt's lecture was educational with enough humor scattered through to keep his audience in laughter. He received tremendous applause and the entertainment was altogether too short.

The result of the open roll-off last Saturday was as follows:

‡Won roll-off for third place.

Tomorrow evening we shall have our regular club smoker and we are especially favored on account of the preminence of the speaker of the evening, Eliot Wadsworth, a member of the Massachusetts Legislature and formerly Assistant Secretary of the United States Treasury. His talk will be about problems that every citizen should know. Considering the capacity of the speaker and his subject we should be able to fill the hall. There will be regular Saturday night refreshments.

On Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 7 there will be the regular ladies monthly bowling. Participants are especially requested to be there promptly at 2:15 as it will be impossible for anyone to enter after that time.

On next Friday evening at 6:30 sharp, we shall have another one of our popular suppers followed by bridge. This time, instead of the Allies prevailing supper, Arthur Dickson will be in charge and he will have the assistance of a corps of worthy gentlemen. Suffice it to say that "Dick" will give us a rare treat and he says there will be enough for all, provided members will send in their application early. Some will remember the unfortunate experience of last month when there were so many who attended but did not let the committee know that they were coming. Please let us know this time, otherwise someone may get left. As stated, bridge will follow and the price will be 50c for either supper or bridge or both.

ELKS TO HEAR DETECTIVE BURNS

The session of Winchester Lodge of Elks scheduled for Tuesday evening at 7:30 in Lyceum Hall promises to be of unusual interest. Aside from the fact that it is to be Past Exalted Rulers' Night, in itself enough to insure a large attendance, Exalted Ruler George H. Latham announces that the speaker of the evening is to be Robert Burns, past exalted ruler of Cambridge Lodge, and the head of the Robert Burns Detective Agency of Boston. Mr. Burns in his years of experience has met some unusual situations and talks intimately of crime and criminals in a manner wholely ingrossing. During the meeting the chairs will be occupied by the past exalted rulers of Winchester Lodge as follows:

Exalted Ruler John McNally, E.R., 1922-1923
Esteemed Leading Knight Fred D. Clement E.R. 1923-1924
Esteemed Lecturing Knight George T. Davidson, E.R. 1924-1925
Esteemed Loyal Knight Maurice Dinneen, E.R. 1925-1926.
Esquire Fred H. Scholl, E.R., 1926-1927

REP. WADSWORTH TO SPEAK
Guest of Calumet Club Tomorrow Night

FACTS CONCERNING REP. ELIOT WADSWORTH OF BOSTON

Formerly Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury

Rep. Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, formerly Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, and operating head of the American Red Cross during the World War, will be the speaker Saturday evening at the meeting of the Calumet Club.

In the public mind the name of Mr. Wadsworth is associated most readily with his services from 1921 to 1925 as Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, although long before he had made name and fortune in places of the highest honor and responsibility. As the right-hand man of Secretary Andrew W. Mellon, he represented the United States in many important matters, here and abroad, which have been of the utmost importance to the American people.

In this field he is internationally known for the part he played in the refunding arrangements for our foreign debts. When he entered the Treasury in March 1921 the war debts owed to this country amounted to more than $11,000,000,000 and claims against the railroads to over $1,000,000,000. As there was no way under which the Treasury could proceed toward collecting foreign loans Congress enacted legislation creating the World War Foreign Debt Commission of which Mr. Wadsworth was secretary.

As Assistant Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Wadsworth also played a leading part in securing for the United States an agreement with the Allies under which this country is being reimbursed in 12 installments of 20 million dollars each year for the cost of the Army of Occupation in Germany. Secretary of State Hughes sent Mr. Wadsworth abroad in February 1923 and in the three months there Mr. Wadsworth negotiated the so-called Wadsworth agreement with the Allies whereby the United States was to get priority in German payments to cover the cost of our forces in Germany.

Mr. Wadsworth was elected a representative to the Massachusetts Legislature Nov. 2, 1926.

He is also chairman of the Boston Sinking Fund Commissioners.

He was chairman of the Lindbergh celebration in Boston last summer.

BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED

The Building Commissioner has issued permits for week ending Thursday, Feb. 2, as follows:

WINCHESTER AND READING TONIGHT

The local gymnasium will be filled this evening when Winchester and Reading will meet in a Middlesex League basketball game which will come mighty near to deciding the championship of the circuit.

Winchester is at present the undisputed holder of first place in the league by virtue of its 22-20 defeat of Reading on the latter's court two weeks ago. The two schools seem the class of the league and if Winchester can repeat its previous win there seems little to prevent the winning of its first Middlesex basketball crown.

The locals should win. At Reading in the former meeting of the clubs Coach Man-field's boys were really rather more superior to their opponents than the score would indicate. They are out tonight to show that their win was no fluke while Reading is fighting for a chance to remain in the league race.

Anything can happen and one of the biggest crowds of the year is sure to be on hand. First game will start promptly at 7:30 and the admission will be 35c.

PRAISE FOR WINCHESTER OFFICERS

The following letter has been received by Chief of Police McIntosh. Its praise of two members of the local force, coming from one of the town's doctors, is such that we feel it should be brought to the attention of the citizens at large.

Jan. 30, 1928

Mr. Wm. R. McIntosh,
Chief of Police, Winchester
Dear Mr. McIntosh:

It is with great pleasure that I call to your attention the conduct of Officer Archibald O'Connell, ably assisted by Sergeant Rogers, on the night of Jan. 27.

A patient of mine was found at 12:40 a. m. in his garage overcome by the exhaust of his automobile. Calls were at once sent for police aid and for me. Officer O'Connell got the police call and jumping on a passing automobile was at the scene of the accident in the shortest possible time.

O'Connell sized up the situation at once and without delay began artificial respiration upon the unconscious man, whose breathing had apparently ceased. After prolonged artificial respiration, the patient began to breathe voluntarily and after three hours recovered consciousness and is now out of danger.

I cannot too highly praise Officer O'Connell for his ability to instantly size up a critical situation and apply the only remedy which would be of benefit. Unless O'Connell had acted as he did I honesty feel that the patient would have lost his life.

Sergeant Rogers was most helpful in aiding Officer O'Connell and was a valuable man to have render assistance under such trying circumstances.

That two men of the Winchester Police should conduct themselves so well must be very pleasing to you. Furthermore, the citizens of Winchester ought to feel very proud that they have a police force that can, and does act promptly and intelligently in cases of emergency.

Very truly yours,
Clarence E. Ordway

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

"Preserve the Constitution," was the rally cry of the National Woman's Democratic Enforcement League, which recently met in Washington. Mrs. Clem Shaver, wife of the Democratic National Committee chairman, who is also chairman of the Democratic Woman's Law Enforcement League of West Virginia, is reported to have said at a recent meeting of the league:

"The women of this country are patriotic. They want the Constitution and its 19 amendments supported in word and deed. Excepting the few who have allied themselves with the Association against the prohibition amendment and the little group led by the Rev. James Empingham, the women throughout the country, and especially the wives and mothers who have had the experience of a drinking member of the family, want this." In an ardent speech in favor of prohibition, Mrs. Shaver arrayed patriotism and law observance on one side and violation and nullification on the other. Speaking for the dry wives and mothers in the Democratic party she issued a warning to the party that it could not have the support of this company of voters if the politicians nominated either a wet or a pussyfooting candidate.

At the annual midwinter meeting of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs, held in Washington, D. C., the first week in January, Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indiana, first vice-president, called upon the members, "to step outside of their customary paths and take an active personal interest in the prosecution of those lawbreakers who are caught at it." She urged that the women attend trials of boot-leggers and assured them that their presence would have an excellent influence upon judge, jury and bar.

Wren's Sweet Song

While Jenny Wren is incubating, her mate perches nearby, untiringly warbling his sweet song, says the Nature Magazine. After the young are hatched there is little rest for either of them. Caterpillars, beetles, bugs and spiders must be supplied in astonishing numbers all the time, until the youthful wrens are ready to help in the hunt.

MARK ROBERT JOUETT

Mark Robert Jouett, for the past 14 years a resident of Winchester, died Friday afternoon, Jan. 27, after an illness of about a week. He was in his 93rd year.

Mr. Jouett, the son of Isaac Woodward and Isabel Needham Jouett, was born at Keswick, N. B., and received his education there. As a young man his summers were spent in farming and his winters in the New Brunswick logging camps.

In 1871 he came to Boston and entered the retail grocery business in which he remained until his retirement some years ago. He had made his home in Winchester for about 14 years, living for the greater part of that time on Brooks street. He was a member of the First Baptist Church of this town.

Surviving are four daughters and four sons. Miss Gertrude Jouett of Watertown, Miss Blanche I. Jouett of Fall River, Mrs. G. W. Proctor of Lexington, Mrs. George W. Apsey of Winchester, Edward M. Jouett of Boston, Dr. Fred R. Jouett of Cambridge, Mark R. Jouett, Jr., of Newtonville and Henry D. Jouett of Cleveland, Ohio.

Rev. Dr. Nathan A. Wood of Boston conducted the funeral services which were held last Sunday afternoon at the home on Symmes road of Mr. Jouett's daughter, Mrs. George W. Apsey. Miss Flora MacDonald of Brighton sang two favorite hymns. The four sons of the deceased served as bearers. Burial was in the Cambridge Cemetery.

GRANADA THEATRE

One of the finest vaudeville programs of the season, headed by Carlos Brothers Circus, is now being presented at the big Granada Theatre in Malden. Carlos Brothers have a standard act that plays only the larger houses because they need such a large stage on which to present their indoor circus. They present an act that consists of animal features, clowns, acrobats and all the types of entertainment that one finds at a circus. Edward East and Ralph Dumke, "The Two Big Rays of Sunshine" is the second headliner on the bill for the last half of this week. Their song hit "Florence, Cut It Out" is a vaudeville classic. The other three acts are Jim and Betty Gage in a comedy skit "Off the Ice;" Rose and Dell, snappy dancers; and the Rosseland Four, harmony singers. "The Siren" with Tom Moore and Dorothy Revier as the stars, is the photoplay attraction for the balance of this week. "The Siren" is a story of New York night life.

"Slush Funds"

The original slush fund referred to the money resulting from the sale of the slush of a vessel or camp. Slush is a greasy refuse from the ship's galley or camp kitchen.

CASEY—O'CONNOR

Miss Anna Gertrude O'Connor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger O'Connor of 76 Sheridan circle and James P. Casey, son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Casey of South Boston, were united in marriage last Sunday afternoon at 5 o'clock in St. Mary's Rectory by the Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan.

The bride wore a wedding gown of white satin with veil of tulle caught up with orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. Accompanying her as maid of honor was her sister, Miss May O'Connor, who was gowned in royal blue, beaded georgette, with which she wore a picture hat to match and carried pink roses. Mr. Casey had for his best man, his brother, William Casey of Boston.

Following the ceremony a reception to more than 150 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents where a wedding supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Casey are to make their home in South Boston following their return from a honeymoon trip to Philadelphia.

The bride is popular among Winchester's young people and is a graduate of the local high school, class of 1921, and of Burdett's Business College. Previous to her marriage she had been employed as a secretary with the Boston firm of O. P. Blonquist Company. She is a member of the Fidelis Club. Mr. Casey, a veteran of the World War, is a graduate of South Boston High School and is affiliated with the Knights of Columbus.

PREVENT THE "COMMON" COLD

Dr. Susan M. Coffin of the State Department of Public Health urges mothers to safeguard their young children from colds of every sort. "Oh, he just has the sniffles" or "nothing but a common cold" are remarks heard much too often from the mothers attending the Well Child Conferences.

Babies and young children are very susceptible to colds and to the pneumonia that so often follows. Approximately 14 per cent of the 5134 cases of pneumonia in Massachusetts for the year 1926 occurred in the preschool age group.

Strengthen the resistance of the children by giving special care to the selection of food. It must be well balanced and nourishing. See that they drink a good amount of water daily. Clothes are important and remember to dress according to the weather. As much direct sunshine and fresh air as possible should be obtained and plenty of sleep at night besides the daily after-dinner rest.

Build up their resistance and further safeguard them by keeping them away from other children and from grown-ups who have colds. Teach them to sneeze or cough into their handkerchiefs.

Increasing resistance and greater caution in preventing contagion are the essentials making for protection from the "common" cold which statistics prove is often of serious consequence.

Proposes to Let Aberjona Take Care of Extra Sewage

A petition to authorize the Winchester Water and Sewer Board and the Metropolitan District Commission to discharge sewage into the Aberjona River and the Mystic Lakes in times of emergency during 1928, 1929 and 1930, to prevent sewage backing up into the cellars of the district and causing conditions injurious to health, was filed Monday with the Legislature by Representative Thomas R. Bateman for admission under suspension of rules. The petition was requested by Edmund C. Sanderson of the Winchester Water and Sewer Board.

CADILLAC - LASALLE

Their Influence on Motor Car Styles is Everywhere Apparent

CADILLAC and its companion car, the Cadillac-built LaSalle, have exerted an astonishing influence on the automobile industry. They are, in truth, creators of today's vogue in motor car styles.

But in no other automobiles in any price class—even though they resemble Cadillac or LaSalle--will you find the famous 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder engine. This engine is the secret of Cadillac and LaSalle performance and it can be depended upon to deliver unequaled satisfaction month after month without deviation.

Cadillac and La Salle, because of their fascinating style and incomparable performance, command an impressive preference in their respective price brackets. Cadillac is selling two to one over all other makes in its field and LaSalle better than 46 per cent of its entire market.

This preference grows stronger day by day. For now there is the added incentive of LaSalle's lower prices on its entire line; and Cadillac, offering a completeness and individuality hitherto found only in custom-built models, at its low prices is the outstanding value in the fine car field.

In addition to values only General Motors can offer, there are unexampled completeness and variety of body styles in both the Cadillac and the LaSalle lines. Choice is made easy.

Five new models have been added to the LaSalle line, including a five-passenger Family Sedan at $2350, f. o. b. Detroit. Every LaSalle model is completely manufactured by the Cadillac Motor Car Company within its own plants.

MR. CHIDLEY HOME FROM THE SOUTH

Mr. Chidley returned Thursday from Pinehurst, N. C. where he and Mrs. Chidley have been spending two weeks during his recovery from his recent illness. He will occupy his pulpit Sunday and conduct the worship as usual. Rev. James S. Barton, D.D., of the American Board will be the speaker at this service, and will give an address on "World Wide Outlook for Missions."

Perfume's Odd Basis

In producing the perfume of the rose chemists combine toluene, a coal tar distillate which smells like gasoline, with chlorine, a poison war gas, and treat it with another poison, potassium cyanide.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The feature pictures at the University for four days beginning Sunday are "French Dressing" with H. B. Warner, Olive Brook, Lois Wilson and Lilyan Tashman, and "The Irresistible Lover" with Norman Kerry and Lois Moran.

"French Dressing" is a delightful story which unfolds with real sparkle. The plot is both amusing and sincere, and tells the story of a cold little Boston wife who really learned how to live through a trip to Paris. Lois Wilson is the wife, and her transformation from the prim Boston matron, with long tresses, to the beautiful girl with bobbed hair and Paris gowns, is realistically portrayed under the expert direction of Allan Dawn. It may be added that Miss Wilson has never looked more lovely in her screen career than she does in this picture. No one who sees Lois in this film will ever regret that she bobbed her hair.

"The Irresistible Lover" is the story of a handsome and wealthy young bachelor who cannot get enough of women until he meets one who cares nothing for his wealth or social standing. In fact, she considers it his main drawback. How he eventually overcomes her objections and the objections of her family provides one of the most delightful sitations imaginable.

For the last three days of the week the program includes Clara Bow in "Get Your Man" and Fred Thomson in "Jesse James." In "Get Your Man" fate causes the paths of an American girl and a French youth to cross four times in one day. They fall in love instantly and become so engrossed in each other that the call of the custodian of the wax museum in which they meet isn't heard as he prepares to lock up. They are together all night and develop an undying love. The boy, however, has been engaged since his fifth birthday to a French girl. He says goodbye but she takes matters into her own hands and breaks up the bethothal, but not until an auto accident, a bethrothal of her own, tears, laughs, drama, thrills and finally, a cleverly executed "compromise" have all gone their way.

"Jesse James" is not a Western as the name is ordinarily used. It is the authentic record of one of the most amazing characters in American history. It has dash, marvelous horsemanship and some hair-raising stunts, but it also has a dramatic story as beautifully told as "The Vanishing American."

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Chapter held one of its most successful affairs on Friday evening of last week when it entertained its members and their friends at its first pop concert in the school hall. The various numbers were introduced by Sec.-Treas., Frances T. Conlon, chairman of the pop concert committee. Those who afforded much pleasure in their separate acts included:

Song Selections Miss Mabel M. Coty, Mrs. Mary McGrath, Mrs. Mollie L. Maguire.
Accompanists Miss Coty and Miss Bernice Connell.
Cornet Selections .... Miss Kathleen Golden Accompanied by Miss Arlene Golden Solo Dances Miss Mabel Foley, accompanied by Miss Lucin McKenzie; Miss Mary Jaqueline King, accompanied by Miss Coty.
Readings .... Mrs. Frances T. Conlon

Preceeding the concert there was a very important meeting of the Association.

Following the concert a most successful food sale was conducted which added a substantial sum to the funds of the Association. This was in charge of Mrs. Margaret McGonigle and Mrs. Margaret Donovan, co-chairman, assisted by Mrs. Howard Brownell, Mrs. Louis Capone and Mrs. Walter Gurney. Refreshments were served by 12 young ladies in duffly white caps and aprons. These young waitresses, daughters of the committee in charge, added a very pretty note to the evening's attractiveness.

The next meeting on Friday evening, Feb. 17, will be in charge of Mrs. Walter Gurney and a competent committee. The speaker will be Mr. Carl S. Schrader, director of physical education in Massachusetts and a speaker of distinction. There will be also, we hope, a sample of the work of the children in the school so that the fathers, many, of whom will be present on that evening, may have a chance to see their children demonstrate some actual work.

JUNIOR SERVICE LEAGUE NOTES

The league will hold a regular meeting this Sunday evening at 6 o'clock in the parish house. Supper will be served. The topic for discussion is, "Will Freer Morals Make a Better Life." The discussion will be led by Daniel Dennett and Ben Priest.

We are very sorry to announce that our president, Lewis Best has handed in his resignation. Therefore, it makes it necessary to elect a new president Sunday night.

Our members are asked to keep in mind the Inter-Church Federation dance to be held Feb. 18, in the First Congregational Church.

If any boy in the league wishes tickets for the Mystic League Conference in Woburn Saturday, Feb. 4, your secretary has these tickets. We assure you an interesting and instructive time. For particulars call your secretary. Everyone out Sunday evening as it is an important meeting!

CALUMET NOTES

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Tuesday night's matches in the winter bowling tournament at the Calumet Club resulted in team 23 taking four points from 17, 3 three from 13 and 6 and 8 splitting up two and two. The scores were about the average. No exceptional individual marks were made, the 300 mark not being reached in any totals and the following scoring above the century in singles: Chapin 112, Cox 109, Dotten 107, Nicholsas 106, Pitman 105, Johnson 104, Hartford 101.

FRANK ELLIOTT MURRAY

Frank Elliott Murray, aged 78, passed away last Saturday evening at the home on Lloyd street of his daughter, Miss Elizabeth D. Murray. His death was unexpected and came as a distinct shock to his family and friends.

Mr. Murray was the son of James and Elizabeth (Elliott) Murray and was born in Woburn. He was educated in the Woburn schools, going as a young man to Boston where he remained during the greater part of his life. He was for many years associated in business with the Boston firm of N. Ward & Company. Surviving, besides his daughter, is one brother, John A. Murray of Winchester.

Funeral services were held from the late residence on Tuesday morning with a high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church by the Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

DIJON, CITY OF BEAUTY, MUSTARD AND GINGERBREAD

Dijon, recently called one of the world's 20 most beautiful cities by planning experts, is the capital of the old French province of Burgundy and shipping point of the famous Burgundy wines, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Since the abolition of the ancient names and boundaries of French provinces the region about Dijon is known as the Cote d'Or or Golden Side. As if to carry out the color scheme two of the city's most famous exports are mustard and gingerbread.

On the Old Roman Path Through Gaul

Dijon early was the pivotal city between the Seine and Rhone River systems, and hence a link between Paris and the Mediterranean. Now it is one of the main stations on the Paris-Lyon-Marseille Railway. In spite of its trade prominence, political significance did not settle upon Dijon until the 11th century when it became the capital of the Dukes of Burgundy. These fearless princes by marriage, conquest, purchase, and persuasion extended their dominions from Flanders to the Rhone. Eventually, however, their line ran out and what bid fair to become a middle kingdom between France and Germany, broke up once more into its component parts. Burgundy became a part of France, and a loyal child of the French king. The name, however, clings only to her wines and her romantic legends. Officially the land is the Cote d'Or.

Golden Side is an appropriate name for this rich region at the head of the Rhone-Saone Valley, along which ran the ancient trade highway from the south of France to northern Europe. Where this route turned westward toward the headwaters of the Seine on its way to Paris, Dijon sprang up as an important transhipping and trading center. Since much of France's freight is still carried by river and canal, the city has lost none of her primary importance gained through favorable location. Now a canal connects the two great river basins and hence land portage is no longer necessary.

The days of her political prominence as a major European capital fell with the Burgundian Dukes and now remain solely a grand memory in the annals of a charming and prosperous French provincial town. The palace of the Dukes is the town hall which houses, in addition one of the most interesting museums in the provinces. A magnificent monastery, recorated by artists from Flanders, which was to have held ducal tombs is now the site of a lunatic asylum. Cynics say that this structure still preserves the atmosphere of wild days of Burgundy when money flowed in Dijon, and blood almost as freely. Ducal tombs have been removed to the museum, after restoration from the disastrous effects of mob violence during the French Revolution.

Few enough are reminders of a medieval past in present-day Dijon, a quaint cathedral in true Burgundian Gothic style, with several interesting churches, the town hall, and scattered ancient houses are all that remain. Pleasant boulevards occupy the former site of the old ramparts and long straight streets have been driven through the town itself.

Dukes, Mustard and Gingerbread

Much of a later date, however, is at hand for lovers of the picturesque. There are still open "places" lined with quaintly gabled houses. From them branch cobbled and crooked lanes whose tall houses end in steep roofs and chimney pots. At the corners are restaurants and cafes with tiny tables and apple-cheeked proprietors who invite the visitor to partake of dishes and wines of the Cote d'Or.

While he eats or drinks, the traveler is regaled by his host with legends of ancient Burgundy, of her swashbuckling dukes and their beautiful scheming ladies. There are deeds which stretch from Bruges in the north to Avignon and Arles in the south. There are tales of kings imprisoned in towers and duchesses plotting with knights at arms. Once away from the few favored spots covered by the story teller's spell, however, all this seems far away from modern industrial Dijon, exporter of mustard and gingerbread.

VILNA: A FAVORITE "PLUM" IN THE BALTIC "PUDDING"

Vilna, Poland, cause of the dispute between Lithuania and Poland which is reported near settlement by the League of Nations, has been a European storm center since it was first mentioned in history nearly a thousand years ago, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Before Vilna was named capital of Lithuania early in the 14th century, raids by hostile neighbors forced the construction of a high wall to protect its inhabitants. Later it became the battleground of Russia and Poland during intermittent wars, and the object of numerous plundering expeditions. The Prussians, Cossacks, Swedes, Germans and Bolshevikis, besides the Lithuanians and Poles, have all had a hand in Vilna's destiny.

Napoleonic Base During Russian Invasion

But Vilna has withstood its turbulent existence, continues the bulletin. Today it has a population of about 150,000 and a brisk trade in lumber and grain. Lying at the confluence of the Viliya and Vileika Rivers, amid the great forests northeast of Warsaw, the city has been an important commercial center since early times. A Roman trade route between southern Europe and the Baltic led past its gates and now it is the junction point of railroads leading to Warsaw, Berlin, Petrograd and other important central and eastern European cities.

Vilna's strategic position, was known to Napoleon who made it one of his bases when he invaded Russia. Near the city is a tablet recalling the tragedy of that expedition. On one side is inscribed "Napoleon Bonaparte passed this way in 1812 with 400,000 men. The other side reads "Napoleon Bonaparte passed this way in 1812 with 9000 men."

City Gate One of Poland's Famous Shrines

Entering Vilna by the Ostra Brama, an old city gate, the traveler is impressed with the religious ardor of the inhabitants. Here men, women and children are seen kneeling on the sidewalks and in the streets with their faces uplifted toward the archway. At first one wonders if the Vilnovians worship the city as the early Lithuanians worshiped their pagan gods. But closer observation reveals a small chapel atop the Ostra Brama where a painted picture of the Virgin reposes above an altar. At certain times during the day the painting is uncovered and may be seen from the roadway below. Roman and Greek Catholics alike revere the shrine and even a non-Christian native or visitor doffs his hat as he passes under the chapel.

The narrow, crooked, not too clean, streets beyond, solidly lined with three and four-story dwellings and shops, offer a bit of Vilna life. Instead of the agile bootblacks of our cities, in Vilna, one might be solicited by a bewhiskered veteran of three score and ten years, clad in a ragged overcoat and scarred leather boots that have long since seen better days. In his hand he carries his little wooden stool and instruments of trade. Then there are the water carriers, perhaps also bewhiskered, who clumsily stride along with their two buckets of water, one held by a wire at each end of poles which swing across their shoulders.

Along the curb women with shawls tightly wound about their heads and shabby clothing, squat amid tubs and buckets of cut flowers which they arrange in various designs in the gutter and often some distance out in the street to the annoyance of noisy wagon drivers. Above the din of rumbling wheels on the cobblestone streets and human chatter, little news girls cry out the news of the day from their makeshift paper racks in the shop doorways. They sell papers printed in several different languages. For the latest soap or theater advertisements one has only to locate one of the city kiosks whose surface is usually covered with placards.

Good Manners

To want the best of everything, the first chance, the last word, is childishly human. Not to be able to stand aside and cheerfully, whole-heartedly make room for another is the mark of high breeding. It is also the sign of a beautiful spirit.

Keep Striving

He who does not advance falls back. He who stops is overwhelmed, outdistanced, crushed. He who ceases to grow greater becomes smaller. He who leaves off gives up. The stationary condition is the beginning of the end.—Amiel.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

In most every sorrow there is a blessing of comfort.

The wheels of industry are not turned by cranks.

It is much more profitable to live a lesson than to give one.

Never give up just because some other fellow tells you it's useless to stick.

Laughing cheers up your associates and strengthens the muscles of your stomach.

Any man can get down to success with bare hands easier and quicker than with kid gloves.

Probably there is no sweeter food than flattery for those who can swallow it.

The Star is glad to note that steps are under way to legalize the use of the Aberjona River and Mystic Lakes as a conductor and catch basin for the sewage flowing through the town which the trunk-line pipes are inadequate to care for. It's refreshing and stimulating to know that what we've been up to for the past three years is soon to be put within the law.

Those who state that the ladies take only a transient interest in polities and really are not vitally concerned with the affairs of State and Nation will find little to support their claim in the fact that among the 325 members of the Winchester Women's Republican Club not one is in arrears for dues. How many treasurers of male political organizations can render a similar report. The prompt payment of dues is one of the surest proofs of any club's virility.

The police last week succeeded in clearing up a succession of petty thefts which for some months had been causing considerable annoyance to both teachers and pupils of the Wadleigh School. Chief of Police William R. McIntosh, after considerable difficulty, located the pupil responsible and the latter was committed to a reformatory. The Wadleigh School has in years past been remarkably free from acts of larceny but at the high school there has always been more or less trouble. In many, if not most instances, those who have missed articles are themselves largely responsible. In a great majority of cases the thefts have been committed in dressing rooms where articles of value had been left in clothing or lockers readily accessible to any one. Such places are emphatically not where money or valuables should be left. Indeed it is hard to understand why any one would think of leaving things worth stealing in his outer clothing. Parents and teachers would do well to warn children and pupils to keep money and valuable personal effects with them while in school, or if this is impracticable, the school should provide a safe place for their storage. Allowing them to remain in outer wraps in a dressing room is only courting disaster by putting temptation in the way of those who for one reason or another can not withstand it.

We have often wondered whether there may not be after all something in the thought that candidates for licenses to operate motor vehicles should be subjected to a test which would determine the degree of judgment they will exercise when driving upon the highways. After watching an exhibition of driving staged on Church street at the approach to the railroad crossing last Saturday just before noon we are convinced that many drivers do not display even fair judgement in the manipulation of their machines. The snow, falling during Saturday morning, had made Church street particularly slippery, especially on the bend opposite the National Bank Building where the roadway begins a slight down grade to the railroad tracks. Few machines were equipped with chains, yet did their operators drive carefully as they approached the center? Most of them didn't even slow down, and in some instances cars attempted to pass those ahead in an effort to be first at the gates. The result was a succession of skidding whirling machines which escaped smashing more by good luck than design. There were several bumps involving more or less damage and one fair driver narrowly averted tipping herself and a small child over as her car slid sideways into Common street. A young man and woman made six complete revolutions before their light coupe was stopped a few feet from the railroad tracks. There was no need of such trouble. Those who were driving their cars at a rate of speed commensurate with the prevailing conditions had no difficulty. Fortunately most of those who skidded did so when the crossing gates were up, otherwise there would have been a real jam and possible injury to some one. Officer John Noonan prevented several bad situations by his skillful operating of the traffic signs. The driving was in the main no credit to the motorists involved and makes us wonder whether a mere mechanical test of one's ability to shift gears and stop a car on a hill is really enough. After all, it's judgment which counts in driving.

GLOUCESTER WON RETURN GAME FROM WINCHESTER

Gloucester High won its return game from Winchester, Wednesday afternoon at Gloucester. The first engagement went to the local basketball team after a thrilling battle in the high school gymnasium and the boys from the fishing town were out to square accounts.

The first half of Wednesday's game was worth while and was very evenly contested. Gloucester made a quick start and led at the quarter, 8 to 2. Winchester came back strongly and twice tied the score before the half which ended in Gloucester's favor, 18—15.

Winchester went to Gloucester expecting to play upon a large floor, but the court, which was in the City Hall, was if anything a bit smaller than that in the local gymnasium. It was moreover entirely surrounded by a rope netting, keeping the ball in play constantly. The baskets were not of the type with which Winchester is familiar and to cap the climax Referee "Jimmy" Parker, failed to show up for the game. A substitute was obtained from the Gloucester "Y" but while strictly fair the last named was not capable of keeping the game sufficiently in hand. During the first half things went fairly well, both clubs sticking to basketball. After intermission Gloucester started to rough things and found Winchester ready to meet them at their own game.

Referee Tickoff lost control of the situation and the game deteriorated into a real rough and tumble. Gloucester proved the better at this sort of play and soon began to run up a commanding lead. The locals were able to score only eight points during the entire second half.

Between the halves of the main game the Gloucester seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 32—22.

FINE THEATRE

New Riverside at Medford a Gem

Everything possible has been done to make the Riverside Theatre at Medford one of the finest in the country. The exterior is a carefully studied design in the Spanish Romanesque manner. The interior is decorated in warm tones of tan and old gold with ornament in dull blue and red. The carpeting and seats are of a rich crimson and one is forcibly impressed with the warmth and hospitality expressed in the ensemble. Fifteen hundred large, roomy, comfortable seats have been installed, and every possible precaution made in having the most perfect ventilating system with an even temperature through the theatre at all times.

Located as it is in the center of Medford, it is easily accessible to theatre-goers of Medford, Malden, Somerville, Winchester and Stoneham. Cars for these places leaves the patron practically at the door.

Splendid programs have been arranged for. Vaudeville booked direct from New York will be featured along with clean, wholesome and interesting photo-plays.

The Kilgen Organ, "The Voice of the Silent Drama" the first installation of this type organ, in the East and featured exclusively in the large theatres of the West has been installed at the Riverside Theatre. This wonder organ "the king of instruments" because of its dignity, majesty and color of its incomparable tone, that delights as well as inspires has been selected after months of careful study because it expresses every emotion that may be depicted on the screen.

An orchestra of well trained capable and experienced musicians has been engaged to play for the vaudeville.

WINCHESTER LEGIONNAIRES HOSTS AT JOINT MEETING

There was a large attendance last evening at the joint meeting last evening of District 3, Middlesex County Council, American Legion, comprising Arlington Post, 39; George A Campbell Post, 101, of Woburn; Somerville Post, 19; and Winchester Post, 97, which was held in the home of the local Legionnaires on Washington street. Matters pertaining to the interests of ex-service men were discussed at the business session which was presided over by Winchester's Commander, W. Allen Wilde.

The speaker of the evening was Lieut.-Col. Carrol J. Swan, former major with the famous 101st Engineers and one of the most prominent members of the American Legion in the State. Colonel Swan spoke most interestingly of his experiences with Past National Commander Howard P. Savage on his "Good Will Tour of Europe," telling of the party's reception by the crowned heads of the allied countries of Europe including an impressive audience with His Holiness, Pope Pius XI.

Refreshments were served and during the evening it was announced that Mayor "Bossy" Gillis of Newburyport had accepted the invitation of Winchester Post to be its guest at the annual banquet to be held on March 1.

"Bossy's" acceptance was characteristic. It was not the typewritten work of a secretary. "Hizzoner" had simply taken the Legion's carefully phrased letter of invitation and had returned it with the following notation, "O. K. March 1st, Bossy Gillis."

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Rotarians and visitors in sufficient numbers to tax the capacity of the tables, were present at the clubhouse this week. As usual all seemed to anticipate a good time, and as usual we were not disappointed.

We were pleased to welcome a recruit to our ranks in the person of George Welsch, wholesale florist. George is a firm believer in Rotary and we believe in George; we affirm that the benefit from his association with our club will be mutual.

After the ordinary or perhaps extraordinary preliminaries of feast, fines and song, the speaker of the day was introduced.

"Bob" Emery, broadcaster at WEEI is a name familiar in every radio household in this vicinity. But to meet "Bob" Emery in person is an experience granted to comparatively few of those who listen in. "Bob" is a young man of captivating personality and unquestioned ability as an entertainer. His talk took us back to the very earliest days of broadcasting and featured the growth of the Big Brother Club. To "Bob" himself must be given the credit of founding this club and that this credit is great will be attested by all who realize how large a niche Big Brother occupies in the hearts of the children who eagerly await his talks.

Next week we are to be the guests of "Dan" Kelley and owing to our very great confidence in "Dan" we are looking forward to the entertainment of our lives. "Dan" is an implicit believer in our slogan of 100 per cent attendance and we believe that no member of our club will willingly disappoint him by being absent on Feb. 9.

WINCHESTER LEGIONNAIRES TAKE ANOTHER MATCH

Winchester Post, leader in the Middlesex County, American Legion Bowling League added to its hold on first place Wednesday evening, in the matches rolled on the Arlington Alleys, taking three points from Cambridge Post. Somerville Post, by taking all four points from Arlington Post, went into second place. Cambridge is now in third place and Arlington is in fourth. Belmont dropped three points to Medford and is now in fifth place, with Medford in last place.

Rogers of Winchester rolled the high, three-string total, 325, and Lonergan of the Belmont team the high single, 126.

The scores:

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The directors auction bridge party was held in the Town Hall on Tuesday, Jan. The hall presented an attractive appearance with its new blue velvet curtains and tables covered with white and pink, with pink begonias for decorations. The attendance was most gratifying to the directors and to the able chairman, Mrs. Mudge, as there were other attractions in town at the same time. More than 200 players enjoyed the game and the refreshments which followed. Mrs. A. M. Holbrook was the chairman of the refreshment committee to aid her were ladies: Mrs. Wm. Smith, Mrs. Geo. F. Edgett, Mrs. Maurice Tompkins, Mrs. Elmer A. Anderson, Mrs. Harry Olmstead, Mrs. Geo. Fitch, Mrs. Charles Kelley, Mrs. Warren Maynard, Mrs. Geoffrey C. Neiley, Mrs. Percy Burbee and Mrs. J. C. Hinds.

The tables and their coverings and the chairs were in charge of Mrs. George W. Apsey and Mrs. J. Harper Blaisdell arranged cards, pencils and score cards.

These able committees under leadership of general chairman Mrs. E. L. Mudge arranged a very successful afternoon and the hope was expressed that it would become an anual event.

BAPTIST LADIES OBSERVED GENTLEMEN'S NIGHT

The missionary department of the Women's League of the First Baptist Church observed a most delightful Gentlemen's Night Tuesday evening at "Renwar," the beautiful new home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Warren on Everett avenue. There was a large attendance, including representatives from the various women's organizations of the town's other churches. Among the guests were Rev. Benjamin Browne, newly called pastor of the First Baptist Church, and Mrs. Browne who expressed briefly their pleasure at being present and their appreciation of the cordial welcome extended them since their arrival in Winchester.

Rev. Arthur T. Brooks, pastor of the Dudley Street Baptist Church, spoke entertainingly of a recent motor trip through Egypt and the Holy Land. Tenor solos were sung by Mr. Benjamin Redden of Boston, a member of the Lotus Male Quartet.

Especially enjoyed was the playing of two phonograph records, "By the Waters of Minnetonka," and "Annie Laurie," sung by Miss Virginia Warren, at present studying voice in Paris, and sent as a gift to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Wahren.

Artistic decorations of cut flowers in the dining room made a charming setting for the dainty refreshments, in the serving of which Mrs. Warren was assisted by Mrs. Harry Winn, Mrs. Gustav Felber and Mrs. Ollis Weld.

Fine Attributes

The love of moral beauty and that retention of the spirit of youth which is implied by the indulgence of the poetical taste are evidences of good disposition in any man and argue well for the largeness of his mind in other respects.—Leigh Hunt.

A New Machine At The Winchester National Bank

This machine is really a wonderful set of steel brains which we are putting to work in our accounting department.

With it we can handle our figure work faster than ever before and at the same time be sure that every item in our books is right.

Helps Us Give You Better Service

By the machine method, every depositor's account is kept in balance all the time and there are no mistakes such as are unavoidable with other ways of handling figures.

The time saving made possible by the machine gives us an opportunity to improve the service to our customers in all departments of the bank.

Everything Is Done Automatically

It prints dates, adds your deposits to the old balance, subtracts checks, figures and prints your new balance. All of this is done automatically. The operator simply writes the amounts on the keyboard—the machine shifts from column to column and adds, subtracts, or prints the date as desired, without the least attention being necessary.

Come In and See It Work

There is no method of posting ledgers known which equals this Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine in either accuracy or time saving.

Come in and see our new Burroughs at work in our accounting department.

UNITARIAN NEWS

There will be a special parish meeting on Tuesday, Feb. 7, at 8 o'clock to hear and act on the plans of the building committee. A large attendance is desired.

Next Sunday will be Young People's Day, and, according to our regular custom, they will take part in the services. We hope to have a full house. Come and show the young people that you are interested in their welfare and encourage them to take their place in the activities of our church.

Reply cards have been sent out for the cabaret which is to be held under the auspices of the Unitarian Associates in the Town Hall Feb. 10. The question has been asked if anyone outside of our Association can apply for tables. The committee will be pleased to allot tables to anyone, but as there are only a few not already engaged, we suggest that application be made at once. General Chairman William B. Wood announces that the program will be full of surprises and is sure to be a treat to all attending. The program will start at 8 sharp and there will be plenty of dancing and entertainment. In addition to the entertainment announced last week in the Star, we shall have Mrs. Helen E. Barr to entertain us with some of her songs. Mrs. Barr needs no introduction to Winchester audiences. She has pleased them on many occasions. Stanley Greenlaw will again be with us with his musical saw. This artist is well known throughout the concert, vaudeville and radio world. His selections are rendered on a common handsaw, the tones of which are soft and sweet. His selections will include operas, classics, folk songs, etc. There will also be a special dance beautiful and a novelty musical act.

The February meeting of the Men's Club will not be held on account of the cabaret.

HEARING ON PROPOSED WIDENING OF MAIN STREET

The Board of Selectmen has, through Chief of Police William R. McIntosh, notified Harry G. Seligman and Meyer Rubin of Boston, owners of the abbutting property of its intention to widen by 10 feet that portion of Main Street extending from the police sentry box to Thompson street. A hearing for those interested is to be held on Monday, Feb. 6.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Dominic Galileo of 15 Summer street are the parents of a son, Dominic, born Jan. 11.

Mr. and Mrs. Michael Joseph Grant of 614 Main street are the parents of a son, Robert, born Jan. 21 at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. John J. Hannon of 17 Wesley street are the parents of a son, James, born Jan. 23.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Tonight at her home on Pickering street Miss Mary E. Martin, historian of the Court, will be the hostess for a bridge and whist in aid of the Court's Charitable fund. Miss Martin will be assisted by Sister Dorothy Kean and Sister Catharine Mc-Hugh of Woburn, both fine workers for any good cause in which the Court is interested. Thus it is expected that another splendid success will be seored in aid of the charity fund and incidentally a good time is assured all those who care to attend.

The next social will be held next week at the home of Vice-Regent Nellie Moffett on Watson place the night to be announced later.

Those of us who tuned in on WBET last Monday evening at 9:45 were certainly well rewarded as we listened to the very lovely voice of our organist, Miss Mabel M. Coty, in her program of song selections. In her solo work and in her duets with her brother, "Billy" Coty, her voice was equally good. We do not doubt that there will be a popular demand for more songs from "Billy's Big Sister."

WINCHESTER MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting and election of officers of the Mothers' Association will be held on Wednesday, Feb. 8 at 3:30 p. m. in the High School Assembly Hall.

The chairman of the Nominating Committee will present the names of candidates for office for the ensuing year, and reports will be given by the various chapters. A short musical program has been arranged by Mrs. William Lefavour, and following the meeting refreshments will be served by the social committee. The meeting, as planned, will be fairly short and a large representation from each chapter is hoped for.

TO THE HONORABLE THE JUDGES OF THE PROBATE COURT IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX:

RESPECTFULLY libels and represents Florence A. Baker of Cambridge in the County of Middlesex that she was lawfully married to William H. Baker now of Brooklyn, New York at Boston in our County of Suffolk on the eighteenth day of December A. D. 1923, and thereafter your libellant and the said libellee lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at said Boston and last lived together at said Boston that your libellant has always been faithful to their marriage vows and obligations, but the said libellee being wholly regardless of the same, at said Boston on or about the first day of February, 1924 utterly deserted your libellant and has continued such desertion to the date hereof being more than three consecutive years next prior hereto.

That no previous libel for divorce or petition or libel for nullity or petition for separate support has been brought by either of the parties hereto.

That there have been born to them no children.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bond of matrimony between your libellant and the said libellee be decreed.

Dated this first day of February A. D. 1928.
FLORENCE A. BAKER.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS MIDDLESEX ss. PROBATE COURT

Upon the foregoing libel, ordered, that the said libellant give notice to said Willis H. Baker by causing an attested copy of said libel, and of this order thereon, to be published in The Winchester Star a newspaper published in Winchester in the County of Middlesex, once a week, for three weeks successively, the last publication to be fourteen days at least before the return day of this Court at Cambridge within the County of Middlesex, on the twelfth day of March A. D. 1928, and by mailing forthwith, by registered letter to the libellee at his last known residence an attested copy of said libel and of this order thereon; that he may appear at said Court within one month from said twelfth day of March and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libel should not be granted.

Witness, JOHN C. LEGGAT, Esquire, First Judge of said Court, this second day of February in the year one thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight.

COPPER: OLDEST METAL NOW ELECTRICIAN'S MAINSTAY

The Quincy Copper Mine of northern Michigan, recently the scene of an air blast that damaged the 79-year-old shaft, lies in one of the oldest copper mining regions in the United States, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

In colonial days, copper was taken in small quantities from deposits along the Atlantic seaboard, but it was a shipment of copper ore from the Michigan deposits to the East in 1845 that marked the real beginning of our copper mining industry. Now we produce more copper than the rest of the world combined.

Two Thousand Times Around the World

Because copper is widely used in the electrical field, it is called the electrician's metal, continues the bulletin. Wherever one sees electric lights and the use of electric power, there is copper. Pure copper drawn into wire is hidden in the walls of modern homes, and in electric irons and stoves, and in the motors of electric vacuum cleaners, dishwashers, and refrigerators. In some cities one is literally sandwiched between copper wire. Millions of miles of underground cable and overhead wires carry the click of the telegraph key and the sound of the human voice.

The copper wires of one of our telephone systems would encircle the world at the Equator more than 2000 times. One of our telegraph companies operates over more than a million miles of copper wire and owns 18 copper-laden cables that connect the United States with Europe and the islands of the Atlantic.

Copper wire made possible the recent inauguaration of the transatlantic telephone service and the communication of the S. O. S. signal that saved hundreds of lives when the Italian steamship Mafalda was wrecked off the Brazilian coast. Radio instruments with their copper wire connections and coils, are entertaining the world daily.

Copper Alloys Widely Used

Pure copper is too soft for many purposes but alloyed with other metals it is widely used. Bronze is copper and tin. Brass is copper and zinc. Gunmetal is copper, tin and zinc. Each of these alloys are more than half copper. Copper is also alloyed with many other metals, including gold and silver.

Disregarding the use of copper for electrical purposes, under its real name and those of its alloys, copper is seldom out of sight or reach of the average man in this country. He may sleep under a copper roof in a brass bed and be awakened by an alarm clock with brass works. While dressing he may sit on a chair that is held together by brass screws and pull on his shoes that have brass eyelets, and perhaps brass nails in the soles. He may turn a brass knob to open the doors in his home, draw water from a brass faucet leading from brass pipes, and dry his hands on a towel from a brass towel rack, while the curtains at the windows hang from brass curtain rods. His food may be grown with the help of farming implements containing copper and its alloys, and cooked in copper kitchen utensils.

If he uses his automobile or a street car to go to office, he rides in either of two vehicles that are important copper consumers. On his way to town perhaps he will pass a bronze statue or two and show-windows that are encased in copper. If he draws coins from his pocket to make a purchase, he handles copper even though he has no pennies for all of our coins, including the gold pieces, contain copper. The money may finally find its way into some merchant's cash register containing copper and later pay water taxes according to the reading of a copper meter.

In his office he talks over a brass telephone instrument, uses brass pins and paper clips, and with brass pens, and a pencil with a brass band, may write on stationery that has been engraved from a copper plate. A brass-bladed fan keeps him cool in the summer and the brass fittings of the heating system help to keep him warm in the winter.

In Ship, Train and Airplane

Copper is with him on his business trip whether he travels by boat, train or airplane. Copper alloy plates are used in ship hull construction and in the construction of railroad cars and engines—both electic and steam. Ammunition and fighting machinery of various kinds use an enormous amount of copper and copper alloys. During the World War more copper was produced than in any equal period before or since.

Sixteen States and Alaska each produce more than 100,000 pounds of copper annually. Arizona, our largest copper producing State, contributed nearly one half of our output of more than 1,700,000,000 pounds last year. Utah which supplied about 259,000,000 pounds topped Montana by about 2,000,000 pounds and Michigan, last of the "Big Four" produced about 174,000,000 pounds.

HOW TO SPEAK 24 LANGUAGES IN 24 SECONDS

Who would like to speak 24 languages?

Who would like to converse with equal ease in Japanese, Arabic and Hungarian?

Read then: "The ugly thug loafed at a damask-covered table on the cafe balcony Wednesday eating goulash and drinking hot chocolate with a half-caste brunette in a kimono-sleeved, lemon yellow gown and a crimson angora wool shawl, while he deciphered a code notation from a canny smuggler of silk cargoes on the back of the paper menu."

He who reads that sentence aloud has spoken words taken over from 24 languages, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The language sources of that unusual sentence are: owly, Danish; thug, Hindu; loafed, German; cafe, brunette, menu, French; balcony, Italian; damask, Syrian; covered, table, code notation, Latin; Wednesday, drinking, hot half Scandinavian; eating, with, yellow, wool, Sanskrit; goulash, Hungarian; chocolate, Mexican; caste, Portuguese; lemon, shawl, Persian; kimono, Japanese; sleeved, back, Anglo-Saxon; gown, Celtic; crimson, deciphered, Arabic; angora, Turkish; while, Greek; canny, Scotch or Icelandic; silk, Chinese; cargo, Spanish; smuggler, Dutch; paper, Egyptian.

The most absorbent language in the world is English, according to one language expert, who finds in this quality of absorption the basic for its rapid spread throughout the world.

Our language grows with each innovation brought from foreign shores. Java's art of decorating cloth came and with it the word batik. A new game from China established ma jong. The Tsars of Russia have gone but their title creeps into our speech as baseball, motion pictures, and other business associations engage "czars."

The Sanskrit words in the many-tongued sentence are the words Noah probably shipped on board the Ark, since they antedate the Greek. Sanskrit is the oldest written Indo-European language, so scholars believe that many of our common words are kin to terms preserved only in ancient Indian classics. English words similar to Sanskrit can be said to have had their origin in Turkestan and the Near East.

Greek and Latin words, using three-fourths of every English dictionary, comprise the vast legacies of two dead civilizations. Celtic, Anglo-Saxon, Scandinavian and Norman French went into the British melting pot and were poured out about 1300 A. D., as the first English. Our Italian words, like Raphael's paintings, remain as the afterglow of the Renaissance. Crusaders brought back Arabian terms from the Holy Land; the explorers of the New World sailed home with new treasures and new Mexican, Caribbean and American-Indian words. When Commodore Perry opened up Japan in 1854 he started one of the most recent word importation routes from Nippon.

In a modern English dictionary of 30,000 words the sources range from Scandinavian and Portuguese to Persian, and Tatar.

ARTHUR E. BAKER

Native of Winchester Died in Reading

Arthur E. Baker, at one time superintendent of schools in Los Angeles, Cal., and a native of this town, passed away Monday afternoon at Reading, following several years of failing health. Despite the fact that he had been away from Winchester for some 25 years there are many among the older residents of the town who will recall him and mourn his passing.

Mr. Baker was born in Winchester 67 years ago, the son of Frederick and Mary (Eaton) Baker. After being graduated from the public schools and from Brown University he began his life work as an educator, a work which was destined to win for him many friends wherever his duties called him.

For many years Mr. Baker taught in and was superintendent of the public schools of Los Angeles, Cal. He was active in the civic life of the city and was affiliated with the Masons there. Later he was for eight years a member of the teaching staff at the Boys' Latin High School in Boston, serving also on the faculty of the Boston Girls' Latin High School. He was long a deacon of Tremont Temple and was a member of the First Baptist Church of this town.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Frances Baker, a daughter, Miss Josephine Baker, dean in the public schools of Quincy; a son, Kenneth L. Baker of Boston and one sister, Mrs. Mary L. Winn of Winchester.

Funeral services were held on Wednesday afternoon in the funeral home of the Kelley & Hawes Company and were conducted by the Rev. Wesley G. Huber, pastor of the Reading Baptist Church. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

THE TWELVE LONGEST RIVERS

Of the world's dozen longest rivers, six are in Asia and three in Africa, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The New World is represented only by the Amazon in South America and the Mississippi and the Mackenzie in North America, though if the Missouri be considered apart from the Mississippi it would take rank in its world's right.

The longest single river is the Nile, measuring some 4000 miles from head to mouth. The Nile is further distinguished in that it has no tributaries for the last 1500 miles of its course to the sea. During this stretch its waters are considerably reduced in volume by evaporation and irrigation so that it grows smaller instead of larger toward its mouth.

All Climates Represented

Other African rivers among the length scoring twelve are the Niger and the Congo, both fed by the tropical rains of hot regions near the Equator. In a general way they more nearly resemble South America's representative, the Amazon, than the great streams of the colder northern continents.

Of Asia's six longest rivers, four are in Siberia, the Ob, Yenisei, and Lena flowing north into the Arctic Ocean and the Amur emptying into an arm of the Pacific. The other two are the Yangtze and Hwang, or Yellow River of China.

These 12 river basins represent the greatest variety of climate and civilization. The Amazon and the Congo flow through lush equatorial jungles inhabited by birds of brilliant plumage, wild animals and savage tribes, while the mouths of the Yenisei and the Lena are above the northern timber line and their valleys support the sparsest population. The Mississippi and the Yanetze flow through established, if divergent, civilizations, with rich cities along their banks like jewels on a string. The Nile is one of the cradles of world history; the Mackenzie is still a frontier stream.

"Up-Hill" Rivers

From the point of view of a world map five of the dozen rivers "flow uphill," that is, flow to the north. These are the Nile, Mackenzie, Ob, Yenisei, and Lena. The Mississippi and Niger flow south. The Amur, Yangtze, Hwang and Amazon run eastward. Only the Congo points toward the west.

All these streams overflow their banks at intervals but the results are strangely different. In the case of the Mississippi and the Yangtze, floods are national disasters bringing untold suffering to millions. The annual overflow of the Nile with resulting fertilization of the valley by the deposit of silt is the source of the wealth of Egypt. The Hwang, or Yellow River, from its habit of overflowing its banks and changing its entire course at intervals is known as the "scourge of China."

The Amazon and the Congo lie almost under the Equator, and the other ten longest rivers are in the Northern Hemisphere. Four flow into the Arctic Ocean. A reason is not far to seek. The greatest land masses are in the northern half of the world, and without large land areas long rivers are impossible. The smaller continents of Australia and Europe are not represented in the dozen. Similarly, the reason for the longest rivers flowing to the north and east is that the longest continental slopes extend in those directions.

Highways of Civilization

The Yangtze and the Mississippi are lined with wealthy cities largely because of their location in the Temperate Zone. The Tropic Amazon, Niger, and Congo are too hot; the Mackenzie and the Siberian rivers are too cold for the favorable growth of towns. The Nile Valley beyond Cairo is a mere strip of green from 15 to 30 miles wide between two burning deserts. The Hwang is too variable in its habits to encourage navigation or river ports.

From the earliest times these long rivers have furnished high roads for the exploration of continental interiors. Nero sent an expedition to discover the headwaters of the Nile which failed to reach its objective. Russian penetration of Siberia followed the great river beds. The Amazon and the Congo are still highways of discovery. Head reaches of the Yangtze are veiled in Asiastic obscurity. The Niger was the river of romance in the great days of Timbuktu. The histories of the world's river basins have been the history of the world's empires. A great river is both a roadway and a source of life. The world's 12 longest rivers tap the roots of its history as well as the roots of its resources.

BALMORAL: SUMMER CASTLE OF BRITISH ROYALTY

Balmoral Castle, summer residence of the British royal family, is one of the chief points of interest to tourists in Aberdeenshire, Scotland, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. The castle is situated in the heart of the Grampian Highlands, on the River Dee, about 50 miles from the point at which it enters the North Sea. The neighborhood is said to have the driest summer climate in the British Isles, and it is probably for this reason, as well as for the beauty of the mountain scenery, that English royalty usually resort there at the end of the London season in the latter part of July.

Built by Victoria's Consort

Balmoral was a favorite retreat of Queen Victoria, the castle itself having been constructed under the direction of her husband, Prince Albert of Saxe-Coburg, about the middle of the last century. The royal pair are said to have selected this remote highland spot because Osborne House, in which they then spent their leisure, had become too easy of access. There was at first but a small manor house on the property, which was utilized as a residence until the present elaborate structure in the Scotch baronial style could be completed. From the top of its central hundred-foot tower the visitor looks out upon a magnificent panorama of the Grampian Hills and the River Dee.

While this modern seat of kings lacks the romantic glamor of ancient strongholds whose roots go back into the history of the Middle Ages, it is, nevertheless, imposing in appearance. Its numerous wings and towers of light colored stone cover an enormous area and the whole is surrounded by a handsome park stretching along the backs of the Dee.

At the near-by village of Ballater are barracks for the King's bodyguard which accompanies him while he is in residence. Ballater is a well known tourist resort, where summer visitors enjoy splendid golf links and excellent mountain climbing. The hillmen is also highland terminus of the Dee Railway, which follows the stream to Aberdeen on the coast.

Aberdeen Fourth City of Scotland

The city of Aberdeen, besides being seat of one of Scotland's most famous universities is the most important seaport on the north shore. It has regular steamer service to London and other British ports, and is connected with England by two lines of railway. It thus forms an excellent gateway to the highland playgrounds which lie behind it, as well as to the rich agricultural province of Aberdeenshire, of which it is the capital. Aberdeen is also home port of a North Sea fishing fleet and is famous for the export of granite. These industries, together with weaving, manufacturing, and fruit canning have made the old university town fourth city of Scotland in wealth and importance.

Commerce takes second place during the summer touring season, however. Thousands of visitors pour through Aberdeen to the near-by highland resorts. Quaint stone cottages and wild mountain scenery, with golf, and salmon fishing thrown in, draw foreign as well as English visitors. It is said that one of the main attractions of Balmoral to Queen Victoria and her husband was the free and cordial manner of the highlanders themselves whose hospitable nature is unchanged to the present day.

Hospitality Life of Hills

The peasantry around Balmoral are a cheerful lot hard working and intensely religious. The white-washed interiors of their cottages, with open hearth and china-decked dresser form an appropriate background for life among rugged hills, severe yet hospitable. Royal visitors from the castle have often stopped in such simple surroundings when overtaken by storm or fatigue on some highland journey. This freedom of existence was even in Queen Victoria's day a feature of life at Balmoral. It is one of the charms which year after year draw Britain's rulers to their castle in the Scottish highlands for an August holiday.

LAKE TSANA: BIRTHPLACE OF THE BLUE NILE

The Blue Nile of the Sudan and Abyssinia (Ethiopia) has become an object of competition between American and British companies, each of which wishes to dam the stream for the production of power. The British would also have the dam utilized to regulate irrigation in the lower reaches of the river, in the Sudan.

A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society describes Lake Tsana, Abyssinia, reservoir of the Blue Nile's waters, and the great canyon of the stream.

Canyon Like Colorado's

In some ways the Blue Nile can be compared to the American Colorado, says the bulletin. Both streams have eaten their way through mile-deep canyons, and have helped to build up a delta region from their millions of tons of mud and silt.

But while the Colorado traverses a Temperate Zone, the Blue Nile rises and flows in an equatorial region. The most characteristic feature of the Blue Nile, however, is the great fresh water lake from which it springs.

Abyssinia is primarily an extensive plateau region gashed by deep river gorges and pitted by an occasional lake depression. The greatest of the latter is the basin of Lake Tsana, and the greatest of the gorges is that cut by the waters of the lake in forcing their way down to the plains of the Sudan.

Surrounded by Tropical Plains

In the eight or nine thousand foot plateau, the lake occupies a saucer-like depression at an altitude of about 6000 feet above sea level. The lake has an average length of 40 miles and an average width of 30, and an area of approximately 1200 square miles. In many places the ground slopes gently down, leaving considerable plains; in others the hills descend abruptly to the water.

The plains about the lake show their tropical location as the plateau above does not. Reeds and grasses grow rankly interspersed with palms, acacias, and figs. Fever is common among the inhabitants of these relative lowlands, but cattle have become immune to ticks and diseases, and flourish amazingly. In few places in the world are such fat, well-formed beasts to be found. Hippopotami are numerous in and about the lake, but there are no crocodiles.

Like the inhabitants on the shores of Lake Titacaca, South America, the natives living about Lake Tsana construct rafts and crude boats of reeds. The stalks are bound together by thongs of hippopotamus hide. The completed rafts are propelled with short paddles.

Falls 2000 Feet in 30 Miles

Numerous streams feed water into Lake Tsana from the surrounding mountains and hills. In the rainy season their volume is heavy and the lake level rises several feet. The Blue Nile flows out of the lake in a relatively broad stream dotted with islands. Small rapids occur a few miles from the lake, but the first fall of consequence is situated about 21 miles from the outlet. There the waters plunge down 80 feet. Beyond the fall is a very narrow gorge. At one place the two edges are no more than 10 feet apart, and at that point the gulf is bridged by an old masonry arch built by early Portuguese explorers.

In the 30 miles immediately below the first falls, the Blue Nile tumbles over a succession of cataracts and falls, and descends in all some 2000 feet. In the great semicircular sweep of the river through the Abyssinian mountains to the Sudan plains, there is an additional fall of 2000 feet. It is in this section that the river has carved out its deepest canyons. It is steaming hot in these great trenches, tropical verdure flourishes, and the waters teem with crocodiles.

The first falls of the Blue Nile is the best site for easy power development. Irrigation engineers, however have considered the feasibility of a dam near the lake outlet which would impound more water in the lake during the rainy season, and regulate its flow at other seasons.

TORNADOES AND THEIR VAGARIES

The occurrence of a tornado in the National Capital emphasizes the vagaries of these destructive winds and raises anew the question: "When is a storm wind a tornado?"

Washington is outside the regular haunts of tornadoes, a bulletin from the National Geographic Society headquarters in that city points out, yet more than once the National Capital has been visited by them. The most historic occasion was Aug. 25, 1814, the day after Washington was captured by the British and the Capitol and other buildings burned. The storm unroofed many buildings in the infant Capital, and the rain that accompanied it is supposed to have put out the remaining fires.

Mississippi Valley Has Most Tornadoes

In July, 1913 a destructive storm struck the business section of the city, demolishing a number of buildings and causing several deaths.

The favorite haunt of tornadoes in the United States, continues the bulletin, includes the States of the lower Mississippi Valley and the eastern portion of the Great Plains States. Both to the west and east their occurrences are fewer. So, too, relatively few tornadoes occur in Canada and in Mexico.

Tornadoes are strictly local storms bred usually by sultry and humid weather. They strike most often in the afternoon and almost always take a path from southwest to north, east. This direction in the United States results from the fact that "lows" drift across the eastern part of the continent almost always from southwest to northeast and that the tornado (a secondary disturbance attached to the "low") takes the same direction. The rapidly swirling column of air which is the heart of the tornado is usually marked by a funnel-shaped, black cloud of vapor. This whirling mass sucks air from all sides to its lower end and then upward. Even heavy objects fly toward the column as dust particles and bits of paper fly into the throat of a vacuum cleaner.

Amazing Velocities Reached

The winds created do not blow for any great distance horizontally, but in their brief dash for the funnel they move at amazing speeds—sometimes with the velocity of a rifle bullet. It is these tremendous velocities that bring about the freakish antics of tornadoes; quills and straws penetrate boards and planks are driven through trees.

Most of the destructiveness of tornadoes is traceable to their reduction of air pressures when their centers pass over or by an area. The pressure being suddenly reduced outside a building, the air inside it expands and pushes the walls down or the roofs up—the buildings really explode because of the release of what amounts for the moment to the "compressed" air within them.

Clouds Skip and Bounce

Sometimes tornado clouds go skipping or bouncing along, working havoc where the lower end touches the ground, and leaving everything uninjured where the end lifts.

A distinction must be made between the velocity of the air rushing into the funnel, and the speed of the funnel itself moving over the earth It has been pointed out that the former velocity, close to the funnel, may be that of a rifle bullet. The funnel itself, however, seldom moves more rapidly than 30 or 40 miles an hour, the speed of an automobile moving rather conservatively on a country road.

THE OLIVE: MAN'S EARLIEST DOMESTICATED FRUIT TREE

Spain has been harvesting the greatest olive crop of her history, and it is probable that more than a billion pounds of oil will be pressed in the country this season, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. And as Spain is the major factor in olive production, her bumper crop means that the world will have in 1928 its most generous supply of olives and oil.

The American consumer who munches an occasional green olive as an appetizer, or uses a bit of oil on his salad, seldom realizes how important the olive is as a food product, continues the bulletin. In Spain, southern Italy, Greece, Portugal, northern Africa, Syria and Asia Minor the olive is to the native populations virtually meat and bread, butter and cream. The tree produces especially well in rather poor soil in semi-arid regions where pasturage is lacking, and so is Nature's consolation prize for a lack of dairy fats.

Olive Exalted in Literature and Tradition

In these regions the olive is eaten pickled green, pickled ripe, salted, dried, and packed in oil; and the oil itself makes a part of every meal cooked with other foods or used to dress them. It is because of its importance in the economy of the peoples around the Mediterranean that the olive has been exalted in their sacred literature and in their customs. It was the olive leaf that the dove brought to Noah in the story of the Flood. It was olive oil that was used to crown Olympic victors and Roman emperors.

The olive was probably domesticated by man earlier than any other tree. It is also the Methuselah among his cultivated trees. It bears for 700 and 800, and, according to some assertions, for even a 1000 years.

The olive is peculiar in that it is not edible as it comes from the tree. There are tradition s of a "sweet" olive in ancient times that was delicious as a peach or an apple when eaten from the tree. But if such a type of olive existed it has gone to join the arts and the lost gold mines of history. Even when fully ripe, all olives as we know them today, have a bitter, acrid, wholly unpleasant flavor that completely masks their usefulness. They must go through careful preparation, and in modern time, simple chemical treatment, before they are fit for food.

Soaked to Remove Bitterness

The earliest treatment was probably to soak the fruit for a long time in clear, fresh water; and even today the preparation of many olives starts in this way. Then it was found that wood ashes, mixed with water, hastened the elimination of the bitterness and made for tender skin and flesh. Today the active principle in ashes—lye or caustic—is used in the water and the operation is still further hastened. Both green and ripe olives are treated in this way, then thoroughly washed, and allowed to ferment in strong brine. In the Levantine countries ripe olives are deliciously preserved simply by drying them, then salting them, and finally packing them in oil.

The extraction of oil from olives was probably discovered by man at about the same time he found how to make wine—far in the dim past when he was taking his first halting agricultural steps. This is today far the most important aspect of the olive industry as it affects commerce. More than 95 per cent of the Spanish crop goes into oil manufacture.

The old province of Andalusia in southern Spain is the heart of the Spanish olive growing region, and practice there may be taken as typical. Olives are grown both in large orchards and in small peasants' plots. The fruit to be use in making oil is left on the trees until it is dead ripe and is harvested about the last of the year. Blankets or sheets are often spread under the trees and the fruit is then beaten from the branches with sticks and poles. The fruit is taken directly to mills where usually the entire berry, meat and central seed, is crushed to a pulp. This pulp is placed in straw cases which are piled in presses and subjected to squeezing.

Many Uses for Refuse

The liquid forced out is mostly oil but contains some water and broken meat. After the liquid stands for several weeks the impurities settle, and the pure oil is drawn off. The finest and most expensive olive oil is made by first removing the meat from the seeds, and then crushing the meat alone. Between 60 and 70 per cent of the meat of an olive is oil.

The pressed cake left after the oil is extracted is useful in the olive oil producing regions. It is fed to hogs and sheep and is used as fertilizer and fuel.

NASHUA EDGES WINCHESTER

Wins Rough Game by Singe Basket After Two Overtime Sessions

A long shot by Bondonis, star center, from away back court in the closing seconds of the game gave Nashua High School a win, after two exciting over-time periods, in its game with Winchester last Saturday evening in the Nashua Y. M. C. A. gymnasium.

The game, as the score and two overtime sessions would indicate, was very close and exceptionally rough all the way. The local five made the mistake of trying to play basketball during the first half with the result that the boys were getting nowhere. The court on which the game was played was unusually narrow and it was possible for three men standing abreast to span from wall to wall. Nashua by sheer physical force prevented Winchester from manouvering the ball into scoring position, choosing always to block a man rather than intercept the pass.

Referee Moriarty allowed the home team to get away with murder during the opening half while Winchester was trying to play the game in accordance with the rules.

Captain Davis broke the ice for Nashua when he scored a shot from a free try, but Captain "Herb" Ross put Winchester in front with a goal from scrimmage and Nashua started to rough things up. Bondonis scored two baskets in quick succession, employing a two hand, double dribble which according to Winchester's interpretation of the rules was illegal. The referee found no fault with the play and the baskets gave Nashua the lead at the quarter, 5—2. Halwartz counted for the locals on a free try and Kendrick on a goal from scrimmage, tieing the count. Ross put Winchester ahead with a floor goal but Tanelevich shot a foul and Davis a basket to give Nashua a one point, 8—7 advantage at half time.

Following intermission Winchester decided to meet Nashua at its own game and thereafter the game developed into a genuine rough and tumble which with all was very exciting. "Skinny" Kendrick sent Winchester into the lead with a basket from scrimmage only to see Bondonis sink two field goals in succession to erase the local advantage. Once again the local guards were bothered by what Winchester considered an illegal dribble. The referee just wasn't calling anything at this stage of the game and the baskets sent Nashua to the three-quarter mark with a three point lead, 12—9.

Following the tap Gauthier scored from the floor for Nashua, the last tally the New Hampshire boys made until the second overtime session. "Henny" Knowlton closed up the gap with a pretty goal from mid-court and Kendrick made it all but even with a one handed basket from the foul line. The game was getting very rough and with less than a half-minute to go Bondonis crashed Kendrick to the floor so hard that the referee was impelled to call a foul. "Skinny" made the free try good and the score was tied at 14 as the final whistle blew.

During the first three minute overtime period neither team was able to tally, the going being very rugged. Both clubs were simply charging down the floor in an attempt to break through and the man getting an unhindered shot at the net was very fortunate. The crowd didn't like the foul called on Bondonis which allowed Winchester to tie the game and Moriarty apparently was taking no chances in calling any more on either team.

"Herb" Ross scored for Winchester on the tap-off which began the final over-time session and why the locals failed to stall in an effort to hold their advantage is not apparent. They evidently did not and Stylianios closely followed Ross with a floor goal to knot the count once more. Winchester was playing to keep the ball in Nashua's territory and away from the opposing forwards. The period was practically over when Bondonis intercepted a pass and shot a basket from three-quarters court. It was what might be termed a lucky shot but it was good and the two points it counted proved plenty to win the game.

ARLINGTON GIRLS WON

Arlington High School girls' basketball team proved too good for the Winchester girls last Friday afternoon at Arlington, outclassing the local sextette, 42—24.

Winchester did not play up to the form displayed against Stoneham and Wakefield which was unfortunate since the Spy Ponders turned out to be the best club Coach Wheeler's girls have met this year. The Arlington defense proved too stiff for the locals who got relatively few soft shots at the net.

The work of Capt. "Sunny" Davis was the one bright spot in the afternoon for Winchester, 18 of her team's 24 points being scored by Jean individually. Misses Stinson and Hager, the Arlington forwards, were real sharpshooters, tallying between them, 38 points.

Between the halves of the first team game the Arlington seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 36—15. The summary of the main game follows:

Famous Brigade That Served "Lost Cause"

Two reasons are given for the naming of the Orphan brigade of the Confederate army. Kentucky tried to be neutral when the Civil war broke out, but neutrality was violated and many Kentuckians decided to fight for the South. The famous Camp Boone was formed near the Kentucky line, a few miles north of Clarksville, Tenn. Fifty companies from 84 counties in Kentucky enlisted. These composed the larger part of the First Kentucky, better known as the Orphan brigade.

One of the reasons why this command was called the Orphan brigade was because so many commanders were lost, either by reason of promotion or by death on the battlefield, says a contributor to the Pathfinder Magazine. Another is that the members were away from Kentucky during nearly all the time of their service and so cut off from communication with friends or family.

WHEN SHE RETURNED HOME FROM A RED CROSS MEETING

A Winchester woman who lives in a comfortable home and who is never confronted by the problem of struggling to find food for her family had what she now regards as the privilege of attending a meeting of the officers of the local Red Cross Chapter.

"Did you know there were so many people in Winchester who are hungry —actually without food, living in daily fear of being turned into the streets?" she asked at the dinner table that night. "Honestly, I never dreamed that there is so much suffering."

Having been inspired by what she had heard from the lips of women who had had close personal contact with men and women out of work, hungry, sick, discouraged, injured, cold, she went on to tell story after story that ought to be told to every citizen of Winchester.

Unfortunately, these stories may not be told. The sufferers must be protected from publicity. They have no wish to be in need. They are without money because the bread-winner is sick, is suffering from some injury, or for some other perfectly good reason is unable to secure and hold regular employment.

The war has been over a long time, but there are in Winchester men who have received no help from the government and who are so broken that they must have help from some agency. Only those close to some of these men know how great is the need not only for gifts of money but for clothing and other things of the sort.

Suppose you were sick and had nothing to lie on but an old mattress that smelled to heaven—a mattress fit only for the dump. Wouldn't you rejoice if through the help of the Winchester Red Cross you were given a bed and some warm bed clothes?

And if you through your heart-breaking poverty were living in a vermin infested shack, wouldn't your heart be warmed when you were taken by the Red Cross into another home where you could at least be clean, even if you could not be comfortable?

Talk to Winchester Red Cross officials and let them tell you what you can do to help make easier the lives of many whose need is greater than any of us comfortable folks can possibly realize.

MRS. "AL" HORN SURPRISED

Not because it was her anniversary, or birthday, or whatever, did the friends of Mrs. Ethel Horn make a surreptious call at her home on Vine street last Friday night, but simply because they consider her "one good scout" and wanted to demonstrate their friendship in the good old-fashioned way—a surprise party.

And to say she was surprised would be putting it mildly! All the long week mysterious things were happening. This friend couldn't make a date with her, and that friend hadn't time to listen to her "tale of woe," and the whole world seemed to be growing cold and cruel. Anxiety was sitting heavily upon her brow when the raiders arrived with a bundle almost as large as a mattress. Pushing by the bewildered lady, they advanced to the living-room and deposited their burden upon the floor. Then the gift—a beautiful buffet mirror long desired by the recipient, was presented with all due ceremony by Mrs. Emma M. Cullen who also explained, through the medium of verses contributed by Mrs. Frances Sullivan, the "why and wherefore" of the momentous occasion. With her usual aplomb somewhat dampened, the surprised lady managed to express her thanks, bidding one and all a cordial welcome.

Then followed a program of entertainment which, for pep and variety, had "Buddy" Shepard's best "scun a mile." And why wouldn't the show go over big with Ethel Kean as "cheer leader," Mrs. Josie Power at the piano, and Mrs. Bernice Gorman and Emma Cullen as "leading ladies." A group of songs by the contralto soloist, Mrs. Lyde Turner, included selections from "Aida." There were dance specialties—eccentric and otherwise—by Mrs. Gertrude Horn, Mrs. Lilla Green, Mrs. Lucille Pooler, Mrs. Frances Sullivan and others. The latest in jazz steps was demonstrated by Mrs. Emma Cullen, Mrs. Ethel Horn and Mrs. Lyde Turner. Ethel Kean, versatile and snappy as ever, entertained with song and dance and located everyone's risibilities with her special line of reminiscence and stories. The Umbrella dance was executed by Mrs. Anne M. Hanlon and Mrs. Ethel Horn in costume; and the "man of the house", "Al" Horn, arriving home in time for the festivities, joined right in and contributed his specialty act, "Keeping Up With Lizzie."

Next came a group of tableau which, for dignity of pose and costuming, put everything else in the shade. "An Egyptian Night" with Mrs. Lilla Green and Nellie Sullivan as Cleopatra and Mark Antony, was well staged. "Liberty Enlightening the World" with Mrs. Elizabeth Hines as the Statue and Mrs. Elsie Mobbs, Mrs. Caroline Coakley, Mrs. Jennie Regan, and Mrs. Bernice Gorman holding up the four corners of the Universe proved a patriotic surprise; and "The Drawing Card" with Ethel Kean as Dame Fashion and Gertrude Horn, Lucille Pooler, Lilla Green and Nellie Sullivan as reluctant models was most amusing.

Of course there were refreshments —ice cream, cake and coffee appearing from Randall's as if by magic. And everyone had a toast for the happy lady of the house. But the gem of toasts was the "Eleventh Hour" one, delivered with an eloquence and fluency equal to any orators, by Big Brother "Al" Horn who also led in the singing of "Auld Lang Syne." Then, as a matter of course, the party began to peter-out, tired but still happy in the "wee small hours." But it was one grand soiree from start to finish!

NEW FRIGIDAIRE BRANCH

The Frigidaire distributors for New England have established a sales and service branch in Malden which will greatly benefit the people of Winchester. This branch is located in the Rotary Building at 14 South Washington street, Malden. Frigidaire is the electric refrigerator made by General Motors.

"Our desire to locate a display room convenient to all the northern suburbs caused us to take this step," said M. F. Ford, manager of the branch. We will carry practically a full line of Frigidaire products, and engineers will be available to determine whether the customer's own ice box can be equipped with Frigidaire. It is also our plan to invite occasionally various women's organizations into our display room to witness demonstrations in freezing desserts and salads. We want the people of Winchester to use all the facilities this branch can offer. We will be open until 9 p. m. Saturdays.

"Frigidaire has announced this week a new line of all-porcelain cabinets in two-color tones and new silent compressors. These are on display in the Malden show room.

"We also want to make this new operation benefit the several thousand users in our territory," said Mr. Ford. "Hereafter all Frigidaire service for northern Metropolitan Boston will be handled from this branch, which will save time and distance in answering calls. This will be of help to the people living north of Boston, especially the commercial users.

"In 1927 Frigidaire doubled for the third consecutive time business done in the preceeding year. It is close to the top of the General Motors family and has won acknowledged leadership in the field of electric refrigeration. It has now in use more units than all its competitors combined.

"The success of the electric refrigeration industry is based entirely on the preservation of food and the safeguarding of health. The people of Winchester are just as interested in these subjects as any in the United States. This makes me feel confident that they will appreciate our effort to maintain a nearby branch for their convenience."

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Literature Committee

The regular meeting of the Literature group will be held on Monday, Feb. 6 at 2:30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. Miss Nancy Byrd Turner, president of the Boston Manuscript Club, author, poet, and critic, will give an address on the subject "Women in Literature" and will read a group of her own poems, among them her Lindbergh poem now famous from coast to coast. Miss Turner promises to give intimate glimpses of women writers whom she has known at the Macdowell colony in New Hampshire, Mary Cornelia Watson and Georgianna T. Moore, present-day writers, will also read from their own poems.

Tea will be served with Mrs. Martha W. Kelley as hostess.

Dramatic Committee

The regular dramatics afternoon will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 7, promptly at 2.30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. The program will consist of three one-act plays and a monologue by Mary Craig Lyons. The plays are: "The Finger of God" in which Mrs. Christine E. Hayden, Mrs. Blanche S. Barnard and Mrs. Catharine Hooper will take part; "The Municipal Davenport" with Mrs. Pearle H. Winship and Mrs. Gretchen H. West; and "Sauce" written by Mrs. Carolyn Gilpatric and acted by Mrs. Gilpatric, Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hall, Mrs. Mabel G. Nichols, Mrs. Lois Abrahamsen and Dorothy Howard.

Tea will be served under the direction of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Davis.

Theatre Party

Don't forget the Fortnightly theatre party on the afternoon of Feb. 6 at the Repertory Theatre. Club members wishing to drive in will find a convenient parking place in the new garage which is under the Repertory management. After the play all desiring to do so will be conducted about the theatre and administration building. For further particulars see the advertisement which appears elsewhere in this paper.

THE BEEF BOYCOTT

How Will It Acect the Marketman

One of the most trying and unfair conditions every retailer has to face is the uproar of protest from indignant customers when prices are going up.

The marketman is on the firing line and unless the ultimate consumer knows something about the real causes of higher prices, they invariably hold the retailer responsible for conditions over which he has no control.

"Your prices are too high. How do you get that way? Say, you must be coining money!" These are some of the frank comments many dealers have already heard. And customers of the quitier sort who are not outspoken in their criticism may stop buying, blaming the retailer who has nothing to do with it, and who, in reality, makes less profit on higher prices.

According to W. M. Jardine, Secretary of Agriculture in President Coolidge's cabinet, the law of supply and demand alone is responsible for higher beef prices. Secretary Jardine says:

"At various times in the past two years when I have addressed gatherings, I have called the attention of the public to the fact that the present situation was almost certain to develop. The Department, also, has issued many statements pointing out that sooner or later a sharp reduction in slaughter and higher prices must result. Cattle supplies will be smaller during the first half of 1928 than any time during the last five years and this condition will probably continue for the next two years."

Ever since 1920 the number of beef cattle has been steadily decreasing. Of the entire total of choice and prime grades reaching the Chicago market during the fall of 1926, only one third of this number reached the slaughter houses last fall. A 66 2/3 per cent decline in supply is bound to increase prices.

Cattle can't be raised overnight. When there is a poultry shortage, it is a simple matter to put the incubators to work and increase production within a few months, but it would take years to replace the 11,000,000 shortage of cattle today, even if large numbers of raisers had not quit the cattle business.

Every business man among your customers knows how the pendulum is constantly swinging somewhere between the two extremes of over-production with diminishing prices and under-production with rising prices. The average business man only has to forecast this trend a few weeks or months ahead. But the cattleman has to hazard his profits or losses on developments two and three years into the future. Is it any wonder that cattlemen are putting their money into other fields?

Official United States Government forecasts indicate that higher beef prices have come to stay with every prospect of going still higher.

How can the retailer meet the situation without loss of profit or good will? 1928 will be a time when the retailer and wholesaler must work closer together, realizing that prosperity of one goes hand in hand with the other. Tell your customers the reason for these higher prices.

Last, but not least, the only way to maintain your volume of business is to increase your sales on other meats to take the place of declining sales upon beef. The use of cut meats—lamb, pork, veal, poultry, smoked meats, shoulder, ham and bacon—offers an infinite range of appetizing and economical food for the family that cannot or will not pay higher beef prices. Now is the time for every marketman to start educating his public. The future depends upon it.—[Leadership News.

HAVANA TO US, BUT LA HABANA TO CUBANS

President Coolidge, six hours out from Key West on his journey to the Pan American Conference, was welcomed as El Presidente de los Estados Unidos, in Havana.

The city will always be "Havana" to the United States, but "La Habana" to Cubans, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

The distinction is important. The capital of Cuba has her Havana aspects—her Americanisms. But she remains the Spanish queen city of the Antilles.

Familiar American Signs

The electric signs boldly proclaim American electrical industries. The Biltmore, the Ritz and the Plaza present homelike hotel names and homelike prices to the visiting Americans. Certain great banks of Manhattan hang signs also in Calle O'Reilly. Havana boasts a Fifth avenue .Avenida Quinta and the Opera House facing Central Park (Parque Central) has been stormed by Hollywood's crusaders.

So much for Ameridan Havana. Spanish La Hapana wears these Americanisms like jewelry of a current fashion. La Habana insists on patios, builds houses in white, smooth stucco, and looks to it that every man, woman and child speaks Spanish. An American counts himself fortunate if his tourist chauffeur can speak a modicum of English. Unhappy, indeed, is he who asks for O'Reilly street. A Cuban may spell it that way but he pronouces it Calle Oriya. La Hahana is decorated with wrought-iron Spanish grills and innumerable wrought-iron Spanish balconies. La Habana's Juliets, however, prefer "playing the bear" with their beaux at the ground floor grills. The prison principle in courting, as practiced publicly along the narrow streets, never fails to interest Americans. La Habana's attitude toward women also remains Spanish.

Siesta Custom Observed

Americans aching to shed overcoats also find the Cuban capital a truly tropical city. While the shade may harbor charming temperatures emphasized in tourist folders, the noonday sun assaults anyone who dares venture from his cave of coolness. So Cubans wait within their caverns of shade from 11 until 3 o'clock, heeding the siesta custom of the tropics. Noonday rest encourages a night life which lasts well into the morning.

Havana has pride in her climate but she keeps constantly on the defense against it. A law prohibits the sale of meat during the hottest part of the day, milkmen deliver milk in ice, and in many homes abbreviated partitions instead of walls divide rooms. One experience a visitor to Havana never forgets is a stroll down Calle Obispo, a leading shopping street, under canvas - sun canopies stretched from wall to wall.

Benefits of the Tropics

The benefits of the tropics are equally apparent. Havana's markets display an amazing variety of delicious fruit, avocado pears, anonas or custard apples, zapotes, pineapples, sapodillas, oranges, guavas and limes—all cheap by American standards. Two dozen beautiful roses can be purchased for 10 cents. Havana's parks and gardens are lush with brilliant flowered tropic bushes and trees. Numberless royal palms, erect as soldiers, cross their swordlike fronds high above the boulevard traffic.

Havana's municipal housekeeping is admirable. Coasting along shore a newcomer sees 20 miles of white-walled homes housing this city of 560,000 residents, gleaming through palms lining the Malecon Boulevard behind the sea wall. A narrow inlet at the eastern limit of this seascape affords a "tradesman's entrance" for the ships of all nations to Havana's convenient backdoor. Wharves, railroads, and shipping concentrate around the shores of the spacious, landlocked harbor. Cargoes of sugar and cigars go out toward Morro Castle and the sea over the very spot where the sinking of the Maine started the train of events which has led to the present close relationship between Cubans and Americans.

Maine Led the Way

The Maine law, an act "to prohibit drinking houses and tippling shops," was approved by the governor, William G. Crosby, on June 2, 1851. Thus Maine was the first "prohibition state" in the Union.

Beads for Rosaries

The name "St. Cuthbert's Beads" was given to the single joints of the articulated stems of encronites. The central perforation permitted them to be strung as beads, and they were used for rosaries and associated with the name of St. Cuthbert.

His Own Religion

I often wonder at religious men they have such varying ideas on the subject. I was talking lately with a prominent man—one whose name is really a household word—and he said: "I was brought up in a religious family. I have chosen to accept religion in my own way, but never bother others with it. I have no desire to convert the world. I wouldn't give a d—n to convert anybody tomorrow." —E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Evils in Ignorance

Ignorance gives a sort of eternity to prejudice and perpetuity to error.—Robert Hall.

Life Is Vivid

I live when I laugh—spontaneously and heartily; I feel very much alive in the presence of a genuine sorrow. Love is life, vital and intense. Very real to me also is the love one bears one's friends.—Stuart Chase.

Unproductive Area

The area in the United States where trees once grew but where nothing now grows is as large as the states of New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware and Maryland combined. It is larger than the combined forest lands of Germany, Belgium, Denmark, Holland, France, Switzerland, Spain and Portugal.

Obvious Falsity

Any man who claims that there can be liberty in spite of and against the law is claiming that anarchy is liberty.—Theodore Roosevelt.

Began Glorious Career

The Stars and Stripes were first carried by an American army in the battle of Brandywine, September 11 1777.

One of the men was said to have been knocked from the machine by the impact but claimed he was unhurt.

Last Friday afternoon in the high school gymnasium, groups C and D of the school basketball team defeated the Newton High freshman five, 22—17. Coach Mansfield started his second team against the Newton boys who led the locals at half time. Finding that his Jay-Vees apparently were not giving their best the Coach sent his admittedly better players to the showers and inserted a five composed of inexperienced scrappers. The latter went right after Newton, passed the invaders and finished out in front. Stanley Roberts was Winchester's big star.

International Sea Law

The international law by which the neutral zone of the sea was defined as three miles from the shore of any nation was a part of the discussion at The Hague conference in 1907. Formerly the neutral zone commenced at the length of a cannon shot from either a vessel or from a fort of the harbor of the nation.

J. ALBERT WILSON

Noted Organist Resigns Position at Church of the Epiphany

After nearly 20 years of faithful service, broken only by one brief period when he was in the service of the Country during the World War, J. Albert Wilson has resigned as Organmist and Choirmaster of the Church of the Epiphany. During his long incumbency he has brought the Epiphany Choir, which now numbers 45 men and boys, to so high a state of musical excellency as to be second to none in or around Boston. Critics have compared the choir favorably with the best of its kind in the country.

Mr. Wilson came to the Epiphany in 1909, succeeding Arthur R. Rabethge. His genius as an instructor of boys soon made itself apparent while the quality of music he insisted upon attracted to the church men choisters of a particularly high type. The choir quickly established a local reputation which of late years has spread far beyond the confines of Winchester.

Proof of the group's right to a place high in the field of religious musical organizations offers itself in the notably fine Lenten oratorios sung yearly by the choir; including such works as "Christ to Calvary" by Maunder; "Seven Last Words," Dubois; selections from the "Messiah" by Handel and Spohr's "Calvary." In the last named, an oratorio little known in this country and seldom sung because of a particularly difficult score, Mr. Wilson's choir rose to unusual heights, winning for choristers and choirmaster the unstinted praise alike of musicians and lovers of music.

Aside from the reputation won as a choirmaster Mr. Wilson is known as a sound musician and a noted organist, having given recitals in many New England cities, including many at Harvard University. A Harvard man of wide musical experience, he has composed many numbers for the organ and has had the distinction of having one of his compositions played by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

In addition to his exacting duties as an organist and choirmaster, Mr. Wilson has won for himself an enviable reputation as a teacher of pianoforte and voice, numbering among his pupils many from this town. During his long association with the Church of the Epiphany the veteran choirmaster has made many friends who will learn of his resignation with regret. Mr. Wilson is to conclude his service with the Epiphany on Sunday but plans to teach part of his time in Winchester.

MISS AVERY'S LECTURES

The last three lectures by Miss Eunice Avery will be held in the Wyman School Hall. The next one will be held on Tuesday, Feb. 14 at 2:30 o'clock.

In these last three lectures she will speak part of the time on the Presidential outlook and candidates. Don't miss hearing her.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The Middlesex County Conference of the League of Women Voters will be held in Fortnightly Hall on Thursday, Feb. 23 from 10 to 4 o'clock.

The local League will entertain at luncheon.

The committee on arrangements are: Mrs. Wm. Levi Thompson, Mrs. J. L. Lobingier, Mrs. E. Dudley Chase, Mrs. A. P. Bodman, Mrs. J. T. Low, Jr.

Postmaster George H. Lochman feels that spring is only just around the corner and says he owes his optimism to the receipt from the government of a lawn mower, garden hose and set of tools, to be used at the new Postoffice building. He expects the new office to be ready for occupancy by th first of April.

GAME WITH WAKEFIELD WILL DECIDE LEAGUE STANDING

The Middlesex League basketball game tonight at Wakefield between Wakefield and Winchester High Schools will practically decide the championship of the circuit. A win for the locals will insure them the championship since they have but one more league game to play and have won all their contests to date. Winchester's nearest competitor, Reading, has already lost two games, so at the worst Coach Mansfield's charges can only finish in a tie for top honors with that school.

It hardly seems likely that Wakefield will trip the locals tonight in view of the first game between the two clubs which went to Winchester rather handily. Coach Mansfield has his quintet traveling at high speed right now and against Reading and Stoneham the boys have looked like the proverbial million dollars.

Referee Davis, who worked in the Stoneham game, rated Winchester with the best schoolboy fives he has seen this season and since the official is also coach of the crack Everett High five his opinion is doubly interesting.

Wakefield will give its best tonight and will try hard to give Winchester its first league reverse. The teams are old rivals and always put up a real battle. It is expected that a large crowd will accompany the locals to Wakefield to cheer the boys on to their first league title. Game will be called at 7:30.

MARY HANNAH MILLER

Mary Hannah Miller, widow of Henry C. Miller and for the past 60 years a resident of Winchester, passed away Tuesday morning at her home on Marshall road after being in failing health for about a year.

Mrs. Miller was the daughter of Abraham and May (Sewell) Carr and was born at Louden, N. H. 82 years ago. She came with her husband to make her home in Winchester soon after her marriage and had since maintained a residence here though her winters were spent either in Florida or California. Mr. Miller was during life here one of the large property holders of Winchester. His wife leaves no immediate survivors, her brother, Sumner Carr, a former well known resident of the town, having died some years ago.

Funeral services were held this afternoon from the late residence and were conducted by Rev. Truman Hemingway of the Church of the Epiphany. The interment was in Mt. Auburn.

ELKS MEETING LARGELY ATTENDED

About 125 attended the "Past Exalted Rulers' Night" sponsored by Winchester Lodge of Elks in the lodge rooms Tuesday evening. Exalted Ruler George H. Lochman opened the meeting which was then turned over to the first exalted ruler of the lodge, John McNally. Others who occupied the chairs during the transaction of the business in hand were P. E. R. Irving D. Clement, P. E. R. George T. Davidson, P. E. R. Maurice Dinneen and P. E. R. Fred H. Scholl.

The speaker of the evening was Robert Burns, P. E. R. of Cambridge Lodge and the head of the Robert Burns Detective Agency. Mr. Burns proved a most interesting speaker, holding the attention of his audience throughout his address which among other subjects dealt with several thrilling mystery stories. The usual collation was served.

TAX COLLECTOR

Nomination papers have been taken out for J. Ervine Johnson of Allen street for the office of Tax Collector.

Mr. Johnson was born here 54 years ago and has always resided in Winchester. He is a member of William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., Winchester Lodge of Elks and Boston Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Johnson is capable of filling any position to which he may be elected by his town's people.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Epes William Merchant of Gloucester have announced the marriage on Monday, Feb. 6, of Mr. Merchant's daughter, Lora, to Mr. James Harry Price, son of Mr. and Mrs. Merryman S. Price of Baltimore, formerly of Winchester. The young couple are to be at home at 85 Prescott street, Cambridge, after March 15.

Fireman Harry Brown has been confined to his own this week with a ruptured blood vessel in his knee. The injury is the result of a heavy fire alarm box falling upon his knee while he was engaged in making repairs to the Town's fire alarm system.

WINCHESTER TAKES STONEHAM IN STRIDE

Winchester High continued to play high class basketball Wednesday afternoon defeating Stoneham High in a Middlesex League game at Stoneham, 45—19.

The game was much too one sided to be especially exciting and derived its chief interest from the excellent floor work and passing of Coach Mansfield's charges. Stoneham kept trying but was completely outclassed and was able to get only two floor goals during the three quarters in which the local varsity players were on the floor.

Winchester led at the first quarter, 11—4, Stoneham getting its points on four foul baskets. The score at the half was 24—6 and at the three-quarters, 38—8. Starting the final period Coach Mansfield sent in McNeil to replace Kendrick, Simonds for Ross and A. Amico and Murphy for G. Amico and Knowlton.

While this group was on the court Stoneham managed pap and outscored Winchester, 11—7, but the spurt came too late to make any difference.

Ray Halwartz was Winchester's star, scoring 16 points on seven floor goals and two foul baskets. If this season's working forward would shoot just a bit oftener he would be one of the high point getters of the league. There is no questioning his team value. Griffen was Stoneham's ace, shooting five out of seven fouls and tossing three baskets from the floor.

Between the halves of the main game the Winchester seconds nosed out the Stoneham seconds, 17—16. The first quarter ended 5—5 and the half, 9—9. Winchester drew out in front during the third quarter, leading at its close, 13—11, but Stoneham evened things up in the final period and the clubs were deadlocked at 15 as the game ended. During the overtime Stoneham scored first on a foul basket but de Corolis saved the game for Winchester when he caged a floor goal shortly before the period ended.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

We came, we saw and we came away; but not before "Dan" had proved to the satisfaction of all that he is a prince among entertainers.

News of the plans for this week's meeting had spread afar, with the result that the total attendance was probably greater than that of any of our gatherings save that of charter night. But "Dan" was prepared and not a detail that enters into the making of a perfect entertainment was slighted. The dinner was fine and everyone of us are due and are sincerely given to our genial and generous host.

Furthermore we were treated to a talk by Harold Converse of the Boston Rotary Club. Subject, "Boys." Harold knows his boys; he remembers that he was once a boy himself. To this, doubtless, is due his commanding position in the great democracy of boys. For he is an authority on the Boy Scout movement and has been instrumental in furthering the growth of this organization which now has a membership of about 800,000 in this country. Rotarians are especially interested in boys and we feel that our club was fortunate in having the boys' side of the case so ably presented.

Next week will see us back in our regular quarters and with "Dan's" efforts as an inspiration we anticipate another jolly session of goodfellowship.

WATERFIELD LODGE, NO. 231, I. O. O. F.

The fifth mass meeting of the Prince Jonathan Association will be held at Harmony Lodge Medford, this Friday evening at 8 o'clock. Members of this lodge will meet at the Association Building at 7 o'clock. There will be machines to take those who wish to come out for an evening of fine entertainment.

On Monday evening the Initiatory Degree will be worked in the Lodge room. Things are doing on the hill. Come and bring a Brother.

Plans are now being made for the dedication of the Lodge rooms which will be held on Monday evening, March 12. This ceremony which is conducted by the Grand Master and his suite is very impressive. The Rebekahs will join with us in making this a memorable occasion.

DON'T MISS IT

The "Dress Parade" a thrilling moving picture of the life at West Point with William Boyd and Bessie Love at the Town Hall, Saturday, Feb. 18 at 2:30 and 8 p. m., also Lindbergh's famous Los Angeles to Paris flight and picture of the National Convention of the American Legion at Paris under auspices of Winchester Post, 97. f10-2t

The Warrant for the March Town Meeting was declared closed at the last meeting of the Board of Selectmen.

CALUMET NOTES

Tonight at 6:30 sharp, our monthly supper will take place, followed by bridge. The eats will be provided by the men and Arthur Dickson will be in charge. We figure there will be plenty for all those who have applied.

On Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 14, there will be the regular ladies' afternoon bridge. We hope there will be a large crowd and that you will notify the committee or the Club house early.

On Thursday, Feb. 16, we shall send two bowling teams over to the University Club, Boston, to compete with two of the University. Bowling will start at 8 p. m. and any members desiring to watch the proceedings will be welcome.

Please keep in mind the big event of Feb. 22. We shall celebrate Washington's Birthday with something doing from early morning until late at night. There will be all-day bowling for the men, with prizes and plenty of fun. At 2:30 p. m., our annual children's party will be given. This will include entertainment, movies and refreshments. In previous years, the children have enjoyed themselves immensely and we will see that they have a good time this year. In the evening, a dance will be provided for all adults.

Last Friday evening, we were especially favored with a talk by Rep. Eliot Wadsworth of Boston. He was ably introduced by a fellow comrade, our own Tom Bateman. Tom was eloquent. We can see now why he continually succeeds himself. Mr. Wadsworth was Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury from 1921 to 1925 and his work in that capacity was much appreciated by the American public. He told us about the various workings of the Treasury Department, the creation of the World Foreign Debt Commission, of which he was secretary, its functions and the part played in the refunding arrangements for our foreign debts. When he entered the Treasury in March, 1921, the war debt owned to this country amounted to over $11,000,000,000 and claims against the railroads to over $1,000,000,000. He gave us the comforting opinion that he thought by 1950 this country would be out of debt. He was warm in his praise of his former chief, Secretary Mellon, and thought that the public did not fully realize the extent of this man's vision and work. We were sorry there were so few out to hear such a fine and educational talk by one who has been so prominent in the nation's affairs.

The mixed bowling tournament is now in full swing and some good scores are being rolled, especially by the ladies. The men's tournament is nearing its close and excitement prevails. There is tall hustling to keep above the bread line and several teams are in close proximity to it. Everyone now wishes they had won at least one more point. There is also some hustling for the leading places. It will soon be over, boys, and some of us will be eating at your expense.

NEW FUNERAL HOME OPENED

The handsome new funeral home of the Kelley & Hawes Company was opened for inspection by the public yesterday noontime when a banquet was given by the company to more than 75 guests. Included were members of the Winchester Rotary Club, personal guests of their fellow Rotarians, Mr. Kelley; Town Officials and local business and professional men.

After an inspection of the plant, which includes the very latest facilities for funerals and the care and comfort of those without other accommodations while in Winchester to attend a funeral or burial, a splendid dinner was served by a caterer in the spacious chanel. The entire home was handsomely decorated with cut flowers and potted plants, the chapel especially presenting a most beautiful appearance. Artistic bouquets of cut flowers were placed in the niches on either side of the altar and the two long tables at which the guests were seated were gay with blooms.

The Rotary Club held its usual routine meeting presided over by President George T. Davidson. There was community singing led by Dr. J. Churchill Hindes with "Jim" McGrath of Woburn at the piano. The Rotary speaker was Harold Converse who spoke on the American boy and Boy Scouts.

MICHAEL PILUSO

After an illness of about ten days Michael Piluso of 834 Main street died Wednesday night of pneumonia at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. Piluso was 50 years of age and was born in Italy. He had made his home for more than 30 years in Winchester and was employed as a leather-worker with the local firm of Beggs & Cobb. He was identified with several prominent Italian-American Societies which will be represented at the solemn high mass to be sung for the deceased Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Church. The interment is to be in Calvary Cemetery.

Mr. Piluso was a widower and leaves two daughters and a son besides a brother, Antonio Piluso, living in Winchester.

Mr. Paul Shiverick of Winchester was an usher at the Davis—Rideout wedding solemnized in the Broadway Winter Hill Congregational Church, Somerville, Tuesday evening.

LONG TERMS FOR GUNMEN CAPTURED BY WINCHESTER POLICE

The final chapter of the thrilling capture of two youthful gunmen on the night of Jan. 10, by Sergt. William H. Rogers and Officer John E. Hanlon of the Police Department assisted by Arlington officers was written Wednesday in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge where Judge Hugo Dubuque sentenced Robert W. Langell Jr., 19, of 3 Moore place, Arlington, and George L. Rider, 19, of 18 Albemarle street, Arlington to serve 28 and 20 years respectively in Concord Reformatory after the latter had pleaded guilty to four counts on indictments charging them with robbery while armed and with carrying firearms without a license. The difference in the length of the sentences was due to the fact that Langell was found to be the possessor of a previous criminal record and was on probation when he engaged in the robberies for which he was arrested by the local authorities.

The robberies took place in the Hill District of Winchester in the vicinity of High street and Hutchinson road near the Arlington line. Langell and Rider were captured by the police in Arlington center and were later identified by two of their victims. The police link them with a series of automobile robberies throughout this entire district.

In court Wednesday Judge Dubuque stated that he at first had contemplated sending the youths to prison for life, since in his opinion criminals between 17 and 23 years of age constitute the very worst type now extant. Conference with Assistant District Attorney Crafts had, however, caused him to change his mind and he had imposed sentence as stated above. The young men may serve 15 and 10 years respectively, should their records prompt a shortening of their sentences.

In pronouncing sentence Judge Dubuque severely arraigned the youthful criminals telling them that anyone committing robbery while armed was a potential murderer and should receive no leniency from one to whom the state looked for protection against criminals. The crowed courtroom sat in deep silence as the Judge said, "If you were my sons, I'd grieve and be ashamed to have brought you into the world. You are a disgrace not only to yourselves but to your parents. It's a sorry sight to see—youths who have stained their souls with the worst offense outside murder. You have robbed without compunction and those who commit such offenses have murder in their hearts."

In reply to Langell's father who pleaded for leniency for the youthful offenders the judge replied that he had much sympathy for him but in the light of the 4,000,000 respectable people who looked to the courts for protection from such criminals as young Langell and Rider he could do no less than he had done in sentencing them to prison for long terms. Only their youth and the fact that they might yet live useful lives had prompted him to change from his decision to commit the boys for life.

Records of past offenses committed by both youths were produced by the probation officer.

Langill and Rider were arrested Jan. 10, after one of them had been recognized by Paul Dalton of 56 Bow street, Arlington, a holdup victim.

Dalton and a young woman were sitting in a parked automobile near Dunster lane, Winchester, when two men, masked and armed, appeared. One man turned a flashlight into the car and at pistol point demanded Dalton's money. Dalton turned over $3, while the young woman who was with him, slipped a valuable diamond ring, which she had removed from her finger, into her mouth. She was not molested.

Other armed robberies, to which the youths pleaded guilty, included robbery of $10 from Robert H. Dale at Winchester, Jan. 10; $48 from Frank R. Milton at Lexington, Jan. 7; $1 from Arthur Johnson at Lexington, Jan. 10; $14 from Edward Ball at Winchester, Dec. 30.

They also pleaded guilty to assaulting Calvin D. Wentworth at Winchester on Dec. 30, with intent to rob; and to charges of carrying revolvers.

LEGION MOVIES

Winchester Post, 97, the American Legion presents the popular moving pitcture "Dress Parade" with William Boyd and Bessie Love offering the people of Winchester an opportunity to see in their own Town Hall one of the most recent releases by Pathe pictures, a picture which has drawn tremendous crowds wherever shown in Greater Boston.

As a distinct feature to please children as well as adults, the Post has secured two reels showing Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh's famous flight as seen by the Pathe cameramen from his start at Los Angeles until his triumphant return to New York City. No feature about which you read with such interest in the newspapers last June is omitted.

As additional attractions the Post has secured Pathe Films of the National Convention of the American Legion at Paris and a current Pathe News.

Tickets may be obtained at Hevey's Pharmacy or at the American Legion Headquarters any evening.

MARRIAGE INTENTIONS

Marriage intentions have been filed with the Town Clerk by John Landy of 51 Eastern avenue of Woburn and Bridget Grealish of 11 Warren street and by Elmer Dayton Ripley of 8 Brookdale street and Jessie May Nauffts of 12 Wedge Pond road.

The alarm of fire which sounded shortly after 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon from Box 38 proved to be false. Box 38 is situated at the corner of Oak and Holland streets and is noted for false alarms. Thursday's alarm was telephoned in and the call was traced to a two-party line in the immediate neighborhood of the box. Both parties on the line denied sending in the call.

SERGEANT CASSIDY PREVENTS THEFT OF WINCHESTER WOMAN'S AUTO

Prompt action on the part of Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy of the Police Department Tuesday afternoon frustrated the plan of four young men to steal the Buick sedan of Mrs. B. L. Gage of Ravenscroft road.

Sergeant Cassidy was driving southerly on Highland avenue in the Police light car at about 5 o'clock and had reached a point opposite Walcott road when his attention was attracted to three young men in a Nash coupe which was parked at the corner of Walcott road facing Highland avenue.

Upon seeing the officer the young men ducked their heads behind the instrument board of the machine arousing the former's suspicions. As he slowed down his car to question them Sergeant Cassidy noticed a Buick sedan parked on the opposite side of Walcott road with a fourth young man upon its running board, in the act of releasing the brakes to allow the machine to roll onto Highland avenue.

Sensing the young man was in the act of stealing the car Sergeant Cassidy stopped the police machine short to intercept the coasting Buick and as quickly as possible got out drawing his gun as he did so.

Quick as he was the young men, favored by their position, were quicker. These in the Nash coupe started the machine and immediately turned the corner of Walcott road to head north on Highland avenue. The young man who had been in the act of stealing the Buick leaped off the moving car and cutting across the corner of Walcott road at the police box was pulled by his comrades into the coupe.

Sergeant Cassidy called to him to stop as he ran and fired two shots at his legs in an effort to enforce his command. The young fellow only ran the faster and the policeman emptied the chambers of his revolver after the speeding Nash in which the would-be thieves were making their getaway.

Instead of wasting valuable time in turning the police car to take up the chase Sergeant Cassidy commandeered an approaching car and started after the marauders. His car was of the light variety and proved no match for the speed of the flying coupe which disappeared in the direction of Stoneham.

Meanwhile the Buick, which the young men had been in the act of stealing, had rolled down the grade of Walcott road and avoiding the police car had crossed Highland avenue and entered the yard of the Highland School where it was stopped without damage by a good sized snow bank.

The machine was found to be the property of Mrs. Gage who was a guest at the home of Mrs. J. W. Russell, Jr., on Walcott road. The former was loud in her praise of the prompt action of Sergeant Cassidy, feeling that but for him she might well have lost her car.

As soon as possible the sergeant had gotten word of the attempted theft to headquarters where a description of the Nash coupe and its occupants was broadcast to surrounding police departments by Officer Edward O'Connell.

Later in the evening Sergt. William H. Rogers was notified at the station by the Medford police that the coupe had been recovered in that city. It had been abandoned and bore mute testimony to Sergeant Cassidy's aim. One of his shots had gone through the rear window and out through the windshield while two other bullets were buried in the body of the car. There were no signs of blood discovered.

An investigation disclosed the fact that the Nash was the property of the Roslindale Nash Company and had been stolen from where it had been parked on Bay State road in Boston at about 4:30 Tuesday afternoon. The thieves had evidently headed for Winchester to add to their collection.

LADIES' BOWLING RESULTS

There was a large entry of ladies in the afternoon bowling tournament at the Calumet Club on Tuesday and some excellent scores were made. Mrs. Preston took the prize for high single flat with 93 Mrs. F. C. Pitman for high single with handicap with 109; Mrs. W. W. Winship high total flat, 180; Mrs. Blanchard high total with handicap, 198.

Nothing quite as good. Darwin English cobalt steel, high speed, rustless razor blades. Cost more. Worth it. Wilson the Stationer.

CHAPTER LADIES' NIGHT FEB. 18

Winchester Royal Arch Chapter officers are busy preparing for the annual ladies' night at Winchester Country Club, Saturday, Feb. 18, invitations having been sent out during the past week. The large hall at the Club has been reserved for dancing and bridge tables will be set up in one of the adjoining rooms.

Dancing will commence at 8:30 and those in charge feel very fortunate in obtaining Dan Watson and his intercollegiate orchestra from the University Club, Boston. These musicians played at the now-famous Harvard-Yale dance held at the Club the night of the football classic, and applications for tables were turned away on that occasion because of lack of space.

There will be ample opportunity for those who prefer to play bridge and several parties are being made up for the event. Refreshments will be served at 10:30, under the supervision of Superintendent Petchie of the Country Club, and there will be special decorations appropriate to Washington's Birthday Week. Kingman P. Cass is chairman of the general committee, and Colver P. Dyer has charge of tickets.

TWO AUTOMOBILES STOLEN IN WINCHESTER RECOVERED AT SOMERVILLE

The Somerville police succeeded in recovering two automobiles stolen from Winchester during the past week-end.

Shortly before 3 o'clock on Saturday afternoon a Reo sedan was stolen from in front of the home on Everell road of Robert F. Lybeck. Mr. Lybeck notified the police that the machine had been taken by three men who had driven past the house in a large green sedan. The local authorities spread the alarm and the Reo was later recovered, minus some valuable equipment, in the vicinity of Dilboy Field, Somerville.

Some time between 8:30 p. m. and midnight Sunday the LaSalle sedan of Mrs. Harry Cox was stolen from in front of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Chesley Whitten on Washington street. The local police broadcast a description of the machine and once again the Somerville police were successful in locating it in that city.

FIRST COASTER REPORTED INJURED

William Carroll, young son of Mr. and Mrs. William B. Carroll of 639 Main street, was painfully injured while coasting on Park street shortly after 3 o'clock last Friday afternoon when he was struck by a 2½ ton truck owned by A. C. Purrington of 429 Main street, Wakefield. The truck, which was being driven by Percy K. Doherty of 2 Albion court, Wakefield, was going in a northerly direction on Elmwood avenue and struck the little coaster at the junction of the avenue with Park street. The front wheel of the heavy vehicle ran over the child's knee, causing a bad bruise. Doherty picked young Carroll up and took him to police headquarters where he was treated by Dr. R. L. Emery. The little fellow was not seriously injured and was later taken to his home in the police car by Patrolman James Donaghey.

QUET TO NATIONAL COMMANDER SPAFFORD

Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, was well represented at the banquet held in the Hotel Statler, Boston, last Saturday evening under the auspices of the Massachusetts Department, A. L., in honor of National Commander Edward F. Spafford of New York.

Seated at the Winchester table were Commander W. Allen Wilde, Vice-Commander Richard Parkhurst, Finance Officer, Harry G. Bigelow, Adjutant William S. Phippen, Past Commander William E. Ramsdell, Past Commander Vincent P. Clarke, Past Commander Arthur S. Harris, George J. Barbaro, Russell Carroll and Past Vice Commander Marshall J. England.

Among others from Winchester who attended were Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Locke of Forest street. The last named were especially interested in the honors accorded Commander Spafford who is the brother of Mrs. Locke.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

The Sun Fong Lin Company an aggregation of ten Chinese wonder workers, is the special headline act on the bill the Granada Theatre in Malden is offering the last three days of the week. These performers come direct from Pekin and for 20 minutes they astound and amaze with tricks and feats of strength. There is not another act in the world like Sun Fong Lin and probably never will be. Four other acts are presented in addition to this headline feature. "In Old San Francisco," starring beautiful Dolores Costello, is the screen feature at the Granada on Thursday, Friday and Saturday. Miss Costello's new vehicle is a story of the days when Frisco was the Paris of America, just prior to the quake and fire. The fire and earthquake sequences are remarkable.

Next Sunday evening the Granada will run a Sunday concert cosisting of five acts of vaudeville, a feature picture, the Granada Symphony Orchestra and Roy Frazee, organist. An entire new program will be offered both vaudeville and pictures with the show running continuous from 7 to 11 p. m.

"Beau Sabreur," starring Gary Cooper, Evelyn Brent, Noah Beery and William Powell, the sequel to "Beau Geste," comes to the Granada next Monday for a three day run. It is a story of the Foreign Legion and the Sahara Desert, the locale made famous by "Beau Geste." It is the story of a French officer who swears never to look at another woman—then meets one and falls in love with her while on a mission for his country. "Beau Sabreur" has been playing to extended runs in all the large cities and has the reputation of being an outstanding screen attraction.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

At the regular club meeting on Monday at 2:30 p. m. in the Town Hall the program will be in charge of the dramatic committee, Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle chairman. Club members who have attended the monthly dramatic meetings will know that a very enjoyable afternoon may be expected. The entertainment will include three one-act plays, "Managers" by Joseph Lincoln; "The Wooden Leg" by Essex Dane, and "The Old Maid's Convention" by L. A. Parson.

The President's "At Home"

The President's "At Home" proved to be a delightful occasion. The Hospitality Committee, Mrs. Frances C. Breen, chairman, acted as hostess and presented the members to the officers of the club who were in the receiving line. Two groups of songs were sung by Miss Jean MacLachlan accompanied by Mrs. E. Minette Knight. Tea was served under the direction of the social and Fortnightly Hall committees with Mrs. Winifred A. Bennett and Mrs. Katherine A. Myott as chairmen. The tea table was attractively decorated in a color scheme of yellow and white, the club colors.

The Literature Group

The Literature Group has deservedly won an enviable reputation for its programs, but that presented to the large audience on last Monday excelled in interest and rarity even those of former meetings.

The speaker was Nancy Byrd Turner, President of the Boston Manuscript Club, whose subject was "Modern Women in Literature." Miss Turner sketched rapidly the history of the increasingly prominent place of women writers from the days of Jane Austin, and the Bronte's, who in fear and trembling visted their publishers to the present authors of novels of sex and emotion. She listed briefly the outstanding women authors of the past and present both in England and America, and compared their works and methods. She found great resemblance in the basis material, but great difference in method and style. The new writers are never obvious, but rather gain their effests by pictures of emotion analyzed objectively and subjectively till the reader unconsciously understands the character. The modern woman is a power to be reckoned with in literature and is all right except when she tries to be a "smark Aleck."

With pungent comment and apt words Miss Turner characterized her acquaintances among the writers and their works, Amy Lowell, Edna Wylie, Jean Untermeilyer, Edna St. Vincent Millay and many others. Many she had known at the MacDowell Colony in Peterboro, N. H., which she described in most humanly interesting anecdotes.

Later Miss Turner read from her own poems revealing sincerity and enthusiasm of interests and a humorous appreciation of every day experiences both real and imaginary. Her poems showed skillful mastery of rhyme and metre to convey mood and thought. She closed with the poem, Lucky Lindbergh, which has won her nation-wide fame.

Quite in contrast to Miss Turner's was Mabel Cornelia Matson's reading of her poems. Two were of Christmas, tenderly appealing and very expressive of thought and devotion. In others there was a mingling of pathos and humor most true to human experiences. By some strange turn she suggested laughter and tears almost in the same word, and often added a hint of satire to those.

Georgianna T. Moore, recently known through her calendar of the holidays for school magazines, also read delightfully pictures of nature and country scenes and a tragically beautiful poem, called "Life" written after reading Edith Wharton's Age of Innocence.

As hostesses for the afternoon Mrs. Martha W. Kelly and her committee served a very dainty tea.

The next meeting of the group will be on the first Monday in March. The subject is, "Modern Biblical Literature;" the chairman, Mrs. Anna M. Swanson.

Dramatics Committee

On Tuesday afternoon the dramatics committee provided one of the delightful entertainments which the club members have become accustomed to expect from this committee. The program consisted of two one-act plays and a monologue.

The first play, "The Finger of God" was serious in tone. When the play begins Benson the butler, (Mrs. Catharine Hooper) is assisting his master Strickland to leave town quietly on the midnight train for Chicago. Mrs. Christine E. Hayden took the part of Strickland, a man who in early boyhood had stolen a large sum of money and served a year's sentence for it. After he gained his freedom again, he took an assumed name and endeavored to make a place for himself in society. This he found a more bitter experience than his term in prison. Finally luck came his way. He found a purse containing a large sum of money and returned it to the owner before he had had time to decide whether to keep it or not. As a reward the owner of the purse gave him a position. From that time his progress was rapid until he became head of the firm. Everyone believed him honest and he had begun to think so himself when he slipped again and the reason for his quiet departure for Chicago was that he was on the point of absconding with the firm's money in addition to what he had already stolen from clients. Just before he leaves, one of his stenographers, (Mrs. Blanche Barnard) appears with several letters from small investors who have sent in the form of checks made out to him personally, all their savings for him to invest. She says that it must be wonderful to have such a reputation for honesty that strangers dare to trust everything they have to him. She then adds that she has engaged a stateroom for him on the midnight train choosing at random the name Alfred Stevens because she understood that he was leaving town incognito. This leads him to tell the story of Alfred Stevens which is his own right name and to confess his reason for going away. In answer she says, "If you believed yourself honest, you were honest" and she hands him a small legacy which she has just received with the request that he invest it for her. Her faith in him leads him to have faith in himself and he announces triumphantly that he is an honest man and will stay and "take his medicine." This is a strong play and the long dialogue and the tense dramatic situation at the end were remarkably well handled.

Miss Mary Craig Lyons read a delightfully amusing monologue, "A Woman's Wednesday."

The second play, "Sardines," has a special appeal because it was written by a talented Fortnightly member, Mrs. Carolyn Gilpatric. The scene is Herringport where the chief industry is canning sardipes. Mathe Eaton (Mrs. Lois Abrahamsen) is giving a small luncheon in honor of her guest, Miss Annie Carroll, who is a writer from New York (Mrs. Carolyn Gilpatric). She has the doubtful assistance of Alfreda Doolittle (Mrs. Mabel Nichols), a worker in the canning factory, who is doing housework during a lull in the canning business. The guests are Lucy Watkins (Mrs. Dorothy Howard), who is deaf and thinks it is the greatest possible affliction because you are always wondering what people are saying about you, and Lizzie Pike (Mrs. Elizabeth S. Hall) who maintains that her fallen arches are worse because there is no pain to deafness. As lunch is about to be served, the whistle blows announcing that "Glady's get fish" and Alfreda departs in haste to resume her work at the canning factory leaving the luncheon party to manage as best they ran. The play is clever, the lines sparkling with humor, and the parts were all well taken.

The attractive tea which followed the program was in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Davis.

Theatre Party

Don't forget the Fortnightly theatre party on the afternoon of Feb. 16 at the Repertory Theatre. Club members wishing to drive in will find a convenient parking place in the new garage at the corner of Gainsborough and St. Botolph streets. This is under Repertory management. After the play all desiring to do so will be conducted about the theatre and administration building. Will those who wish luncheon reservations please telephone Mrs. Sturtevant, Back Bay 7001. No tickets will be sold after Feb. 13.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

Next Tuesday afternoon at the regular meeting of the Ladies' Friendly it is regretted that Mrs. W. H. Hill cannot speak as scheduled. Mrs. Hill has promised not to disappoint her fellow townspeople entirely but will appear at a later date. The program will be a "home afternoon" followed by a Valentine tea. A meeting of the executive board will precede the regular meeting.

Mrs. Lillian T. Mason has not counted all her dollars from the parish bridge but is certain of the fact that $300 was raised. She wishes to thank the hostesses who opened their homes for the event and all their friends who co-operated in serving the tea.

Rehearsals have started for the "Harvard Work Shop" prize play, "The Flower Shop" which is to be presented at the Unitarian Church Tuesday, Feb. 28, following the Ladies' Friendly supper. Mrs. Harold F. Meyer is coaching the play.

Not Peculiar to Bible

The Bible uses the terminal of words "eth" no more than any other literature of the period at the time the King James or authorized version of the Bible was made. At this time such expressions as "The wind bloweth whither it listeth," instead of "The wind blows as it lists," were in common use both in sacred and secular literature.

Be Reasonable

"Sweet reasonableness" is one of the gifts most enviable, most to be coveted and cultivated. Goldsmith says of his village schoolmaster that, "even though vanquished, he could argue still," a sure sign that this high-cockalorum fellow was in quest of victory rather than truth.—Exchange.

Iodine in Foods

Sea foods, agar (Japanese seaweed) and Irish moss are rich in iodine. It is also present in milk, whole grains, green peas, green beans, bananas, asparagus, tomatoes, garlic, white cabbage, mushrooms, strawberries, carrots, sorrel, leeks grapes, artichokes, pears, white dried beans, lettuce, beets, turnips, melons, radishes, parsley and potatoes.

Fiery!

"You have made your hero too inflammable, I'm afraid," said the critic to the young author. "To begin with, he has a lantern jaw. In chapter two his whole face lit up; in chapter three his cheeks flamed. He gave a burning glance in chapter ten; and after blazing with wrath and boiling with rage he administered a scorching rebuke in the last five pages."

Narcotic in Lettuce

Many will be surprised to learn that lettuce, one of the commonest of vegetables, is narcotic. The juice of the lettuce, according to an answered question in Liberty, contains a feeble narcotic, which will produce heaviness and sleep if taken in large quantit'.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Last Sunday was Young People's Day and according to our regular custom the services were conducted by some of the young people of our society. Those taking part were R. W. Olmstead, Miss M. Merrill, J. B. Robinson and Miss M. Hayden. Mr. Reed was an interested observer. The young people conducted the services in a very efficient manner. The sermon, "Youth's Explanations," by R. W. Olmstead, President of the Metcalf Union, gave us an insight into what the young people's feelings towards and understanding of religion. It showed older members that our youth do think of some of the more serious phases of life. To many of us, it left the impression that some of the new plans which we have in mind for them on our new building program would be well worth considering seriously.

Just to show that the point had been reached where further instruction and help was needed, Ronald Olmstead said: "Just how we are at a point where we don't know what's what; we don't know exactly what to believe about certain things." After endeavoring to clear up some of the difficult problems about God and the Bible, he stated that some of them had come to the conclusion that "God is a synonym for Nature," that it was Mother Nature who makes the flowers blossom at the right time, who makes the trees shed their leaves, who tells the birds when to migrate. And, too, it is Nature that influences all the natural laws of science. In short, Nature controls all—even human nature. That, he thought, was a pretty good explanation, but, others among them looked further and deeper. Some felt that there is that and much more. They tried to look at the world from an external viewpoint to see the universe as a whole. Looking at the way things are arranged, it seemed as if there was some Great Power behind the order of the whole universe. "Others thought," he said, "that God was all that and much more. It seemed as if there was some great power behind the whole universe, something controlling the greater phases of civilization."

"We young people in the Unitarian Church," he said, "want to be liberal in our ideas. The young people of today are merely trying to think it out for themselves instead of taking their religion like a prescription."

One of the big events of the week takes place tonight when we have the cabaret by the Unitarian Associates in the Town Hall. If you have not already made your arrangements and concluded at the last moment that you would like to go, it may be possible for you to secure a table on account of some cancellations. If not, I guess you will call Dr. John F. Wallace, chairman of the ticket committee.

LINDBERGH VISITS CITY OF THE MARIMBA

Guatemala City is not of the New World, says a communication to the National Geographic Society describing the first of the capitals which Lindberg is visiting on his good will tour through Central America.

Guatemala City belong to Old Spain, continues the communication. It is a city suggestive of the Moors, with narrow streets, varicolored houses, deep-set, barred windows, bright patios, porticoes, and colonnades.

Guatemala's capital has always been Vulcan's plaything. He has shaken it down, even destroyed it, and has seen it rise again on three different sites and under as many names.

Lake Engulfs Old City

In 1527 Pedro de Alvacado began the first city on the lower slopes of Agua. In 1541 came a night of torrential rain, lightnings, thunder, and earth rumblings, then a terrifying shudder. The crater of Augua was torn apart and the lake which filled it rushed down to overwhelm the city.

A new capital, but a few miles to the northeast, in time became one of the most imposing cities of the New World, with splendid palaces and more than 60 impressive church buildings. The old city was but a memory, earthquakes were forgotten, and all seemed well as the new capital grew richer and more powerful.

In 1717, with an eruption of Fuego, came an earthquake that leveled the city. Again it was built and again shaken down in 1773, the year of the Boston tea party.

Rebuilt Since 1917

The capital was again transferred, this time 30 miles away to the site of the present city, and the life of the people moved on until in 1917 came a series of tremblings that first cracked the thick adobe walls and then caused them to crumble. Since 1917 the capital city has again been practically rebuilt, thus illustrating the tenacity with which people cling to homes that have been erected where the shadow of some volcano falls.

This population of the present capital is more than 100,000. The city, set in the midst of the Valley of the Rio de las Vacas (Cow River) is hemmed in by low mountain ridges and a group of imposing volcanoes.

Post Office in Monastery

At one time the church and the clergy dominated the capital city and the monastic orders built many really magnificent structures. The orders were banished, however, and the post office and customhouse now occupy the Monastery of San Francisco; the National Institute is in the Jesuit College; a liquor dispensary occupies the famous Monastery of Santo Domingo, and a cheap theater is in another dignified religious edifice.

The central plaza is not beautiful now. The earthquake partly ruined the imposing cathedral to the east; the Chinese, as a memorial, have built a number of pagodalike buildings to the north; the dignified Centennial Building occupies another side; and the Portales, with little one-and-two-story shops, complete the quadrangle. It is a curious picture of ruin, dignity, tawdriness, and pagodas.

More interesting than the bodegepoge plazza is the old fruit woman who sits under a canopy on the corner of the square, with heaps of oranges, mangoes, aquacates (avocados), papayas, and melons piled about her, bobnebbing with all who pass, the people who for years have been her customers and friends.

City Has Many Autos

The street paving is beyond mention. The best is like our old cobbled variety and the worst stops just short of the impassable. The four-wheel coach, drawn by two dejected steeds, is still the usual mode of conveyance, although the city is full of private motor cars.

Guatemala City needs paving, waterworks, and sewers, but so would any town that had passed through the ordeal that came to this capital in 1917, and steps are being taken now to remedy these conditions. The city has many tine shops, comfortable clubs, at least two good hotels, the inevitable motion-picture theaters, where damaged American films are shown, and marimba bands.

The marimba, that queer African instrument which Guatemala made its own, has deep, rich tones, and produces profoundly stirring music. When one stands close by, the sound comes soft and mellow, but not lacking in volume, and when one hears it from afar there is the same surging, welling volume of harmony, often wildly barbaric, but always denoting some deep, half-dreamed primitive emotion.

I do not believe that any other national instrument so completely expresses the soul of the people who make it and play it as does the marimba. In it the Indian of Guatemala finds the musical expression of his race.

But Guatemala City is to me not a place of churches, plazas, buildings, and pavement. Its overtones are produced by a little group of whites and mestizos (half-breeds), but its dominant note comes from the Indian masses.

The streets of the city throng with steady processions of Indian carriers, ox-carts, mule trains. The Indian is the burden-carrier, the ox-driver, the muleteer, the servant. Ten miles away, in the village of Mixco, live the Indians who each day carry to the capital the foodstuffs which its people buy.

Earliest Slot Machine

Coin-in-the-slot machines were known 200 years B. C., and it is probable that Ctesibius invented them. They were used to dispense purifying water to Egyptian worshipers as they entered the temple. Five drachmae had to be dropped in the machine in order to receive the liquid. Slot machines did not come into general use until about 100 years ago.

True Sincerity

I should say sincerity, a deep, great, genuine sincerity, is the first characteristic of all men in any way heroic. Not the sincerity that calls itself sincere; ah, no! that is a very poor matter indeed: a shallow, braggart, conscious sincerity; often self-conceit mainly. The great man's sincerity is of the kind he cannot speak of, is not conscious of.—Edward Everett Hale.

Sport of Bowling

Bowling on alleys seems to have been derived from the old game of skittles, which in turn probably developed from the still older game of bowls. It has its greatest vogue in the United States, where its popularity has increased very rapidly, especially since the latter part of the last century. The first record of a game in America was on January 1, 1819, in New York city.

Costly Circus Animals

A lion performing in a circus act is worth about $2,000, according to a famous lion tamer quoted in an article in Liberty. Tigers, bears and leopards, he says, are valued approximately at as much and it is not unusual for a large circus to have from $150,000 to $200,000 invested in animal acts.

Busy With Hands and Feet

"Speaking of mixed metaphors," writes E. B., "this from a South African paper may interest you. It is part of an obituary notice: 'The impartial foot of death stepped into the little family and snatched its head with a relentless grip.'"

Nibble Too Much

Women don't like those who are always nibbling at something, and therefore, eat too much, says Dr. James Fenton, medical officer of health for Kensington, London, England, addressing an assemblage composed largely of women at the incorporated institute of Hygiene.

Appropriately Named

Cape Verde, the most westerly point on the African coast, was given its name because it is crowned with a growth of verdure and trees that stand out in contrast with the white of the adjoining country.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

A man remarked the other day that "they couldn't fool him"; that's what a little mouse said but a cat had more wisdom.

Wise men learn by their own mistakes; fools by their own also.

Many people have about all the world can give yet spiritually they are in rags.

People must learn to keep well which is a lot easier than getting well.

More people will ask as to a man's riches than they will of his goodness.

A little explained, a little endured, a little forgiven, and most any quarrel is cured.

WEST INDIES CRUISE FROM BOSTON

Under the direction of the Boston Chamber of Commerce a Good Will cruise to the principle ports of the West Indies will sail on March 17 next from Boston on the flagship of the Great White Fleet the "SS. Calamares." Visits will be made to Havana, Cuba; Port Antonio, and Kingston, Jamaica; the Canal Zone, with a trip through the Canal to the Pacific Coast, Port Limon, Costa Rica; back to Havana, and then to New York. The cruise is of 22 days' duration, all outside rooms, and all expenses on water and ashore with all sightseeing included in the cost of from $365 up, according to location of rooms, from Boston to Boston. This should be one of the happiest cruises ever made to the West Indies.

One need not be a member of the Chamber of Commerce to join in the cruise as all New Englanders are welcome.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

Next Friday evening the Association will conduct a lecture and social in the school auditorium. The lecturer, Prof. Carl S. Schrader of the State Department of Physical Education, is widely known as a very fine speaker. He is correspondingly much in demand and the Chapter feels that it is fortunate to have secured him for the only free evening that he had in February. The lecture will be public and a cordial invitation is extended to the public and especially to the members of the other four Chapters of the Mothers' Association. We are sure that all who attend will feel amply repaid. The date, next Friday evening, Feb. 17.

Mrs. Walter Gurney is in charge of the arrangements for this social and she will be assisted by an interested group of hostesses. Refreshments will be served.

The executive committee of the Chapter wishes to thank all those entertainers who gave so freely of their services and thus made our pop concert such a splendid success. And we want, too, to thank the ladies who conducted the food sale so successfully that it surpassed our rosiest expectations. This kind of spirit is responsible for the fine morale of our organization and we hope this month to enter upon another successful year, working shoulder to shoulder in the interest of our children and the school in which they are receiving the elementary part of their education.

FORMER WINCHESTER RESIDENTS OVSERVED ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. John Cullen, former well known residents of Winchester, observed on Sunday, Feb. 5 at their home in Hamilton the 35th anniversary of their marriage. The original plans had called for a quiet family observance of the occasion and as a consequence Mr. and Mrs. Cullen were completely surprised when during the evening a large number of guests arrived at their home. Together with friends and neighbors in Hamilton were old friends from Woburn, Dorchester and Winchester, making the evening a memorable one. Two substantial bouquets of money were presented the happy couple by impromptu spokesmen on behalf of the gathering. A delightful entertainment program was followed by the serving of supper which had been prepared and brought to the Cullen home by the Winchester delegation to the party.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES

The following cases of Contagious Diseases have been reported to the Board of Health for the week ending Thursday, Feb. 9:

C. D. OF A. NOTES

The Court is eagerly anticipating its next large affair which will be held next Thursday evening in Lyceum Hall. This will take the form of an entertainment and peddlers' parade under the direction of Financial Secretary, Sarah Cassidy and an efficient committee. Among the acts planned for the entertainment will be a two-man minstrel show which is sure to be a riot of fun and local hits. Then there will be song and dance numbers, vocal selections and several novelties. The entertainment will be followed by the peddlers' parade, something new and novel hereabouts but guaranteed to please and amuse all who see it. This social is public and refreshments will be served.

Tonight the members and their friends will be entertained by Vice-Regent Nellie Moffett who will be the hostess for a bridge and whist at her home on Watson place. Mrs. Moffett has demonstrated her ability as a hostess on many previous occasions so that many are looking forward to this party with eager anticipation. She will be assisted by one of our most earnest workers, Mrs. Abby McDonough.

Prophetess Frances T. Conlon, P. G.R., was the victim of a cleverly planned surprise on last Monday evening when several of her own and her husband's relatives tendered the happy couple a "tin shower." This was quite appropriate as Monday marked the 10th milestone in the married life of Mr. and Mrs. Conlon—10 years since the marriage which was solemnized on the eve of "Tom's" departure for France with the U. S. forces. And had we known of the actual date of the anniversary we would surely have been 100 per cent present. However, if we are not too late, here are our Court's congratulations—joined securely to our best wishes for continued happiness and much success in the future!

The Court's next social will be conducted by Treasurer Elizabeth C. McDonald assisted by Prophetess Frances T. Conlon. This will be held at Mrs. McDonald's home, the date to be announced later. The proceeds of these house parties are turned over to the charitable committee and enables this group to continue in the fine relief work which is always necessary, especially during the winter months.

The proceeds of the peddlers' parade social will be sent to the Holy Ghost Hospital. This will be the local Court's donation to the fund which is being raised by the Massachusetts C. D. of A., to buy the organ which the Court's were asked for by the Superior of the hospital.

ATTENTION, FRIENDS OF VERMONT

The public libraries of Vermont have been hard hit by the recent flood. Some have been completely destroyed, others badly damaged. Many villages and rural communities have thereby lost their only cultural and recreation centers.

For example: Johnson Library, wiped out; Waterbury Library, books and equipment totally destroyed; Montpelier Library, 10,000 books and equipment gone.

The Massachusetts Library Club is asking friends of Vermont to rally to the aid of the stricken libraries. Prompt response to the call will help our northern neighbors over many a hard hour this winter.

Give books. Recent books and good editions of standard authors are wanted. Magazines are not solicited.

Give money for the purchase of books and for supplies.

Make your contributions to your own public library which will act as the local collection agency. Distribution to needy libraries is guaranteed by the Massachusetts Library Club, Inc.

THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

The Winchester Circle will hold its next meeting Thursday afternoon, Feb. 16 at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. A. T. Damon, 16 Everett avenue. Mr. Charles Gates, Executive Secretary, Massachusetts Department of Correction will speak on, "Crime and Spare Time." There will be music during the afternoon and a tea will follow at the close of the meeting.

Profit by Past Errors

Never regret a mistake or waste time thinking about how sorry you are you made one. Make a decision, then act. If you are wrong, admit your mistake or error; then go ahead and do the right thing as you see it. Never bluff or try to cover up your mistakes. Mistakes profit you if you profit by them.—Charles M. Schwab.

Deceptive Moon

The moon's halo is deceptive, and no wise man judges tomorrow's weather by it. Although the halo often appears before a storm, the storm does not wait for the halo and frequently comes unannounced. There are such things as "clearing" halos, when the halos precede good weather. As someone has observed, "You can only really know it's raining when it's wet."

English Swamp Lands

The fens in England are a flat tract of land comprised under the name of the Bedford level, of 60 miles by 40 in area, reaching from Peterborough to Northampton, and from Cambridge to the sea. Since the Seventeenth century, drainage has gained most of this area for cultivation.

Test Bridegroom's Nerve

A prospective native bridegroom in Madagascar must stand before a spearman who throws a sharp-pointed shaft at him. He must show no fear, and must catch the weapon between his arm and his side.

FIVE CAPITALS VISITED BY LINDBERGH

Proud citizens of five capitals of five Central American republics, Guatemala City, San Salvador, Tegucigalpa, Managua, San Jose, and Panama City are the cities which Lindbergh has visited, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society.

Guatemala City, 650 miles southeast of Mexico City, can easily establish its claim as the largest city in Central America, equal in population to Reading, Pennsylvania.

Guatemala City, 650 miles southeast of Mexico City, can easily establish its claim as the largest city in Central America, equal in population to Reading, Pennsylvania.

Guatemala's first capital, founded a century before the Pilgrims landed, was at Ciudad Vieja on the slopes of Volcan de Agua. That city was destroyed by an earthquake and a crater lake engulfing it at the same time. Antigua, the second capital, reveals the ruins of 60 churches that once dominated this metropolis. In the year of the Boston Tea Party, Guatemala suffered an upheaval which destroyed the capital so it was moved to the present Guatemala City, a village where a splendid church seemed to mock the quakes.

Even that famous church fell down in a terrific trembler ten years ago. Only two Central American capitals, Tegucigalpa and Panama City have escaped periodic destruction by earthquake, but none has been so frequently shattered as Guatemala City.

San Salvador, capital of the state of that name, is a 179-mile hop from Guatemala City. From the air Lindbergh cannot help seeing what Salvadoreans cannot resist showing him—beautiful Lake Ilopango. Hotels and resorts border this blue pool which reflects mountains and smoking volcanoes. From the waters the flyer's menu may be filled out with fresh water shrimps as large as lobsters, a special delicacy enjoyed by residents of the capital. Other specialties are tortoise eggs and snails.

The Spirit of St. Louis, flying into the rising sun for 140 miles, reached Tegucigalpa capital of Honduras. An airplane is a splendid vehicle for travel in to Tegucigalpa because no railroad runs there. The automobile highways have brought on the region the name of "the land of broken springs." Tegucigalpa, having about the population of Stamford, Connecticut, was the capital of the short lived "United States of Central America."

Managua, war-torn capital of Nicaragua, is another jump of 175 miles southeast. It is beautifully situated on Lake Managua and numbers about as many citizens as Bloomington, Ill.

Two hundred and forty miles farther in a southeasterly direction lies San Jose, capital of Costa Rica. The first capital was at Cartago, which, severely jolted by earthquakes, still holds architectural treasures of the Spanish era. Costa Rica's War of Independence in 1821 resulted in San Jose's being made the capital. It is a city the size of Decatur, Ill. It lacks the neighboring lakes of its sister capitals, but has an opera house, one of the finest in the world. Lindbergh was received there. The President's New Year ball is the great annual event.

Five hundred miles due east again and Lindbergh droped down on Panama City, famous for pirates, for a flat arch of the ruined church of Santo Domingo and for American sanitation. We think of Lindbergh as flying south through Central America. He is flying east also. Mexico City, his point of departure, is in the same longitude as Oklahoma City, while Panama City lies on the longitude of Charleston, South Carolina, or Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

Panama perpetrates a geographic joke on those who visit it. From the sea wall promenade one can see the sun rise majestically from the broad blue bosom of the Pacific, which to most Americans is the proper place for the setting sun. And when one sails from Panama City to Colon, the Atlantic terminal of the Canal, the direction is from southeast to northeast, instead of from west to east. As one writer phrases it, "there is something crooked about this." And so there is but the crookedness is to be found in the geography of the isthmus, which makes a broad "S" curve, like an expansion band in a pipe-line, before it finally links the two continents.

Although the present city of Panama dates from the 17th century, it is considered historically the new city, to distinguish it from Old Panama, now in ruins, a few miles east. Old Panama was entirely destroyed by piratical Henry Morgan, later Sir Henry, in 1671, and the new city was built shortly afterward on a high rocky spit of land running out into a wide blue bay of the Pacific. Although Panama City is not actually in the Canal Zone, nor is it on the Canal, complete jurisdiction has been granted the United States over all matters relating to sanitation and quarantine.

The Great Among Us

The great writers, the men who make our literature, are the elect spirits who are nearer to God than the rest of us, and who are able sooner to grasp His moods and meanings. They are the mountain peaks of the human landscape—the first to feel the daybreak and to catch the sun.—Edwin Markham in the Smoker's Companion.

Virtues Underestimated

Usefulness and happiness are true measures of success. They are within the reach of every man. Indeed, they generally can be had for the taking. Because of this, perhaps, they are too frequently underestimated, especially by the ambitious.—Grit.

A New Machine At The Winchester National Bank

This machine is really a wonderful set of steel brains which we are putting to work in our accounting department.

With it we can handle our figure work faster than ever before and at the same time be sure that every item in our books is right.

Helps Us Give You Better Service

By the machine method, every depositor's account is kept in balance all the time and there are no mistakes such as are unavoidable with other ways of handling figures.

The time saving made possible by the machine gives us an opportunity to improve the service to our customers in all departments of the bank.

Everything Is Done Automatically

It prints dates, adds your deposits to the old balance, subtracts checks, figures and prints your new balance. All of this is done automatically. The operator simply writes the amounts on the keyboard—the machine shifts from column to column and adds, subtracts, or prints the date as desired, without the least attention being necessary.

Come In and See It Work

There is no method of posting ledgers known which equals this Burroughs Bookkeeping Machine in either accuracy or time saving.

Come in and see our new Burroughs at work in our accounting department.

Ruler of Valhalla

Woden, in the mythology of Scandinavia, was the ruler of the universe. From his palace went daily his two black ravens, Thought and Memory, to learn what is doing in the world, and to his court in Valhalla went the spirits of brave men slain in battle, there to revel in feasts and fights.

Brain a Rapid Worker

Assuming you began to think consciously at the age of five, then at thirty, if you have done an average amount of thinking, your "impressions" would number about 1,920,000,000. Those whose work is entirely mental would double those figures.

Tracing Term "Bachelor"

The origin of the term "bachelor" is uncertain. One explanation is that it is associated with the old French word "bachelor," which originally meant a young man.

The many friends of Miss Wilhelmina Knapp will regret to learn that she suffered a bad fall at her home on Chestnut street last Friday. Miss Knapp was just recovering from a bad attack of bronchitis when the accident occurred. She was severely injured about the head and face.

The Rev. Truman Heminway, rector of the Church of the Epiphany, has notified the Right Rev. James E. Freeman, Bishop of Washington, of his intention to participate in the nation-wide observance of the Sunday, nearest George Washington's birthday anniversary, as Washington Cathedral Sunday. Services in many Episcopal churches throughout the country will be dedicated on this day to the spiritual ideals of George Washington and to the cathedral, which is being built in the nation's capital as a symbol of the faith upon which the strength of the nation has been built.

Ross C. Whynot of 12 Bridge street notified the police that while he was driving a Ford sedan north on Main street at 5:15 Saturday afternoon his machine was struck by a Ford truck, the property of Kimball & Earl and operated by Gerald Morrell of 30 Green street, Stoneham. Morrell was backing the truck out of a garage when the accident occurred.

Officer Edward O'Connell was on Tuesday obliged to shoot a dog, the property of Mr. William Goodnough of 49 Cross street. The animal which evidently had distemper had bitten the young Goodnough boy before the arrival of the policeman.

A local painter appealed to the police on Monday to help him recover a ten gallon can of wood alcohol which had been stolen from his shop during the preceeding week-end. Sergeant Cassidy investigated and succeeded in locating the can minus two gallons of the alcohol, under the front porch of the boarding place of a man well known about the center as a "smoke" addict, or one fond of a beverage made of wood alcohol and water mixed. The man in question was rounded up, still rather the worse for wear and taken to the Woburn Court where his case was placed on file.

BERESOV: LAND OF THE OSTYAKS

Far North radio operators report reception of Station Aurora Borealis, And, according to the "listerners in" at Beresov, Tobolsk Province, Siberia, Station A B's "program" is melodious even if the less imaginative might merely call it "interference."

Beresov is an isolated town of wooden huts, native dugouts, and 2000 inhabitants on the Sosva River about 100 miles east of the Ural Mountains and about as far south of the Arctic Circle as the southern coast of Ireland, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Tobolsk, the nearest sizable town, and Saikowa the nearest station of the Trans-Siberian railway, are about 400 miles south of the village.

Land of the Ostyaks

While many Russians inhabit Beresov it is in the land of the Ostyaks, a race of people whose long heads, thick lips, round faces, protruding cheek bones, dark narrow eyes, smooth black hair, and yellow-gray skin, are in sharp contrast to the features of their European neighbors just across the Ural range.

The Ostyaks are divided into small clans, each clan usually representing a family. In the winter they remain in and near the villages but summer time finds them in the fields in their tents of birch bark and deerskin.

Few of the clansmen can read or write and figures are almost unknown to them. The notches on a stick are to the Ostyak what the beads on a counting board are to a Chinaman. A fathom is measured by the distance between the finger tips of outstretched arms. Time is measured by the interval it takes for a pot of a certain size to boil.

Children Forced to Smoke Tobacco

Medicine men and pagan priests held sway over the Ostyaks before the Russians conquered them. Now many are Christians (Russian Orthodox) and Moslems. However, the clansmen still retain some of their old customs. In many of the huts clan images, carved out of wood and galy painted, are still to be seen. Bleeding the sick is still a favorite cure-all and some clans insist that their children smoke tobacco to prevent sore throats and lung infections.

The bear has always been held sacred by the Ostyaks. When they kill one, the clansmen apologize to the carcass for several days. They insist the blame for taking the bear's life is not theirs, but Russians' who sold them the guns. To swear "by the jawbone of a bear" is as sacred as swearing on the Bible in a Christian country. For three years after the death of a clansman an image of the deceased is dressed and undressed set up to the table, and put to bed as if a living thing. Then it is buried with the remains.

Were Once Well Organized Race

Good Ostyak wives are luxuries, and the clansmen often have more than one. An ardent swain might pay ten fox pelts and a herd of deer for the girl of his choice. If he is not a matrimonial diplomat, he hires a professional go-between to bargain with the prospective bride's parents. After the ceremony, the bride settles down to her job of taking care of the home, and the reindeer herd too, if her husband is fortunate enough to have one. In her spare time she makes fine embroidery on linen, made of flax and hemp which she raises. Some of the men are skilled in wood and bone carving.

Ostyaks seldom grow taller than 5 feet 4 inches. In the winter the numerous layers of deerskin clothing make them nearly as broad as they are tall. The reindeer is not only the chief source of clothing but also the chief means of Ostyak transportion. And raw reindeer meat is one of their principal foods. Corn at Beresov, Tobolsk Province, Siberia, Station A B's "program" is melodious even if the less imaginative might merely call it "interference."

Old forts in the Beresov region recall the days when the Ostyaks were a well organized race that for many years staved off Russian aggression in western Siberia. Since they were conquered the race has disintegrated and through trade and intermarriage with the Russians, their language is rapidly disappearing.

If you could put brains into a snow man's head he'd want some of our warm winter clothing.

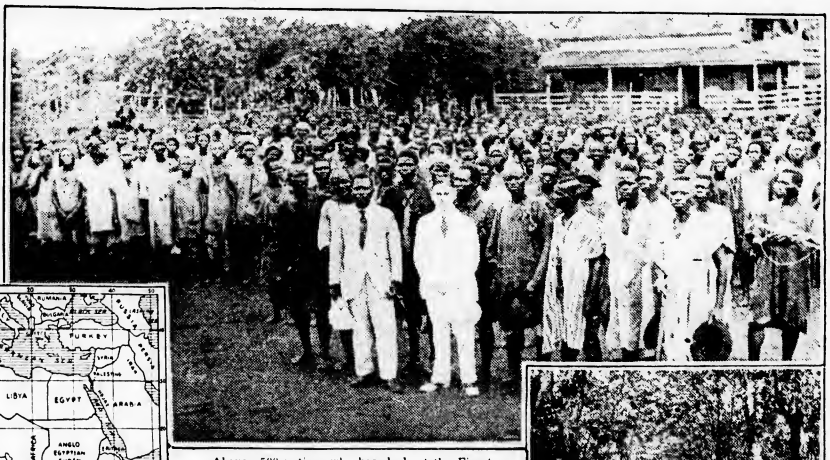
AMERICAN DEMAND FOR RUBBER OPENS AFRICAN EMPIRE

Progress of Plan to Create Our Own Source of Supply in Liberia Foreshadows Freedom from Foreign Control

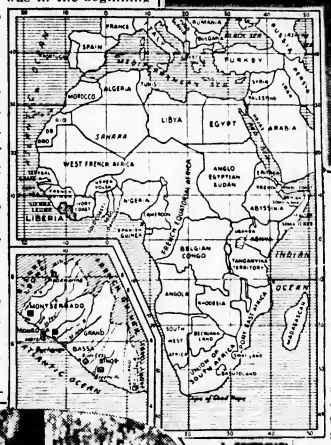
The business of building a new empire in Africa is well advanced. American energy and American methods are converting one corner of that primitive world into something like a miniature America. Before long the far land of Liberia will have modern schools, power plants, motor roads, chain stores and other familiar institutions of American life. Already our movies afford the natives a glimpse of us at home. Engineers, agricultural specialists, medical men and more of many crafts make up this army of empire builders. All of this is possible because, for the first time in the march of the centuries, organized progress has come to a land that endures almost as it was in the beginning.

Even the name of Liberia falls strangely upon the ear in this hurrying world of ours. But the man with a smattering of his geography still in mind will recall that the country lies a degree or two above the equator, almost at the western tip of Africa. If his history is as clear as his geography he will remember that Liberia was the first and continues to be the greatest of the negro republics. Colonized a hundred years ago by some of our freed slaves, it was soon to become the scene of the black man's original experiment in self government.

That he has justified many hopes is proved by the position of Liberia today, a country stirred by the touch of Western progress. Its resources are a guarantee of future development. Politically it is well established. When the League of Nations convenes Liberia has a seat at the round table. Relations with our own country have been especially close; in fact Liberia looks to America as its best friend. But in spite of old ties and natural friendship, we never took an active part in Liberian development until the last year or two.



Above—500 natives who heard about the Firestone development and walked from the interior for 10 days to obtain work on a Firestone Plantation. They have just been examined and vaccinated by doctors and are ready to go to work.



Left—Liberia's place in Africa and (in the smaller map) the Firetsone concessions, which are indicated by the black areas.

Mature rubber trees on Firestone Plantations in Liberia.

Thus the little republic founded under such stress has gone along its way, doing as best it might. Beginning with nothing, a great deal has been accomplished. Descendants of the colonizers have brought a measure of civilization to the 2,000,000 natives. But the task was a huge one indeed and progress limited to the means at hand. Doubtless the history of Liberia, of all western Africa, would have continued its slow evolution if the needs of modern America had not turned interest that way.

Indirectly the automobile was destined to alter the course of history. With the automobile came the world need for rubber. Although this precious substance was first found in the Amazon valley, control and development long since passed to the Middle East, where British and Dutch planters now raise practically the whole supply. In an effort to "corner" this supply the British government passed a restriction measure that has cost the American automobilist untold millions since 1922.

Apparently there was no means of relief; certainly no early relief. It takes five years for a rubber tree to become productive and such trees can be cultivated only within a few degrees of the equator. Seemingly the American consumer could do nothing but pay the bill. Yet there was something that might be done. Harvey S Firestone, president of the Firestone Tire & Rubber Company, sat down in his private office at Akron, Ohio, and wondered now he should undertake the job.

Mr. Firestone was one of the pioneers in tire manufacture. He probably knows as much about the subject as any other man. And he reasoned that the increasing need for rubber meant complete surrender to foreign growers unless a new source could be found. But how to find it? The answer involved a world search of more than two years, which ended in Liberia. Climate, soil, government, people—everything invited to the biggest industrial enterprise known to western Africa. It really is much more than that—the conversion of the primitive.

In this way the empire builders turned eastward, instead of westward, as the course of empire has been said to travel. They were a force of young men, carrying surveyors' chains; of young doctors, bearing their instruments; of experts in soils, digging everywhere; of trained "rubber men" and every trade needed to hew the empire from its pristine fastness. Surely American business never knew a richer romance. Not since the winning of the west have we engaged in such an enterprise. Where the west was won by many men, a generation of men engaged in a national effort, the new empire is to be the creation of a single organization.

Once convinced Liberia met American needs Mr. Firestone launched the undertaking with a vigor that has accomplished much in a short time. The beginning was not made without ominous predictions. Voices overseas and at home pronounced the climate "impossible," the labor supply undependable, the plan visionary. Yet the facts were plain enough. Climate, soil, government, people, were friendly. Only that long five years lay between the first planting and the first rubber. Then the Firestone plantations would be a whole month nearer to New York than the Middle East rubber ports. An American-owned American-raised supply would replace one arbitrarily controlled, subject to foreign dictation at any time.

Inspecting opening up of groove in rubber tree to facilitate flow of Latex.

It is now almost two years since the rubber pioneers went into Africa. They took over 2,000 acres of trees planted some years before, a plantation that has yielded well. This small acreage merely proved the possibilities of the Liberian concession, granting 1,000,000 acres anywhere in the republic's boundaries. The real task was to locate suitable plantations and get them started toward cultivation.

The statement conveys no hint of the difficulties. We must think of a country without railroads, highways or river craft big enough to serve any worth while purpose. A few miles from the coast lies the jungle; the jungle that was in the beginning of time, a place of mystery, vast depths unknown things. It even encroaches down to the coast, awaiting the white man, ready to mock him.

Into this jungle went the "rubber men." They ventured two years ago, but the span of their effort is hardly longer than a year. And a monumental year it has been, filled with achievement, golden in promise. So far they have established two plantations. One of them includes 50,000 acres about forty miles from the Liberian capital of Monrovia, a city named for our own President, James Monroe. This plantation on the Du River has a flourishing American town as its center.

The visitor might think himself in any typical western camp of the "boom" days. But it is rather better than a "boom" camp. A central power plant supplies light and current and operates a refrigeration and pumping system for the community. The American staff has a recreation field and comfortable quarters, living in the counterpart of American bungalows transplanted to Africa. A hospital serves American and native workers; hygiene goes hand in hand with industry. Here it is that the American staff comes in the evening to read last month's papers and talk about home. But their new home is not so very different from those left behind in America. It is not hard to foresee gravel streets and traffic policemen for this town by the Du. Already a system of chain stores operated in connection with the larger enterprise supplies every need that one may have in a far land. Things like American soap, tooth paste matches that really strike, with hundreds of other incidentals necessary to the art of living, can be bought over the counter on the Du as easily as on Main Street. In the past Liberia's cost of living has been somewhat high. English and Dutch traders have set the prices just about as they pleased and always with a liberal profit to themselves. The new stores will soon make it possible to buy almost any ordinary article at American prices. This intervention has been of wide benefit to the Liberian population.

Laying out a rubber plantation involves more human effort than any simple description could convey. First the land must be cleared of its great old trees and undergrowth. Then comes the burning and the stumping—just as a farmer clears new ground. Next the ground must be levelled and prepared for planting. After overcoming these varied difficulties the American forces have planted 15,000 acres within the year, a record for any organization in any country.

Five years from this writing the rubber seedlings will be sizable trees, and the rubber fluid (latex) will soon be converted into tires for the American automobilist, right from his own farm, so to speak. Next year it is hoped to raise the record several notches higher. But how many years will be required to plant 1,000,000 acres is a matter that nobody guesses about. The point of importance was planting the first 15,000—a long step toward the greater goal.

About 150 miles from the Du plantation is the second big field of operation, at Cape Palmas, twenty-five miles inland on the Cavalla River. Although the average cleared and the organization engaged is somewhat smaller this operation practically duplicates the other. Additional plantation will be established and each time there must be stores, power plants, hospitals and all the other essentials of life—created in the wilderness.

With both of the new plantations on rivers, but considerably removed from one another, it became necessary to join their activities by water transportation. The first of the Firestone fleet is the Duvalla, a hundred-foot schooner to ply along the coast. Others will follow as needed and the day seems not far distant when a trans-Atlantic service aust be opened. Progress has arrived in Liberia; the past gives way rapidly to the present.

The staff of Americans carrying on this empire building has direction of 15,000 natives, a number certain to be largely increased as the work has hardly begun. Every article used in development up to this time has been transported thousands of miles. Scarcely a tool could be bought in the country. Each nail and screw had to be brought from home. In the work of hygiene these problems are multiplied and intensified. Everyone knows that tropical countries have a large quota of diseases. Liberia is more fortunate than many, though beset by common ailments. A Firestone endowment fund granted to Harvard University has made it possible for Dr. A. W Sellards of the Tropical School of Medicine to study the Liberian problem. Instruction in hygiene, fever control, adequate hospitals are in prospect.

For some time American missionaries have contributed largely to education, as their funds and workers made it possible. But a comprehensive plan was needed, beginning with the youngest youngster and advancing to the adult. Representative educators and organizations are cooperating to that end. Meanwhile the Firestone interests have sent an experienced vocational instructor to Liberia for the purpose of establishing such education. The present year should see the first of the trade schools founded.

All observers agree that the Liberian native is reliable in character and quick to learn the white man's ways. The possibilities of uplifting the native population are considered exceptionally favorable. Each step lays its own special burden on the pioneers. Text books have been prepared for elementary instruction, covering the principles of physiology, arithmetic, geology and a suggestion of history. This instruction must be fitted to the native mind. Suppose we should tell a native child that Jack Frost came in the night and blew his breath on the window pane. That would be a meaningless bit of pleasantry as the Liberian youngster never heard of Jack Frost or saw his breath frosted on the glass or even a window pane itself.

One by one these difficulties are being overcome. Hardly any other enterprise of this scope ever advanced so far with such good fortune. We may instantly recall the first failure at the Panama Canal, followed by the struggle of later years later years to complete "the big ditch." Or we may think of the first tunnel under the Alps. We have yet fresh in mind our difficulties in the Philippines, in Porto Rico. Never before has an American industry undertaken foreign pioneering on anything like this scale. It is empire building in the first person singular.

This latter day pioneering goes forward in the way of a big business enterprise. It is just another department of the industry. One of these days radio communication will be opened between Liberian plantations and the Akron factory. Then the head of the business may well say to his operator, "Just get Mr. Jones for me if he is in his office down on the Du." If Mr. Jones himself cannot be transported by any sort of magic we know, yet his words, his thoughts, his personality can be whisked across those thousands of miles by the magic of the speaking wave.

It is interesting to note that the Liberian government has embarked upon a series of improvements, along with those of private enterprise. The pioneers, having laid miles of good roads and planning many more, are encouraged to find the government working upon a system of its own. Then we may expect the busy motor car to flit along African roads in the way that we see it on our own. This public and private co-operation extends to education and public works of many kinds. The leaven is at work, Liberia is on the move.

Here, then, behold the miracle that rubber wrought. If it had not been for the automobile there would have been no need of tires. Without tires there could have been no vast store of wealth in Eastern rubber. Then we should have had no British restriction act and no occasion to open the latest empire. But since each of these things had to be in the course of progress it has brought much good of light, of the new day to a far land.

During the week Harvey S. Firestone, Jr., who has personal direction of the Liberian development, sailed for Monrovia on a tour of inspection. Mr. Firestone expects to return in about two months, ready to carry on and broaden the undertaking.

While in Liberia, Mr. Firestone will travel by the company's own ship, visiting the several plantations and other sites considered favorable for planting. It is hoped to improve upon the record of 1927 in the year to come. Rubber trees already set out in the first stage of operation are reported as making rapid progress, which encourages the belief that production from the trees will easily begin within the 5-year period. The area cleared in 1927 was about 20,000 acres and the 5,000 acres yet to be planted will soon come under cultivation. Other extensive areas are to be cleared during the coming season and planting pushed forward with all possible speed.

Mr. Firestone will not only inspect and organize the field force, but expects to give special attention to the task of supplying this force through the stores now being established. This later enterprise presents enough problems to keep any man busy. It takes a nice judgment to know what sorts of hairpins should be ordered for the Liberian trade, along with the thousand and one articles demanded by natives and Americans. As the stores develop their plan of operation, they will handle almost any article that can be bought in a five and ten-cent store at home, added to thousands of necessary articles sold by the hardware dealer, the druggist and the grocer. In effect, they will be department stores transplanted, on a smaller scale.

An effort to introduce hygiene and medicine also will come under Mr. Firestone's attention. So far the undertaking has been attended by little sickness among the white force and precautions will be taken to maintain this record. It is also hoped to improve the surroundings of the native workers and to gradually instruct them in benefits of sanitation. As they are a people quick to learn, this hope seems well founded. The medical staff looks to the health of all hands at all times.

Considered from any standpoint, the Liberian development has been well launched and the day of production on a broad scale is a matter of time. The steps taken, having been laid so far towards the goal, it only remains to intensify efforts and bring every acre under cultivation that the field force is able to clear. That force will be increased in the next year as rapidly as the administrative staff can train and accommodate native workers. The 15,000 acres already planted should be measurably increased before another January.

During Mr Firestone's stay overseas, he will be accompanied by a moving picture operator who is to take a nature record of this adventure in empire building. Films will show a range of Liberian activities; how the natives live and work, the character of the country and the jungles, its towns and homes. Rubber planting in its many stages opens another interesting subject. Glimpses of the country's wild life will be shown upon the screen. There are mountains to be filmed, jungle rivers and their strange denizens, the remote tribes that have hardly more than seen a white man. Here is an opportunity worthy of the camera. This old globe of ours has but a few spots left where we can encounter the primitive, the unknown. Such a land becomes fascinating indeed when the ax of the pioneer is ringing only a step behind the movie operator.

When it is remembered that Liberia's zoology, its plants and trees, are almost unknown to science, the value of such a film becomes apparent. Heretofore the country has not been examined to any great extent because of remote situation and the difficulty of penetrating its fastnesses. But the new day is bringing changes innumerable to Liberia. Before long its name should be familiar wherever the automobile goes, because a large number of the American people will be riding upon Liberian rubber.

Bird Natural Mimic

The biological survey says that a mocking bird's song is both natural and imitative. It has a good song of its own, but it is such an incessant mimic that it would rather imitate than sing its own song.

MELROSE GIRLS WON FROM WINCHESTER

The fast moving Melrose High girls' basketball team added Winchester to its list of victims last Friday afternoon in the local gymnasium taking Coach Wheeler's lassies into camp rather handily, 33—22.

The visitors were pretty much a one-player club built around Colbert, star right forward. With the exception of a single one-point basket and a foul goal, both scored by Tilley, the first named accounted for the entire Melrose tally, scoring 14 baskets from scrimmage and three goals from free tries. Despite the praiseworthy attempts of the Winchester defense to keep her covered this Colbert girl was constantly breaking clear for shots at the net, shots which she missed but seldom. She was by far the fastest forward Winchester has seen this year.

Coach Wheeler made a change in her starting lineup, placing Helen MacKinnon at jumping center instead of Mary Cutter and Frances Pettingell at Mary O'Donnell's guard. The Marys both saw service, however, before the close of the game.

During the first quarter the play was very close, Melrose having a single basket advantage going into the next period at 10—8. The visitors drew away during the second quarter and left the floor at half time in front, 21—14. The local girls almost held Melrose even during the third quarter, scoring 6 to the visitors' 7 points.

The final eight minutes of the game were very closely contested, but Melrose just held its lead, counting a basket and foul to Winchester's single basket. Colbert was the star of the game with Virginia Merrill doing most of Winchester's scoring. The local guards, Marie Merrill and Frances Pettingell, also played well for the losers.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

Since 1924 there has been a steady decline in drunkenness. New recruits to drinking are fewer each year. Welfare workers have almost unanimously been won to the side of prohibition by the results they have seen. They emphasize the fact that reduction of drunkenness since 1924 has come in spite of organized bootlegging and therefore presents a more significant condition than that which followed the temporary stopping of liquor in 1920. Massachusetts Society for prevention of Cruelty to Children handles 5000 cases each year. In 1916 intemperance was a factor in abuse of 48 per cent. In 1927 in only 17 per cent. Facts gathered by Dr. Haven Emerson of Columbia College of physicians and surgeons state that juvenile delinquency in Massachusetts has fallen off 50 per cent since prohibition. Average age of almshouse inmates is now nearly 20 years older than it was 10 years ago. We have no more "snow birds." People who used to spend their winters in the almshouse and leave with the return of spring.

Cases of chronic alcoholism requiring beds in State Hospitals have so diminished that the State has converted one institution into a Cancer Hospital and is building its new State prison on the abandoned site of another.

Doctor Emerson has given this matter serious study and consideration: he says, "There has been improved production in industry an almost entire absence of the serious Monday and holiday slackening of production due to alcoholism!"

He finds that the savings bank deposits increased in Fall River to exactly the sum of the previous drink bill of that community.

Facing all these facts, members of the W. C. T. U. believe more firmly than ever that prohibition even though poorly enforced is still the best method of dealing with the liquor problem.

Regular meeting of the local union will be held in the Parish House parlor of the First Congregational Church on Friday, Feb. 17 at 2:30 p. m.

WINCHESTER OUTCLASSED READING

Showed Best Basketball of Season to Defeat Rival for Titular Honors

Winchester High won its Middlesex League basketball game with Reading High last Friday evening in the local gymnasium, outclassing the boys from up north, 28—12. The largest crowd of the season, nearly 500 fans, packed the gymnasium floor and balcony to capacity. Many were turned away for lack of room.

In view of the previous meeting of the two clubs, when Winchester was returned a victor by a single basket, a real battle was expected Friday evening, but those who expected an exciting game were doomed to disappointment. Winchester was on top of Reading like a tent.

The evening was not devoid of interest. The smooth floor work and excellent passing of Coach Mansfield's boys were well worth watching. The locals gave their very best exhibition of the season and the visitors never could get started. During the three quarters that the Winchester varsity was on the floor Reading got only one shot at the local net and scored a grand total of but three points, all from free tries.

McNeil broke the ice for Winchester with a floor basket but Weeks kept Reading in the race with a shot from a free try. Knowlton then sunk both efforts on a double foul and Herb Ross chucked one in from the floor following the tap off. White made both ends of a double foul good for Reading, the last points for the visitors until the final quarter of play. Halwartz shot a floor goal as the quarter closed with Winchester in front, 8—3.

Starting the second quarter Knowlton, McNeil and Halwartz scored baskets in quick succession and Reading asked for time out. Ross scored once more for Winchester before the half, Winchester leaving the floor on the long end of a 15—3 rating.

The baskets which the locals were scoring were legitimate and were scored after the boys had worked the ball up the floor by means of excellent passing. Their floor work was pretty to watch. The local guards were covering very closely and Reading a good club, just couldn't get started.

Following half time Reading inserted Horton and Phillips into the fray, replacing Dukelow and White. The first named second team players had their long shots with reckless abandon during the battle between the Jay-Vee outfits, and the Reading coach felt that they might turn the tide for his club.

Knowlton got the first basket for Winchester during the third quarter on a pretty double pass effort with Ray Halwartz. "Henny" then sunk a foul basket and retired in favor of "Barney" Murphy. Ross caged one from the floor as the quarter ended.

Winchester was completely dominating the situation as the final quarter began. Ross scored twice in quick succession and McNeil chucked a third from scrimmage before Coach Mansfield decided to give his first group a rest.

Kendrick and A. Amico went in at the forward berths with Simonds at center and Knowlton re-entered the fray, replacing G. Amico at right guard. A. Amico got a floor goal at once but before this group had gotten settled down to play basketball Reading sprawed up a bit and tallied nine points. Canty got three baskets and Phillips one. Burns adding the final point to a shot from a free try.

With about a minute and a half to go Coach Mansfield returned his regulars to the game and Reading's scoring ceased abruptly. Winchester also failed to tally again before the final whistle.

Between the halves the Reading seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 23—12. The clubs were tied at the half, 7—7, but a number of long shots by Horton and Phillips in the second stanza decided the issue. It was the first defeat in a league match for the local seconds this year.

The summary of the first team game follows:

NOTED EDUCATOR TO ADDRESS CONGREGATIONAL MEN'S CLUB FEB. 23

Dr. Payson Smith, our State Commissioner of Education, will address the Congregational Men's Club Thursday evening, Feb. 23.

The leadership of Doctor Smith in the State during the past 10 or 12 years has been noteworthy. In fact, his admirable qualities of leadership have extended beyond our State boundaries so that he is a national and international figure in education. He is past president of the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association and is consulted on practically all important educational questions in this country. He is a most interesting speaker and will be one of the most appealing men which has addressed the Club for some time. A large audience is expected to hear him.

TO THE HONORABLE THE JUDGES OF THE PROBATE COURT IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX:

RESPECTFULLY libels and represents Florence A. Baker of Cambridge in the County of Middlesex that she was lawfully married to Willis H. Baker now of Brooklyn, New York at Boston in our County of Suffolk on the eighteenth day of December A. D. 1923, and thereafter your libellant and the said libellee lived together as husband and wife in this Commonwealth, to wit: at said Boston and last lived together at said Boston that your libellant has always been faithful to their marriage vows and obligations, but the said libellee being wholly regardless of the same, at said Boston on or about the first day of February, 1924 utterly deserted your libellant and has continued such desertion to the date hereof being more than three consecutive years next prior hereto.

That no previous libel for divorce or petition or libel for nullity or petition for separate support has been brought by either of the parties hereto.

That there have been born to them no children.

Wherefore your libellant prays that a divorce from the bond of matrimony between your libellant and the said libellee be decreed.

Dated this first day of February A. D. 1928.

"THE OPTIMIST" PLEASED LARGE CROWD

Clever Comedy Well Given by Local Odd Fellows and Rebekahs

The Waterfield Dramatic Club, an organization composed of local Odd Fellows and Rebekahs, made its initial bow to Winchester lovers of amateur theatricals last Friday evening when it presented "The Optimist," a comedy in three acts, in the Town Hall. There was a most appreciative audience of large size.

In every respect the effort was notable. "The Optimist," produced by special arrangement with Walter H. Baker Company of Boston, proved a happy vehicle for a most capable cast, crowded as it was with action and abounding with unusual situations and clever dialogue. It was one of the best shows seen in Winchester for some time.

Its plot centered about the adventures of "Jimmie" Maynard, who to overcome the objections of Mrs. Clinton to his marriage with her daughter, Mildred, obtains a position with one Isaac Golditch, a dealer in imitation antiques and a great favorite with the obdurate lady. His first sale is that of a mummy to his prospective mother-in-law, a mummy purchased to provide atmosphere for a masquerade and seance which Mrs. Clinton is to give at her home. Unfortunately Golditch is unable to fill the order, so after some deliberation "Jimmie" consents to impersonate the mummy, with the idea that once in the Clinton home he will elope with his Mildred. He is to be aided and abbetted by a good natured rival for Mildred's hand, Ray Hudson, who is to remove him from his wrappings when the real mummy arrives and produce a costume for his getaway. Real complications arise when Golditch fails to produce the mummy and the unfortunate "Jimmie" is forced to go through with his stunt in good earnest. While furnishing the "atmosphere" for Mrs. Clinton's seance the victim of circumstances is siezed with a bright idea and in a deep sepulchral voice urges the stubborn mother to remove any objection she might have to the union of her daughter with that splendid fellow, "Jimmie" Maynard. Deeply interested in spiritualism and believing herself listening to advice from a long departed spirit, Mrs. Clinton readily gives her consent and leaves the room without discovering that she has been the victim of a clever hoax. The play is brought to the usual happy ending.

From first until last "The Optimist" was given a spirited and finished presentation by a particularly adequate cast. The leading parts of Isaac Golditch, "Jimmie" Maynard, Mildred Clinton, Mrs Clinton and Ray Hudson were well handled respectively by Walter Fancie, Clifford Mobbs, Miss Agda Lundberg, Mrs. Arzilla Higgins and Carl Morse. Unusually fine was the work of Mr. Mobbs who while impersonating the mummy was forced to stand almost motionless, wrapped tightly in bands of cloth from head to foot, for well over an hour.

Harris Parker, Arthur Cameron and Mrs. Alice Huber brought real life and much humor to the character roles of Pietro D'Angelo Caccialino, Mike and Maggie. The first named was especially good as the excitable Italian who was striving to learn English from contact with people in the street.

J. Albert Hersey as Spencer, a most efficient detectives and Miss Edith Johnson as Madame Goopher, a dispenser of spirits, were excellent as were Miss Edna Ralph, Mrs. Lillian Donaghey and Miss Jessie Nauffts in the minor parts of Becky, Miss Hull and Ethel Peabody. The impersonation of Miss Hull, a most sophisticated interior decorator, by Mrs. Donaghey was especially worthy of praise.

"The Optimist" was directed and staged under the personal direction of Charles J. Harrold, popular local coach, who has done nothing better in the Town Hall for some years.

Between the acts music was furnished by Ives Orchestra under the direction of T. Parker Clarke, the same musicians playing for the dancing which followed the show and continued until 1 o'clock Saturday morning.

Candy was sold during the evening under the direction of Mrs. Ralph Sims by Mrs. Bert Gurley, Miss Lizzie Johnson, Miss Vera Bickford, Miss Marion Dyson and Miss Martha Everson. Robert H. Hamilton served as head usher assisted by George Smith, Gustave Nelson, Stanley W. Mobbs, Walter Stewart, Charles Forsythe, Frederick Chandler and Frederick S. Mitchell. The box office was in charge of Ralph W. Hatch.

The cast in order of appearance follows:

Isaac Golditch, antiquer of the Golditch Art Shop ..... Walter Fancie
Becky, his daughter ..... Edna Ralph
Pietro D'Angelo Caccialino expert worm hoer ..... Harris Parker
Jimmie Maynard, the poor stiff ..... Clifford Mobbs
Mildred Clinton, who is in love and likes it ..... Agda Lundberg
Mrs. Clinton, why mother-in-law jokes are true ..... Mrs. Frank Higgins
Mike, just what his name suggests ..... Arthur Cameron
Ray Hudson, a friend in need, but scarcely ..... Carl Morse
Miss Hull, interior decorator ..... Mrs. Clarence Donaghy
Maggie, not green for "greenness" wears off, so call her stupid ..... Mrs. Elmer Huber
Ethel Peabody, who defies love to affect her ..... Jessie Nauffts
Spencer, a paid guest ..... J. Albert Hersey
Madame Goopher, dispenser of spirits ..... Edith Johnson
Guests at the Ball They are Seen During Act 1 In the Golditch Art Shop.
During Act 2—In Mrs. Clinton's Home. Afternoon.
During Act 3—Still at Mrs. Clinton's. The next evening.

French African Colony

The Ivory coast is a French West African possession situated between Liberia and the British Gold coast. Its area is 121,976 square miles and it has a population of 1,545,680, of whom 1,053 are Europeans.

Shrew Needs Much Food

Smithsonian Institution says that the shrew, for its size, eats a greater amount of concentrated foods than any other mammal. If deprived of food it will die of starvation within half a day.

Mascots of Long Ago

Though mascots are popular, it is a mistake to suppose that they are a modern idea. Their origin dates back to the dawn of history. Helen of Troy, according to the legend had a golden snake which she took with her for luck wherever she went. The recent discoveries in the tombs of the kings of Egypt point to the possibility of mascots being favored by the queens of the pharaohs.

Gulf Stream Visible

In the narrowest part of the channel off Cape Florida, the Gulf stream approaches the coast to within 15 miles and is sometimes visible from the shore. The breadth of the Gulf stream at its narrowest point is about 50 miles. There is no disturbance at the edge of the stream where it joins the ocean. It is easily distinguished, however, by reason of its deep blue color.

Restoring Faded Writing

Faded writing may be restored in the following manner: Lay the paper flat and dampen it evenly with cold water. Brush over the writing with a camel's hair brush dipped in a solution of ammonia, and the writing will appear plain and readable. Fresh applications are necessary on ordinary writing paper.

Wood for Tobacco Pipes

The root used in making tobacco pipes and commonly called briar is not the root of a briar but of a tree found near the Mediterranean in southern Europe. The name of the tree is the French word "bryer," and the English name briar is a corruption of the French word.

Seeing Others' Viewpoint

The capacity to look on both sides of a question is the attribute of all full-minded men and women. Stubbornness is merely the mark of the tyrant. The refusal to budge from a position once taken up, or to admit that there can be any other view than one's own, is mere stupidity.—Exchange.

Oysters

An oyster lays about 60,000,000 eggs a year. If just one oyster were left alone by all and sundry, says Professor Luff, until it had great-great-grandchildren, their shells would make a pile eight times the size of the earth. Fortunately, the infant mortality rate among oysters is very high.

Mr. William H. Keeler of Holton road suffered the loss of his father, Frank Taylor Keeler, who died Monday morning at his home in Everett. The deceased was born in 1854 in New York State and attended the University of Vermont. He was for more than 60 years an editor and printer, editing the Rutland, Vt., Telegram, Burlington, Vt., Free Press, Manchester, N. H. Telegram and founding the Somerville Reporter and Chelsea Free Press. His Chelsea plant was destroyed at the time of the big Chelsea fire. Later he became associated with the Everett Herald making his home in that city for 25 years. Besides Mr. Keeler, he leaves a wife, three daughters and three sons.

At midnight Tuesday as Angus McFeeley of 8 Westley street was driving a Ford roadster east out of Westley street to go south on Washington street the machine skidded and ran into a telegraph pole. The car was badly damaged but McFeeley was uninjured.

A Ford sedan owned and operated by Arthur H. Borthack of 7 Vancouver street, Boston, and an Auburn sedan, owned by Sarkis Berberian of 66 Highland avenue and driven by Mikron Berberian of 7 Lyden street, Stoneham, were in collision Sunday forenoon at the junction of Main street and the Parkway. The Ford was going south on Main street and the Auburn, east on the Parkway. Both cars were damaged, the Ford being tinped competely over and badly smashed. No one was injured.

The Fire Department made three runs during Monday afternoon. The first call came at 12:15 to put out a grass fire at the corner of Hancock and Washington streets. At 6:11 there was a brush fire demanding attention in the rear of Mr. Arthur H. Beyer's residence on Washington street. At 7:34 in the evening the firemen made a hurried trip to Winchester Station where a chimney fire had been reported. There was no damage.

Grafton Abbott of Winchester, president of the Boston Branch of the American Association of University Women, is to be one of the speakers at the dinner to be held Friday evening in the University Club as one of the features of the second biennial conference of the North Atlantic section of the association which opened in Boston yesterday. Several educators of note are scheduled to address the delegates.

The Star received this week a letter from Mr. Edward E. Thompson, formerly principal of the Winchester High School and now a member of the faculty at Oak Park High School in Oak Park, Ill. Mr. Thompson writes that he looks forward each week to the arrival of the Star as the tie which binds himself and his family to Winchester. There are many in town, including his former pupils, who remember Mr. Thompson with a feeling of affection. They will be glad to know that he still has a warm place in his heart for Winchester.

Mr. Samuel Mathews of this town returned Wednesday evening to his studies for the priesthood at St. Joseph's Seminary, Baltimore, after spending some time with his parents Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Mathews of Lincoln street.

FUNERAL RITES FOR COLEMAN FLAHERTY TUESDAY

Winchester Man Lost Life in Explosion at Beacon Oil Plant in Everett

Funeral services for Coleman Flaherty, 47, who lost his life in the explosion at the Everett plant of the Beacon Oil Company last Friday afternoon, were held from his late residence, 71 Nelson street, Tuesday morning. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan, with Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, sub-deacon. The church was taxed to its utmost capacity and the floral tributes numbered more than 100 pieces. Delegations were present from the Beacon Oil Company and from Winchester Court, Massachusetts Catholic Order of Foresters.

Three brothers-in-law of the deceased, Daniel O'Leary of Winchester, John Shaugnessy of Woburn and Michael Madden of Somerville, with three nephews, Joseph Flaherty of Woburn, John Flaherty of Winchester and Michael Flaherty of Charlestown, served as pallbearers. Members of the M. C. O. F. led by Selectman Thomas F. Fallon escorted the remains from the home to the church and following the mass to the grave in Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Father Sullivan.

The explosion which cost Mr. Flaherty his life took place shortly after 3 o'clock Friday afternoon when two low pressure oil stills at the plant of the Beacon Oil Company in Everett blew up, causing the death of 13 men, injuring 50 and doing damage estimated at $75,000.

Members of the Winchester man's family with his friends were at first reassured by the fact that his work at the plant kept him at a considerable distance from the area where the explosion took place. Later when he was reported as missing it was believed that he was aiding in the rescue work going on.

Shortly after midnight when no news of Mr. Flaherty had been received his brother, John Flaherty, driver of Combination A at the Central Fire Station, left for the Beacon Oil plant in search of the missing man.

Upon his arrival he questioned several officials and workmen, the information received convincing him that his brother, Coleman, had perished. Later at the improvised morgue Fireman Flaherty was able to identify the body of Coleman among the nine then in the establishment, though all were badly burned. A brother-in-law, Michael Madden of Somerville, and Martin Hanley of Somerville later identified the body. Saturday morning several others were able to establish the identity beyond doubt and the body was taken in charge by Undertaker Eugene P. Sullivan of Winchester who removed it to the Flaherty home

Coleman Flaherty was born in Ireland, the son of Coleman and Margaret (Costello) Flaherty. He came to this country as a boy and had made his home in Winchester for about 35 years. He was educated in the Winchester Schools and from 1905 until 1912 served in the U. S. Navy, being honorably discharged as a fireman, first class. He was a former member of the Winchester Fire Department.

During the war Mr. Flaherty was employed at the Merrimac Chemical Company in North Woburn, leaving to accept a position with the Beacon Oil Company at the Everett plant five years ago. For the past two years he had been a plant foreman and was sent with two workmen by the superintendent to do some special work in the area destroyed by the explosion shortly before the catastrophy occurred. Two years ago he was badly burned in an explosion at the same plant and was confined to a hospital in a critical condition for many months. He had returned to his position only a short time ago.

The deceased was widely known in Winchester. He was a member of Winchester Court, M. C. O. F. and of the Holy Name Society of St. Mary's Church. Surviving are his wife, who was Miss Mary Madden, a daughter, Christine, aged 5; and a son, John, aged 9. Three brothers, Martin of Woburn, John of Winchester and Michael Flaherty, living in Ireland, also survive him.

ADDED PERFORMANCE NECESSARY

Winchester Teachers Presented "The Pirate's Daughter" Twice

A most gratifying interest prompted the Winchester Teachers' Club to give an added performance Monday evening in the Wyman School Hall of "The Pirate's Daughter," a musical comedy in three acts by George M. Brown, Dorothea Bassett and Keith C. Brown. The hall was taxed to its capacity both on Monday evening and at the premiere last week Thursday. All who saw the show were enthusiastic and it is of especial interest that Mr. Brown, co-author of the production who was a guest at the second performance, spoke highly of the work of the local cast.

With but one exception the entire personel of the cast was recruited from teachers and officials of the Winchester School Department. Mr. Joseph Birchall of Reading was introduced to play the part of Peter-Prefect of Police. The various roles were well played, in fact, they were so uniformerly well taken that the work of no particular player stood out above his fellows. All were excellent.

The music of "The Pirate's Daughter" is catchy and was in all instances well sung by principals and chorus. The solo numbers, "Roses of Life," by Miss Lowry, "Watchman's Song" by Miss Holbrook, "Gossip Song" by Miss Knight and the duet numbers, "Katrinka" by Miss McAdams and Mr. Leary and "Love Waltz" by Miss Lemay and Mr. Birchall were particularly noteworthy; while Mr. Butters and his pirates were especially good in the music of Scene 2.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Since Rev. Benjamin P. Browne began his pastorate on Feb. 1, he has been greeted with large audiences in the morning and the evening congregation has begun to show a very promising increase.

He is making the evening service more popular in character, still retaining a strong evangelistic tone throughout it all. Being an accomplished singer himself, he makes the song service, assisted by a chorus very enthusiastic and inspiring. He is also a forceful preacher and his sermons are both practical and spiritual.

His topics for next Sunday are, "How can we make prayer unselfish," in the morning and "Running Past the Danger Signals," in the evening. At the evening service there will be a duet by Mr. and Mrs. Browne.

A new feature of the morning service is the Junior Congregation in charge of Mrs. Charles A. Burnham assisted by Miss Nellie L. Ralph. By means of this arrangement all parents can come to the morning service with their children. They will enjoy the sermonette preached by the pastor, after which they will be cared for by teachers in our kindergarten department. Refreshments will be served the children and they will have a good time playing with toys and at the sand table.

WINCHESTER GIRLS PLAY STONEHAM TODAY

This afternoon in the high school gymnasium the Winchester High School girls' basketball team will meet the sextette of Stoneham High at 3 o'clock. One of the most interesting and closely contested battles of the season should result, if the previous game between the two schools may be taken as a criterion. Winchester won a hair-line decision in Stoneham at Stoneham on that occasion, the score being 22 to 20. The visiting club is out to reverse this decision while the locals will give everything they have to prove that their former win was no fluke. Judging by the way Coach Wheeler's charges have been going in their past few games Stoneham will have plenty of trouble taking any scalps out of Winchester this afternoon. The locals will probably take the floor as follows: Capt "Sunny" Davis and Virginia Merrill, forwards; Mary Cutter, jumping center; "Dot" MacKenzie, side center; Marie Merrill and Francis Pettingell, guards.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Winchester Society turned out in large numbers last Friday evening to attend the cabaret held in the Town Hall under the auspices of the Unitarian Associates, which included the Ladies' Friendly Society, the Men's Club and the Young People's Society of the Unitarian Church.

William B. Wood was general chairman and was assisted by Mrs. W. J. Drisko. Others in charge of various activities were: Mrs. H. W. Hildreth, President of the Ladies' Friendly Society; Philip B. Sawyer, Mrs. Everett F. Kidder, Dr. John R. Wallace, Herbert Miller, Mrs. Herbert E. Stone, Mrs. George Goddu, Mrs. F. O. Mason, Arthur Kelley, Marjorie Hayden, George Hayden, D. F. Higgins, Mrs. Irving E. Gamage, Mrs. R. C. Orpin, Mrs. Harold F. Meyers, Mrs. Helen E. Barr, G. Russell Mann and S. W. H. Taylor. Sunday School teachers and boys and girls of the Young People's Society acted as ushers and served refreshments.

Tables were scattered around on the outside of the hall and it is estimated there were about 500 present. Music for dancing was furnished by Ives' Orchestra of eight pieces. The program was arranged for a regular schedule, taking in dancing and vaudeville acts. There was a little delay in starting, but afterwards events ran true to schedule. There was enough of dancing to suit all and the encores were fixed to fit the schedule. The vaudeville was varied and entertaining. Stanley Greenlaw, who has pleased Winchester audiences before, was interesting in his interpretation of the "Musical Saw" artist. His selections were rendered on a most novel instrument, a common carpenter's handsaw, the tones of which were soft and sweet. Mr. Greenlaw told us just how it could be done and we may expect some native musical saw artists. Bradford Hill and Frederick Belden in a musical novelty and dressed as regular farmers were local artists who should make good in a large way, judging by their work that evening. They showed versatility which was remarkable for young people. "Sam" Tyack gave several impersonations including "Tony Boots" "Ophelia Pulse" and "Izzy Human." His make-up and interpretations made him an outstanding character in his class. Miss Ulrich in a series of novelty dances was very pleasing. Too much praise cannot be given her for her fine work. Her first novelty dance was very fine but we liked her "dance beautiful," where she interpreted by flaming butterfly, the life of her three acts. Helen Barr, always popular with Winchester audiences, was in splendid voice and the beauty of its tone thrilled the audience with rapture. Her songs "Crosspaul" "Kiss Me Again" and Irving Berlin's "The Song is Ended" called forth long and loud applause and she was obliged to respond with several encores.

Of much interest was the Radio logue given by real members of WEEI. Among those in charge of announcers Arthur F. Edes and announcers Lewis E Whitcome and Hap Meyers. Mr. Edes also assisted Helen Barr in her dancing specialties and "Hap" read some letters which had been sent him at WEEI which were decidedly humorous.

We think the cabaret was a huge success.

Last Sunday was Recognition Sunday. Services were held in the church auditorium after the regular session. Herbert Miller, Superintendent of the Sunday School, was in charge and was assisted by Daniel Deane and Philip LeRoyer. Recognition cards were presented to those children who had a perfect attendance for the first half of the year. There were about 100 cards. The Sunday School is making a fine showing and much progress is being made. It now has an enrollment of 185 with an average attendance of 115. This is an increase of 5 per cent over the year ago. At the conclusion of the presentation of cards, Mr. Reed gave a short address to the children on "The Life of Lincoln."

On Feb. 27, the Bowdoin College Musical Club will give a concert in Metcalf Hall, under the auspices of the Men's Club at 8 p. m. There will be dancing afterwards. Bowdoin is noted for its musical attainments and we are sure of a rare treat in this entertainment. Open to the public. Bowdoin Alumni please take notice.

"THANK YOU CLUB" IN FIRST DANCE

The first annual dancing party of the Winchester "Thank You Club," an organization comprising 12 operators at the local telephone exchange, was held in Waterfield all, Tuesday evening.

The decorations and favors were all indicative of Valentine's Day, red and white crepe paper streamers and large and small hearts in profusion lending to the hall a most attractive appearance.

For some time a hustling committee had been at work upon the details of the dance and several members were introduced which were real novelties. An orchestra furnished intriguing music for the dancing and dainty refreshments were served during the evening. The large gathering present was most gratifying to the members of the club and especially to the committee in charge of the dance.

Miss Mary J. Kelley acted as chairman of the committee assisted by the Misses Marguerite McCarron, Kathryn Murphy, Gertrude Murphy, Irene Walden, Eva and Rose Veniot, Helen Rogers, Ruth Reynolds, Dorothy Smith, Mary O'Connor and Katherine Doyle.

CALUMET NOTES

Last Friday night's supper and bridge was a huge success. Although there were other entertainments in town which tended to draw some from us, there was, nevertheless, a large attendance. The supper provided by Arthur Dickson and his able corps of lieutenants consisted of roast beef, peas, escalloped potatoes, vegetable salad (Howard salad dressing), rolls, ice cream, cake, cakes—a very tempting menu. Gentlemen assisting Mr. Dickson were N. Hartford, Jr., Paul E. Hackett and Earl Goldsmith.

Bridge followed and prizes were taken by the following ladies: Mrs. Edward Jennings, Mrs. Carl Sittinger, Mrs. George Purrington, Mrs. R. K. Miller, Jr. and Mrs. William Davis. Gentlemen's prizes were taken by George F. Purrington, Ralph L. Purrington, E. E. Cameron, H. P. Bostwick and N. W. Purrington.

Chairman Barry of the bridge committee was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Dickson. Mrs. Walter Chamberlin and Mrs. C. F. Winship were very pleasing in their role of hospitality committee.

Everybody was delighted with the food and the quantity of it and the whole thing was one more evidence of the popularity of these affairs. It was a brilliant idea of the entertainment committee to foster the joint occasions of supper and bridge and their value has been proved in bringing members together as evidenced by the large crowd attending each time.

Tomorrow evening there will be the regular monthly roll-off for men, followed by refreshments. This time members will have a chance to pass in scores for three selective instead of three consecutive strings. This will give an opportunity to pick out your high ones.

Next Wednesday we shall celebrate our annual event in keeping open house on the occasion of Washington's Birthday. The chairman of the bowling committee informs us that there will be bowling from 10 until 5. According to our usual custom, members are very liable to bring a prize of some kind. This is a good way to show your enthusiasm and also to obtain a prize. No one will be allowed to roll for a prize unless they bring one. Don't forget to bring the children to their party which begins at 2:30. A fine entertainment has been prepared for them and they will be treated to refreshments. In the evening there will be a dance for adults.

On Monday, Feb. 27, we shall start the roll-off for the leading teams in Classes A and B in the men's tournament. It will be continued on March 1 and 6. By referring to your Winter Boston Pin Bowling Tournament schedule, you will note the following: At the close of the individual tournament the three leading teams in Sections A and B shall take part in a "World's Series" of three matches, on dates chosen by the bowling committee for prizes as follows:

Teams finishing first in each section shall roll off for first and second team prize.

Teams finishing second in each section shall roll off for third and fourth team prize.

Teams finishing third in each section shall roll off for fifth and sixth team prize.

We hope you are among the leading teams or at least above the bread line.

Members will do well to keep in mind the Leap Year Party on Wednesday, Feb. 29. It will be in charge of Mrs. William L. Little and a committee of ladies. The ladies, of course, will have their "night" and we hope there will be no wall flowers amongst the men. We shall give further particulars in next week's Star but please jot down the date on your calendar.

Regular ladies' monthly afternoon bridge took place last Tuesday afternoon. It was a Valentine Party and the decorations were along that lines. The party was in charge of Mrs. C Harold Smith and Mrs. Lucius Smith. Prizes were won by Mrs. E. Arthur Tuteln, Mrs. George Purrington, Mrs. Ernest D. Olsson and Mrs. William F. Eddefson. Mrs. Edward H. Merrill took the consolation prize.

Chairman Chase of the entertainment committee calls attention to the fact that members are privileged to invite town guests to these afternoon bridge affairs.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

The School Department was pleased with the excellent performances of "The Pirate's Daughter" presented by the Teachers' Club on Thursday evening, Feb. 9, and Monday evening, Feb. 13. Although it took much extra time for rehearsals for the members of the cast, still the members became much better acquainted with one another and showed an admirable spirit of co-operation in reaching a common end.

The total amount of school savings to date amounts to $37,558.29, with over 90 per cent of our pupils banking regularly each week.

Beginning Monday, Feb. 27, the Department of Superintendence of the National Education Association will begin their annual series of meetings in the Mechanics Building. One of the features of the program this year will be "Living Exhibits." These exhibits will be actual demonstrations of various teaching activities and will be held continuously through the sessions lasting four or five days. Winchester has been honored in being granted one of these "living exhibits." Eighteen or 20 of our fourth grade pupils with Miss Minnetta Jurgenson, one of our regular teachers, will go to Boston Monday morning, Feb. 27 and between 9:30 and 11 will demonstrate before superintendents coming from all parts of the United States how provision is made for individual differences by means of poetry. Our pupils will present their program before the most distinguished body of educators in this country and the Department is pleased that our pupils are so honored.

Mystic School

On Friday, the tenth of February, the fifth grade gave for its assembly, a meeting of its Book Club.

Gene MacDonald told the history of the club and its purposes. A short business meeting was conducted by the president, Ellen Rivinius. A program on "Lincoln and Washington" was announced by Natalie Stevens, the secretary.

Poem Washington's Birthday	Ellen Rivinius
Song Washington	Four Girls
Book Report The True Story of George Washington	Nancy Jackson
The Washington Monument	Told by Marjorie Linder
Poem O Captain! O Captain!	Nancy Hall
The Lincoln Memorial	Told by Judith Reed
Song Abraham Lincoln	Class

They had the pleasure of having Rev George H. Reed talk to the school on "Abraham Lincoln."

The program was ended with the flag salute and recitation of America.

Wadleigh School

The Wadleigh School held an assembly in the High School hall, Friday afternoon this week. The history department in charge of Miss M. Jane Davis gave a program designed to show the contributions that different historic groups have made to the upbuilding of America. The Lincoln Day Proclamation of Governor Fuller was read by Henry C. N. Anderson; and a poem "If I Should Carve a Lincoln" by David Mallock was recited by Henry Fitts. Both the girls' and the boys' glee clubs gave selections; the school orchestra played. In addition, there was part singing by the seventh and eighth grade.

The next meeting of the Wadleigh Parent-Teacher Association will be held jointly with the High School Parent-Teacher Association in the High School, Feb. 27 at 8 p. m. Mr. James J. Quinn, Superintendent of Schools will address the meeting on various proposed items in the annual budget affecting either or both schools. All parents are cordially invited.

MUSIC FEATURES OF THE FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Supplementing the work of the new pastor, Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne, of the First Bantist Church, the musical features of the service will be re-inforced by the assistance of the new quartet, which will be heard first on Sunday morning, Feb. 19, under the direction of Lanya Archambault Pintield, the organist and musical director.

The Music Committee consisting of Mrs. Edw. A. MacKinnon, chairman and Mrs. J. L. Estes have carefully chosen Miss Emilie Larsen as Soprano, Miss Pauline Siedoff as Contralto, Mr. Paul M. Dove as Tenor, and Mr. Winfield S. Hanson as Baritone.

Special attention will be given to harmonizing the musical program with the topics of the Pastor.

An additional feature of the evening service will be a chorus composed of a volunteer chorus under the able direction of Mrs. B. P. Browne. The chorus and congregational singing will be augmented by the use of the organ and piano combined, as a part of the Pastor's plan—to develop the SINGING CHURCH.

EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB

About 50 members attended the meeting and supper of the Epiphany Men's Club, held on Monday evening in the Parish House of the Church. Following the serving of the supper by a committee of ladies a brief business session was held, presided over by President E. S. Larned. Reports of committees working upon memorials for Rev. Murray W. Dewart and Henry King Fitts were heard and it was further voted to appoint a committee to draft resolutions upon the resignation of J. Albert Wilson, organist and Choirmaster at the Epiphany for nearly 20 years. The Rector, Rev. Truman Heminway, spoke briefly upon the life of and the inspiration afforded by Abraham Lincoln. The guest speaker of the evening was William B. Marsh, vice-president of the First National Bank of Boston, who delivered an interesting address upon "Foreign Operations of a Bank."

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Winchester Rotary held an "at home" last Thursday. True we did not have as many visitors as usual (not due to lack of attendance on the part of the latchstring) but we did have a very large proportion of our own members present; hence the "homey" feeling was there—a feeling which grows upon us as we meet week by week.

Loring has a keen eye for our attendance record, being of the opinion that there is plenty of room at the top. He brought out an over-size chart which he proposes to display at all of our regular meetings. This chart is so arranged that each man can see at a glance how he stands as a purchaser of lunch tickets, though he is not encouraged to think that this is the sole object of Rotary. It has been unofficially suggested that department charts be issued to "Pat" and "Roscoe."

And to furnish entertainment there was our own "Doc" Sheehy which is to say that we were entertained and well entertained. "Doc" talked about medicine, that is about various diseases and the medicine to counteract them. Being a modern up-to-date physician "Doc" devoted little time to the methods of our grandfathers. Instead he told us about germs, both the good and the evil. Very impressive was his presentation of the warfare which modern scientists are waging against diseases; how one by one the scourges of our ancestors have been fought and conquered; how the battle is still going on with unabated vigor and will go on until all malignant germs shall be under control.

Our annual convention comes in June. Advance notices have been broadcast. Now is the time to make plans to go. Are you thinking it over?

BASKETBALL TONIGHT

Winchester High will play its final basketball game of the season tonight in the high school gymnasium when it will oppose Belmont High in a Middlesex League engagement at 7:30.

REDFERN WINDOW UNVEILED SUNDAY IN FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

At the First Congregational Church last Sunday morning a new side-aisle window was unveiled in memory of Charles E. Redfern and Harriet M. Redfern, the gift of their children to the church. The window is known as a Pilgrim window. The upper medallion contains the figure of a Pilgrim father, and the lower medallion the figure of the Mayflower. The window is the second in a series of side-aisle windows to be placed in the church, and was executed by Reynolds Francis and Rohnstock, of Boston, who did the chancel windows and the Jones window. It is of the beautiful red and blue glass typical of the St. Chapel windows in Paris. At the exercises in connection with the unveiling, Dr. Chidley said in part:

It was about 1854 that William and Lucy Hughes Redfern came from Charlestown to make their home on Mystic avenue of this town. Their two boys, Barnett and Charles, attended the public school until it seemed necessary for them to discontinue their education and go to work. For a time Charles worked for Luther Symmes and when very young both Barnett and Charles entered the employ of the lumber firm of David N. Skillings who was then perhaps the most opulent citizen of Winchester. For 41 years Charles Redfern was engaged in the lumber business. In 1901 he became treasurer of the Winchester Savings Bank and remained until his death which took place in 1906.

Both sons were devoted to their father and mother, helping them to build a home on the spot where Mr. Lewis Parkhurst now lives, known as Oak Knoll. Mrs. Lucy Redfern, their mother, will be remembered by a few members of this church as a woman of resolution, great energy and executive ability and also for her love of plants and flowers. The life and religion of William, their father, were one and the same. His voice lifted in the Wednesday evening prayer meeting is not forgotten by his grandchildren.

When Charles was 30 he married Harriet McClellan of Bath, Me. Although she was an Episcopalian, she immediately identified herself with this church and supported its activities loyally throughout her happy married life of 33 years. In the early years Charles served as the superintendent of the Sunday School and was a deacon for a long time. As long as his health permitted he conducted a class in the large vestry, where all ages were accustomed to gather at the close of the Sunday morning service.

His four children brought up in this church remember with joy and gratitude the hour spent every Sunday morning directly after breakfast when their father saw to it that they did not start for church with their Sunday School lesson unprepared. Promptly when the church bell began to ring at quarter past 10, Charles Redfern started for church and the family were expected to accompany him. System and order were part of his makeup. "A place for everything and everything in its place," which he constantly practised, was one of his constant watchwords. It was his custom to devote a 10th of his income to benevolences. Ever firm but never stern with his children, generous and kindly in his attitude to all those with whom he came in contact, his life was ever an exponent of his Christian character and convictions.

Although his early education was greatly curtailed as he did not attend school after he was 12 years of age, his natural aptitude cultivated by extensive reading and a reflective mind made him a self-educated man. He could always repeat long passages of scripture which were a great comfort to him in times of sickness and anxiety.

Because of a heritage of happy memories associated with his church and a devoted father and mother their children are most glad to place in this church this window in memory of their father and mother, Charles and Harriet Redfern.

LOOK OUT FOR THE RADIATOR CAP

In this period of sudden changes of temperature, it behoves automobile drivers to take precautions when opening their radiator caps. Last Monday a driver stopped his car on Main street under the suspicion that his cooling system was not working properly. As he was wearing gloves he failed to notice the heat of his radiator cap as he unscrewed it, and as he stood directly over it with the intention of looking inside the radiator when opened, he got the full force of a cloud of steam and hot water when the cap flew into the air upon its release. For a time his condition appeared serious, for alcohol and hot water filled his eyes, while steam scalded his face. Fortunately he was wearing glasses, which helped much in protecting his eyes, but it was some time after being led into a nearby house that he recovered sufficiently to drive to his home.

Sudden warmth is as bad as cold in causing pressure in the radiator, and if you have any suspicion that your car is steaming, be careful when you unscrew the radiator cap. Should it fly up and hit you in the face it will leave a painful bruise to say the least and one may be badly scalded by hot alcohol and water.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL X-RAY DEPARTMENT

The X-ray department of the Winchester Hospital was started Nov. 1, 1924. On that date the elaborate X-ray machine given by Mr. and Mrs. B. R. Houghton of Stoneham as their contribution to the campaign drive of the spring of 1924, was installed and ready to be put into operation.

Dr. Robert G. Vance, Roentgenologist for the hospital, has been in charge of this department since its beginning. He is connected with the Huntington Memorial Hospital, the Massachusetts General Hospital and the Chelsea Memorial Hospital.

It is very fortunate for Winchester that Mr. and Mrs. Houghton desired to present the Winchester Hospital with their generous gift at that time. Fifteen hundred and forty-two patients have made use of the X-ray machine since its installation up to Jan. 1, 1928. In November 1924, 32 cases were treated and in November, 1927, 53 cases.

The X-ray machine has been located, like many in other hospitals, in improvised quarters wherever room could be found. The new addition to the hospital will provide adequate space for the X-ray work and suitable waiting rooms for the patients.

The need and value of an X-ray machine is shown from the following instances, taken from the many cases treated last fall.

A patient, suffering from a severe cold had X-rays taken to determine if pneumonia or any other condition was present.

There were a few cases of fracture of both bones of the forearm. X-rays were taken to see from the position of the bones if an open reduction was necessary and after reduction as a check-up.

The condition of a cardiac case was checked several times by X-ray.

A patient, an accident case, came in and complained of his shoulder. The X-ray plates showed scapular and ribs badly fractured and fluid in the chest. His condition was checked at various times by X-ray while he was at the hospital.

In industrial accidents the X-ray showed how much damage was done to the bones of the fingers of the patient.

Picture taken in gastro-intestinal cases, to determine the cause, showed what operative procedure, if any, would be necessary.

A patient fell on the ice, went to work and complained of severe headache. When he came to the hospital the next day for X-rays, it was found that he had fractured his skull.

Thus the facilities of the X-ray department help the patients in the hospital and those who come as outpatients by plainly and promptly determining what treatment is necessary in each case.

EXHIBITS AT BOSTON SHOW

The Ren Mfg. Co. of the Lyceum Building, Winchester will occupy booth 117 at the New England Hardware Show to be held at the Mechanics Building, Boston, Feb. 20, 21, and 22. Residents of Winchester desiring complimentary tickets may apply to the Ren Mfg. Co.

A new product, the Pull-a-Plug, will be shown for the first time. This is a simple attachment for electric light plugs to make it easy to pull them from the wall sockets. "Don't pull a wire, Pull-a-Plug" is the slogan which applies to floor-lamps, electric irons, radios, etc.

In Winchester, Pull-a-Plugs are on sale by Hersey Hardware Store and Central Hardware Store.

Rev. William S. Packer of this town, a member of the Park Board, was the principal speaker at the morning session of the Educational Convention held last Saturday in the State Armory at Androscoggin, Me. Mr. Packer took as his subject, "Schools, Playgrounds and Character." He was invited by the Superintendent of Schools at Androscoggin to explain the more important playground methods in use around Boston, it being admitted that the authorities in the Maine city have not been especially successful with the system with which they have been getting along.

WINCHESTER GIRLS WON SECOND FROM WAKEFIELD

Winchester High girls' basketball team had no difficulty winning its return game with Wakefield High Tuesday afternoon on the local court overwhelming the visiting sextette, 45—15. The previous game between the two clubs, played at Wakefield, resulted in a win for the locals but by the close score of 32—29.

Tuesday's game was all Winchester, Coach Wheeler's charges continuing to show the same improvement which has characterized their playing during the past few starts. The first quarter ended 12—4 in Winchester's favor and the local girls left the floor at the half in front, 20—8.

During the third quarter the Winchester guards, Marie Merrill and Frances Pettingell gave a great exhibition of defensive play, preventing the Wakefield forwards from scoring a single point during the entire eight minutes.

Meanwhile Virginia Merrill and "Sunny" Davis were sinking shots with monotonous regularity the score standing at the end of the third quarter 34—8. Virginia was easily the scoring ace of the matinee, accounting for 32 points on 16 goals from the floor.

Coach Wheeler sent in a flock of substitutes during the final quarter but Winchester, even with a weakened lineup, more than held its own.

Between the halves of the first team game the Wakefield seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 20—15. The summary of the main game follows:

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of the club was held on Monday afternoon with the president, Dr. Mary T. Maynard, presiding. The program was in the hands of the dramatic committee and they gave an entertainment which will go down in the history of the club and will not soon be forgotten. The Fortnightly should be very proud of Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle, who was chairman and of all the talent she drew forth from the members of the club.

A group of three one-act plays was presented. The first "Managers" by Joseph Lincoln took the audience into the Cape Cod home of a pair of old "salts" and here Miss Cora Quimby kept the audience in peals of laughter with her portrayal of Hiram Salters. She seemed perfectly at home in her sea captain's costume and role. She was well supported by another salty manager, Mrs. Edith M. Riddle as Timothy Tibbits. Miss Mary Hodge as the youthful niece of the old pair ran the whole craft. The stage setting for this play which was done by Mrs. Lena Moran was especially appropriate.

"The Wooden Leg" by Essex Dane was in a pretty hotel setting on the Riviera. Here Mrs. Gretchen West as Mlle Dauplisse a Parisienne dancer, and Mrs. Mabel Gage as Jack Brandon, man of the world, sparred in a racy dialogue which kept Mlle Dauplisse in bewildered consternation while Jack Brandon's love turned intermittingly hot and cold.

Mrs. Winnifrede S. Meyer, as Maribel Lovejoy, president of the Old Maid's Matrimonial Club led the procession of Winchester ladies who in their caricature of old maids produced the "scream" of the afternoon. How many attics and trunks were opened to provide these elaborate costumes only the ladies themselves can tell and it is very much to be doubted if the husband's could have picked their wives from this array of old maids, all on the shady side of 40. With great dignity, Mrs. Meyer presided and called each spinster in turn for their reports and quotations on the matrimonial market. There is not space to tell of the ability of all these forlorn women, but each was good in her way from bounding Sophia Potter, Mrs. Mary Briefer to rebelling Mary Ann Barnes, Mrs. Margaret Hinthian. Mrs. Doris McLeod as Professor Pinkert, with his machine and elixir changes some of the daring ladies to vibrant youth. Maribel Lovejoy is an intense spectator of these changes but is too confirmed in her staid way to take the risk.

Cranked forth from the machine came Joy Adriance pleasing in song; little, cute Alice Ikusa from the Knickerbocker School of Dancing; Irene D. Clarke as Topsy; Jean Dahney a Girl Scout Bugler; Mrs. Clara Wood, who certainly can recite; Doris Cross, a toe dancer from the Knickerbocker School of Dancing and Mrs. Clara Morrison another songster.

The following were members of "The Old Maid's Convention," beside these already mentioned:

Amarrilla Heywood, Secretary	Mrs. Elizabeth Hall
Priscilla Hope, Treasurer	Mrs. Marguerite Loftus
Anxiety Doherty	Mrs. Dorothy Wills
Augusta Prim	Mrs. Elizabeth Davis
Faithful Blossom	Mrs. Anna Grosvenor
Tredora Bobkins	Mrs. Catharine Hooper
Rhoda Larkin	Mrs. Anna Pitman
Selina Paxter	Ursila Winn
Susannah Smith	Mrs. Mary Gilbert
Miranda Price	Mrs. Grace Aseltine
Sara Springster	Mrs. Dorothy Howard

Esther Snyder	Mrs. Annette S. Hughes
Marian Perkins	Mrs. Mary E. Ahern
Asenath Baker	Mrs. Martha Tibbetts
Aranda Horn	Mrs. Grace Holmes
Amy Little	Mrs. Ruth French
Lydea Stevens	Mrs. Marion Wright

Between the acts, a trio consisting of Anna Lochman, pianist; Helen F. Smith 'cellist and Lucy Norton, violinist played the following selections:

March Miniature	By Kreisler
Serenade	Toselli
Waltz Russe	Taschakoff
Love Song	Flegier

CHARLES H. WATKINS ELECTED DIRECTOR OF EXCELSIOR INSURANCE COMPANY

It was announced this week at a meeting of the stockholders of the Excelsior Insurance Company of New York, Syracuse, New York, that Charles H. Watkins of Ridgefield road was elected to the Board of Directors. Mr. Watkins is one of the partners of the well-known insurance firm of Watkins & Moffat, who will act as general agents for Boston.

The statement of the financial condition of the Excelsior Insurance Co., at the close of business Dec. 31, 1927 showed admitted assets of $649,739. This was an increase of $100,000 over 1926. It had an unearned premium reserve of $173,278 and a surplus of nearly $200,000. Last year premiums were written amounting to $235,068 a substantial increase over 1926. The income also showed a large increase and was over four times that of 1925.

WINCHESTER CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Winchester Chamber of Commerce have been much interested in obtaining relief from the most unsanitary condition caused by the overflowing of the sewers in our town.

We are pleased to report that bids were opened on Feb. 16, relating to the construction of a new outlet to be 5 ft. by 5½ feet or 60 inches by 66 inches. The present outlet is only 40 inches by 42 inches.

The Metropolitan Commission says that by the tme 1929 arrives we shall be freed from the horrible, unsanitary condition.

We can state with pleasure that our three reservoirs which supply our town with water are full and overflowing, which means that we have in reserve 993,000,000 gallons of water of the best quality.

The New La Salle Five-Passenger Family Sedan

Cadillac-Built, 8-Cylinder Engine Brilliant Performance—Lower Prices

In addition to the striking beauty and arresting modishness of La Salle bodies, the one outstanding feature that has caused Cadillac's companion car to become so quickly popular is its brilliant performance.

This results from the famous Cadillac-built, 90-degree, V-type, eight cylinder engine with which the La Salle is powered. More than 275,000 Cadillac owners have found this engine the one most consistently satisfactory answer to their demands for the utmost in fine motor car transportation.

They have found its even flow of ample, effortless power, its freedom from vibration, its remarkable acceleration, its amazing smoothness resulting in a month-after-month satisfaction that nothing else can provide.

Every La Salle is complete with all modern equipment, much of which is usually obtainable on other cars only at extra cost, such as Winter Front, Lovejoy Shock Absorbers, Exclusively Designed La Salle Bumpers, Cowl Lamps, etc.

If you prefer to buy out of income, as nearly everyone does today, the General Motors plan is very liberal. The appraisal value of your car is, of course, acceptable as cash.

The La Salle is manufactured completely by the Cadillac Motor Car Company within its own plants

And now the La Salle, with this remarkable power plant, is offered at substantially lower prices. When you inspect the La Salle ask to see the new models just added to the line. There are five: the five-passenger sedan; two-passenger business coupe; five-passenger coupe; five-passenger cabriolet sedan; and seven-passenger sedan—the latter three on a 134-inch wheelbase.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

The next all-day sewing meeting will be held Tuesday, Feb. 21 in the church parlors.

Tuesday, Feb. 28 the Ladies' Friendly supper will be held in Metcalf Hall followed by a presentation of "The Flower Shop."

There are a few extra tickets for sale for the next Thursday evening musicale, to be held March 1 at the home of Mrs. Frederick Alexander, 5 Lakeview road and tickets may be procured from Mrs. C. H. Watkins. The artist of the evening will be Leon Tumarkin, Russian pianist, pupil of Siloti, who is favorably remembered from his recital in Winchester last winter. Mr. Tumarkin is the winner of this year's Julliard Foundation prize and he returns to us with enlarged powers of interpretation and virtuosity.

Tuesday afternoon the Ladies' Friendly Society held a "Home afternoon" in Metcalf Hall very successfully. Miss Vivian Sargent's fingers seemed to just drip music when she was at the piano and she simply delighted the ladies playing in her program:

Spring Song	Murovitch
Country Gardens	Percy Granger
Dreams	Strauss
Valcis	Mokrejs

Mrs. Goddard gave a report on religious intelligence and brought in quite a dash of humor with a poem, "Hope." Mrs. Robinson read a report of her last summer's experience as delegate at Starr Island and Mrs. Robbins, a member of the council for social service of Unitarian women gave a very interesting account of its foundation, workers and present activities. The afternoon closed with a Valentine tea served by Mrs. Kelley with Mrs. Watkins at the tea table.

All the proceeds from the cabaret have not come in, but Mr. Wood assures us that the result will be gratifying. The lights blazed, the balloons waved, the folks stayed, the orchestra played, the dancers swayed and the Unitarian's saved and a good time was had by all.

Bradford Hill and Frederick Belden should certainly be congratulated for their little bit and Helen Barr as usual brought down the house with her numbers. Frances Aldrich gave the audience the spectacle of the evening with her "Flame Dance" and so it ran on 'till midnight.

The following ladies were active in committee work for the event: Mrs. W. Drisko, vice-chairman; Mrs. Herbert Stone, Mrs. Clifford, Mason, Mrs. George Goddu, Mrs. Irving Gamage, tickets; Mrs. Harold Meyer, Mrs Hildreth, Mrs. Helen Barr, entertainment; Mrs. Meyer, Mrs. Mansfield, Mrs. Wadleigh, decorations.

Miss Marjorie Hayden had charge of the following young girls who acted as waitresses: Barbara Locke, Jean Livingstone, Jean Merrill, Ruth Wadleigh, Eleanor Mansfield, Katherine Chamberlin, Gretchen Stone, Marjorie Brown, Doris Gardner, Velma Kelley, Constance Purrington, Francis Gaum and Betty Sawyer.

Following the regular meeting of Victoria Rebekah Lodge on Thursday evening, Feb. 9, the Entertainment Committee, under the direction of Mrs. Stanley Mobbs, gave a most delightful Valentine party in Gorham Hall of the Association Building. Valentines were distributed to all present after which dancing was enjoyed and refreshments served.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The fellow that has the poorest excuse makes the most noise.

The greatest promiser is the one who has nothing to give.

Hold an angry tongue, and remember that a little pot is soon hot.

A silent tongue and a true heart are among the most admirable things on earth.

Some people get on the right track and then go in the wrong direction.

He who busies himself when no profit is to be found will remain a fool the whole year round.

All misfortunes must be conquered by endurance.

INTEREST SELECTMEN IN TREE

Article 17 of the warrant for the March meeting provides for a vote of the Town "to 'interest' the Board of Selectmen" etc. "to remove the large elm tree on Church street considered to be a detrement to the general public for safety." This is a most peculiarly worded article. It is presumed that the thought is to remove the tree, but some persons wonder if a vote to "interest" the Selectmen in its removal is equivalent to "instructions" for its removal. The general sentiment appears to be in favor of removing the tree, but tree lovers opposing its removal may question such instructions. Of course the Selectmen have the right to remove the tree, but heretofore the Board has endeavored to follow the wishes of the Town in the matter. A vote calling definitely for its removal should be offered.

THE WATERWAYS COMMITTEE REPORT

By far the most interesting report to appear at the coming town meeting is that of the "Waterways Committee." This committee of five, appointed under a vote passed last year, has given careful consideration to the ever pressing and constantly increasing problem confronting the town in caring for its sanitation and beauty. the two most important features in residential communities today. The committee has handled its work well. It presents a most comprehensive report, with plans and treatment sufficiently extensive to give opportunity for immediate steps in protecting Winchester for the future, not only in retaining its many beauties bestowed by nature, but in laying a foundation upon which may be built a town which will be surpassed as its growth progresses.

The report is ably handled by Mr. Herbert J. Kellaway, the noted landscape architect. That the town committee have solicited his advise bespeaks much for its judgment and forethought. The problem, the importance of which cannot be overestimated, is approached and handled by one who stands foremost in his profession, and residents of Winchester may give it their careful consideration.

While primarily a consideration of the waterways, this report covers a number of pressing and important features of our civic development, including considerations of health, beauty and convenience. In the uniting of these problems Winchester is provided with a development plan which may be undertaken by degrees with a full knowledge of what is to be accomplished in the end.

To outline the plan submitted under Mr. Kellaway's advice is needless. The report is extensive and complete; illustrated by many convincing photographs. It handles a proposed development and general housecleaning of our river and ponds through the valley from border to border. It provides for the elimination of the mosquito. It holds a plan for the development of the business center. It offers a solution for the elimination of our deadly grade crossing. In fact it is the most complete suggestion for a proper and worthwhile development of Winchester ever yet presented.

Mr. Kellaway's accomplishments in Winchester should give him qualifications which will result in our citizens accepting his plan. Our most talked of and admired improvements are the result of his work. The Star hopes that he will be allowed to see completion of his plans. It is our opinion that too long has Winchester lost opportunity after opportunity to benefit and better itself through diversity of ideas and opinions—large or individual and self centered. No large community project may be accomplished with satisfaction to all in every minor detail, and every broad minded citizen realizes that what may appeal to one may hold no value to another. This proposed plan may be undertaken progressively as the Town determines, and in carrying out any one phase of it the continuity of the whole is not marred nor lost. For many years we have been confronted by the problems it treats, and the time is ripe to take off our coats and tackle them.

Not the least interesting feature of the "Waterways Committee" report is the suggestion for the proposed elimination of our grade crossing. This will bear careful study and consideration. For 20 years, so it states, this town has had this problem before it. Many are the schemes and suggestions offered for its solution. The last project, which at one time appeared in a fair way to be carried out, was shelved, we believe, primarily because the steam railroad could not possibly find the money necessary to finance its portion of the cost. Although the railroad has suddenly become able to spent millions in certain directions, the grade crossing situation still remains dead. This is not surprising. We have not had an accident for quite a while. Must we wait until we do before again undertaking its removal? The Star would like to see the tracks out of sight. It would never sanction a "wall" through the center of our town cutting it in halves. It believes the Kellaway plan has great merit, not only in considering the problem from a waterway development point, but in enlarging our business center as well. Many know that this has become another important problem in our growth, and by this new plan it is not only enlarged, but such natural and artificial beauties of our town as exist seem to be placed in the most advantageous setting available. The Star would like to see the recommendations for this plan accepted by the town, and surely now is the time to undertake the removal of the crossing if is it to be ever accomplished.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The prominent part the women are taking in politics is demonstrated by that very live organization, the National Women's Democratic Law Enforcement League, which met last week in Washington. One of its avowed objects as given in the call sent out preceding the convention, is "to so impress the National Democratic Convention with the vast amount of dry sentiment in the nation, that they will immediately discourage efforts to nominate any wet candidate for president or vice-president.

The following resolutions were passed unanimously: Resolved that the National Woman's Democratic Law Enforcement League affiliated with the National Woman's Committee for Law Enforcement and with the national conference for dry legislation. That as prohibition is the policy of the United States incorporated in the 18th amendment to the federal constitution, we pledge ourselves to support those who will carry out the provisions of the National Prohibition Act and for the election of those who will place enforcement in the hands of undoubted friends and who will enact legislation as may be necessary to secure the full benefit of the prohibition law. That we pledge ourselves to wide-spread education regarding the reasons for the present dangerous conditions, which are too often found in corrupt politics. We also urge women who form half the electorate to political action to secure the election of men in our party who stand for the 18th amendment to the Constitution.

That we send to the national Democratic committee a deputation who will put before it the necessity of straight-forward action in the convention, with the requirement that only men who have clean records for observance and enforcement of law be considered as candidates for high office. That we urge our Federal Government to act immediately to supply a sufficient force to secure enforcement of the "concurrent law in outlaw states," defined as "those which do not provide laws for the protection of the people," and in states also where men in high office in both parties encourage defiance of the laws based on the 18th amendment to the Constitution, which they have solemnly sworn to defend "without any mental reservation or purpose of evasion."

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHER'S ASSOCIATION

Tonight in the school hall, the Noonan Chapter of the Mothers' Association will conduct its regular monthly social. This social will take the form of a lecture and social. The lecturer Mr. Carl Schrader, director of physical education for the State of Massachusetts is well and favorably known to many of his audience and his talk is being looked forward to with interest. Following the lecture Mrs. Anna Mahoney will sing a group of songs and Miss Marguerite Matthews will dance some solo numbers. Mrs. Mahoney is a member of the Noonan Chapter and Miss Matthews is a daughter of one of our members.

This February social is in charge of Mrs. Walter Garney, chairman; Mrs. Margaret Donovan, assistant chairman and a competant committee

THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

On Thursday afternoon at 2:30 the Winchester Circle met for the February meeting at the home of Mrs. R. T. Dumon, 16 Everett avenue. After the business meeting there was singing by Miss Myra Smith, accompanied by Miss Laura Tyler. Miss Smith gave a group of three songs in a delightful manner and was warmly applauded. "The Fairy Gardeners" by Harris; "My Marguerite" a French song author unknown and "To the Sun" by Curran. Mr. Charles Gates, Executive Secretary Massachusetts Department of Correction was then introduced and spoke on "Breakwaters for Crime Waves." Mr. Gates was a very earnest and most interesting speaker and those present wished that more time could have been allowed him to go deeper into the subject. Many availed themselves of the opportunity to ask questions at the close of the talk.

Tea was served in the dining room spring flowers being used for the talk decorations. Mrs. Holbrook Lowell and Mrs. George E. Wyman poured. This was one of the largest meetings of the year.

Sergt. William H. Rogers, Patrolman James Donaghey and Patrolman Mark Kelley were busy during Wednesday and Thursday delivering the reports of the Town Waterways Committee. The men made remarkable time, covering the entire town between the hours of 10:30 a. m. Thursday and 3 p. m. Wednesday.

WILLIAM BOYD & BESSIE LOVE in "DRESS PARADE" PATHE

Advance interest in the motion picture show which Winchester Post, 97, A. L., is to hold tomorrow afternoon and evening in the Town Hall indicates that full houses are likely to greet the showing of what are admitted to be two of the most wanted films in the entire realm of cinema.

"Dress Parade," starring William Boyd and Bessie Love is in itself a real attraction, depicting as it does the interesting life of the far famed West Point cadets. As companion features the Post has secured the Pathe reels depicting "Lindy's" famous flight from Los Angeles to Paris and the American Legion Convention in Paris. Current Pathe news will also be shown, making a bill hard to equal.

A special matinee performance is to be held for the kiddies in the afternoon at 2:30 with a second showing at 8 in the evening. As an added attraction for the evening show music will be furnished by the Somerville Legionnaires' crack orchestra.

Tickets for either performance may be obtained at Hevey's Pharmacy or at the Legion Headquarters or at the door.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

At the last regular meeting of the club a very encouraging report of the January whist party was given by vice-president Anne M. Hanlon, chairman of entertainment. With characteristic fairness, Mrs. Hanlon gave most of the credit for the success of the affair to Sister Lilla B. Green, and the club heartily indorsed the tribute to this sister whose efforts have ever been for progress and the good of the order. The half-ton of coal, most generously donated by Mr. John D. Coakley, was awarded as two whist prizes to Miss Alice F. Sullivan and Mr. "Ben" Cullen.

Nomination of officers being in order at this session, candidates for each of the elective offices were nominated from the floor of the assembly. Annual election is scheduled for the first meeting in March assistant Sister Lilla B. A. Scholl announces initiation for all on the meeting list at this session, March 14, in Lyceum Hall. There will be no second meeting this month as the date falls on the holiday, Feb. 22.

Plans are in progress for the next social which will be given on the second regular meeting night, March 28, in Lyceum Hall. A testimonial supper to the drill team and other attractive features are being debated by the committee in charge which is made up as follows: vice-president, Anne M. Hanlon, chairman; Trustees Bernice Gorman and Mae O'Neil; Treasurer, Caroline L. Coakley; Marshal, E. Gilchrist; Chaplain, K. Fallon; Organist, J. Power; and Sisters Lilla B. Green, Emma M. Cullen, Ethel Horn, Mae B. Fitzgerald, Delia O'Loughlin, Myrtle Goodhue, Alice Fitzgerald, Margaret E. Sharon and Gertrude Horn.

Whatever program this committee decides upon is sure to meet with general approval, for it is largely owing to those who labored that the club has to its credit the most financially successful year on record. And so we are just naturally optimistic about the coming menu, knowing that it will be the best on the market for the price. Anyway, there ought to be something pretty good in the line of refreshments coming to the drill team after the long, dry season of training.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY CONFERENCE HERE

Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson, president of the Winchester League of Women Voters, announces that the league will entertain the Middlesex County Conference at the Fortnightly Club, Mt. Vernon street, Thursday, Feb. 23. The conference will open at 11 o'clock for a business session, at which the outstanding activities of local leagues within the county will be reported and discussed as to their significance.

At 1 o'clock luncheon will be served. The afternoon session at 2 o'clock introduces two important departments of league activity, each presented by the chairman who directs the activities. Mrs. William Morton Wheeler, Chairman of Government Efficiency, and Miss Leslie White Hopkinson, Chairman of International Co-operation to Prevent War. Both chairmen are specialists in their fields, and engaged in practical day by day work. Mrs. Wheeler as vice-chairman of the Republican City Committee of Boston, and Miss Hopkinson as a Current Events lecturer, traveler and student who has but recently returned from Washington where she was a delegate to the Cause and Cure of War Conference.

Mrs. Walter I. Chapman of Somerville, county director, will preside.

Chief of Police William R. McIntosh, who has been confined to his home by illness this week, was reported last night as getting along nicely. In his absence Lieut. John Harrold has been acting chief of the department with Sergt. Thomas Cassidy relieving him at the night desk.

WINCHESTER GIRL TO TEACH TENNIS AT HARVARD

Miss Cecile de Coriolis, 18-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest G. de Coriolis of 67 Church street, has recently been informed of her appointment to teach tennis to men and women teachers who will study at the Harvard Summer School this summer. She will take the place of Harry L. Cowles, tennis and squash coach at Harvard, who has decided to take a little time off from his duties at Cambridge.

To many the appointment of one so young as Miss de Coriolis to replace a man of Mr. Cowles' unquestioned ability has come as a distinct surprise, but those who have watched Cecile's development entertain no doubts as to her ability to make good.

The local girl has been interested in tennis almost all her young life, but did not begin to take the game too seriously until after her family moved to Winchester. With others of her youthful friends she enjoyed playing on the courts of the Winchester Country Club, receiving, however, little if any worth while instruction in the finer points of the game.

Cecile was a pupil in the Wadleigh School, when under the impetus provided by Park Commissioner William S. Packer, tennis began to assume a real place in the sports calendar of the town. A capable teacher himself, Mr. Packer began to give the interested youngsters real instruction in tennis play while providing opportunities for appearance in tournaments, both in and out of Winchester.

Few of his young pupils were able to grasp stroking and attain general court skill more quickly than Cecile, and she continued to advance rapidly when she later came under the instruction of Mr. Cowles, whose place she is to fill this summer.

With others she became a candidate for the Winchester High School girls' tennis team which for the past two seasons has been undefeated in interscholastic competition.

Cecile was not the best singles player on the team, playing number 4 and then number 3 during the three years she was a member. Few of her teammates, however, were better grounded in the all important knowledge of strokes than she and none showed more ability in imparting her knowledge to others.

Even while in high school the Winchester girl had made up her mind to become a tennis professional and was encouraged by her parents, Mr. Packer and her teacher, Mr. Cowles. She is possessed of unusual poise and will by no means be at a disadvantage when she faces her pupils this summer, pupils who will be recruited from among physical directors of schools and colleges throughout the United States.

Already she has had some teaching experience. Two years ago she was counsellor and tennis instructor at Camp Watatic in Ashburnham and following her graduation last June she turned professional to teach tennis to Winchester young people, the high school co-operating in allowing her the use of the gymnasium in which she offered special instruction in strokes.

Cecile is not the first Winchester girl to turn professional. A neighbor of hers, Miss Katherine Pike, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Addison B. Pike of Church street, has been teaching professionally for several years and is at present a teacher and tennis professional at a private school in Connecticut.

During her high school days Miss de Coriolis did not devote all her time to tennis. She was for two years a dependable fullback on the field hockey eleven and during her senior year managed the girls' basketball team. She was interested in dramatics and music and twice was cast in the annual Senior-Junior class play. She has been taking a secretarial course this year at the Katherine Gibbs School in Boston from which she will graduate in June. She plans to become a secretary at some school where she will be able to teach tennis and as capable instructors in this popular game are very few she should have little difficulty in attaining her goal.

Her appointment to the Harvard post is a very flattering compliment to her ability as a teacher and also proves beyond argument the quality of the tennis instruction available for Winchester tyros.

WINCHESTER EDGES LEXINGTON

Winchester High was given a real fight by Lexington High Wednesday afternoon in the local gymnasium, winning the basketball game between the two schools, 20—19. "Hennie" Knowlton gave Winchester the verdict in the last two minutes of play when he caged a floor goal from mid-court with Lexington leading, 19—18. The Lexington seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 19—18, with John Blank starring for Winchester.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Last Saturday's hockey game played at the Boston Arena between teams of Phillips Exeter and Andover Academies was of especial interest to Winchester sports followers involving as it did four Winchester boys and one youngster who formerly made his home in town. Foremost among those playing the game was Stanley Neil, Andover goalie, whose sterling work in the blue net kept his club in the running with Exeter throughout the entire game and through overtime periods. Roland H. Sherman, Jr. played both wing and center for Andover and John A. Clark, now of Portland, but formerly of Winchester, played another wing for the Blue. Charles Y. Wadsworth upheld the glory of Winchester at a defense position for Exeter while Herbert Wadleigh was among the spares for the Red and Gray.

A Ford roadster, driven by Elbdige Taylor of 9 Bacon street, and a Ford touring car, operated by Joseph B. Gillette of 208 Washington street, were in collision Monday evening at 6 o'clock at the junction of Main street and M. V. Parkway. The roadster was turned over and badly smashed, Taylor receiving several cuts and bruises. Kenneth F. McLeod of 2 Goddu avenue, riding with Taylor, complained of injuries to his back. The touring car was somewhat damaged but its driver was uninjured.

Mr. and Mrs. Merryman S. Price, formerly of this town who now make their home in the south, were house guests last week of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Razee of Washington street. Mr. and Mrs. Price came north to attend the wedding of their son, Harry, who was married on Monday, Feb. 6, at Gloucester by Bishop Slattery to Miss Lora Merchant, daughter of Mr. Epes William Merchant.

Mrs. Arthur E. French of Winchester is to be one of the patronnesses for the Harvard junior dance to be held on March 2 in Memorial Hall, Cambridge.

OVER $150,000,000 OF ASSETS

New Business in 1927 Exceeded $500,000,000—Great Growth of Boston Life Insurance Co.

Boston, Feb. 14—In the new Auditorium of the enlarged building in the Back Bay section, the policyholders of the John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Company held their annual meeting here today. The principal feature was the presentation of the annual report by President Walton L. Crocker showing the Company's financial condition and progress. During the past year the assets have passed the $450,000,000 mark.

The new insurance in force has been increased by over $250,000,000 making the gross total insurance in force $2,764,000,000 indicating that probably in another year this item will exceed three billions of dollars.

This insurance is carried on the lives of people holding over 6,250,000 policies.

New Business in 1927

In the matter of new business written during the year, the Company has made a notable increase compared with the average increases of life insurance generally the country over. The total paid-for new business amounted to $524,797,698. This is the greatest year for new business in the Company's history.

The Company wrote large and small policies ranging from less than $100 up to $300,000. These larger policies include many that have been taken as business insurance to protect firms, corporations and other business enterprises against the premature death of valued men or chief supporters.

This form of life insurance, said President Crocker, was becoming quite general. He also referred to the increase in "Estate protection insurance" which provides ready money against asset depreciation, or inheritance taxes, and to preserve the estate intact, enabling the desires of the testator to be carried out in full.

Co-operation With Banks and Trust Companies

Another interesting development has been the growth of "Life Insurance Trusts" particularly through the very general co-operation of the banking and trust institutions which were endeavoring to perfect arrangements with beneficiaries, whereby life insurance paid in lump sums could be protected against unprofitable investments. "This service," said President Crocker "is rapidly and deservedly gaining favor because of its practical use to beneficiaries in lessening the chance of unwise investment and helping in other details of estate management."

The report also called attention to the fact that although but recently embarking in the field of Group Insurance, the Company now had over $100,000,000 on this plan.

President Crocker reported that under the Massachusetts statutes the Company is required to maintain as a sinking fund a liability amounting to $383,689,508, which is one of the Company's legal reserves and must be invested to earn a rate of interest equal to at least 3½ per cent. As a matter of fact the Company's earnings during 1927 has amounted to 5.24 per cent. New funds invested by the Company during 1927 amounted to $64,803,457.

In addition there are other reserves carried by the Company bringing the total allocated liabilities up to $415,000,775. This includes a large item of $16,654,588 dividends for policyholders to be paid or credited during the year 1928.

Invested and Cash Assets Over $450,000,000

To cover all of these liabilities the Company owns and holds as of Dec. 31, bonds, mortgages and other property valued at $451,006,878, from which it will be seen the Company is strongly fortified in surplus funds amounting to $36,006,103. These surplus funds are held to provide against any asset depreciation, visitation of epidemics, or any other emergencies which may arise.

Saving of Human Life

Attention was called to the health, promotion work of the Company, its activity in distributing over one million copies of health literature, its radio broadcasts and warnings regarding Carbon Monoxide poisoning, and various co-operative activities with public health officers, which included lectures through moving picture programs, newspaper prevention campaigns, and service by the Company through trained nurses in the case of sickness and accident. More than 400,000 visits were made by these connected with the John Hancock Nursing Service during the year 1927.

New Home Office Building

As a result of the tremendous increase in the business of the John Hancock since it first moved its building to the business section of the Back Bay, enlargement of the building became necessary during the year to house 2200 employees and the equipment necessary to conduct the Company's growing business.

As an indication of what this growth has been, President Crocker pointed out that the insurance in force in the five-year period has increased 65 per cent; that is, form $1,668,847,668 to $2,764,331,561. During the same period the income increased 71 per cent, the assets 68 per cent, and the new paid-for insurance written 109 per cent.

Coincident with this growth said President Crocker, "the expense rate has been reduced and the general cost level of policy holders' premiums brought down to the lowest level in the Company's history."

WINCHESTER WINS MIDDLESEX LEAGUE TITLE

After twice nearly reaching the heights Winchester High crashed through to its first championship in the Middlesex Basketball League last Friday evening when it defeated Wakefield High at Wakefield, 41—21.

The Leads have been leading the league all season and have been undefeated in their circuit engagements. They have but one more league game to play, tonight with Belmont, but win, lose or draw, Coach Mansfield's boys will retain the title "gonfalon." Only once has Winchester been anywhere near defeat in its Middlesex League games and that was when Reading held the local boys to a single basket win at 22—20 on the Reading court.

Wakefield, a bitter rival of Winchester since the days when both were members of the Suburban League group, was set to give the locals their first taste of defeat last Friday and was backed up by an army of rooters armed with all sorts of noisemakers.

The home crowd had little, if any opportunity to cheer since Winchester from the very start dominated the situation and covered the Wakefield players like a pavilion.

Wakefield was unable to cope with the speedy passing and classy floor work of the locals and never succeeded in getting up onto anywhere near even terms.

Winchester led at the quarter, 17—5, and drew away ahead at the half, 31—10. The local guards, Knowlton and G. Amico, had little difficulty in breaking up the offensive efforts of the Wakefield boys and the formers' bullet-like passing was a treat to watch.

"Nutsy" Amico especially gave a great exhibition of defensive play and was really the star of the game.

Winchester led at the three-quarters, 36—14, and thereafter the size of the score was the only thing of interest in the battle.

Between the halves the Wakefield seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 18—12, in a close match.

The summary of the main game follows:

WINCHESTER	WAKEFIELD
McNeil, rf	lg, Nowell
Kendrick, rf	lg, Greene
Holwarth, lf	rg, Gersch'n
Ross, c	c, Robinson
Simonds, c
G. Amico, rg	lf, Dutton
A. Amico, rg
Knowlton, lg	rf, Berg
Murphy, lg	rf, Cadman

Score: Winchester 41, Wakefield 21. Floor goals: Ross 3, McNeil 1, Holwarth 1, Simonds, Knowlton, Gersch'n 2, Nowell 2, Dutton, Berg, Cadman. Foul goals: McNeil 2, Holwarth 2, Ross, Knowlton, Gersch'n, Robinson, Dutton, Berg. Referee: Simmons. Time four eight minute periods.

INJURED IN AUTO CRASH

Frank M. Carleton, 16, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willard T. Carleton of 52 Church street, was treated by Dr. R. L. Emery for injuries he received last Sunday afternoon at 2:50 when the Reo sedan he was driving west on Warren street was in collision at the junction of Warren and Cabot streets with a Cadillac coupe, owned by Ralph M. Sparks of 45 Cabot street and operated by Arthur O. Pettenger, aged 17, of 582 Dorchester street, Fall River. With Pettenger in the coupe were Miss Barbara Sherman of Arkon, Ohio, and Miss Helen Campbell of Chicago, Ill. None of them was apparently injured in the collision which damaged both cars and badly smashed the Reo. The latter was owned to the Central Garage.

Carleton's injuries consisted chiefly of cuts and bruises. He was treated by the doctor at the home of Mrs. Cora Wadleigh on Cabot street. Pettenger was able to drive the damaged Cadillac to the home of his uncle Mr. Sparks.

NILS JOHNSON

Nils Johnson, aged 26, of Prince avenue, passed away early Saturday morning at the Winchester Hospital, following a ten days' illness.

Mr. Johnson was born in Sweden, the son of Oscar and Sophia Johnson. He had made his home in town for about three weeks, coming to Winchester from New York where he was employed as a greenhouse worker. Two brothers survive him.

Funeral services were held on Tuesday afternoon in the funeral home of the Kelley & Hawes Company and were conducted by the Rev. C. A. Linerval, pastor of the Swedish Lutheran Church, Woburn. The remains were taken to Mt. Auburn for cremation.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The February meeting of the Congregational Men's Club is to be held on Thursday evening, Feb. 23, with Dr. Payson Smith, State Commissioner of Education as the speaker. Supper is to be served at 6:30 by a group of ladies of the parish, Mrs. F. Patterson Smith, chairman. The committee in charge includes Messrs. James J. Quinn, Albert K. Buckins, Albert K. Comins, Marshall J. England, Clinton E. Farnham, Wayne B. Thornton, Arnold Whittaker and Rev. Howard J. Chidley.

The other reserves carried by the Company on December 31, 1927, brought up its Definitely Allocated Liabilities to the total of $415,000,775.15.

This includes a reserve of $16,654,587.95 for Policyholders' Dividends to be paid or credited in 1928.

To cover these liabilities the Company owned and held on December 31, 1927, bonds, mortgages, and other property valued at $451,006,878.49, thus showing a Surplus of resources amounting to $36,006,103.34.

This Surplus is to provide against asset depreciation, epidemic visitation, or other emergency.

The New Insurance paid for in 1927 was $524,797,698.00, the greatest year's record in the Company's history.

GROWTH IN FIVE YEARS

Since 1922 the Income of the Company has increased from $69,264,426.00 to $118,598,203.00 or 71%

The Assets have increased from $268,075,903.00 to $451,006,878.00 or 68%

The Annual New Insurance has risen from $250,402,524.00 to $524,797,698.00 or 109%

The Insurance in Force has increased from $1,668,847,668.00 to $2,764,331,561.00 or 65%

To handle this increased volume of business and to house the more than 2,200 employees, with the equipment and records, an addition to the Home Office Building in Boston has been provided.

Coincident with this growth, the expense rate has been reduced and the general cost level of policyholders' premiums brought down to the lowest point in the Company's history.

HELD UP ON HIGHLAND AVENUE

Winchester Woman Has Thrilling Experience Last Friday Night

Hold-men evidently shifted their base of operations from the Hill District of the Town last Friday night when Mrs. F. W. Trombly of 18 Brookside avenue was held up and robbed on Highland avenue several miles from the scene of former depredations off High street near the Arlington line.

Mrs. Trombly had been spending the evening with friends on Mystic Valley Parkway and lured by the pleasant weather determined to walk to her home in the Highlands.

She was walking along Highland avenue shortly after 10 o'clock and had reached a rather lonely spot near Prince avenue when she was passed by a large, closed automobile containing two or more men.

After passing Mrs. Trombly the car continued for a short distance and then turned short about to return towards her.

Almost before she had time to define the occupants' intent the car had come abreast of her and without warning a man leaped out and seized the handbag she was carrying.

Mrs. Trombly screamed several times and attempted to fight off her assailant and retain possession of her property. The man proved too strong for her to withstand and her cries for assistance brought no one to her aid.

Wresting the bag from the now thoroughly frightened woman the man ran to the car where he was picked up by his companions who departed at high speed toward Medford.

Mrs. Trombly who had recently underwent an operation upon her eyes was unable to get the number of the speeding car and was able to get only an imperfect impression of her assailant who at no time during the brief struggle uttered a sound.

Making her way to a nearby house Mrs. Trombly had word sent to Police Headquarters where Lieut. John Harrold despatched Patrolmen Daniel Kelley, Charles Harrold and John Hanlon to the scene of the holdup, meanwhile broadcasting a general alarm to police in surrounding cities and towns.

The thieves, however, had a good start and a thorough scouring of the entire district was unproductive. Mrs. Trombly was taken to her home by Patrolman Kelley and aside from a severe fright seemed none the worse for her thrilling adventure. The handbag which the holdup man succeeded in wresting from her contained a sum of money, shopping coins, keys and other personal effects of some value.

GAS INDUSTRY WILL SPEND HALF A MILLION DOLLARS ON RESEARCH

The great expansion in the use of gas for both domestic and industrial uses has emphasized the necessity for the designing of apparatus which will economically burn this modern fuel.

Announcement has been made by the American Gas Association that the sum of $500,000 will be expended over a period of five years in pure research work to determine better and more efficient ways of using gas and in the development of apparatus for such use. The necessity for this work is shown by the fact that the industrial use of gas has increased 64 per cent in the past six years and the rising cost of raw materials makes it essentinl that waste should be cut down to a minimum.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Corthell of Lornine, Ohio, parents of the late Arthur B. Corthell of this town, and well known to many Winchester residents, observed their 69th wedding anniversary last Friday afternoon at the home of their son, L. D. Corthell in that city. The bride and groom of more than three score years were married in Tiverton, R. I., in 1859. They received many friends during the afternoon and evening, as well as many gifts, including a chocolate frosted cake decorated in colored iceings with a picture of a lover kneeling to his lady, under them the names "James" and "Charlotte," and over them the date Feb. 10, 1928, the work done with portrait carefulness so that the faces were like cameos. This was the gift of the widow of their son, Mrs. A. B. Corthell of this town.

ADDED PERFORMANCE NECESSARY

Too much praise cannot be given the coach of the production, Miss Mary H. Barr, who also acted as chairman of the committee in charge of the affair, assisted by Miss Marion E. Knightly and Miss Priscilla Wheeler. The most effective scenery was built especially for the show by two Winchester teachers, Miss Frances Daley and Mr. Otis Leary. The women's Dutch costumes were made by Miss Ruth Emerson. Miss Elizabeth M. Good, pianist and Mr. James Cusick, violinist, played effective accompaniments for the singers.

A large part of the proceeds from both performances will go toward the Winchester Teachers' Club quota to Riverbank Lodge, a recreation home maintained at Sherburn by the Massachusetts Federation of Teachers.

WINCHESTER GIRLS WON THRILLER FROM READING

In one of the most closely contested and thrilling games of the season Winchester High School girls' basketball team defeated the Reading High girls last Friday afternoon at Reading, 30—24. The officials characterized the contest as one of the best between girl teams they had seen this year.

The local girls were forced to make an up-hill fight of it for Reading was the first to score, rolling up three goals in quick succession before Winchester was able to get started. Captain Davis called for a time out and following the brief intermission Winchester seemed to find itself and began to play basketball.

The spurt was not enough to stop Reading and the home club was leading, 8—5, at the end of the first quarter. Winchester never stopped trying and soon after the start of the second quarter drew up on even terms and then passed Reading to leave the floor at half time on the long end of a 14—11 score.

Beginning the new half the teams battled along furiously and at the three-quarters mark were deadlocked at 20. Excitement was running high as each team scored a goal to keep the game tied. Once again Winchester tallied and once more Reading drew onto even terms.

Then Winchester began to come strongly and with Virginia Merrill doing some real sharpshooting soon rolled up a lead which was safe.

Between the halves of the main game the Reading girls' second team defeated the Winchester seconds, 21—17. Reading led at the half, 10—9, but Winchester was out in front at the three-quarters 17—14. From then on the Reading scrubs gradually pulled ahead.

CHURCH OF THE EPIPHANY NOTES

The regular February luncheon of the Church Service League for the women of the Parish, with guests, will be held next Tuesday, Feb. 21, at 1 p. m. in the Parish House Hall. The speaker will be Miss Marston who has recently been made chairman of Adult Religious Education in the Diocese. She has a very vital message, which will be an inspiration for everyone as we start on the season of Lent.

"Neighbors All" is the title of a most unusual moving picture which will be given at Epiphany Parish Hall at 7:30 p. m., Thursday, Feb. 23. The picture has been prepared under the supervision of Arch-Deacon Dennen and gives a wonderfully clear idea of what our City Missions are doing at the Sailors' Haven, at Prisons, Hospitals and Camps. It presents a very thrilling and human story. No special group is responsible for showing the picture, as it will be deeply interesting to all, and since this is to be the first time the extended Parish Hall will be used for this purpose, a large audience is hoped for. There will be a silver offering and the amount, over and above the slight expense, will be devoted to the Apportionment for Diocesan Missions.

The Commissioners and Council of the Winchester Girl Scouts gave a tea and reception in Fortnightly Hall Friday of last week to the mothers of the Scouts. In the receiving line were Mrs. Snyder, Mrs. Wadsworth, Mrs. Tompkins and Mrs. Dabney, officers of the council. At the tea tables were Mrs. Farnsworth, Mrs. Nichols, Mrs. Fitts and Mrs. Loftus. Following the tea Mrs. Snyder gave a short talk on Scouting. Mrs. Clifton Hall was chairman of the afternoon.

ENGAGEMENT OF INTEREST HERE

An engagement of interest here is that of Miss Elizabeth Nowell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Allen March Nowell of Honolulu to Wadsworth Croft, son of Dr. and Mrs. Wadsworth Croft of Greenfield. The Nowells are known here, Mrs. Nowell having been Ruth Moore Taplin of Winchester before her marriage. Mr. Nowell is a Harvard man and is secretary and manager of the Sugar Factors, Ltd., at Hawaii. He has served several terms as president of the Harvard Club of Hawaii. No date for the wedding of his daughter to Mr. Croft has been announced.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Next Sunday evening is to be "Father and Son Night" at the Baptist Church, and the pastor, Rev. Benjamin P. Browne, will speak on, "Our Dads and Our Lads for Christ." There will be a rousing song service assisted by the chorus with the organ piano and an orchestra. The chorus will have a special anthem and there will also be special selections by the orchestra.

The attendance last Sunday evening was such an increase over the preceding Sundays that it is expected there will be a capacity congregation.

In the morning the topic will be, "Is Prayer Ever Unanswered?"

JENNIE SARGENT

Jennie Sargent, widow of Valentine Sargent and for many years a widely known resident of Winchester, passed away Monday evening at her home on Pond street, following an illness of some length.

Mrs. Sargent was 76 years of age and a native of Ireland. She had, however, spent nearly her entire life in Winchester, settling here upon her arrival in the country when a young girl. Mr. Sargent passed away four years ago, leaving Mrs. Sargent survived by but one daughter, Mrs. John Whitten, with whom she had made her home.

The deceased was a member of St. Mary's Church in which a requiem high mass was celebrated Thursday morning at 9 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan. John Hodge, Thomas Ford, George W. Bogart and Albert V. Lawton, all of Winchester, served as bearers. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

WINCHESTER HAD SUCCESSFUL BASKETBALL SEASON

High School Five Won Championship of Middlesex League

With the Belmont game last Friday evening the Winchester High School basketball team brought to a close one of the most successful seasons it has enjoyed for several years. Playing a schedule of 16 games against representative high school outfits, Coach Mansfield's charges won 10 and lost 6, while winning the Middlesex League title, rolling up 418 points to 325 for their opponents.

This year's Winchester club was a veteran five and due to its experience was able to play consistently good basketball throughout the season. A year ago the boys played excellently at times but when under pressure were apt to try too hard.

During the schedule just past Winchester showed poorly on but two occasions; against Arlington and at Gloucester. The Salem and Nashua battles really belonged to the locals.

Coach Mansfield's quintette at its full strength was undefeated in its league engagements, the reverse at the hands of Belmont in the final game of the season being directly traceable to the fact that Winchester was without the services of three of its first string players. With its regular lineup available Polly Harris's boys would have been easy for the Red and Black.

When at its best Coach Mansfield's team was in a class with any in Greater Boston. We do not mean that Winchester could have beaten any schoolboy five playing the game this season, but when right the locals would not have been outclassed against the best. To substantiate this statement we have the word of Harry Davis, coach of the crack Everett High five. Davis refereed the Winchester—Reading game, won by the locals, 28—12, and stated after the contest that the locals were the equal of any high school outfit he had seen and would give his own undefeated club an exceptionally hard game.

The forward positions on this year's team included Ray Halwartz, John McNeil and Paul Kendrick as regulars with Capt. Herbert Ross at center. The latter was easily the team's high scorer and very probably ranked with the best shots in the Middlesex League. Halwartz was the best all around player on the club and had he cared to shoot a bit more often, might have been up there with the leaders. His floor work and passing were always a treat to watch. The regular guards were Henry Knowlton, Bernard Murphy and Gnazio Amico, the first and last named being the starting backs. Both were effective defense players and the improvement shown during the season by Amico was unusual. The regular substitutes were Archangilo Amico, Ronald Simonds and Peter Coss. Russell Franklin was manager of the team.

The season's record follows:

Winchester	17	W. H. S. Alumni	19
Winchester	22	Lexington	9
Winchester	23	Salem	24

29 Stoneham at Winchester

Oct.
6 Reading at Reading
12 Arlington at Winchester *
20 Lexington at Lexington
27 Wakefield at Winchester *

Nov.
3 Melrose at Winchester *
10 Watertown at Watertown *
17 Billerica at Winchester.
24 Saugus at Winchester
29 Thanksgiving Woburn at Winchester *

*Mystic Valley League Games.

As an added attraction to the basketball game this evening in the parish house of the First Congregaiotnal Church between its Sunday School team and that of the First Baptist Church, the Congregational's unlimited team, composed of "Herb" Ross, "Rony" Simonds, Wendell Mansfield, "Henny" Knowlton and Morris Butler, will meet the Winchester "Pirates" whose lineup comprises McCauley, Halwartz, McNeil, "Joe" Quigley, McGrath and "Barney" Murphy. This latter game should prove a real attraction with McCauley, Halwartz, McNeil and Murphy playing against their high school coach, Wendell Mansfield. Game will start at 7:30 p. m.

TO THE CITIZENS OF WINCHESTER

Robert M. Hamilton of 3 Wedge Pond road is to be a candidate at the coming March election for the three year term on the Board of Assessors to be filled this year.

Mr. Hamilton has made his home in Winchester for 35 years. He is the son of Mr. George H. Hamilton of 4 Wedge Pond road and is associated in business with his father as a carpenter and builder. He knows building costs and values and in view of his experience seems well qualified to hold the office he seeks.

A graduate of the Winchester schools Mr. Hamilton spent two years at Lowell Textile School and received valuable business experience during a three years' association with Cheney Bros. Textile Manufacturers at South Manchester, Conn. During the World War in the course of 40 month's service he spent 14 months in France with the American Expeditionary Forces. Mr. Hamilton was honorably discharged from the army with the rank of 1st Lieutenant and now holds a Captain's commission in the Officer's Reserve Corps. He holds membership in the Masons, Odd Fellows, Elks, American Legion and the First Congregational Church of this town.

ENDORSES HARRY W. STEVENS

Winchester, Mass.
Feb. 18, 1928

To the Editor of the Star:

I have learned with great satisfaction that Harry W. Stevens, of Winthrop Street, has consented to run for the office of Selectman.

To the many who know him, especially those who have been associated with him in any activities, this means that there is available to this town the services of one who is, I believe, eminently fitted for the job. Clear business ability and sound judgment he is the type of man who will thoroughly investigate every proposition which comes before him.

I believe that the many questions of importance which come constantly before the members of our Board will be in safe hands when Harry Stevens is elected and I am very glad to endorse his candidacy.

Very sincerely yours,
Edward B. Smalley,
8 Norwood Street,
Winchester

TO THE VOTERS OF WINCHESTER

Without permission in any way, shape or manner, my name has been used in a political letter now being distributed by a candidate for Selectman of Winchester.

The natural inference is that we are working together.

This is absolutely not so.

If it is necessary to attack the integrity of such gentlemen as Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell, Thomas F. Fallon, William E. Ramsdell and one of the best police departments in this State in order to be elected to office in Winchester, then I am not a candidate.

I went into this campaign with clean hands and that is the way I intend to leave.

Yours respectfully,
Harry W. Stevens,

RIPLEY—NAUFFTS

In a most effective ceremony last Saturday evening at the home of her mother, Mrs. Margaret J. Nauffts of 12 Wedge Pond road, Miss Jessie May Nauffts was united in marriage by the Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne, pastor of the First Baptist Church, with Elmer Dayton Ripley, son of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus W. Ripley of 8 Brookdale street, Roslindale. The house was attractively decorated with palms and cut flowers, the ceremony being performed under an arch of yellow and white chrysanthemums from which was suspended a large white wedding bell.

The wedding party entered the room to the strains of the "Wedding March," from Lohengrin, played upon the piano by Miss Marion Smith of Winchester, cousin of the bride.

Miss Nauffts was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a wedding gown of lace trimmed white silk velvet, with silk lace veil arranged with a coronet of orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of white roses. Mrs. Nauffts wore rose and black changeable silk taffeta trimmed with black lace and carried a bouquet of pink tea roses. The bride's matron of honor, Mrs. Foster J. Nauffts of Cambridge wore pink georgette with a rhinestone coronet and carried pink tea roses and sweet peas. Miss Barbara Nauffts of Cambridge and Miss Verna Graham of Winchester were ribbon bearers and wore charming little frocks of French voile in pastel shades of pink and blue. Mr. Ripley had for his best man his brother, William B. Ripley of Roslindale. The ushers were Foster Nauffts and Fred Nauffts of Cambridge and Arthur E. Dotten of Winchester.

A reception was held immediately following the ceremony and upon its conclusion Mr. and Mrs. Ripley left upon an extended wedding journey. They are to make their home at 14 Wedge Pond road.

CALUMET NOTES

The next big event will take place on Wednesday, Feb. 29. It will be an unusual one in that it is a Leap Year Party and managed by a committee of ladies in charge of Mrs. William L. Little. There will be many surprises, plenty of fun, a fine orchestra and refreshments. Don't be bashful, ladies.

The Men's Winter Bowling Tournament ended last evening. There were some close scores and excitement ran high all through the tournament. Some places were won by one point, which goes to show that it is the pins that count. There will be a roll-off starting next Monday evening and continuing on March 1 and March 6 for leading teams in classes A and B. Members regret that the tournament has closed but from the enthusiasm shown, the contests must have been enjoyed. The club is happy to report that the social side has been much enlarged.

The Men's Bowling Dinner will take place on March 20. We always enjoy that annual occasion and we are practically assured of full membership. Some of us will eat at the expense of others, but, nevertheless, Calumet is noted for its good sportsmanship.

There was a splendid opportunity for a triple tie for the bread line when Teams 2 and 11 bowled last Friday evening. Team 11 needed one point to keep above the line but were able to divide the honors, winning the total pin fall by one point. Team 2 after winning the first two strings with scores of 483 and 524, fell down immensely on their last, rolling a total of only 398, and thereby lost two points. Some of our good bowlers were certainly in the "slump." Roll-offs always add excitement to the game and keep up enthusiasm.

Some of the members are calling for a Spring Bowling Tournament. If the call is strong, a way might be found to accommodate. The bowling committee will take the matter under advisement if members want such a tournament.

Calumet was nicely entertained at the University Club recently. We sent over two teams to roll against the University bowlers. It was a typical Winchester night—Sewell Newman, Alfred Bond and Steve Ryan of Winchester, rolled for our opponents. Winchester came out on the short end. Number 1 team composed of R. Purrington, A. H. Hildreth, E. J. Lanois, W. Blanchard and N. Purrington won only one point and Team 2 composed of H. C. Parker, C. S. Symmes, C. Priest, J. E. Gendron and J. H. Taylor did not win a point. Team 2, however, had the consolation of bowling a larger score than Team 1. Priest was high man, rolling a total of 313, W. Blanchard was next with 311, Gendron 308, A. H. Hildreth 301. Sewell Newman for the University team had three good strings—102, 117, 112, with a total of 331. Bond had a high string of 122 and a total of 315. We regret that our bowlers did not make a better showing as they are capable of rolling higher scores. The dinner must have been too appetizing. We are giving the University Club a return engagement on the evening of our annual dinner on March 20 and have invited three teams out to dine with us and bowl after dinner. We think we can do better on our own alleys.

The regular monthly roll-off took place last Saturday evening. There were three selective intead of the usual consecutive strings. The evening was stormy but the enthusiasm were out. Winners of the roll-off were as follows: Dr. F. M. Blanchard took first prize with total of 412 (with handicap). He had three very good strings, 118, 149, 109 (346 net). Kenneth Pratt took second prize with total of 387 (with handicap).

Washington's Birthday, an annual event with us, was celebrated with much enthusiasm all around. We kept open house bowling was from 10 until 5:30. Our children's party was held in the afternoon and in the evening there was a dance for adults. It is always a pleasure to have the children with us and grown-ups enjoy the occasion, we think, sometimes as much as the youngsters. There were nearly 300 children present, the largest party ever. Even the young people are getting Calumet wise. At 2:30 there was an hour's movie show followed by an entertainment by a professional who produced much fun and laughter. It was a great sight to behold the expressions on the children's faces and to hear them laugh and clap. They were served with a collation after the performance and we venture to say that they all had a good time—and a big one.

Each bowler in order to participate in the prizes was expected to donate a prize as his entrance fee. Members were generous as usual in their donations and the range in size and character was considerable. They will be awarded March 3 at the club house. The dancing began at 8:30 p. m. and again we were favored with the Jordan Marsh Jubilee orchestra.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The last meeting of the parliamentary law class of the Women's Republican Club will be held at the Association Hall on Vine street, Monday, Feb. 27, at 10:15. All of the members are urged to complete their course which has been most entertaining and instructive under the able leadership of Mrs. Sherman.

To reach the hall follow Vine street which goes along the right side of the Congregational Church, to a stucco building on the left side of the street. This is only a step from the center of the town.

MOCK TRIAL BY BAPTISTS WELL DONE

"The Great Chicken Case," a mock trial, was presented Monday evening to an audience of good size in Lyceum Hall by the "Casler Players", comprising members of the First Baptist Church Sunday School. Everyone was enthusiastic about the show which was well done in every particular from start to finish.

As might be suspected the plot centered about the theft of a chicken by one Henry Hempeck, played by Albert W. Friend. Henry had been apprehended by Sheriff Hezikiah Henderson (Franklin Pynn) and on Monday evening appeared in the "sooperior" court before Judge Hiram Hayseed (Daniel C. Linscott). The resulting trial was seasoned with action and spiced with humor, able if somewhat unusual arguments being presented by the rival counsel, respectively Iwill Soaken, Esq. (Arnold Walker) and Sumner Webster Wyndye, Esq. (Leonard Waters). An especially representative jury gathered at some pains and considerable expense heard the case and announced a verdict. The witnesses on both sides were absolutely certain of their facts.

In all instances the parts were well taken and it would be rather hard to single out any especial character as better played than the others. We did, however, like Walter Stewart as the stuttering, finally forced-to-singit G. W. T. J. G. A. A. L. Johnson and "Alex" MacDonald as Herbert Hoover might even get a Democratic nomination for the presidency.

Midway through the trial considerable excitement was occasioned when two unannounced principals in the audience engaged in a wordy controversy of some heat during the testimony offered for the plaintiff by Mrs. Rev. R. U. Penitent (Miss Edna Ralph). So boisterous did the debators become that Judge Hayseed was constrained to order their removal from the hall by Sheriff Henderson. The stalwart minion of the law met with strenuous opposition from the two advocates of free speech and it was necessary to literally drag the disturbing elements of an otherwise orderly courtroom from their places. It was not until most of the audience was on its several feet that it became apparent that the whole episode was all fun and a part of the program, for obvious reasons kept in the dark until the action started. John Carroll and Robert MacQuestion were the vocalists whose "argufyin'" disturbed the dignity of the court.

At the conclusion of the trial Miss Dora Capuccelo of Arlington rendered her hearers with several selections beautifully played upon the accordian. Her numbers included "Il Trovatore" Selection, Overture to "Barber of Seville" and "Serenade" by Toselli. She was oblized to respond to several encores. Intersperising her selections Guy Sweeney of Revere, comedian, appeared in several excellent impersonations which included a newly returned doughboy, an efficient undertaker and a minister, in the last instance reading from the back of numbers (telephone directory).

Much praise for the success of the evening rightfully belongs to John C. Casler who as coach and director of the mock trial through two tedious months of rehearsal brought the show to a high degree of excellence. He was assisted on the general committee by J. Albert Hersey and Franklin Pynn. During the evening candy was sold by a group of young ladies from Mrs. Alfred W. Fent's Sunday School Class, proceeds from the sale with that from the tickets sold being devoted to general church expenses. Included among the candy girls were the Misses Phyllis Dalrymple, Dorothy Linscott, Elizabeth Berry, Hazel Solomon and Alice Friend.

A group of young men from Mr. Casler's class served as ushers. Included were Ronald Pynn, Fred Cobb, Lorenzo Crowell, James Hall and John Blank.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Bowdoin College Musical Clubs Will Give Concert

We are particularly fortunate in being able to obtain the Bowdoin College Musical Clubs for an entertainment next Monday evening. They comprise the Glee and Instrumental Clubs. There will be about 50 of the college boys participating in the concert. They will render songs in group and coming from trained voices, the volume and richness should arouse the admiration and enthusiasm of the audience. The Instrumental Club comes to us highly recommended. To quote from a critic "They displayed their inate love of rhythm and tonal coloring and the vigor and enthusiasm with which they played awakened great applause."

The concert will be held in the auditorium of the Unitarian Church at 8 p. m. Dancing will follow in Metcalf Hall with music by the College Orchestra.

The Clubs are on their annual tour and take part this evening in the Intercollegiate College Club contest at Symphony Hall, Boston. The entertainment is being held under the auspices of the Men's Club and the Young People's Society and is open to the public.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

Dallas Lore Sharp will lecture on "Literature at Woodchuck Lodge" at the meeting of the club on Monday, Feb. 27 at 2:30 p. m., in the Town Hall. Professor Sharp is widely known as a writer on nature subjects and is an unusually witty and entertaining speaker.

Music will be furnished by Gertrude Fellar, violinist and Jennie T. Fox, soprano soloist.

THE WESTERN MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETING

The Western Missionary Society of the First Congregational Church will meet in the Parish House on Thursday, March 1, from 10 to 4. Luncheon at 12:15. Those bringing guests please notify Mrs. G. H. Hamilton, Win. 0273-M or Mrs. George Foreman Win. 1352-M. All women of the church are cordially invited to attend.

OF INTEREST TO PARENT-TEACHER MEMBERS

Mrs. Margaretta Willis Reeve of Philadelphia, president of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers, is in Boston to attend the meetings of the Department of Superintendence. Mrs. Reeve speaks on the main program on Monday, Feb. 27; also at the Home Economics section meeting and on the section program of cities between 10,000 and 100,000.

Winchester members of the Congress connected with the Parent-Teacher Associations of the Wadleigh and High Schools will have the opportunity of hearing Mrs. Reeve speak at a luncheon arranged by the Massachusetts Parent-Teacher Association to be held at the Twentieth Century Club on Friday, March 2. Her subject will be, "The Great Projects of the National Congress of Parents and Teachers." Other speakers are Dr. Randall J. Condon, Superintendent of the Schools of Cincinnati, and Mrs. Cornelia Cannon of Cambridge, a director of the State Association, and an author of note.

Luncheon tickets may be obtained at the state office, Room 403, 248 Boylston Street, Boston.

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. W. D. McElhiney of 16 Baldwin street announce the engagement of their daughter Ruth Anita, to Howard A. Wallace, of Stoneham. The marriage will take place early this spring.

Miss McElhiney is connected with the office force of the Winchester Laundries Inc. Mr. Wallace prepared at Tufts College for his life's work and is in the Civil Engineering Department of the N. Y. & N. H. R. R., located at Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

WILL RUN AS UNPLEDGED DELEGATES

James G. Harris of West Medford, former member of the Governor's Council with Governors McCall and Coolidge is to team up with Russell A. Wood, former Representative and a present member of the Cambridge School Committee, to run for election as delegates to the Republican National Convention to be held at Kansas City next June. They will be unpledged.

AN APPRECIATION FROM THE WINCHESTER TEACHERS' CLUB

To the Editor of the Star:

May I have space in your paper to publicly thank the good people of this town for their friendly support of the Winchester Teachers' Club which made possible the generous sale of tickets for "The Pirate's Daughter?"

We feel that this performance must have shown Winchester parents the fine spirit of co-operation existing throughout our whole teaching force from Kindergarten through High School and between supervisors and teachers. One example was in the making of the scenery by Miss Frances E. Daley, teacher of Sloyd, Miss Helen M. Sullivan, of the Noonan School, a well-known grade teacher of artistic ability, and Mr. Otis W. Leary, teacher of Printing. Furthermore, the fact is very evident that back of our teaching group is a Superintendent who can and does enter heartily into all activities of the Winchester Teachers' Club.

M. Jane Davis, President
Winchester Teachers' Club

James Cullen of Clark street has been elected to membership on the Senior Week Committee at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a real honor. "The Fireman" was also successful in defeating his opponent in the 125 lb. class of the Tech—Brown wrestling tourney last Saturday evening. Cullen is captain of the Tech grapplers and one of the most dependable performers on the team.

WINCHESTER GIRLS WIN SECOND GAME FROM STONEHAM

Winchester High School girls' basketball team proved its early season win over the Stoneham High quintette was no fluke when the locals won their return match with Coach Poland's lassies Friday afternoon in the high school gymnasium, 20—13. The contest was close enough all the way to be very interesting and Winchester had to come from behind to win.

The visitors started away like sure winners and had rolled up six points in the first few minutes of play. With the score standing 6—2 against its club Winchester called for time and Coach Wheeler sent in Helen MacKinnon to replace Mary Cutter at jumping center.

The locals began to brace and were able to run the score to 8 apiece at the half. Stoneham guards were doing an excellent job in keeping "Sunny" Davis and Virginia Merrill covered and the Winchester forwards had to show plenty to get a clean shot at the net. Toward the end of the second quarter Mary Reed replaced Captain Davis, the latter returning to the game after intermission.

Following half-time the going was very fast, but Winchester gained a slight edge at the three-quarters mark, the score standing in its favor 13—12. Thereafter Coach Wheeler's charges made their advantage more apparent and with Virginia Merrill doing some pretty shooting gradually pulled ahead to win. Stoneham never stopped trying and its club was well drilled, especially on defense. Merrill for Winchester and Dodge for Stoneham were the scoring stars of the game. Margaret O'Donnell replaced Frances Pettingell at right guard during the final quarter.

Between the halves of the first team game the Stoneham seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 24—18. The summary of the main game follows:

EWEN—LORD

Vermont Couple Wed in Winchester

A very pretty small wedding was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Kneeland, 15 Oxford street on Monday, Feb. 20 at 6 o'clock when their cousin, Miss Dorothy L. Lord of Montpelier, Vt., was united in marriage to Mr. Norman J. Ewen of the same city. Rev. Martin D. Kneeland, uncle of the bride, performed the ceremony. The bride was charmingly dressed in a green georgette traveling gown and carried pink roses. After the ceremony a wedding supper was served and shortly afterwards the young couple left on their wedding trip to Canada.

The wedding was attended by relatives and intimate friends of the young couple. The bride is the daughter of the late Hon. and Mrs. William A. Lord of Montpelier, Vt., and the groom a prominent young business man of the same city.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On last evening the regular business meeting for February was held in Lyceum Hall. This meeting was postponed from the second Thursday in the month to allow for our last pre-Lenten activity, a most successful whist and cake sale under the direction of Sentinel B. Young.

Plans were made for our coming initiation of new members. We have several names on our waiting list and plans for the coming ceremony are in charge of Sister Mary Carroll and Kathryn Callahan as Chairmen. The date for this affair will be given in a later issue of the Star.

WINCHESTER LOSES FINAL GAME TO BELMONT

A weakened Winchester team, fighting to the last ditch, lost its final Middlesex League Basketball game to Belmont High Friday evening in the local gymnasium by a single basket, 26—24. The club was without the services of Ray Halwartz, "Livin" McNeil and "Barney" Murphy and their absence made the difference between defeat and victory.

In the place of Halwartz, veteran left forward, Coach Mansfield started "Nutsy" Amico, scrappy guard, and the big football captain-elect gave a sweet exhibition of all around play. Brother "Archa" filled in at "Nutsy's" guard and "Skinny" Kendrick was at right forward in McNeil's place. Kendrick was one of the game's high scorers running up 11 points on four goals and three foul baskets. "Bobby" Shaw, regular second team player, took Murphy's place as first string substitute for Knowlton and did well when inserted into the lineup. The whole Winchester team with their backs to the wall, gave a splendid exhibition against one of the best outfits on the league roster, and after leading for the first half came very strongly at the end of the battle to just fall short of knotting the count.

The locals looked like easy winners at the end of the first quarter when they were leading, 10—3. They were still on the long end at the half 15—11, but starting the third quarter Belmont began to come. As the period ended the visitors were ahead 24—19 and as play was resumed Condon, Belmont center, sunk a basket making the count 26. Here Winchester braced perceptably and raised its score to 22 on three successive shots from free tries. With the crowd in an uproar Captain "Herb" Ross caged a floor goal, narrowing down the gap to a couple of points but time was too short to allow the local boys to get up onto even terms.

Sliney, visiting left guard, was the scoring ace of the battle, ringing six floor goals for 12 points. This lad had a real eagle eye for the hoop, all of his shots coming from no nearer than mid-court. At the start of the second quarter he tossed three successive baskets which really put Belmont in the running.

Between the halves of the main game the Belmont seconds defeated the Winchester seconds, 10—8, in another close game. The summary of the first game follows:

HOSPITAL ALUMNAE HELD VALENTINE DANCE

More than 125, the largest number ever to attend a similar function, taxed White's Hall to capacity last Friday evening at the Valentine dancing party held under the auspices of the Winchester Hospital alumnae.

The hall presented an attractive appearance in decorations of red and white, potted plants being cleverly utilized to partially screen the orchestra, placed upon the stage. A Paul Jones leap year dance, cut-in and favor dances with the ever popular elimination enlivened the program, while a grand march held during one of the favor numbers proved popular. Refreshments were served during intermission and candy was sold throughout the evening, the proceeds from both dance and sales being to swell the fund which the alumnae are raising to provide a bed in the Winchester Hospital.

The party proved both a social and financial success, reflecting credit upon the committee in charge: including Miss Janet Stewart, chairman; Miss Alice Brine, Miss Ruth Corcoran, Miss Kathleen Morse and Mrs. Mabel Ross.

Mrs. Alexander W. MacKenzie of Washington street was notified on Monday of the death in Buffalo, N. Y., of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Lowry. Mrs. MacKenzie left Boston Tuesday night to attend the funeral.

OUR SCOUT CAMPS

Now that the great "let down" after Christmas has come; and before the plans for our summer vacation begin let us give a few thoughts to our young people of Winchester.

This town is called, and is supposed to be, the wealthiest suburb of Boston. As in all other towns and cities they have their Boy and Girl Scouts. How many of us know that these organizations are supported by a very small percentage of the townspeople. For some people the summer camps seem a wonderful opportunity to have their sons and daughters, among healthful and good moral surroundings, under the supervision of men and women worth while. To others it seems a good place to send the boy or girl to get them out of the way in the best and cheapest way possible.

The Girl Scouts I cannot speak of from personal knowledge, but the Boy Scouts last year, if it had not been for Mr. Butters' own big heart, would have lost out on a great many trips that were not only pleasure trips but were education. A trip to a State fish hatchery, another to Fort Knox, up the Penobscot River, one of the old land marks of this country, and another day on the battleship Arkansas, which lay at anchor in Penobscot Bay. It was Mr. Butters who loaded his own car until the springs lay flat on the axels, with boys and luggage and started from Winchester to Camp on a 220-mile ride; and at the close of camp made the return trip. It was he who got up early in the morning and made several trips to carry the youngest boys to the starting point on their all-day outings.

Continual trips were made to Belfast for provisions, and to the hospital with those boys who needed small attentions to minor hurts, which, with neglect, might have proved serious.

Without my seeing these acts, with my own eyes, the people of Winchester would never have known of them. I am sending this to you in good faith and hope Mr. Butters will not disapprove of my letting you all know about the little personal inside life in camp.

A year ago enough money came in to hire a truck, to transport some of the boys and to use for necessities during camp time, this year must have been a very "hard year" for there were not funds enough to repeat this act.

If some of the mothers and fathers who send their boys to camp; and the townspeople who are interested in our boys welfare, could look in, anytime, day or night, and see their son a happy member of one large family, surprised constantly, in their work and play, by Councelors, and a Scoutmaster who gives each and every boy his personal care and instruction; who joins them in their games and help them in their little difficulties; and in other words is a "real father" and pal to them all. I am sure that they would feel that now is a good time to plan their sons or daughters vacation, and send in their contributions, no matter how small to be used for the summer camps for the Boy and Girl Scouts of Winchester.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"The Midget Follie of 1928," a big revue in 11 scene played by miniature artists, something new in vaudeville entertainment, is the special feature of the five act variety bill the Granada Theater in Malden is offering the last three days of this week. Here are 10 of the world's greatest petite artists, Prima donnas, dancers, actresses and comedians, all ability are to be seen in this collection of little stars. These players are real midgets normal in every respect but size. June and Jo, two girls who are well known to radio audiences for their harmony singing and also playing and Paul Brothers, sensational perch artists, are other features on the five-act bill for the last half of this week. Esther Ralston in "Love and Learn" is the feature picture for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Wallace Beery and Raymond Hatton, in their fifth joint appearance, in "Wife Savers," will be offered by the Granada management the first three days of next week starting Monday. Beery and Hatton made their debut in "Behind the Front" in which they appeared in American army uniforms and the "Wife Savers" present them in the same regalia. However, the uniform is quickly doffed in this new opus. The war sequences concern only the Armistice with Beery being left behind in France, at the Alpine border, to work out his debt as a Swiss guide and yodler. Nothing funnier than Beery as a Swiss guide has ever happened. Again Raymond Hatton is his worst enemy and the two of them get into more laugh-provoking situations than in any of their previous hits. The usual five act program of vaudeville will also be presented next week Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday.

TO DIRECT WORK OF YOUNG PEOPLE AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

An announcement of unusual interest in local church circles is the engagement of the First Baptist Church of Miss Eda Knowlton as special director of Young People's Work. Miss Knowlton who assumes the duties of her new office on Sunday, Feb. 26 has been highly successful in young people's church programs and several churches suburban to Boston have been seeking to obtain her services.

Miss Knowlton has been a popular chaperon of house parties at the famous Ocean Park, Maine Summer School and a successful organizer and director of the State of Maine Young People's Conferences. Her work in pageantry has won the highest praise while in both religious and social activities her methods are attractive and constructive.

Thus far the church has been able to secure the services of Miss Knowlton only until Easter but counts itself fortunate in having the benefit of her talent even for this brief period.

On young people's problems, Miss Knowlton has a special gift as a sunny and sympathetic counsellor.

SERGEANT ROGERS PRAISED BY ASSIT. DISTRICT ATTORNEY

Sergt. William H. Rogers of the Police Department, who, recently with Officer John E. Hanlon and members of the Arlington Police, succeeded in capturing a pair of heavily armed youthful hold-up men after a thrilling chase from the High street district of Winchester to Arlington center has received the following letter of recognition from Asst. District Attorney Frederick A. Crafts who prosecuted the case for the State in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge where Judge Dubuque imposed sentences of 20 and 28 years in Concord Reformatory upon the 19 year old defendents.

The letter which is upon stationary bearing the seal of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts follows in full:

Sergt. William H. Rogers,
Police Department,
Winchester, Mass.

Dear Sergeant:

Before the matter slips from my mind, I want to let you know that in my opinion your work in apprehending and prosecuting George L. Ryder and Robert Langell was a most excellent piece of police work and undoubtedly has saved this country from many more armed robberies and possible murders in connection therewith.

I want to congratulate you on your courage and your thoroughness in preparing this case.

Very truly yours,
(signed) Frederick A. Crafts,
Asst. District Attorney

LENTEN SERVICES AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Lenten vesper services will be held in the First Congregational Church on Wednesday afternoons at 4 o'clock beginning next Wednesday, Feb. 29, and continuing until Easter. Rev. Howard J. Chidley will speak at the first service on the "Lenten Outlook."

The people of Winchester are cordially invited to attend these services.

R. E. NAUMBURG TO WRITE PART OF U. S. HISTORY

The United States History Association has asked Robert E. Naumburg of Winchester to write for the new history of the United States now in course of preparation, the section dealing with textile inventions. The list of contributors to "Uncle Sam's History of the United States" as it is called, includes President Coolidge, ex-Secretary Hughes, Secretary Hoover and Prof. F. W. C. Hersey and Prof. Bliss Perry of Harvard.

Edward Sexton of Winchester is to be an usher at the prom of the Harvard Junior Class to be held on March 8 in the Memorial Hall, Cambridge.

LEGION MOVIES POPULAR WITH KIDDIES

The heavy snow storm of last Saturday did not prevent a large number of children from attending the matinee motion picture show held in the Town Hall under the auspices of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion.

The hall and even the balconies were well filled with as enthusiastic an audience as ever gathered for a similar entertainment in Winchester, the evening audience was not so gratifying, though in view of the inclement weather, a large house had not been anticipated.

A bill of unusual merit was presented and those who allowed the weather to interfere with their attendance missed a rare treat. "Dress Parade," the feature picture, starring William Boyd and Bessie Love, proved especially good depicting as it did the influence of West Point ideals upon a young man who had entered the academy for the express purpose of marrying the Commander's daughter and vindicating himself against another man. In the end the cadet had so far absorbed the sprit of the famous military school as to risk his life under fire for his former rival. Everyone liked the picture.

And was "Lindy" popular? You should have heard the kiddies voice their approbation as the face and form of the World's hero flashed upon the screen. Seldom has greater enthusiasm manifest itself and the grown-ups were scarcely less vigorous in their approval. The reels showing Colonel Lindbergh's flight from Los Angeles to Paris proved absorbingly interesting while those showing close-ups of the National Convention of the Legion in Paris were also worth while. Especially impressive in connection with the latter was the picture showing Legionnaires strewing roses upon the grave of France's "unknown soldier."

Music for the afternoon performance was played most acceptably upon the piano by Miss Ruth MacDonald. In the evening the crack orchestra of Somerville Post, A. L., played. During both performances candy was sold by members of the Legion Auxiliary, including Miss Mary Reebenacker, Miss Katherine Donahue, Miss Mildred Anderson, Mrs. Vincent P. Clarke and Mrs. Roy Nelson. Vincent P. Clarke served as head usher and the box office was in charge of Andrew F. Anderson.

Past Commander Vincent P. Clarke was chairman of the committee in charge of the affair assisted by Andrew F. Anderson, George J. Barbaro, Robert H. Hamilton, John Moynihan and Theodore Lawson.

Mrs. Mary McHugh of Fenwick road underwent an operation Monday at the Winchester Hospital for the removal of a needle which had become lodged in her foot. Two operations were necessary, one piece of the needle being removed Saturday and th remainder Monday.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

Next Tuesday evening, Feb. 28, the Ladies' Friendly Supper will be held in Metcalf Hall of the Unitarian Church at 6:45 p. m. Tickets may be obtained from the directors or supper chairman, Mrs. G. W. Apsey. Following the supper the Harvard Workshop prize play, "The Flower Shop" will be presented under the direction of Mrs. Harold Moyer.

The newest act, the activities' committee have up their sleeve is to bring young Richard Halliburton to Winchester. They intend to spring him the last of March when our restless spirits can go vagabonding with his tales. Before he wrote, "The Royal Road to Romance" and "The Glorious Adventure" he took a modern Odyssey.

"Joe" Tansey was in town over the past week-end, coming down from Northfield, Vt., to participate with the Norwich team in the rifle match held Monday in the Commonwealth Armory, Boston.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Children have wide ears and long tongues—repeating in the highway what they hear by the fireside.

The result of any good you may do is not lost even though you may have forgotten it.

Speak little, speak truth, spend little, pay cash, then watch your progress.

He who climbs too high may have a fall; but its better to fall than not climb at all.

To marry a woman for her beauty would be like buying a house for its paint.

Motorists generally have been interested in the statement attributed to Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin to the effect that automatic STOP and GO signals unless operated by a policeman are illegal and should not interfere with the State traffic regulation which gives the right of way to the car on the right when two machines meet at an intersection of streets. Mr. Goodwin cites as his authority a ruling by the attorney general who decided that cities and towns had no right to establish auto traffic signals that operate to the contradiction of State statutes. Mr. William F. Williams, Commissioner of Public Works, is quoted a stating that in his opinion the attorney general's ruling applies only to such automatic signals as may have been placed on State highways where traffic is supposed to come under the jurisdiction of his department. Meanwhile quite a controversy has been occasioned, with several authorities entering the field in defence of a town or city's right to pass suitable by-laws to govern traffic signals within their territorial limits. Winchester has begun a system of traffic signs in town and so far as could be ascertained the police have no orders to allow motorists to disregard them. Mr. Goodwin may be right in his interpretation, but until the situation is completely cleared up it would seem good judgment to stop when a red light shows in one's path. The fact that the signal, in Mr. Goodwin's opinion, is illegal might not help too much with the average policeman who is paid to do as his particular community directs.

LEWIS PARKHURST

Public-spirited Citizen, Philanthropist, Humanitarian

Lewis Parkhurst was born in Dunstable, Mass. in 1856. He came of sturdy New England family of the best type. His father was a farmer and lumberman and for a time lived in Brookline, New Hampshire, where he engaged in lumbering white pine, later returning to his old home in Dunstable. While living in Brookline Lewis attended the public schools at South Woodstock, Vt. then the academy at that place where he prepared for college, afterwards going down river to Dartmouth where he was graduated in 1878. So in his boyhood days Lewis Parkhurst was thoroughly tinctured with the vitalizing, manmaking atmosphere of three Northern states, all famous for the large number of good men and great that they have nurtured and given to the world to fill its high places of honor, responsibility and trust. Of these distinguished sons Lewis Parkhurst is not the least. In his college days he dreamed of a life of active philanthropic service and that dream he come true. With willing toil of heart and hand, and bounty of gold he has returned to the communities and institutions that helped him in his upward struggle all that they gave him, and rounding and doubling the measure he has cheerfully given more until all are indebted to him for princely gifts and devoted service

Pages might be filled in recording his private benefactions and gifts to the poor and unfortunate. That is not my purpose. I shall record here some of the great public benefactions known to all his fellow citizens who read, but forgotten by some because they are too numerous to remember.

Leaving college he started out on the great highway of life, head up, resolute, unafraid and in his heart the "venture of a high resolve." In the beginning he taught school. He was poor as worldly possessions are counted but he was rich in qualities of heart and soul that make a man a man. As soon as he was able he returned to his alma mater and settled his account with her, not that he owed her in a money sense, but it was a thank offering of gratitude that filled his heart and he must pay even his gratitude. With open hand he bestowed a princely gift, a beautiful building costing a fortune, and what was more he gave his services.

Again we see him serving the State that gave him birth. In her representative halls he gave his best for her best good. His sympathy for those whose lives are broken and whose lot is hard led him to visit the State prison and he began an investigation of that institution and its inmates. He was touched with pity for the unfortunate and he was shocked at the miserable conditions he found and the lack of decent accommodations. He told the legislature that the institution was a disgrace to the State and he plead for a better one. He spent thousands of dollars of his personal fortune advertising in the public press the deplorable conditions existing, suggesting a practical remedy and asking for assistance in behalf of the prisoners. He was defeated in the legislature but he won in the hearts of the people. He has lived to see his judgement vindicated; his efforts rewarded. At last his plans have been approved and work begun on a new prison. The prisoners have him to thank for better things to come, and it will help them some to know that in the heart of their benefactor is the feeling that "a man may be down but he is never out." His labors and money so freely given for suffering humanity have not been given in vain. "Goodness has its own reward."

This brings me to the account of his services so freely given to his home town of Winchester over a period of almost half a century. I have lived in the same town with him and have known Mr. Parkhurst for 30 years. His first services for the town were rendered as principal of the high school, beginning in 1881 and continuing until 1887. Winchester was peacefully sleeping when he came here. She was not suffering with growing pains. Her natural beauty was marred by certain neglected spots, old, unsightly buildings including a tannery, livery stable, freight yard, shacks right in the center of the town in the eyes of everybody where now is that beautiful plot named Manchester Field. "It's an eye sore and a disgrace to the town," said Forrest C. Manchester. "Let's clean it up," said Lewis Parkhurst. And they went at it working shoulder to shoulder, overcoming obstacles put in their way to defeat their purpose, fighting strong opposition, hanging on when there was not much to hang on to, winning over this commission and that commission and although they were defeated in the first town meeting they won in the next. The freight yard, livery stable and tannery were razed and a beautiful park made in their place. The town did well to name it Manchester Field. There never was a finer, more lovable, generous man than Forrest C. Manchester. Mrs. Manchester was true, sincere and wholly admirable. Both died in early middle life.

With open heart and hand Mr. Parkhurst continued his public-spirited work. He has served the town in capacities too numerous to mention; on the water board, school committee, as trustee of the public library, and important committees too numerous to record. He gave the library to the Winchester High School; he was chairman of the building committee that built the Unitarian Church, and he has given it a costly organ. Largely through his efforts the high school grounds were beautified and a war memorial placed there in appropriate setting. Always giving willingly and cheerfully he is still carrying on although, as he says, he has passed the age when most men retire from active duties.

His latest work for the town is a crowning achievement of years of generous, cheerful toil and giving for the good of all the people now and generations to come. He has accomplished this philanthropy as chairman of the Water Ways Committee. As a member of that committee I know what he has done. If he had done nothing else for the town the people would owe him a debt of profound gratitude for his accomplishments in bringing to completion a set of plans which, when carried out, will solve most difficult municipal problems and will complete a park system making Winchester more beautiful than any of us ever expected it could be. Night and day he has worked on this project and he has spent several thousand dollars of his own money in order that this scheme may be presented to the people and the plan made possible for the benefit and pleasure of all the people now and for generations to come. Mr. Kelleway, landscape architect, has said that never before has he undertaken a task anywhere where the possibilities for beauty at so small a cost are so great as they are in Winchester. Nature has given us a beautiful valley with streams running through it, a choice background to begin with. From the center to the lakes it has already been beautified showing what can be done. That was the most expensive and the hardest part of the whole task. The task remaining is to follow up stream to the Woburn line, restore things to their natural beauty, add a few artificial ponds, and a tree-bordered highway extending north from the town hall, paralleling Washinton street for its entire length. It is estimated that the increased value of property resulting from this project will in time ray the cost of it. The problem of the grade crossing is solved and fits into the whole scheme beautifully, and the cost of it is less than one-half that of any other plan presented to date. When this highway is completed it should be named Lewis Parkhurst avenue in honor of him who early and late has served the people with devotion, generosity and fine public snirit.

Lewis Parkhurst is a public-snirited citizen, philanthropist, humanitarian; generous benefactor of his alma mater, the Commonwealth and his home town.

PLAN MEETS FAVOR

Railroad Crossing Should be Eliminated Now by Kelloway Proposal

The grade crossing elimination plan presented under the Kelloway plan for the development and beautifying of our town appears to be meeting with much favor. Many citizens have expressed their approval of the scheme and not a few have expressed surprise that it was not brought forth long ago. Such comment is very gratifying to the Star. This paper believes that the plan submitted is the best and most feasible scheme for eliminating our deadly grade crossing yet devised. The more one studies it the more one is impressed with its merits, and considering its convenience and the display and setting of our previous development, nothing ever proposed can approach it. Our present points of beauty are brought forth in new settings never before imagined; our future development may be enlarged in scope and placed upon a known and staple footing. Not only does the plan allow unlimited possibilities from an aesthetic and "clean-up" viewpoint; it contains many other desirable features. The whole development may be carried out without interruption to travel or business until it is thrown open to use. No plan yet devised, even among the many and elaborate schemes of 20 years, can approach it in the small amount of expense involved. It adds to our business center without detracting from our present center. In fact it will undoubtedly add to the value and attractiveness of present store locations, for the absence of electric cars and tracks, the short swings from the main thoroughfares and the diversion of trucking will prove valuable features. New land is opened for future enlargement of our business center, now badly needed. In fact from every angle the proposed development proves decidedly attractive. It appears that the town is presented with a most desirable development at a most opportune time. Outside our residential section practically every development in the growth of our town hinges upon the grade crossing abolition, and aside from the danger of the crossing, which should be the first consideration, it is important that this question should be settled. The residential sections are more or less affected too, for one crossing accommodating fire apparatus, electric cars and even foot traffic, is a danger point which may cause peril to every house in town. The Star trusts and hopes that the Town of Winchester will take up this matter after the long wait of over a dozen years and this time will push it through to accomplishment. If the plan presented is approved, and it undoubtedly is favored by a great many citizens, it might well be the start in our waterways development, pending new sewers and the erection of public buildings. The time to get rid of this deadly grade crossing is now—and not after some public calamity.

CALUMET NOTES

WINTER BOWLING TOURNAMENT

Six of the teams in the winter tournament finished their scheduled games on the Calumet alleys Monday night and are all set for the grand final dinner on Tuesday, March 20. Team 18, after losing the first string by a small margin of three pins, took three points from 16. Team 20 had little difficulty in trimming 21 for all four, and 22 took a like number from 27, although the latter aggregation came within five pins of taking the last string. Individual scores were spotty. There were a number of good singles and few good totals. The high scores were as follows:

C. D. OF A. NOTES

The "Entertainment and Peddlers' Parade" on Thursday evening last was a splendid success and much money was realized for a worthy cause—the new organ at the Holy Ghost Hospital, Cambridge.

Each of the principals did so well in her respective role that no one can be mentioned more especially than the others.

The little dancers, Mary MacPartlin and Mary Jaqueline King, delighted all with their graceful performance, and Mrs. Ellen Mulhern and Mrs. Winnie McElhiney of Woburn, accordion and piano specialty artists, were forced to respond to repeated encores.

Those who participated in "A Suit for Alienation of Ed's Affections" were:

The Judge	Miss Katharine F. O'Connor
The Defendent	Mrs. Mary Kelley
The Plaintiff	Mrs. Mary McKenzie
The Witnesses	Mrs. Mary McGrath, Miss Mary O'Melia
Black-face Performers	Mrs. Sarah Cassidy, Mrs. Frances Conlon
The Flirting Flappers	Mrs. Mary O'Neil, Miss Susan Brown
Accompanist	Miss Lucia McKenzie

The show was so good that many would like to see it repeated. This is not possible but at the March social there will be another comedy attraction which is sure to please the members and their many friends.

V. R. Nellie Moffett and Historian Mary Martin are to be congratulated on the successful parties they have conducted in aid of the charitable committee and Financial Secretary Sarah Cassidy and Miss Katharine O'Connor deserve the credit for the success of the "Social and Peddlers' Parade."

The next social will be held at the home of Prophetess Frances T. Conlon, Canal street, next Tuesday evening in aid of the charitable fund. Mrs. Conlon will be assisted by Treasurer Elizabeth C. McDonald and Sister Elizabeth Bullard.

WINCHESTER GIRL HAS WINNER AT BOSTON DOG SHOW

"Sis Von Hesse", handsome shepher puppie of Miss Flavia Halwartz of Wildwood street was twice a winner at the show of the Eastern Dog Club, held on the holiday in Mechanics Building, Boston. In addition to being awarded the blue for puppie bitches in her class "Sis" was also adjudged the best puppie of her breed in the show. She has yet to be defeated in competition and has annexed five blue ribbons for her mistress.

Miss Halwartz's other blue was awarded to "Eric and Blackie Von Hess", picked as the best brace in their class in the show. Mrs. Franklin E. Gregory of Forest street exhibited her splendid Doberman pinchers and also was among the prize winners.

At 1 o'clock on the morning of the holiday Officer William Cassidy discovered an abandoned Ford sedan with two wheels broken off at the corner of Everett avenue and Bacon street. The car was found to be the property of Fred W. Newton of 14 Brook avenue, Waltham who told the police he had put the sedan out of commission in a skid and had gone to his home in a taxi.

LECTURE BY EX-TRAMP AT THE METHODIST-EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Parent as well as the boys and girls of Winchester are urged to hear the lecture of the World's most famous ex-tramp. He is known through many countries as "A No. 1." He will be present and give his lecture in the Winchester Methodist Episcopal Church Wednesday evening, Feb. 29 at 7:45 o'clock.

The public is invited. A packed house of children and parents is anticipated. There will be no charge for admission.

"A No. 1" has a real name, Leon Ray Livingston, but he is nationally known by the name given him while a tramp. This unique man has hobnobbed with such men as Thomas A. Edison, Luther Burbank and Jack London. After 21 years as a tramp he settled down and married and now devotes much of his time to missionary work among boys and girls the country over trying to persuade them to give up the idea of leaving home to "make their fortune."

Mr. Livingston's story is a remarkable one. He has traveled 520,000 miles on $7.16. He has prevented many train wrecks. He has traveled about Europe, Cuba, South and Central America. He went to the Klondike in the gold rush. The complete story of his adventurous life will be told in his own unique way the night of the lecture.

Mr. Livingston has devoted his life to the worthy cause of keeping boys and girls from leaving home. More than 200,000 boys leave home every year, 35,000 of whom become worthless tramps and 7500 of whom are killed annually by trains, automobiles and exposure. Most of the girls are never heard from again. All classes of homes are represented in this army of young and spirited, but sadly unwise, rebels and wanderers. "A No. 1" is giving his life to decrease that army's size. Boys and girls who hear his lecture do not leave home.

Considerate

The artist had agreed to paint the portrait of a beautiful young girl in her very becoming lavender evening gown.

The girl's mother decided, as she thought the matter over at home, that she would prefer to have her daughter wear a yellow dress.

A few days later the portrait painter received a message over the telephone from the young girl: "Mother thinks I'd better wear my yellow dress and hopes you haven't bought the paint yet!"—Vancouver Province.

What Thrift Means

Every dollar saved gives the saver not only additional capital, but also increases the available capital of the nation whose employment in legitimate business indirectly returns to the saver considerable dividends in what we are pleased to call "prosperity."—Grit.

Handkerchief in History

According to Dr. Frank H. Vizetelly, noted lexicographer, the use of the handkerchief is derived from the Chinese. In its primitive silk tissue and paper form, this article was common in China long before the Christian era.

Napoleon and Lincoln Among the Henpecked

The henpecked man can scarcely be classed as a product of modern times. Historians relate that many of the world's most famous men, including Napoleon, Lincoln and Socrates, were henpecked. One of the letters written by Napoleon to his wife, Josephine, ends with the postscript:

"A thousand kisses—as burning as yours are frosty."

Lincoln, it is said, was henpecked because he was too shy. Comm Mongeles, the German biographer of Lincoln, declares that Lincoln's wife loved him superficially, her own selfish ambitions predominating, adding that she constantly pecked at him and almost drove him mad.

The duke of Marlborough, one of Winston Churchill's ancestors, and acclaimed as one of the greatest warriors of his day, was madly in love with his wife, who, however, nagged him all the time. In 1704 he wrote to his wife on the eve of a battle:

"I'm not nearly as much afraid of my 60,000 foes as I am of you when you are mad at me." Next day, with Prince Eugene of Savoy, he won a big victory over the forces of Louis XIV of France.—New York Evening World.

Many Women Workers in the Middle Ages

The Middle ages, too, had their "feminism," and the way women's problems were solved was not very much different from today's.

In the Thirteenth, Fourteenth and Fifteenth centuries, just as at present, it was necessary to take care of unmarried women, and this could not always be done by means of convents, although a greater number of girls went in convents then than nowadays.

The crafts excluded women often on principle but in practice women worked in almost all crafts during the Middle ages, as simple workers as well as at the head of enterprises.

The professions in which women excelled were, of course, those which were related to the traditional feminine work, as weaving, cord manufacture and the textile crafts in general. Many women became leading seamstresses. Feminine tailors were far more frequent during the Middle ages than now. The gold industry always had a group of feminine and a group of masculine workers. Women often were barbers, and feminine musicians played in most of the wine inns. Women were teachers not only in their convent schools but also in general schools. Above all, there was never a lack of women physicians.

Everlasting Fires in Region of Desolation

Few regions are more remarkable than those near the Caspian sea. The waters of the sea once stretched far north and joined the Arctic ocean, but now, after countless ages, they have receded to their present limits. Vast stretches of waste and barren land are left where the waters once extended—deserts of reddish clay, with occasional marshes.

This is the region known as the "Land of Everlasting Fire." After sunset, leaping up on all sides from rents in the interminable plain, rise ghostly, dancing tongues of flame, untarnished by smoke, casting a lurid light all around.

Dotted about lie squat temples, from whose pinnacles rise columns of fierce flame, the dread gods incarnate of the fire-worshipers. The columns are said to have burnt continuously since the birth of Confucius.

The everlasting fires are not the disembodied souls of dead men and demons, as the natives believe, but are due to torrents of gas which stream from underground regions, and are ignited spontaneously.

It is possible to dig a small hole and then, by applying a live coal, cause it to burst into flames. If a tube of paper is stuck about two inches in the ground, and the top of it touched with a live coal, a flame will issue from it, but if the edges of the paper have been smeared with clay it will not take fire.

ROYAL ARCH LADIES' NIGHT WELL ATTENDED DESPITE STORM

Saturday's heavy snowfall and blustery weather proved no barrier to Winchester Royal Arch Masons and their guests, who turned out in large numbers for the long-anticipated ladies' night at Winchester Country Club. The festivities really began at 7, when several Chapter officers entertained parties at dinner, and dancing commenced at 8:30.

Superintendent Petchie of the Club and his assistants had decorated the entire dance hall with pine boughs and American flags, in honor of Washington's Birthday, and the occasion was further commemorated throughout the evening by red, white and blue decorations on the refreshment tables and the gaily wrapped dance prizes.

The reception committee was composed of the Chapter officers, each being distinguished by a boutonniere of red, the Chapter color. High Priest Kingman P. Cass was chairman, and other officers present included Arthur S. Hollins, Colver Dyer, Lindsay Foster, George B. Cumings, Harry N. Squires, Jr., H. Arthur Hall, John Hopkins and Dana C. Pickering.

Much hilarity ensued over the several feature dances, including a balloon dance, in which several couples were so evenly matched that the prizes had to be awarded by lot, and the lucky number dance, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Wood, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Hollins being the winners. There was also a Leap Year number and an interesting Heart Dance, all of which helped to get everyone well acquainted. Refreshments were served at 10:30 and there were tables for bridge in the winter sports room, although everyone found the dancing so merry that few paid any attention to bridge.

Seldom is better music for dancing provided than that furnished Saturday night by "Stan" Watson and his University Club band. Mr. Watson was formerly leader of the Dartmouth College Musical Clubs, and had "Al" Vinal of Williams at the piano, the other musicians being also from Dartmouth and Williams. Many encores were requested, and it is hoped that the same group can be obtained again on some future occasion.

Among the many present, in addition to the above named officers and their ladies, were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Hall
Mr. and Mrs. Anderson of Stoneham

WILL OF MARY H. MILLER LISTS SEVERAL LOCAL BEQUESTS

Waterfield Lodge of Odd Fellows, the Parish of the Epiphany and the Home for Aged People in Winchester share in $50,000 bequeathed under the will of Mary H. Miller, recently deceased in this town. The will, filed for probate last week at East Cambridge, names William E. Ramsdell, Winchester attorney, as executor.

Among the bequests of interest here are: $1000 to Waterfield Lodge, 231, I. O. O. F., as a memorial to the testator's son, Harry Carr Miller; $2000 to the Home for Aged People in Winchester and $15,000 to the Parish of the Epiphany to be expended in the erection of a tower or other suitable location for chimes given by her husband, Henry Child Miller.

Additional bequests are $1000 given to the Masonic Home at Charton as a memorial to the testator's husband, Henry Child Miller; $500 to the Children's Sunlight Hospital at Egypt, $1000 to the New England Home for Little Wanderers with one-fourth of the residue of the estate; $1000 to the Convalescent Home of the Children's Hospital with one-fourth of the residue of the estate, $2000 to the Boston Nursery for Blind Babies with one-fourth of the residue of the estate to the Perkins Institute for the Blind. There were several bequests to relatives in California.

With the death of Mrs. Miller the following provisions under the will of her husband, Henry Child Miller, become operative: $2000 to William Parkman Lodge of Masons for the building fund, $1000 to the Home for Aged People in Winchester, $1000 to Waterfield Lodge, 231, I. O. O. F., in memory of the testator's son, Harry Carr Miller, to be used for charitable purposes, $5000 to the Parish of the Epiphany to be expended for chimes, $5000 to the Parish of the Epiphany to be expended for a church tower, $3000 to the Masonic Home at Charlton and $5000 to Hugh de Payne Commandery, K. T., of Melrose.

Made Famous by Ballad

"Vicar of Bray" was the name given to the parson in Berkshire, England, whose real name was Simon Alleyn, who is said to have twice changed his creed and allegiance in order to suit the political changes of uncertain times. He is the subject of a humorous old English ballad.

"Philippics"

Any discourse or declamation abounding in acrimonious invective is known as a philippic because of a series of famous orations of Demosthenes, the Greek orator, denouncing Philip, king of Macedon.

BAPTISTS GREET NEW PASTOR

Preceding the reception several addresses were made. Deacon Harry C. Sanborn, chairman of the church executive committee, presiding and introducing the speakers. President Herrick of Newton Theological Seminary spoke in glowing terms of Mr. Brown, whom he had known at Rockland, Me., and of the latter's fine work there. Dr. Herrick had been closely associated with Winchester's newest pastor at Rockland and was in consequence well qualified to speak intimately of his personality and achievement.

President Wood of Gordon Bible College stated that he unfortunately was not personally acquainted with Mr. Browne but in view of the latter's wide reputation in the ministry and considering his splendid work in Rockland and elsewhere he would not hesitate to congratulate both his hearers and the town generally in having obtained the services of a man who could not fail to build up materially the spiritual and civic life of any community.

On the other hand Dr. Moss congratulated Mr. Browne, while welcoming him to Winchester, upon the fine parish with which he is to work. Dr. Johnson, who was succeeded at the First Baptist Church by Mr. Browne, was to have welcomed the latter to his new pastorate but was prevented by illness from attending the reception, his place being taken by Dr. Moss, who was in Winchester last winter. Dr. Heath, secretary, welcomed the new pastor to the Massachusetts Baptist Convention from that of Maine.

Rev. H. W. Hook, speaking in happy vein, on behalf of the local Inter-Church Council, extended a most cordial welcome to Mr. Browne and incidentally made one of the real feature addresses of the evening.

Interspersing the addresses the gathering was thrilled by the lovely voice of Mrs. Helen Edlefson Barr who sung "The Promise of Life" by Cowen, Grant-Schaeffer's "The Cuckoo Clock," Joyce Kilmer's "Trees," "To the Sun" by Pearl Curran and "The Lilac Tree" by Bartlan. Miss Mary H. French played Mrs. Barr's accompaniments upon the piano in her usual sympathetic manner. Preceding the speaking and during the reception selections were played by Alice Holmes Kelley's orchestra of Brookline.

The reception was held in the church auditorium, the receiving line standing directly in front of the pulpit which was beautifully decorated with palms and cut flowers. With Mr. and Mrs. Browne were Deacon and Mrs. Harry C. Sanborn and Deacon and Mrs. Harry T. Winn. Charles A. Burnham served as head usher assisted by Alfred W. Friend, Alfred O. Weld, Harry W. Moulton, Lorimer B. Slocum, Jerome W. Gates, Lee W. Ralph and Franklin Pynn.

Leaving the auditorium the company entered the vestry which had been completely transformed to represent a garden refreshment booth in the continental manner. The lower half of the walls was hidden with crepe paper to cleverly simulate masonry while above holyhocks and trellised rose vines bloomed in profusion. In the center of the vestry was a large table surmounted by a huge sun umbrella while about the room were placed smaller tables, cosily lighted by individual lamps and made gay with flowers. It is of interest that the clever parchment lampshades were made by members of the Winton Club for their recent cabaret and loaned for the occasion by the club officials.

Refreshments were served at the several tables by a group of hostesses including Mrs. Edward W. Berry, Mrs. Arthur H. Dalrymple, Mrs. John C. Gilbert, Mrs. Edward A. MacKinnon, Mrs. Edward Newhall and Mrs. Lee M. Ralph. The following group of young ladies served as waitresses; Miss Aileen Rockwood, Miss Nellie Ralph, Miss Jennie Ralph, Miss Edith Corey, Miss Alice Bigley, Miss Dorothy Friend, Miss Alice Friend and Miss Leone Waters. With the serving of refreshments a social hour was enjoyed.

Mr. Leonard O. Waters served as general chairman of the entire reception and also acted as chairman of the program committee, assisted in the latter instance by Mrs. Alfred W. Friend and Mrs. Daniel C. Linscott.

Mrs. Charles A. Burnham was chairman of the decorations committee, including Mr. Burnham, Mr. and Mrs. Willard A. Bradley, Mrs. Otto Abrahamer, Mrs. Lorimer B. Slocum, Mrs. Harry T. Winn and Mrs. Harry C. Sanborn.

The refreshments committee was headed by Mrs. Newton Shultis and comprised Mrs. Clarence A. Warren, Mrs. Leonard O. Waters, Mrs. John A. Finger, Mrs. Lorenzo M. Trowell, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest H. Butterworth and Mrs. Franklin Pynn.

The Difference in Babies

A Methodist clergyman of New York city who has christened hundreds of babies notices that blonde babies usually cry during the ceremony while little brunettes smile. The bald ones nearly always look blank when baptized. And there are babies that excel at all three of these stunts.—Capper's Weekly.

College of Experience

The marquis of Reading, who made his first voyage to India as cabin boy on an old clipper ship and in after years returned to that country as viceroy, asserted that he learned more during his two years before the mast than he probably would have done in the world's greatest college.

Verse and Poetry

Much verse falls of being poetry because it was not written exactly at the right crisis, though it may have been inconceivably near to it. It is only by a miracle that poetry is written at all. It is not recoverable thought, but a hue caught from a vaster receding thought.—Thoreau.

WINCHESTER HOME DAMAGED BY FLAMES TUESDAY

A two family dwelling at 977-979 Main street was damaged by a fire which was discovered shortly after 4 o'clock Tuesday morning by occupants of the house who were forced to flee thinly clad into the bitter cold out of doors.

The origin of the fire is not known. It started in the basement and worked its way up around the heater into the lower apartment occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph F. Donahue and their three small children.

Mr. Donahue was awakened to find his rooms filled with smoke. Arousing his own family he hastened to inform the occupants of the upper apartment, Mr. and Mrs. John H. Bryce and their five children, the eldest 16. This done Mr. Donahue lost no time in pulling an alarm from Box 45, situated at the corner of Russell road and Main street.

The early morning was extremely cold and the shivering refugees were quickly offered the shelter of neighboring homes while the firemen were fighting the blaze in their own.

The fire while unconsequential was nevertheless hard to combat due to its accessibility. The firemen were obliged to tear down some of the lower floor partition in the Donahue home before the flames were finally put out. The actual damage was largely confined to the lower apartment, though there was some smoke damage throughout the entire house. Traffic in the vicinity of the fire was handled by Officers James E. Farrell and Mark Kelley.

WINCHESTER GIRL PLACED 4TH AMONG OLYMPIC SKATERS

Miss Maribel Vinson of Winchester, 17-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas M. Vinson of High street, in competition with the best women competitors in the world, finished fourth in the women's figure skating event held during last Saturday's Olympic winter sports program at St. Moritz, Switzerland.

The defeat of Beatrix Loughran of New York, popular favorite to win the title, provided the chief sensation for the program for the day.

The judge's decision, announced late Saturday night awarded the figure skating title to Sonja Henie, 16-year-old Norwegian girl, with Miss Loughran, third, second place going to Fritzi Burger of Austria, and fourth to Maribel Vinson.

Miss Loughran's defeat was surprising in view of the fact that she finished second in the 1924 Olympics to Mme. Scob-Plank of Austria who was not entered in the competition this year.

The point scores, as announced by the judges follow: Sonja Henie, Norway, 8; Fritzi Burger, Austria, 25; Beatrix Loughran, United States, 28; Maribel Vinson, United States, 32; Cecil Smith, Canada, 32; Constance Wilson, Canada, 35. Mrs. Theresa Weld Blanchard of the United States was ninth.

Wigs Long in Use

The custom of wearing wigs is an ancient one. Egyptian mummies have been found wearing wigs nearly as well made as those of our own times. In early Greece both men and women wore wigs. In Rome no fashionable toilet was complete without one, wives of noblemen always choosing dark hair; yellow wigs were of very little repute.

FORMER WINCHESTER BOY FIGURES IN NEW YORK SQUASH TOURNEY

In the race for the Metropolitan Class A squash tennis championship of New York a former Winchester boy, G. Bryant Woods played a prominent part as a member of the Harvard Club, winner in 1927 and this year tied for first place with the Columbia University Club.

It was Wood's defeat of Harry K. Cross, former Eli football lineman, which gave Harvard a win over the Yale Club team and enabled the Crimson graduates to finish in a tie for premier honors. The score was tied at three all when Woods and his adversary took the court and it was only after the old Winchester boy had staved off a determined rally by Cross that he was able to win, 15—9, 9—15, 15—13.

The winner will be remembered as a former athletic star at Winchester High where he was one of the best ends ever to wear the Red and Black. He was captain elect of the eleven in 1913 and also played defense on the school's hockey team. Later he starred on the gridiron for Noble & Greenough School and entering Harvard was a member of the Crimson varsity squad. During the war he served overseas as a lieutenant in the Aviation Corps of the Army, being brought down and captured by the Germans in the St. Mihiel offensive. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Adams Woods who now make their home in New Haven, Conn.

Blindness Reduced

The underlying cause of blindness, whether the result of disease or accident, is usually ignorance. In 18 years the percentage of children in the schools for the blind who lost their sight because of ophthalmia, neonatorum (babies' sore eyes)—for centuries the principal cause of blindness—has been reduced more than 51 per cent.

Untrustworthy Historian

Flavius Josephus, Jewish historian, was born 37 A. D. and died about 93 A. D. Consequently, his birth occurring about eight years after the death of Christ, he was in a position to obtain first-hand information from actual witnesses of the acts recorded. It must be said that much of Josephus' historical works are claimed to be spurious, and that he also was noted for exaggeration.

Prominent American

Robert Green Ingersoll, American lawyer, lecturer and politician, died on July 21, 1899. He first settled as a legal practitioner at Peoria, Ill., in 1857, and in 1866 was attorney general for Illinois.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Rotarians who responded to the weekly summons on Thursday were treated to a very instructive and inspiring address by L. W. Hudgins of the Cambridge Rotary Club. "L W's" topic was "Classifications" but he did not confine himself entirely to that subject. On the contrary he took us back to the beginning of Rotary, and showed how it has grown step by step, how it has evolved the splendid code of ethics on which it stands today, and is expanding at a rate seldom attained by other organizations or societies.

The speaker went on to show that one of the important, well-nigh the most important foundation stone on which this substantial growth has been built is—Classifications. It is imperative that these be clean-cut and strictly adhered to if Rotary is to continue in vigorous health.

We were pleased to welcome as our guest this week the Rev. B. P. Browne who has recently come into our midst as pastor of the First Baptist Church. We trust that we may meet him frequently at our board.

As President George imposed no fines today we are patting ourselves on the back—not that we expect to achieve wings via the patting process, but rather we have learned that a "fine" day has its drawbacks.

We shall meet on Thursday next.

Earliest Form of Paper

Papyrus is a kind of rush reaching sometimes to a height of 10 feet, found in marshy districts of Abyssinia, Palestine, and Sicily. In Egypt, where it is now rare, it once supplied the paper used for priestly writings. Up to the Tenth century Egypt was the main source of Europe's supply of paper.

Natural Bread

The breadfruit tree is native of the Island of the Pacific ocean and of the Indian archipelago. This fruit supplies food and its inner bark a material for making clothing. When the fruit is gathered for use at an early stage the pulp is white and mealy and of a consistence resembling that of new bread.

Persimmon Tree Valuable

The wood of the persimmon tree is commonly used for the manufacture of shoe lasts. Numbers of persimmon trees are found in the vicinity of New York, along the shores of Long Island sound, on Staten Island and in nearby New Jersey, says Gas Logic.

Just Overworked

What a forbidding word "civic" is. —Woman's Home Companion.

Satisfying the Demand

Fortune Teller—"You are about to be discovered by a moving picture director and elevated to stardom." Flapper—"But that's the same thing you told my friend Rosa." Fortune Teller—"I can't help it. The young ladies won't hear of anything else nowadays." —Munich Fliegende Blatter.

His Impulse

The following true incident was told to a friend of the Companion not long ago by a woman of the Quaker faith.

A Quaker was once passing a Quaker meetinghouse in the country when suddenly he felt an impulse to go in and preach, although there was no audience. He acted according to his impulse, preached a short sermon and then left the building.

Some years later, while in London, he was accosted by a man who said to him, "Sir, you saved my life."

Astonished at such a remark, he said, "What do you mean? I do not know you."

"Well," said the man, "I was passing a certain meetinghouse one day and, hearing a voice, I listened outside the window." And then he added in a low voice, "I was an ex-convict and in despair, but your words saved me."—Youth's Companion.

Succession of Ideas Produced Motor Car

The history of the motor car began over 230 years ago, when Street, an English inventor, first utilized oil as a motive power. It was not until 1870 that a really practical petrol engine appeared. It was the work of Julius Hock, of Vienna.

The next name connected with the progress of the motor car is the most important of all—that of Gottlieb Daimler. In 1883 Daimler made the first small, high-speed petrol engine; all previous engines had been huge, clumsy and slow moving.

Two years later he installed his engine in a motor bicycle, and at the same time fitted boats with motors and ran them at Paris.

The boats attracted the attention of Levassor, another famous pioneer, who at once saw the immense possibilities in Daimler's invention. He bought the French patents from the inventor. Levassor invented a system of transmission—a method of taking the power from the engine to the wheels—and with a few small improvements this system is in use today.

Fear Spread by Eclipse

Before their nature was fully understood eclipses were regarded with superstitious dread, and many legends of dreadful occurrences are connected with this wonderful spectacle. In some parts of New Guinea they are regarded as portents of good success or success in battle, while in the Solomon Islands eclipses are credited to the machinations of sorcerers.

Not to Be Consoled

Little Katherine was crying, but for anything in particular, but for everything in general. Her mother, trying to divert her attention, said:

"Oh, look at that pretty horse tied out there."

But Katherine took it as one more grievance in life, saying: "I want that horse to."

State Trooper "Jack" Dempsey is receiving the congratulations of his friends upon his efforts in bringing to justice a thief who a short time ago stole goods valued at $1300 from the summer home of A. Berry Hall of New York, situated at Hyannis. The robbery was cleverly planned and executed, the thief backing a truck up to the house and removing the goods unmolested. He was indicted by the Barnstable jury and Trooper Dempsey assigned to the case. After some clever investigating the Winchester boy succeeded in effecting the man's arrest in Worcester.

Police Headquarters was notified last Saturday evening that a Nash coach, the property of Frank W. Harlow of 41 Warren street, West Medford, had been stolen from where it was parked on Mt. Surgeon Well Placed Among Nation's Great Selection of Dr. Ephriam McDowell as one of Kentucky's two representatives in the Hall of Fame—the other is Henry Clay—is a reminder of the great service this surgeon rendered to humanity. He blazed the way of his profession in abdominal surgery when, in 1809, he performed a difficult operation that never had been tried before, saved the patient's life and enabled his profession to save countless other lives afterward. Doctor McDowell was literally a "doctor of the old school," the type that thought nothing of the monetary return from his practice. He was an adviser of the people, often in financial matters as well as being the custodian of their health and that of their children. He was born in Rockbridge county, Virginia, and had ample opportunity to study the science in which he early decided to spend his life. After obtaining what medical education was available in America, he attended the University of Edinburgh and on his return from Europe located in Danville, Ky., in 1795 to practice. It was there that he performed the operation that made him famous.—Kansas City Star.

J. ERVINE JOHNSON

TAX COLLECTOR

I wish to recommend for your consideration the candidacy of J. Ervine Johnson for the office of Collector of Taxes.

Mr. Johnson is a native of this town, his ancestors having been among the first settlers here.

He is especially fitted to give competent service to the Town in this office.

He is a member of the Masonic, Elks, Odd Fellows and Eastern Star Lodges of Winchester; the Boston Chamber of Commerce and Traffic Club of New England was organizer of the camp of Sons of Veterans and served as its Commander for several years.

Integrity, Efficiency and Courtesy will be obtained by his election to this office.

TO THE VOTERS OF WINCHESTER

I want to thank the voters of Winchester who, for three years, have elected me to the office of Collector of Taxes.

If I have discharged the duties of that office to meet with your approval, may I ask for your continued support at the polls on March 5.

WINCHESTER GIRL MAKING A FINE SCHOLASTIC RECORD AT WHEATON

Miss Eleanor Berry of Winchester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward W. Berry of Stratford road, has the distinction of being on the Dean's list at Wheaton College and of ranking 11th in scholastic excellence in the entire college. Miss Berry, who is to graduate in June, ranks scholastically third among the members of the Senior class.

CALUMET

CALUMET NOTES

Our Leap Year party was held Friday evening and it was one of the most pleasant affairs we have ever held. The ladies took entire charge and they were not in the least bashful. Mrs. William S. Little was in charge and she was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Kelley, Mr. Little and Mr. Kelley. President Walter Brown and Mrs. Little led the grand march and they were followed by a large crowd. The ladies were instructed to choose their partners and they did so seemingly very willingly. Even at that, we did not note many of the men sitting out. Many feature novelties were introduced to change the general order of dancing and we all were kept quite busy. The "elimination" dance was won by Mrs. Vernon Hall with Mr. Allen as a partner and the "spot" dance by Mrs. H. G. Nichols and Mr. Nichols. Pupils of Miss Florence Baker gave specialty dances and their numbers added much to the charm of the occasion. Ruth Johnston gave two specialties, "Pizzicato" and "Soaring" and petite Grace Payne won our hearts with "Tarantella" and "Polkette" numbers. A collation was furnished during intermission.

ENDORSES HARRY W. STEVENS

Winchester, Mass.
Feb. 18, 1928

To the Editor of the Star:

I have learned with great satisfaction that Harry W. Stevens, of Winthrop street, has consented to run for the office of Selectman.

To the many who know him, especially those who have been associated with him in any activities, this means that there is available to this town the services of one who is, I believe, eminently fitted for the job. Of keen business ability and sound judgment he is the type of man who will thoroughly investigate every proposition which comes before him.

I believe that the many questions of importance which come constantly before the members of our Board will be in safe hands when Harry Stevens is elected and I am very glad to endorse his candidacy.

Very sincerely yours,
Edward B. Smalley,

WEDGEMERE STATION BROKEN INTO AGAIN

For the second time within a few months Wedgemere Station of the Boston & Maine Railroad was broken into during the early morning of Thursday, the fact being discovered by Officer Robert White at 3:15 o'clock.

An entrance was effected by forcing one of the cellar windows. From the basement access to the first floor was gained by breaking the door at the head of the cellar stairs. Once on the first floor the thief had forced the door of the ticket office and had opened the safe there by knocking off the combination and forcing the tumblers with a pick. The sum of $67 was missing.

Patrolman White notified headquarters at once and an investigation was begun under the direction of Chief William R. McIntosh. Sergt. William H. Rogers went first to the station and later the chief with Officer James P. Donaghey visited the scene of the robbery. Railroad inspectors were at the station during the forenoon of yesterday. No information on the robbery was given out at headquarters up to the time the Star went to press.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

An automobile will call for and return from the Town Hall for any women who would find it inconvenient to vote Monday without this service, if they will telephone Win. 0345, 1641 or 1661.

Mr. P. H. Randall is reported as back in town after spending several weeks in Florida.

TOWN ELECTION MONDAY

The annual Town Election of officers is to be held on Monday, March 5, in the Town Hall with the polls open from 7 in the morning until 6 in the afternoon. One of the shortest ballots for some years will be offered the voters with but three instances in which there is opportunity to express a preference.

Chief interest this year seems to center upon the contest being waged for the Board of Selectmen among J. Harper Blaisdell, William P. Callahan, Vincent P. Clarke, Walter H. Dotten, Thomas F. Fallon, Harry W. Stevens and Joseph W. Worthen. Messrs. Blaisdell, Dotten, Fallon and Worthen are candidates for re-election while Messrs. Stevens and Clarke are new candidates. Mr. Callahan was formerly a member of the board.

Mr. John F. Cassidy, a candidate for re-election to the Board of Assessors is being opposed by Mr. Robert M. Hamilton, while Mr. Nathaniel M. Nichols, seeking re-election to the office of Collector of Taxes has opposition in the candidates of Mr. J. Ervine Johnson and Mr. John F. O'Brien.

For the first time in some years there is no contest for the vacancies upon the School Committee, Messrs. Edward A. Tucker and Frederic D. Cement, candidates for re-election, being unopposed. There is nothing this year to be settled by ballot except the election of town officers.

The complete ballot follows:

Moderator (For 1 year)
George B. Hayward
Selectmen (For 1 year) Vote for Five
J. Harper Blaisdell
William P. Callahan
Vincent P. Clarke
Walter H. Dotten
Thomas F. Fallon
Harry W. Stevens
Joseph W. Worthen

WINCHESTER BOYS GOOD STUDENTS AT HARVARD

In the recently announced rankings for the first semester at Harvard the showing made by three boys, graduated from the Winchester High School last June, is nothing short of exceptional. Charles Smith, valedictorian of last year's graduating class at high school; Daniel Bennett, salutatorian; and Richard Hildreth in an aggregate of 12 courses received among them 11 A's or B's. In sending the ranks to Principal Wade L. Grindle of the local high school, Dean A. C. Hanford of Harvard added this notation, "Your men all have very good records. Send us some more like them". This would seem to substantiate the contention that the Winchester High School can and does prepare pupils adequately for college.

AN ENDORSEMENT

To the Voters of Winchester:

It gives me great pleasure to add my endorsement of Mr. Harry W. Stevens as a desirable member of our Board of Selectmen to the many already given him.

I consider Mr. Stevens well qualified for this important office and trust he will receive the support he deserves at the polls on Monday.

TO THE VOTERS

I am a candidate for re-election to the office of Selectman as I stated last year I went into said office with clean hands. I still reiterate said statement. I stand on my record for re-election as a member of the Board and any of my friends can refer to any member of the honorable board as to my service and the working of that body.

If elected this year I will do all in my power for the welfare of the town and its people.

VINCENT P. CLARKE FOR SELECTMAN

Vincent P. Clarke was born February 27, 1897. He attended Boston University and was graduated from its Law School in 1920. Since that time he has been engaged in the practice of Law. On being admitted to the bar in 1920 he selected Winchester as his future home and has since lived here. He is married and lives at 90 Church street.

He was Commander of Winchester Post No. 97, American Legion for two years and had previously been Commander of the Legion in Sudbury his old home.

He is a Trustee of the Winchester Methodist Episcopal Church; is a Past-Master of the Winchester Grange; is an officer in the William Parkman Lodge of Masons; is a Director of the Greater Boston Federation of Churches; a member of the Winchester Boy Scout Council; a member of the Winchester Boat Club; and is Secretary of the Calumet Club.

He is deeply interested in the welfare of the town, its civic interests and organizations, and is willing to serve the Town as Selectman.

We heartily endorse his candidacy.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

The public installation of the Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne as pastor of the First Baptist Church will be held in the church next Sunday evening. Installation exercises were observed always at the beginning of a new pastorate, but for some years have been omitted in many communities. Now, however, the custom is being observed again quite generally.

The installation sermon will be preached by President Everett C. Herrick of Newton Theological Institution speaking on the theme, "Old Loyalties and New". The charge to the Church will be given by President Nathan R. Wood of the Gordon Bible College speaking on the theme, "The Responsibility of the Church". The charge to the Pastor will be given by the Rev. R. G. Schell, assistant pastor of Tremont Temple, speaking on the theme, "The Work of the Ministry".

At the opening of the service there will be the usual rousing song service, assisted by the organ and piano and a mixed chorus. Other musical features of the program will include a duet by Mrs. E. C. Herrick and Mrs. B. P. Browne and a trombone solo by Mr. Charles English of Aleppo Temple, Boston.

This service is open to the public, who will undoubtedly be glad of the opportunity of observing this impressive service and of hearing these popular speakers.

In the morning Rev. Mr. Browne will preach on the topic, "Stewards or Squatters"?

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman E. Snow of Cottage avenue are the parents of a daughter, Nancy born Feb. 28 at the Faulkner Hospital.

MR. JOHN F. CASSIDY SHOULD BE RE-ELECTED

To the Voters of Winchester:

March 2, 1928

We wish to recommend Mr. John F. Cassidy for re-election to the Board of Assessors. Having been associated with him on the Board for four years, we wish to state that he has been most fair, sound, and impartial in his judgments, and is a valuable man for the town to retain in office. Mr. Cassidy has performed his duties conscientiously, and according to his oath of office. We cannot speak too highly of him and we trust the citizens will return him to office by a large vote.

WEDNESDAY BIG DAY FOR SERGEANT ROGERS

He looks a whole lot older and many a criminal will vouch for the fact that he has all his eye and wisdom teeth, but believe it or not Sergt. William H. Rogers of the Winchester Police Department celebrated his 11th birthday Wednesday of this week, Feb. 29. We have the Sergeant's word for the fact that he was born in Ballintoy, County Antrim, Ireland, Feb. 29, 1880. He came as a young man to this country and has called Winchester his home since 1903. He was appointed to the police force 18 years ago, being the first patrolman appointed under the new civil service regulations adopted about that time.

The way the average person would normally figure any one's age, the sergeant was 48 years old on Wednesday, even though he insists he has celebrated only 11 birthdays. We argued that with 48 years to his credit the big policeman must have observed 12 anniversaries of his birth, but Sergeant Rogers insisted that he lost a birthday on the change of the century when 7 years slipped along without a leapyear. It was too deep for us but we understand some demon statisticians went into the matter with a mind to proving the sergeant for once in error. "Bill" says they found him right and probably they did. At all events don't take that 11 birthdays stuff too literally and drive out of a one-way street when the Sergeant happens to be watching you. He may be young in birthdays but he has plenty of strength to blow a whistle and he looks 'em as well as a chap who's had an anniversary every year.

WINCHESTER BOY SCOUT NOTES

Comndr. Richard E. Byrd, who is noted for his flight across the Atlantic and to the North Pole, will speak in Winchester, April 20, under the auspices of the Winchester Council, Boy Scouts. Last year the scouts with the Girl Scouts held a similar affair at which Donald MacMillan was the speaker.

At 9:10 Monday evening Box 51 was sounded and the Fire Department hastened to respond, arriving in the vicinity of the box at the corner of Cambridge and Pond streets only to find that the alarm at the corner was apparently a false one. Later Chief DeCourcey was notified that there had been a fire at the filling station of C. H. Gustin but that it had been put out without the firemen's aid.

For Re-Election to the Board of Selectmen

THOMAS F. FALLON

After a year of creditable service in the office of Selectman Mr. Fallon is standing for re-election to the Board at the polls on Monday. We feel that the same reasons which prompted his election a year ago are sufficient to make his return to office highly desirable.

Mr. Fallon has long made his home in Winchester and has a thorough knowledge of the Town, its people and needs. His business interests are here. He is pledged to stand only for what seems to him best for the community as a whole.

He asks the support of the citizens of Winchester and promises, if re-elected, close attention to the Town's business and a square deal for everyone.

We heartily endorse his candidacy:

WINCHESTER SAVINGS BANK

26 Mt. Vernon Street

Agency for Savings Bank Life Insurance

Save $10.00 a month, and let the earnings on your investment pay for $3000 life insurance.

Our Combination Savings-Insurance Plan calls for a monthly deposit of $10.00 over a period of ten years, under which you are immediately insured for $3000, and at the end of ten years you are entitled to receive in cash an amount substantially in excess of your total deposits.

For age 37 (or younger) at entry, the savings bank account at the end of ten years, together with the cash surrender value of the insurance policies, will exceed

Twelve Hundred Dollars

Example: If you are thirty years of age, you open your savings-insurance account with a deposit of $17.00 and thereafter deposit $10.00 monthly for 9 years and 11 months.

If you are then living, you will be entitled to receive:—

CASH VALUE OF INSURANCE	$330.42
BALANCE IN SAVINGS ACCOUNT (Estimated)	920.00
TOTAL	$1,250.42

Insurance Dividends are deposited in Savings Bank Account

If you do not live to complete your deposits, your estate receives the $3000 insurance, PLUS the amount then standing to your credit in your savings bank account.

Thus: If your death should occur just before the end of the 10th year, your estate would be entitled to receive:—

LIFE INSURANCE	$3,000.00
BALANCE IN SAVINGS BANK ACCOUNT (Estimated)	920.00
TOTAL	$3,920.00

WYMAN MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

A meeting of the Wyman School Mothers' Association was held in the Wyman Assembly Hall Monday, Feb. 27 at 3:15 with the president, Mrs. Henry Spencer, presiding.

After a short business meeting, a clever little skit called "School in the 1900's" was given by the following ladies: Teacher, Mrs. Clarence Whorf; Pupils, Mrs. Herbert Kelley, Mrs. Rufus Clark, Mrs. Loring Gleason, Mrs. Harold Farnsworth. This caused much merriment for not only did the ladies prove themselves to be clever mimickers, but their costumes added much to the amusement of their audience. It is to be hoped that they will repeat it very soon for the benefit of a much larger audience.

Mr Quinn then spoke a few words on elementary education. He paid a splendid tribute to a true teacher, and said that all the teachers in this town were most carefully chosen, not only for their ability and experience, but for personality and character as well. Entering the field of secondary education, he said he hoped to see a new Junior High School with an assembly hall and a gymnasium and other advantages the old building entirely lacks, so that the adolescent child might be surrounded by the influences and contracts so much needed at that time.

Mr. Quinn then answered several questions asked from the floor after which the meeting was adjourned.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The members thoroughly enjoyed the talk given us on last Friday evening by Mr. Carl Schrader of the State Department of Physical Education. He gave us many ideas to set us thinking and many projects which we may discuss at future meetings. The April meeting will take the form of a play with all the parts assigned to members of our Chapter. Sec-Treas. Frances T. Conlon, noted as a clever amateur performer, has kindly consented to serve as chairman of this April meeting and also to coach the performance.

The date selected for the play is Friday, April 27, and the first meeting of the committee will take place next Sunday evening at the home of Mrs. Conlon on Canal street.

EASTER CRUISE TO THE WEST INDIES

One of the last of the winter cruises on the large ships to the West Indies is the March 28 cruise of the Hamburg-American Liner, SS. "Reliance". This magnificent cruise ship of 20,000 tons has already made four West Indies cruises this Winter. All of them capacity sailings, and bringing back to the United States a very happy and well satisfied passenger list.

The March 28 cruise is of 16 days duration, with Easter Sunday in Havana. Other ports of call are, Santiago, Kingston, Canal Zone Havana and Nassau. Total distance covered, 1414 miles, and the rates first class, as low as $200 per person.

Especially prepared booklet of this cruise, information, regarding it, and an offer of reservations, if wanted, can be had by calling

J. F. McGRATH
General Passenger Representative
365 Main Street, Woburn

C. D. OF A. NOTES

Prophetess Frances T. Conlon was the hostess on Tuesday evening to a large group of the Court members and their friends. Following a social hour bridge and whist were enjoyed and a goodly sum added to the charitable fund. These gatherings are coming to be a delightful feature of the social life of the Court and many more such evenings are in the process of planning.

Sister Mollie L. Maguire is in Detroit, called there last Sunday because of the illness of her mother.

The April social, which falls on the 13th of April will take the form of a "Supper of the months", with 12 gracious hostesses presiding at 12 tables, each of which represents a month of the year.

As the C. D. of A. members are noted for their excellence as cooks, the demand for tickets is sure to be a heavy one. This affair is to be under the supervision of a capable committee and as such, will enlist the support of the entire membership of the Court.

The next meeting of the Court, on Thursday, March 15, will be a "green social" and a general good time. Attendance at this affair will be restricted to members of the Court.

Radio batteries at the Star office.

MARY C. SARGENT

Funeral services for Mrs. Mary C. Sargent, 88 years old, grandmother of Assemblyman Willis H. Sargent of Syracuse, N. Y., and whose daughter-in-law, Mrs. Thomas M. Howard resides in Winchester were held from the undertaking parlors in Syracuse of Fairchild & Meech Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment was in Oakwood cemetery, that city. Mrs. Sargent died Monday night following an extended illness at the home of Mrs. James Van Buteheiten at 1450 South State street, Syracuse, N. Y. She is survived also by two grandsons, Paul D. Sargent, prominent attorney of Syracuse and Franklin C. Sargent of New York City. Mrs. Sargent suffered a paralytic stroke a week ago Thursday and failed to rally. She was born at Pearch River, Jefferson County, N. Y., and went to Syracuse 35 years ago from Pulaski, N. Y. She was a member of Centenary Methodist Episcopal Church there.

WINCHESTER LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

Representative Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, formerly assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, and operating head of the American Red Cross during the World War and Senator William J. Bennessy of Dorchester, member of the Massachusetts Senate since 1923, will be the speakers at an evening school of politics to be held at the Winchester Town Hall on Tuesday, March 13 at 8 p. m.

The topic will be "Presidential Possibilities" and all voters are urged to attend.

LENTEN SERVICES AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Wednesday Afternoons at 4 O'clock

The opening Lenten Service last Wednesday was well attended and on next Wednesday at 4 o'clock, Rev. Robert Grey of the First Congregational Church, Woburn, will speak. "Is Life Worth Living", will be his theme. There will be a 15 minute organ recital by Mr. Leonard preceding the address. Come and invite your friends.

WINCHESTER TEACHERS PARTICIPATED IN EDUCATIONAL CONVENTION

Members of Winchester's teaching corps have been attending the National Convention held in Boston this week with the general sessions in Mechanics Building and individual group meetings at various hotels, the State House and at Harvard.

Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn has been in constant attendance at the convention while High School Principal Wade L. Grindle, Principal Arthur F. Crowell of the Wadleigh School and Supervisor Blanche A. Pratt of the elementary grades have been present at such meetings as were of especial interest to them. Miss Eva M. Palmer, dean of girls at the High School, attended the special meeting for deans and other teachers were privileged to absent themselves from their class rooms when the convention was engaged upon subjects helpful to them in their particular departments.

The entire teaching force was excused on Monday to attend a session devoted to living exhibits by school children of Boston and from a selected few greater Boston schools. The Winchester School Department was elated at having the fourth grade pupils of Miss Minnetta Jurgenson at the Mystic School chosen to demonstrate at the Monday forenoon session of the convention the means employed here in providing for individual differences by means of poetry.

Superintendent Quinn, in a chat with the Star reporter, characterized the convention as especially worth while and of incalculable value to his department.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mrs. Forrest G. Brackett of Winchester and Mrs. Helen W. Stockwell of Stoneham have presented to the First Congregational Church of that town a handsome marble baptismal font in memory of their parents, Dr. Arthur H. Cowdrey and Mary Wait Cowdrey. The font, a product of Indian craftsmen and considered one of the finest church fonts in New England, was unveiled last Sunday without special exercises.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Fancie of Elm street are receiving the sympathy of their friends upon the death of their infant son on Monday morning, Feb. 27. Funeral services were conducted Tuesday by the Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the Methodist-Episcopal Church. Interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

Lieut. John A. Harrold, Serets. William H. Rogers and Thomas F. Cassidy and Patrolmen Daniel Kelley and John Hogan were detailed by the Police Department to attend on Monday afternoon the funeral in Woburn of Arthur F. Gage, for many years Clerk of the District Court and Bail Commissioner.

THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

A sewing meeting of the Watchester Circle will be held at 2:30 o'clock Tuesday morning, March 13 in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church. Box luncheon. Coffee will be served by the committee.

Mrs. Inez K. Blaisdell of Winchester was a delegate to the Wheaton College Alumni Council which met at Norton over the past week-end. The delegates were the guests of the college during their stay.

UNITARIAN NEWS

The Bowdoin College Musical Clubs gave an entertainment last Monday evening which was worth going a long way to hear. We attended to hold the concert in our auditorium but on account of the building confusion we were forced to use Metcalf Hall. The hall was filled and judging by the reception given the players, we think the program was very much appreciated. There were about 50 of the college boys participating and the program was made up of productions by the combined Glee and Instrumental Clubs, separate offerings by the Glee as well as the Instrumental Club and several violin solos by Mr. Townsend. Prof. E. H. Wass was the director in charge and Donald B. Hewett and John E. Townsend were respectively the leader of the Glee and Instrumental Clubs.

Bowdoin men present must have received a thrill when the combined clubs sang "Rise, Sons of Bowdoin" (Sills-Burnett) and "We'll Sing to Old Bowdoin" (Fogg '02). The audience showed their appreciation of the strong and able efforts put forth by the boys into these two well-known Bowdoin songs. We also liked the soft melody produced in "In Picardie" (Brueschweiler) and "Strength of the Hills" (Rhys-Herbert), although the latter was a song of an entirely different type. "The Broken Melody" (Sibelius) was very sweet and well done as was also "The Vagabond" (Speaks). The March from "Carmen" (Bizet) and "Orange Blossoms" (Herbert) were given by the Instrumental Club. The men played these with a rich and vibrant tone and their work showed an intensive sense of rhythm. We liked particularly well the encore "Song of India." The audience, not expecting a virtuoso, were pleasureably surprised at the fine playing of the solo-violinist, John E. Townsend '29 and applauded with enthusiasm at the close of his numbers. "Dancing Doll" (Poldini) gave him a fine chance to display the full effect of the possibilities and his command of the difficult parts was exceptionally well held. "Adoration" (Borowski) gave evidence of good training and promise of a brilliant future. "Carry Me Back to Old Virginny" (Bland) and "Land of Hope and Glory" (Elgar) by the combined Clubs and the Bowdoin Songs "Bowdoin Beata" (Pierce '96) and "Phi Chi" (Mitchell '76) completed the concert, making a grand finale to a program of highly artistic work.

George H. Rand was the accompanist and his work was very meritorious. After the concert, there was dancing with music by the Bowdoin Orchestra. The boys were certainly full of "pep" and their music was of a kind that actually made us want to dance. Elwin Hennessy, who was at the piano, led the orchestra. He was enthusiasm perfected and the magnet for all eyes. We do not know the name of the versatile artist who played everything but he was full of action. We hope the boys enjoyed themselves as much as we did. A large number of them enlivened things by participating in the dancing.

James Joslin, a Winchester boy, sang with the Glee Club. Quite a few of the boys took advantage of the kind invitation of some of our members to spend an overnight with them. Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Joslin must have kept open house, for we understand they entertained 10 at dinner and a large number overnight.

F. C. Alexander and H. A. Goddard were in charge of the affairs for the Men's Club.

AUXILIARY MEETING

The regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary to Post 97 was held Monday evening and a very pleasant evening was spent. We had for our guests Mrs. Ethel Lovejoy of Melrose, Mrs. May Gibbons of Melrose, Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson of Ridge Crest, Winchester, Commander Allen Wilde of Winchester Post 97, and Vice-Commander Parkhurst of Winchester Post 97.

It was very encouraging to hear the fine compliments we received from the speakers and we are sure we shall strive hard to be worthy of such praise. We have had a very hard struggle in the past year to keep things going but with such encouraging remarks we received we are sure to come out on top with flying colors and if we all put our shoulders to the wheel and not sit back and wait for the other fellow to do it but get active ourselves.

We were also glad to add and welcome a new member, Mrs. Dinneen, to our list and hope others who are eligible will follow as we are out for new members, so let's go.

Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. Meeting adjourned at 11:30 p. m.

TOWN ELECTION ETHICS

For the purpose of giving information to any who may not understand, I wish to state that the Women's Republican Club does not promote the candidacy of any citizens who seek election to town offices.

The suitability and character of the candidates living among us as they do, can be easily determined by any person interested.

The citizens of Winchester have always voted for men, whether Democrat or Republican, who, in their opinion will best serve the town. Town elections differ in this respect from State and National elections where party organizations promote their candidates.

The Women's Republican Club is interested in getting the women out to vote, and helping any who may need transportation to the Town Hall.

It is much easier to get out the men's vote than the women's, for men, generally speaking have a definite time for leaving their home daily, whereas women have to arrange a special trip to cast their vote.

Arrangements have been made with the Board of Selectmen to have the Town Hall bell rung several times on election day to remind people of their duty and privilege.

LA SALLE Anniversary Week ... and ... CADILLAC Spring Showing

THE Cadillac Motor Car Company invites you to an automobile salon of national importance—the countrywide Spring Showing of Cadillac and LaSalle cars—opening Saturday, March 3rd.

The occasion has a special significance in that it marks the first anniversary of the introduction of LaSalle—the most spectacular success in the history of fine car manufacture.

This spring presentation will reveal the most attractive, the most extensive and the most complete line of fine cars ever shown by any manufacturer.

During this week special arrangements have been made, by all Cadillac-LaSalle dealers, for Cadillac-LaSalle demonstrations. Everyone is cordially invited to take advantage of this opportunity to prove to his own satisfaction the outstanding performance characteristics of a Cadillac-built car.

A ride in any of these fine cars in the Cadillac-LaSalle showing—and you will agree that, while a motor car may be only a motor car, a Cadillac-built car is always a Cadillac.

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL NOTES

Work on the Hospital addition is much like a game of checkers. The minute a new room is ready it is instantly put into use and the workmen proceed to transform the spot vacated by each move.

The new dishwasher is proving very satisfactory. No breakage is the report.

The new dining room with its cheerful southern exposure, is now being used by the nurses.

The hospital had 42 patients on March 1. Fourteen of these were babies. Early in the week, the nursery held two pairs of twins. One pair has since returned home. There was one baby born on Feb. 29 who must wait four years for his next birthday.

Many bundles of old linen were sent to the health center for the hospital in answer to the appeal in the Star.

The nurses at the hospital are enjoying very much basketball games that have been started under the direction of Miss Marjorie Ordway and Miss Elinor Hollins. These games are played on Tuesday at the Parish House of the First Congregational Church. The excellent facilities there are greatly appreciated.

Miss Florence H. Crimmings, assistant superintendent of the hospital, is conducting a course of five lessons in home nursing and five lessons in first aid for 22 Girl Scouts from the troops of Miss Eugenia Parker and Miss Marion Ladd. These lessons are given in the classroom and demonstration room of the nurses in the Nurses' Home. Here are charts, models, and the life size doll to assist them in their work. The Girl Scouts are very grateful to the hospital for the chance to avail themselves of these opportunities for study.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

The next regular meeting will be held next Thursday evening, at which time election of officers for the coming year will take place. Also plans will be made for a concert at the Holy Ghost Hospital which will occur Sunday, March 18 and the little sisters of the poor will be in the form of a formal reception to our waiting list of candidates and also installation of officers. Time and place will be announced in the next issue of the Star.

FIDELIS CLUB

On Tuesday evening the Fidelis Club members, meeting at the home of Miss Molly Monahan, surprised Miss Mary Fitzgerald and presented her with a pair of silver candlesticks in honor of her approaching marriage to Mr. Thomas Bane. A very delightful evening was spent, with games, music and refreshments.

Richard Halliburton, author of "The Royal Road to Romance" and "The Glorious Adventure" will lecture in the Town Hall, Saturday evening March 31. Tickets on sale with Mrs. G. W. Apsey and Mrs. C. E. Young.

EPWORTH LEAGUE PLAY MARCH 9

On Friday evening, March 9, the Epworth League will present a three-act play, "It Happened in June", in the Methodist Social Hall. This is a lively comedy in which a young college fellow is sent to a country town to be "tamed" by a friend of his mother, but as fate could have it she has had to go away and leave the taming in the hands of her charming daughter. Needless to say the hero is so subjected to his fair tamer that he turns his efforts to rescuing her business, the village store from the wiles of the richest and meanest man in town. His actions are misinterpreted and he falls from the favor of the girl he likes. Of course there's a happy ending and lots of fun and pep all through the play with the following in the cast: Misses Lorna Nicholas, Olive Seller, Mary Armstrong, Dorothy Bradshaw, Esther Mills, Messrs. Gilbert Hook, Ronald Hatch, Harold Hatch and Walter Bradshaw, and Miss Winifred E. Bent as coach a finished production and an enjoyable evening is assured.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

Sneers cannot be answered; avoid trying, it will save time and trouble.

In youth we all looked forward, in old age we all look backward.

A wise man will learn more from a fool than a fool will from a wise man.

In making remarks it is well to remember that not all those whose eyes are closed are asleep.

Most any man can be fairly judged by his general conversation.

In an open letter, one of our political candidates, aspiring to become a Selectman again, states that he has the votes of our Police Department with two exceptions. Would that we all stood so well with Winchester's "finest"; would you?

It may not be common knowledge to all, but in considering a permit for a burying ground, our Board of Health (and not our Selectmen) have but two phases to consider. One is whether the ground is suitable for burying purposes—not swampy or a menace to community health, etc., and the other its relation to drainage. These two considerations, and these two only, come before our Health Board. The permit must come before a town meeting. Dr. Blaisdell, in his dual capacity of Selectmen and member of the Board of Health, appears under fire politically in a recent "graveyard" petition. But as Mack says "Why bring that up?" We all have confidence in the doctor—in either capacity.

There are about the center a number of arms supporting low awnings. That is, awnings which when lowered to shade the stores, are just low enough to catch one's hat or the top of one's head. Personally, the Editor is sick and tired of having his hat brushed off and getting the whip of loose canvas in the eye (the good one). Hence the suggestion that the proper persons remedy the nuisance. A word to the police last season has failed to create any marked improvement. In fact several new awnings falling into the catagory mentioned have appeared since the suggestion of improvement was made. We may be taller than the average pedestrian, but we simply cannot be alone in this complaint. Undoubtedly there must be some law or other that regulates the height of these shades. Tall or not, we hate to contract a stoop or become round shouldered, just because we have (sometimes) to walk about the center. Let us all work for higher and bigger awnings, now that we are through worrying over the unpaid debt on the War Memorial and have a new slate of town officials coming in.

A condition arose this week whereby it becomes apparent that the mere sounding an alarm from a fire-alarm box is not sufficient to ensure the arrival of apparatus at a fire. On Tuesday at 9:10 in the evening Box 51 was sounded and the firemen made their usual haste to get to its location at the corner of Cambridge and Pond streets. While the department was en route to the fire a phone call was received at headquarters saying that there was a fire on Cambridge street. Upon being informed that the apparatus was en route to that place the party hung up without giving either name or address. The firemen arrived at Box 51 but found no one there, nor was there any sign of fire in the vicinity. After making several fruitless inquiries the men became convinced that the call was false and returned to the station. Remembering the phone call in addition to the box alarm Chief DeCourcy attempted without success to trace the call on the off chance that there might be trouble somewhere. Sometime after the return of the men to the station a second phone call was received stating that there had been a fire in the vicinity of Box 51, but that the occupants of the place had succeeded in putting out the blaze themselves. Thus it becomes apparent under certain conditions a fire might get considerable headway while the firemen were attempting to locate it. Often times it is impossible to see a fire from the box where the alarm has been sent in, and if there is no one there to guide the apparatus to the blaze, valuable time must be consumed in learning its location. On the other hand phone calls made under the stress of great excitement and received in a location where noise is always to be expected are not always too accurate. A shouted message that there is a fire on Cross street might easily be taken with the location as Clark street. Other locations where confusion is possible will occur to us all. The answer seems to be, when telephoning give not only your name but your street and number and try to make sure that the man at the desk understands what you are saying. Remember he may be receiving your message under difficulties. A large truck passing along Mt. Vernon street makes anything like easy hearing over a telephone an impossibility. And when pulling in a box,—if the fire is not easily apparent from the place where the box is located, stay there until the arrival of the apparatus. The firemen are not mind readers. If they don't know where the fire is, they won't put it out. Few communities have better fire departments than we boast of in Winchester and the [illegible] deserve at least an even chance of getting to a fire and there remains a chance for their services to be of value. If the man at the desk in the fire station asks your name and address when you phone for any reason, give it to him. Be sure he doesn't ask out of idle curiosity.

TOWN APPEARS UNITED ON CROSSING ABOLITION

From every source available it appears that the citizens of the town approve the new Kellaway plan for the abolition of our deadly grade crossing. Except for Mr. Laraway's objection, voiced at the meeting on Tuesday evening held by the Waterways Committee, under whose direction Mr. Kellaway's plan is presented, only commendation of the proposed plan has been heard.

It has been brought out that even the railroad, always opposed to spending a cent for the elimination of this danger trap, has unofficially admitted its worth, both in adaptability, economy and feasability. From the Town's viewpoint may be added to these advantages the element of beauty and preservation of our existing points of vantage and public buildings.

Men of substance and ability, including Mr. Arthur W. Dean of the State Highway Commission, Mr. Charles A. Main, an engineer with a national reputation, Mr. Frank A. Rowe of the Planning Board, and others, expressed their approval.

From the start, many years ago, it was common knowledge that the Railroad had no desire to spend money on this abolition. The statement that it was more than willing to see and listen to a multiplicity of plans and schemes was amply substantiated. The more plans the more discussion! The more discussion the less chance for the Town to unite on a plan! If the Town could not decide what it wanted, what could the poor Railroad do?

On Tuesday night Mr. Dean stated that it was his opinion that in all cases where through traffic had been diverted from business centers no detriment to business had occurred—aside from the filling stations, which derived profit from this traffic. In our instance the Kellaway plan, while diverting through traffic, removes it such a short distance that it appears impossible that any business will suffer. In fact if our residents can do their shopping on streets freed from trolleys and trucks and express trains, it is more than likely that our merchants will derive a benefit from the change.

The Star gives the Kellaway plan its unanimous approval. There may be, very possibly, a few minor details to be worked out to more advantage during construction, but this is a minor matter. For thirty years this paper has heard this project discussed; this plan and that plan advocated, and it has never yet found a better solution.

No one in this town today believes that the railroad tracks will be run through town in a tunnel; no one would for one minute stand for a granite wall from below Wedgemere to Winchester Highlands, with trains steaming through above the sky line and our town divided into two distinct parts. Anyone could find a way to dispose of the railroad—but it must be disposed of in a practical way and not by day-dreams.

Now is the time for Winchester to unite and push this Kellaway plan through! Do not go back and resurrect the hundred and one old schemes, argued and fought over twenty years ago! We have a plan which meets popular favor. Let us unite and push it.

INFORMAL CONSIDERATION OF KELLAWAY PLAN

About 65 citizens, comprising members of the various town boards, including the Selectmen, Finance Committee, Planning Board and other interested departments and individuals, attended the meeting called by the Waterways Committee at the small town hall on Tuesday night. The purpose of the meeting was to gain an expression of opinion regarding the approval of the report and its recommendations, and to plan a course of action in presenting it to the town at the coming town meeting.

The report was discussed from various angles for an hour and a quarter, the larger part of the time being given to the portion applying to the elimination of the grade crossing. Unanimous approval was given the waterways plan, and outside Mr. Laraway, who desired to go back and take up the plans of former years, so many times threshed out and ultimately rejected, the meeting was in one accord in approving the grade crossing abolition plan.

Chairman John H. Powers of the Selectmen presided. Three large maps, prepared by Mr. Herbert Kellaway, the engineer who worked out the plans and whose report has been distributed about town, were shown. Mr. Lewis Parkhurst, for the Waterways Committee, explained the purpose of the meeting and outlined the general plan as submitted. His talk embodied the report circulated with the additional stressing of the importance of controlling the borders of our ponds and streams. He stated that his committee had so far as possible secured options on such strips of property necessary in this direction.

The plan met with universal approval and the meeting was unanimous in recommending that it be adopted and a committee of 12 be appointed to start active work on the first phase of the improvement with the idea that it report at a special town meeting to be held this spring.

The plan for the abolition of the grade crossing, a part of the general waterways plan, occupied the larger part of the meeting time. It met with one exception, with unanimous approval. Mr. Arthur W. Dean and Mr. Charles A. Main, both spoke and declared the plan feasible and of great merit. It appeared that business would benefit in the present center by the change.

Selectman Powers spoke for his board in informing the gathering that the Selectmen had been working upon the matter for some time, and at one period appeared in a fair way of reaching an agreement with the Railroad in its elimination. The Railroad apparently, has no more idea now than 20 years ago, of assisting in this abolition, and apparently must be forced into it. It appears to be even poorer today than at that time, although it is spending millions at the Boston terminal. A favorite method of side-stepping appears to be an encouragement of every conceivable plan presented, the result being that the Town is unable to come to a united decision, action is delayed by discussion, and the result is oblivion until the next time agitation arises. It was brought out, however, that in unofficial conversations railroad officials had agreed that this new Kellaway plan was less in cost by one-half and as desirable as any plan ever presented.

The desire of the meeting appeared to place the grade crossing abolition plan in the hands of the Selectmen. The meeting, except Mr. Laraway, appeared to decidedly approve the Kellaway plan. Mr. Laraway thought the abolition should be placed in the hands of a committee of 15, and likewise thought the old plans should be reconsidered.

The outcome of the meeting will probably result in votes being offered at the coming town meeting to appoint a new waterways committee to report and make financial recommendations for the first step in the development at a future meeting and to place the grade crossing abolition plan in the hands of the Selectmen.

IN DEFENSE OF "THAT ELM"

To the Editor of the Star:

A few words regarding the Church street elm.

In the first place it is a magnificent tree and once it is cut down it can never be replaced. Will it not be a mistake to remove it?

It has been my observation while living near it for a number of years that in slowing down the wild traffic from the west through Church street it has really done a lot of police work free of charge. I looked the tree over recently and it seems to show fewer scars from collisions than the so-called "silent policemen" at other street junctions.

If this tree is removed some other warning will have to be substituted either at or near this place.

PAYSON SMITH GAVE INTERESTING ADDRESS

Dr. Payson Smith, nationally known educator and head of the State Board of Education, delivered a most interesting address on the "Rising Cost of Education" before the members of the First Congregational Church Men's Club last week Thursday evening.

The occasion was the regular monthly meeting of the club and Dr. Smith's address was preceded by the usual dinner and social hour.

While the present cost of public school education seems vastly increased over that of former years, Dr. Smith felt that in reality the rise is not after all so great when one takes into account the wonderfully increased enrollment in the schools, and especially in high schools where the cost of education is greatest. Each year sees more and more pupils entering high school from the grammar grades while the proportion continuing through high school to graduation is materially larger.

Again Dr. Smith stated the actual cost of education has not increased as much as gross figures would lead one to suppose when the decrease in value of the dollar is taken into account. The average purchasing power of the dollar as opposed to the full value in 1913 is at the present time about 61 cents, making an expenditure of almost twice as much necessary to attain desired results.

The speaker felt that one of the chief causes of whatever increase in education has come about may be traced to the present great need for an absolutely democratic and diversified type of schooling. The great work of Americanization which the schools are being called upon to shoulder in increasing proportion each year is expensive, yet absolutely necessary to the cultural and civic development of the immigrant and his subsequent amalgamation into the social fabric of the country.

Finally it appeared to Dr. Smith that average people can not after all be too greatly harassed by their educational liabilities when it is possible for them yearly to spend a sum running into millions for cosmetics, perfumery and paint.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the meeting included Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn, Albert K. Huckins, Marshall J. England, Clinton E. Farnham, Wayne B. Thompson, Arnold Whittaker and Rev. Howard J. Chidley.

LIZZIE J. WORMELLE

Mrs. Lizzie J. Wormelle, who died at Winchester on Monday had lived in Brighton all of her married life. Her husband, who died in 1918, was Benjamin Wormelle, who was principal of the Brighton High School for 35 years. Mrs. Wormelle was born in Abington, the daughter of Jesse Reed. She was married to Mr. Wormelle nearly 60 years ago. Mrs. Wormelle is survived by three children, Dr. Charles B. Wormelle of Allston, Fred P. Wormelle of Winchester and Miss Olive M. Wormelle of Brighton. Mrs. Wormelle who was 81 years of age, had been a member of the Brighton Congregational Church ever since living in Brighton, where her home was at 6 Menlo street. She had been ill several weeks.

Residents of Winchester have had an opportunity this week to see how the mill pond looks at extreme low water. Superintendent "Alex" McDonald of the Park Department removed the flash boards at the dam on Tuesday and the water quickly drained off the "flat" leaving the channel of the river. A merciful coating of ice hid much of the mud and slime from view.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

The next regular meeting of the club will be held in Lyceum Hall Wednesday evening, March 14. President E. A. Scholl announces initiation for accepted candidates. Election of officers for the ensuing year is scheduled for this session and other important matters will be brought before the assembly. An audit of the books is called for during the month of March and annual reports are due at the April session.

The matter of holding the regular monthly social night being left to the discretion of the Entertainment Committee headed by Vice-President Anne Hanlon, a most enterprising program is being planned for Wednesday evening, March 28. A meeting of the committee is called for Friday evening, March 9, at the home of Mrs. Myrtle E. Goodhue, 48 Cross street, where the "plot" will be fully developed. A report of progress will be rendered at the coming business session, and it certainly can be taken for granted that this last social of the year will be on par with the record of splendid achievements made by this efficient and tireless committee.

Arrangements have been made with Mr. Frank H. Higgins, local photographer, to have group pictures taken of the drill team. As only a limited number are to be taken, those who wish to obtain them should consult with the chairman, Mrs. Anne Hanlon, tel. Win. 1649-M, as soon as possible. It is expected that a cut will be forthcoming for publication in the "Star" after the testimonial supper now being planned for "the finest drill team in the State—bar none."

With such an attractive group before his very eyes, it won't be hard for the photographer to do full justice to his subject but it's going to be mighty hard for a scribe who has that "fearful urge" to rhapsodize about the coming of spring, to turn her thoughts to such prosaic matters as drill-team descriptions. Therefore, if any member of the group feels herself unjustly likened to a bluebird, or a cock-robin, or a pussywillow, she should not "go up in the air" about it. Rather, she ought to thank her stars that she is not compared to a horn-toad or some other unattractive harbinger of the season. Furthermore it's so long since we have had the pleasure of witnessing the glory of a full-dress exhibition of the team, one might be pardoned for forgetting its poetic appeal of rhythmic movement and its inspiring example of patriotic zeal.

This, of course, is nothing more or less than a subtle (?) hint for more team-work and less criticism. Let's hope that the future will be brighter for the drill-team, at least, for they have proved that they can work together without friction.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson of 26 Clark street are the parents of a son, born Feb. 25 at the Winchester Hospital.

The Fire Department was called out twice Thursday, the first call coming by telephone at 4:14 in the afternoon for a grass fire on Perkins road. At 7:30 in the evening Box 31 was sounded when a passer-by saw smoke issuing from a house in process of construction on Washington street at the Lincoln School. The firemen found upon arrival that the smoke was steam and was caused by a salamander which the constractor was using to dry out new plaster.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

Tuesday evening the Ladies' Friendly Society gave their annual supper and dramatics in Metcalf Hall. The supper was served under the direction of Mrs. G. W. Apsey and the tables were attractive with sweet peas.

Mrs. Harold F. Meyer who has been chairman of the dramatic committee for the past few years, surpassed all her previous efforts in the presentation of the Harvard Workshop prize play, "The Florist Shop" by Winifred Hawbridge. The curtain rose showing a modern florist shop with all the artistry of cutflowers, potted blooms, ferns, pottery and baskets. As every detail of the setting was carried out so was every detail of the acting and so finished was this production that nothing was left for the audience to imagine or overlook as sometimes happens in amateur productions. The caste and Mrs. Meyer responded to a number of curtain calls.

Miss Francis Mason as Maude, appeared as the typical, ideal bookkeeper who knew how to flatter her clientele into extravagant patronage, as well as managing their romances, extending her activities to her Jewish proprietor.

George Hayden did well as the tough, careless office boy, who was just a little bewildered by the emotional Maude. But young Lars Sandberg lost all his youth in the role of the middle-aged Jewish-proprietor, perfect with his accent and gesticulations characteristic of the race.

Mrs. Goddard, as the timid spinster and Mr. Phillip Sawyer as the pompous, middle-aged lover provided the comedy and played up to each other well.

Mrs. Phillip Sawyer had charge of the properties.

This was followed by a farce, "Who Kissed Barbara" presented by the Metcalf Union under the leadership of Miss Annette Mason. The young people were anxious to advertise their efforts to their elders and after this exhibition the Metcalf Union actors will play to overflowing houses as well as the Ladies' Friendly.

The scene was laid in a modern city home the night before the wedding of Katheryn Blake, played by Betty Sawyer who caught the peevishness of the bride well. All the roles were equally well taken; Margery Hayden as Barbara Nichols, the impetuous bridesmaid; William Miller, as Paul Blake, the fast working best man; Robert Livingstone, as Horace Gregory, the patient groom; and George Hayden appearing this time as James, the much enduring butler.

Mrs. Holden's orchestra played during the waits and for general dancing after the two plays.

If the tickets for Richard Halliburton's lecture on Saturday, March 31 continue to go as quickly as on the first night of their appearance, the desire to show Richard Halliburton the Town Hall in all its glory will be easily realized.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

On the face of things March is going to be a splendid month for the Winchester Rotary Club. To begin with, there are five meetings scheduled for this month which is to say that we are to be presented with an extra hour of relaxation and good fellowship—a boon which we welcome with genuine appreciation. And our first meeting was in the 100 per cent class, the goal for which we are ever striving. Rotary to be at its best must benefit each and every Rotarian; it can hardly be expected to do this unless each and every Rotarian attends the meetings. We rejoice to say that Winchester Rotarians have sensed the truth of the above statement, and that our attendance record has been consistently good. But there is yet room for improvement. We cannot stand at the top unless every man works to that end. President George is approaching the end of the first year of his administration. He has his eye on the top notch of the attendance record. It is his laudable ambition to see his club in that position, and he has taken steps to see that it shall be there. In recognition of his untiring efforts in behalf of the club of his intelligent work, his genial personality and evident desire to be of true Rotarian service, can we not strain a point, if need be to comply with his request and make this month of March free of black spots on the chart.

The speaker at our last meeting was the Rev. W. S. Packer who needs no introduction to Winchesterites. Few of our public spirited citizens who have devoted themselves to furthering the welfare of our beloved town have met with better success. He devoted his time to telling us how very important it is that the spare time of our young people, and older ones as well, should be occupied in some healthy means of recreation.

Now Mr. Packer is not merely a preacher. He believes in action as well. Our school authorities, our town officials and various private citizens can testify to his energy and efficiency in providing the means for making our young people healthier and happier. His talk of Thursday was in a vein that especially appeals to Rotarians, and he held the close attention of all present.

We shall soon get further details in regard to the annual convention, and hope that several of our members will be able to attend. Indications are that it will be one of the most successful conventions on record.

If you attend all Rotary meetings this month, it will not be necessary to "Beware the Ides of March."

MR. APPLIN INJURED AT BEACHMONT

Mr. H. G. Applin of 152 Cambridge street received a fractured leg when he fell from a ladder at Beachmont Wednesday while placing an antenna on a building. He was taken by the Revere Police in their ambulance to the Massachusetts General Hospital where he was treated. Mr. Applin has made his home in Winchester for several years and is engaged in the development of real estate. He developed the Thornton estate on Cambridge street and has erected several fine homes there.

"Jim" Fitzgerald and "Frank" Melley, both of this town, as members of the undefeated Brown and Blue eleven of the past season attended the complimentary banquet tendered Coach Sampson and his huskies by the Boston Tufts Club at the University Club last night.

PLAN FOR CINDER TRACK ON MANCHESTER FIELD MEETS APPROVAL

Chairman George T. Davidson of the Park Department stated to the Star that the Finance Committee had approved the item in his budget for 1928 asking for $1000 to construct a cinder track on Manchester Field.

For some years the local high school has been unable to foster track athletics because of the lack of a suitable cinder path on the playground though it is an established fact that track and field sports have an appeal for a certain fairly large group of boys not attracted by football, basketball or basketball.

It was with a view to supplying this deficiency in the town's necessary athletic equipment that the request for the $1000 was made. The new track is to be one-third of a mile or substantially the same size as the walk at present around the field. The physical layout of the playground is to be altered so as to have no interference between the football gridiron and field hockey courts. Faculty director of Athletics Wendell D. Mansfield with Park Commissioner William S. Packer and Assistant Town Engineer John Sharon have been busy with the project for some time and have a comprehensive scheme in mind.

The sum of $900 asked for by the Park Department to be expended for four additional bleacher units on the playground has also been recommended by the Finance Committee and any who attended the football games on Manchester Field last fall will not question the necessity of the seats.

LARGE CROWD AT LEGION BANQUET

The largest number of men including the members of Winchester Post and their guests ever to attend a dinner at the Legion House were present last night at the annual banquet of the Post to hear "Bossy" Gillis, the well known bad boy Mayor of Newburyport.

The committee in charge of the affair consisting of E. Newman Giles, Daniel E. Lynch, Robert M. Hamilton assisted by many other members of the Post, willingly worked for many hours peeling and preparing quantities of potatoes, squash, peas and real hot roast turkey were at the last minute nearly swamped by requests of members of the Post to attend and in many cases to bring one or more guests until the original preparations for about 100 were at the last minute increased to 140. There were actually seated and fed over 150 men which necessitated using not only every inch of space on the first floor but setting over 20 chairs upstairs.

In order to conserve on expense no caterer was engaged but a finer hot roast turkey dinner could not be asked for, prepared and served by members of the Post. Community singing between courses was loud and enthusiastic, led by a good natured gentleman introduced by Commander Wilde as Antonio Bacigalupe who afterwards entertained with many songs and stories.

"Bossy" Gillis was in rare form and told intimately of his trials and tribulations as the newly elected Mayor of Newburyport and the troubles he has had in keeping his social calendar from becoming confused in his desire to accept all the invitations he receives to attend dinners and banquets in various parts of the State. He says he has gained ten pounds since he became elected Mayor of Newburyport.

"Bossy" left no doubt in anybody's mind as to who won the war or the fact that he sells gasoline to traveling motorists in Newburyport, nor did he hesitate to say in spite of all contradictory newspaper statements that his city will at least receive at his hands an honest, square administration and if within his power a successful one. He spoke intimately of his troubles with the City Council and let it be known that he was still boss and intended to remain so throughout his two year term as Mayor. He stated that at the present time he is not a candidate of any higher political office than the one which he now occupies, but that one can never tell what the future will bring forth.

The speaking was over at a little after 9 o'clock and for the rest of the evening "Bossy" held an informal reception and the house was kept open for those who wished to remain and play cards. All in all it was one of the most enthusiastic dinners ever held by the Post and the committee deserves an endless amount of praise.

WATERFIELD LODGE, I. O. O. F.

Saturday evening, March 3, will find Mechanics Hall, Boston, filled with Odd Fellows from Boston and surrounding towns, to witness the working of the initiatory degree by teams representing The Good Samaritan Association and The Prince Jonathan Association. Waterfield Lodge, a member of the latter association, will be represented by five members on the association team. A fine trophy to be known as "The Governor Alvan T. Fuller Trophy" has been presented by the Governor and will be awarded to the team showing the highest proficiency in the work of the Initiatory Degree. The doors of Mechanics Hall will be opened at 6:10 p. m. and the contest will start at 7:00 o'clock. The Prince Jonathan Association team will be the first to work the degree. There will be no charge for admission other than the pass word of the current term as only Odd Fellows will be allowed admittance.

On Tuesday evening, March 6, The Prince Jonathan Association will hold its monthly mass meeting at Lafayette Lodge, Watertown. The brothers from this lodge will leave from the lodge rooms on Vine street at 7 o'clock.

Plans are being made for the dedication of the lodge home by the Grand Officers on Monday evening, March 12.

LOCAL DEALER SAYS TREND IS TOWARD GREATER EMPHASIS ON APPEARANCE

Style, fusion, variety and roguish appearance, but above all style, are features that buyers of fine cars will demand in their automobiles for the coming season, in the opinion of John H. Bates, head of the well known automobile firm bearing his name, of Woburn in discussing the automobile outlook for 1928.

"How far this demand will be satisfied by Cadillac and LaSalle," says Mr. Bates, "is seen in the fact that the Cadillac and LaSalle line now includes 43 different body styles on three different lengths of wheelbase, thus providing a type and style of fine car suited to every individual taste and requirement.

"This rich variety ranges from the Cadillac transformable town car, regal in its aristocratic elegance, to the smart LaSalle roadster, interpretive of the vigor and tempo of this modern age.

"But whether it be dignity and exclusiveness, or the sport motif that are sought in these Cadillac and LaSalle body types, in one and all will be found those factors of appeal, which, for the want of a better phrase, are summed up by the words 'roguish style'.

"Style is expressed in the whole trend of their design the striking, deep set radiator symbolizing power and fleetness, the low slung and graceful body lines, the distinctive bullet type headlamps, the resplendent finish in practically an unlimited choice of color combinations and a hundred and one small features which create in their sum total, a striking ensemble expressive of the greatest charm.

"On the Cadillac 140" chassis are offered two lines of bodies, the Fisher custom line of 11 body types and the Fisher-Fleetwood special body line which also includes 14 different styles of a rare exclusiveness.

"The LaSalle is available in 11 body types by Fisher, and four Fisher Fleetwood special custom bodies. Some of these are on the 125 inch chassis and some on the 134 inch chassis.

"The Cadillac Fisher body line includes a roadster touring car, phaeton, sport phaeton, two-passenger coupe, convertible coupe, five-passenger coupe, town sedan, five-passenger sedan, seven-passenger sedan and five and seven-passenger sedans in both Imperial and cabriolet styles.

"The Cadillac Fisher Fleetwood special body line and the LaSalle Fisher and Fisher Fleetwood lines offer an equally wide range of body types.

"A particularly striking example of the style in Cadillac and LaSalle bodies is the Cadillac four-passenger sport phaeton finished in Tokio Ivory with gold leaf striping, black fenders and upholstery in hand buffed leather. A special f[illegible] the tonneau cowl [illegible] [illegible]ol windshield affording [illegible] passengers closed [illegible] large spotlight [illegible] stanchion on the right [illegible] board carries out the sportive trend of the design.

"Another body type that immediately arrests the eye is the Cadillac Fleetwood transformable town cabriolet. This is a masterpiece of coachcraft and is representative of the whole line of Fleetwood special custom bodies.

"In this body type the front compartment may be treated as open or closed at will. Windows concealed in the front door panels may be raised, a leather top erected and the driving compartment is then completely enclosed.

"Finished with black upper panels, LaTosca Blue lower panels and cream striping and interior upholstery in plain Wiese broadcloth, this car reflects the dignified exclusive character which is the keynote of the Fisher-Fleetwood special custom body line".

HIGH SCHOOL HOOP LEAGUE CLOSES

The recently completed play off of the high school junior and senior basketball league, composed of teams recruited from nearly 100 boys who were not members of either the first or second varsity basketball teams this winter resulted in some closely contested and interesting games. After dividing the boys into two divisions according to weight, Coach Mansfield picked teams of as equal ability as possible, the various groups playing under the names of well known colleges for added interest.

In the senior league (boys weighing 100 lbs. and over) three teams survived the early elimination and entered the finals. Dartmouth and Vermont met to decide which of the two should meet Tufts for the title. Dartmouth won, 15—8, and Tufts was successful in the final, 19—7. The first three clubs finished as follows:

	Won	Lost	Pts.	P. C.
Tufts	5	0	10	1 000
Dartmouth	5	1	10	833
Vermont	3	2	6	600

The makeup of the first three teams is as follows: Tufts, Captain Nichols, W. Miller, A. Penn, W. Smith, L. Keepers and H. Boyle; Dartmouth, Captain Dennison, Symmes, S. Robberts, Robinson Wormelle and Boyle; Vermont, Captain Franklin, N. Whitting, Colucci, Powers, Dean and Barry.

The junior league schedule resulted in Penn State, Amherst and Chicago being bracketed for the finals with Amherst and Chicago meeting in the preliminary match. Amherst won, 12—10, but was defeated in the finals, by Penn State, 14—9, the latter club being awarded the circuit championship.

The standing is:

	Won	Lost	Pts.	P. C.
Penn State	4	0	8	1 000
Amherst	2	2	4	500
Chicago	3	1	6	750

The makeup of the teams follows: Penn State: Captain Quill, Capone, Hammerstrom, Suhrizio, Mills and Guiliano; Amherst, Captain H. Andersen, Halligan, Johnson, Ronzio and E. Smith; Chicago, Captain Allen, Joyce, Nowell, Berg, Marrone and Riley.

HIGH SCHOOL PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

Overcrowding May Compel Adoption of Two Session Schedule in Fall

The High School Association invited members of the Wadleigh Parent-Teacher Association to be their guests at the third meeting of the school year held last Monday evening in the High School Assembly Hall.

Music by the High School Orchestra opened the program. Marion E. Knightly, teacher of music, directed the young musicians in her usual pleasing way. The popular "NC-4 March" by Bigelow, received a good round of applause. A second selection, "Heartsease" by Moret, was excellently played before the speaker of the evening was presented.

Every year one meeting is given over to the discussion of school problems. This is now looked upon as an annual event. The mutual interest of the High School and Wadleigh Associations in this topic resulted in the joint meeting.

It is always a delight to receive first hand information and no one is better fitted to present our school problems than our Superintendent of Schools, Mr. James J. Quinn. Before taking up the more serious problems of secondary education, Mr. Quinn spoke in a humorous vein of his daily duties, describing "A Week in the Superintendent's Office".

His attempts to sidestep agents for superior maps and the most efficient disinfectants; his daily mail, bringing applications from Minnesota, Kansas, Maine and Southern States to teach in Winchester; letters of recommendation sought by teachers seeking to better their positions; questionnaires received from other communities with an endless variety of questions—were touched upon in his inimitable way, to the great entertainment of his listeners.

Turning to more important matters Mr. Quinn stated that it was generally acknowledged that there was a tendency to teach too many subjects in the secondary schools; that there was also a tendency to make it easy for the pupils. But it should not be overlooked that the interest of the pupil must be aroused if the real desire for work is to be stimulated.

The attempt of the public school to serve the majority who do not go to college, instead of specializing in courses preparatory to college, has created a rather unfriendly feeling between public secondary schools and colleges.

It was pointed out that perhaps something might be wrong with the colleges when 32 per cent of the freshmen drop out; and it was suggested that if the entering class at college could have the benefit of seasoned teachers who understand the human equation better than the newly graduated Ph.D's, the casualties would show a proportionate falling off. Colleges are dealing with a selected class—a chosen few. The High School cannot select. Its doors are open to the general mixture—the average as well as the brilliant. The problems of school and college differ widely.

Our greatest present problem in Winchester is the over-crowded condition of our High School. It is probable that two sessions will be necessary in the fall regardless of what may be voted in the approaching Town Meeting.

Refreshments were served.

A Chrysler sedan, owned and operated by William A. McCarthy of 11 Merian street, Greenwood, Wakefield, and a Sanford truck, owned and operated by Wilfred Cote of South street, Wilmington, were in collision Tuesday afternoon at 4:40 on Main street near the Mystic Valley Parkway. McCarthy was backing his sedan out of the driveway at the Unitarian Church as the truck approached, going north on Main street. When Cote saw that the truck was about to collide with the Chrysler he stopped the machine, but the sedan, according to the story told the police, struck the truck, damaging a headlight and fender. The sedan was also slightly damaged. No one was injured.

Trooper John F. Dempsey of Winchester, a member of the State Constabulary, figured in the headlines again last Saturday night when in the home of Merle Sears on the Hyannis road in Barnstable he discovered Sears' body and that of his former sweetheart Miss Fannie Young, whom the man had killed before turning his own upon himself to commit suicide. The case attracted widespread interest. Trooper Dempsey left the State Police barracks after Miss Young's continued absence had been reported to him with the request that he investigate. After questioning several persons as to the attractive young woman's whereabouts Dempsey started for Sears' cottage to see if he could get any information. Arriving at the place he found it ablaze with light, though the hour was very late. Sears' automobile was in the driveway. Going around to the rear of the house with the intention of ringing the back doorbell Trooper Dempsey stumbled over Miss Young's body. She had been shot through the back and arm. Upstairs in a sleeping room he found the body of Sears with a gaping hole in the breast from a charge of buckshot fired at close range.

The calendar for March is out. Among the early forthcoming events are the ladies' afternoon bowling on March 6; the first formal dance of the season, for members and their immediate families, on March 9; and the smoker on Saturday, March 10, which the entertainment committee says is "unusual". The Rev. M. J. Ahern, S. J. of Weston College will give a lecture on Science and Religion. Father Ahern is head of the Department of Chemistry and Gology at Weston College. He has lectured extensively on scientific subjects and has written for various magazines. He is actively connected with numerous scientific societies. The title of his address will be "Cave Man Stuff; a Critique of Human Evolution". He takes the position that as yet Science has proved nothing about the evolution of the human race, though it has inferred much. He discusses the subject as a teacher of science. We think there will be much in this talk to make us think, and we look for a large audience. There will be the regular Saturday night lunch.

Among the spring activities at the Club will be a ping pong tournament.

The final standing of teams in the men's bowling tournament is as follows:

Section A

	Won	Lost
Team 1	41	15
Team 7	38	18
Team 10	36	20
Team 8	34	22
Team 4	33	23

Team 28	25	35
Team 16	22	38
Team 26	22	38
Team 29	21	39
Team 21	18	42

The three winning teams in each division are now rolling off for prizes.

Don't forget that on Saturday evening, March 3, the prizes for the bowling on Washington's Birthday will be distributed. There are about 45 prizes to be given out and practically everyone who turned in a score will receive a prize, so come down that evening and pick yours. There will also be a duck pin roll-off for two-men teams with prizes. No entrance fee as usual.

Don't forget the bowling dinner March 20.

There is quite a demand for a ping pong tournament. Members are now signing up. Our table is a very busy spot and we have some experts in the club. Ping Pong used to be a craze years ago and it is now coming in again. Sign up and show your form and skill. W. A. Palmer is chairman.

MIXED BOWLING TOURNAMENT

The ladies came out strong in the bowling matches on Tuesday night in the mixed tournament at the Calumet Club, a large number qualifying for honorable mention. Team 8 took two points from team 5, 17 two from 4 and 3 two from 1. Several of the strings were very close. Following are the best individual scores:

MILK CHART FOR MONTH OF FEBRUARY 1928

Published by the Winchester Board of Health

The bacteria count in this chart gives the number of bacteria found in one c. c. taken from the center of the sample after it had been well shaken. It should be remembered that another c. c. taken from the same sample might give a somewhat different count, but the difference would rarely, if ever, exceed 10 per cent.

The above names are arranged alphabetically, not in order of quality of milk. Certain brands are not listed in this chart, because they have been analyzed by competent authorities or are sold in Winchester in negligible quantities.

BOSTON YOUNG WOMEN'S CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

Mrs. Bertram Bernnard of Winchester will serve as captain in charge of the workers in this district who will participate in the $750,000 campaign of the Boston Young Women's Christian Association to be launched on March 12.

This will provide funds for completion of the new building now being erected at Stuart and Clarendon streets, Boston and give maintenance for the association during the present year. The new building, 13 stories high and equipped with every modern convenience includes swimming pool, bowling alleys, reading and rest rooms, restaurant and assembly halls, will serve as a community center for all women and girls of Greater Boston. Its doors will be open to every girl and woman, regardless of race or creed, at all times. Many of the features of the building may be rented by organizations as needed.

More than 400 women from all parts of Greater Boston will participate in the campaign.

Mrs. Bernnard will enlist a number of Winchester women to serve as members of her team, and they expect to do most of their solicitation in this community.

Miss Laura B. Tolman of Washington street returned to Winchester last Sunday after spending the week previous at Rockland, Me.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The regular monthly meeting will be held Wednesday, March 7 in Fortnightly Hall at 2:30 o'clock. The principal address of the afternoon will be given by the founder and first President of the club, Mrs. Woodside who will present "Some Impressions from Abroad," gleaned during the year she spent in Scandinavia as Fellow of the American Scandinavian Foundation at the Royal Frederick University at Oslo.

Mrs. Woodside has a very unusual and complete collection of Norwegian peasant costumes, wedding gowns, embroidery and handwork. These articles will be on exhibition, the costumes being worn by officers of the Board.

The members of the Club will also be glad to learn that some musical selections will be rendered by the Fortnightly Trio, who have already given us great pleasure by their singing, with Mrs. Alexander as accompanist. Tea will be served after the program.

Flag Custom Old

The origin of the custom of raising the flag at sunrise and lowering it at sunset is obscure. Such practice has been followed since such emblems have been used. Pirate ships seem to have observed the custom, showing the beginning and closing of their "working" day.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The Fortnightly met on Monday afternoon, Feb. 27. The business routine and interesting reports by Mrs. Stidstone and Mrs. Ambler who attended the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs held in Everett, soon gave way to the main program.

Mrs. Annette Hughes, chairman of the Music Committee presented the musicians of the afternoon. Miss Gertrude Felber, violinist, with Mrs. Alice Abbott at the piano, again delighted her Winchester audience. She played "Tempo di Minuetto" by Pugnani, arranged by Kreisler; "Fairy Sailing" by Burleigh and for an encore gave "Lullaby" by Reger. Very well received also was Mrs. Jennie T. Fox, soprano soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Anna Lochman. She sang this well chosen group of songs:

"Home Song"	Manning
"A Little Thief"	Stern
"Love's A Merchant"	Carew
"Sylvelin"	Sinding
"The Answer"	Terry

Her encore was "A Little Song" by Voorhis.

Prof. Dallas Lore Sharp,—his name itself suggestive of the literary field, teacher of literature at B. U. and writer of note, was the lecturer of the afternoon. His subject, "Literature at Woodchuck Lodge", in a most delightful way opened our eyes to the literary habits and mental ways of John Burroughs, who has left us such a wealth of nature essays. He offered several suggestions why Burroughs, who did not die until he was 84, became more and more productive as the years passed. Burroughs, lest he grow stagnant, had a habit of deliberately interesting himself and getting a new view point. Because to the writer everything is of virtue and of value he developed a "curiosity" which led to a desire to investigate everything. All that came to him in the way of information he put where he could lay hands on it and this journal habit was a great help to him. His nimble mind, open to suggestions, could change from what had seemed fixed convictions. He was ever acquiring and even in his last years he forced his mind daily to store away memory verses. He always felt deeply the mystery and wonder underlying everything. A friend's comment on his influence was "He gave me back my soul" and that is the part John Burroughs and his books are designed to do, "Give us back our souls". No bare outline of Professor Sharp's lecture is satisfactory because it was through the anecdotes which he told of his personal friend "John" that we saw an unforgettable John Burroughs.

Literature Committee

"Modern Biblical Literature" is to be the subject under consideration at the meeting of the Literature Group on Monday, March 5 at 2:30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. Mrs. Anna M. Swanson is in charge of the program. There will also be a "Who's Who" and "What to Read". Mrs. Isabelle Winship will sing.

Dramatic Committee

A special edition of "The Fortnightly News" showing stories, songs and dances, with advanced spring fashions will be given on Tuesday, March 6 at 2:30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle is in charge of the program.

FOUR WEST SIDE HOMES ENTERED

The police are investigating four breaks which occurred on the West Side during last Sunday, in three instances at least before 9 o'clock in the evening. In no case was the house entered occupied during the day and the damage was not discovered until the arrival of the family during the evening.

Two of the homes entered, those of Mr. Frank W. Reynolds and Mr. William E. Clark are adjacent to each other at 13 and 15 Everett avenue. The third house, that of Mr. George Harrington at 89 Bacon street, is in the same neighborhood. The residence of Mr. Albert D. Rogers, the fourth home, is at 21 Foxcroft road, perhaps half a mile distant. Access was gained in nearly every instance by forcing a front window on the first floor of the house. Apparently nothing of value was taken from any of the homes and the police are inclined to believe the breaks were the work of amateurs.

WINCHESTER PUBLIC LIBRARY

An exhibition of "Little People and Songs", illustrated by Henriette Willebeck LeMair, loaned by the Library Art Club, is being held in the Public Library from Feb. 27 to March 17.

FISH AND FISHERIES OF FLORIDA

This is the season when the amateur Florida fisherman goes out for his 150-pound tarpon while the professional Florida fisherman concentrates on catching 150 million pounds of other kinds of fishes.

Forty years ago Florida marketed less than a million dollars worth of sea products. Today she occupies a commanding position among southern States' fisheries, shipping annually to a broadening market catches valued at $5,750,000.

Key West is Key Market

The key to Florida's fisheries can be found at the Key West wharf market says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

A householder can buy a string of 20 different edible fish at Key West.

Until artificial ice manufacture began it was necessary to go south to feast on the many citizens of the warm seas. Now a person with an active imagination can give his order in a New York restaurant, and, in vision, sail out on the blue ocean under a warm sun, throw a line, feel the jerk of the bite, hear the buzz of the reel . . . . . And lo, the waiter serves the very fish that was on the envisioned line, a Spanish mackerel, a delicious meal for the "catcher" and consumer who has not ventured a mile from Manhattan.

Ports Have Their Specialties

Various ports of Florida specialize on certain fishery products: Pensacola for red snapper and grouper, Key West and West Palm Beach for kingfish and Spanish mackerel; Key West alone for spiny lobster and sea turtle; Fernandina for shrimp; Tarpon Springs for sponges; Apalachicola for oysters; Marco for clams, and Okeechobee for catfish. Other important fishing centers are Bradentown, Miami, Punta Gorda and Tampa.

But Jacksonville has assumed the mantle of Boston in Florida. Rail connections west, northwest, and north enable Jacksonville to gather into its municipal arms ten millions of pounds of Florida sea products annually and ship them out in some six hundred carloads.

The warm Gulf Stream waters are Dickensian in the variety and curiousness of their inhabitants when compared with northern waters. Even the names of fishes suggest Dickens. Porgy is a resident of the reefs; Mullet is much sought after by net fishermen; Grunt is good eating despite his noisy habits; the Groupers comprise a large, middle class family; the Sergeant Major proudly wears six black chevrons; Cowfish looks not unlike Mr. Podsnap, and Swellfish can be as round as Mr. Pickwick.

St. Louis Buys Catfish

Probably the most astonishing fish surprise that Florida holds is the catfish. Although salt water surrounds the State, fresh water catfish has won a commercial reputation. Seven million pounds of catfish have been taken out of Lake Okeechobee in one year. Nearly all the catch goes to St. Louis, for no matter what other cities prefer, St. Louis likes its catfish.

Anyone who is willing to work 60 feet under the surface for two hours at a stretch is eligible for a position in another of Florida's unusual fisheries. After he has been down two hours, a sponge gatherer at Tarpon Spings on the west coast gets a well earned rest before descending for another two hours. Of course the divers, most of whom are Greeks, wear diving suits and receive air constantly while they wander over the bottom reaching into crevices picking sponges here and there and placing them in a basket.

Greeks gather sponges in the Mediterranean so many of them drifted to Florida fisheries upon arrival in America. The colony has grown so much that it supports a prosperous Greek Orthodox Church. Key West, the former sponge city, has been eclipsed by Tarpon Springs.

Human Blood Stream Has Tides Like Sea

The only time most people think anything about the ebb and flow of tides is when they are at the seaside or on the river. Few people know they have their own daily tides in the blood stream pumped from the heart.

That this is so has been shown by Dr. F. B. Shaw, who declares that the high tide of the white corpuscles of the blood usually comes just after midnight and again in the afternoon. These tides, he says, may be related to the hours of eating and sleeping or to the changing positions of sun and earth.

Another doctor has discovered that anger makes the blood sweeter. After making several people angry, he drew off samples of blood, and in all cases found more sugar in the blood after the fit of emotion than before.

One Year's Moose Bag

It has been estimated that about 10,000 moose are killed in Canada each year. This seems a heavy slaughter, but far from there being any danger of extermination from this toll taken by the moose hunter, authorities in different sections are of the opinion that a killing of twice that number could be made each year, and the natural increase would definitely offset any danger of the extinction of the moose.

W. C. T. U. NOTES

At the regular monthly meeting of the W. C. T. U. held in the Congregational Church parlor, the following directors of departments were appointed: Citizenship, Mrs. Dennett; Temperance Teaching in Schools, Mrs. Le Favour; Our Papers, Miss Elliott; Legislation and Publicity, Mrs. Hamilton; Soldiers and Sailors, Mrs. Arnold; Sunday School Work, Mrs. Weld; Flower Mission, Mrs. Kempton.

The following paragraph read by Mrs. Cayting from an article written by Evangeline Booth tells some of the benefits derived from the prohibition law.

"Applications for relief in our slum settlements are reduced 50 per cent. There has been a significant decrease of mortality among young children. It used to be a common thing for reports to reach us of babies killed through the unconscious actions of drunken parents, but not one such report has reached us during the past year. Our women officers, responsible for rescue work, bear testimony that their problems are simplified greatly now that the drink factor is eliminated. Wine room or saloon parlor seductions are rarely found. Our industrial home managers bear witness that the old type of spineless, alcohol-soaked man is now phenomenal. Our relief department and labor bureaus contribute the same kind of evidence and every phase of Salvation Army work unites in extolling the prohibition law as beneficent in its results beyond all measure.

The president stated that the drama which was postponed in January will be given in the Congregational Church parish house on March 24 by Dr. N. Louise Rand and her group of Italian young people from the North End of Boston.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

A picture of unusual dramatic interest and entertaining qualities is, "The Streets of Shanghai," which is the screen attraction the beautiful Granada Theater in Malden is offering the last three days of this week. It is a picture that keeps the audience on the qui vive from beginning to end. The story of, "The Streets of Shanghai" tells of a pretty American school teacher attached to the United States Mission. She watches her young Oriental charges very closely and discovers that one of them has been kidnapped and taken to the Street of Laughing Girls. She enlists the aid of some American Marines stationed in China and falls in love with the American Captain. Pauline Starke plays the featured role in the production and she is ably assisted by Kenneth Harlan, Margaret Livingstone, Eddie Gribbon and Jason Robards. The five act vaudeville bill for the last three days of this week is headed by the DesCartes Girls Revue, a sextette of singers and dancers in an elaborate stage treat.

On the screen one of the greatlays ever made, comes to next Monday for a three Esther Ralston, Charles ..., Wallace Beery and George Bancroft are the featured players in this splendid screen feature. The regular five act bill of selected Granada vaudeville will also be offered the first three days of next week.

FIRE THREATENS BLOCK IN SQUARE

Few cold snaps will roll around during the course of a winter without the members of the Fire Department being called upon to face the elements in putting out a fire, and that of the past week end proved no exception to the general rule.

Shortly before 11 o'clock last Saturday night as Call Captain George Osborne was passing the block at the corner of Main and Thompson streets he noticed heavy smoke issuing from the building. He quickly pulled in an alarm from Box 23, bringing the apparatus to the scene almost quicker than it takes time to tell about it.

Upon their arrival the firemen found that the fire had started in a basement used jointly by the K. & S. Doughnut Shop and the Medford Dye House on the Main street side of the block. It had gotten a good start and it was only after a stiff fight of more than two hours in the bitter cold that the men were able to get it under control. For the most part the blaze was confined to the basement though at one place in a hallway at the rear of the doughnut shop it mushroomed up into the first floor. The floor timbers were badly charred and there was considerable smoke and some water damage throughout the block. The actual loss was rather hard to estimate but it is thought that it will run into several thousand dollars. Kaufman Brothers are the owners of the property.

FRANK IAPELLI

Frank Iapelli, aged 33 and widely known among the Town's Italian residents, passed away last Friday evening at his home on Olive street after an illness of only a few days with pneumonia.

Mr. Iapelli was born in Italy but had come to this country as a young man, settling soon after his arrival in Winchester where he had since made his home. He was employed at the time of his last illness with the James J. Fitzgerald Contracting Co. of this town. Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Victtoria Iapelli and three small children.

Funeral services were held from the later residence on Monday morning with a high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock by the Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

THE IDEALS OF A MEMORIAL

Evidently the alumni of Harvard University have the same problem before them that the Town of Winchester had several years ago, if we may judge from a recent communication to the Boston Herald which is given below. We wonder if they will arrive at a similar conclusion.

Harvard War Memorial

To the Editor of The Herald:

To attempt to combine utility with a memorial, as even the proposed church would do, seems to me unfortunate and would not fulfil the highest ideals of a memorial. The college tried this once in Memorial Hall, "now abandoned," by combining a memorial and a dining hall which has been to a large extent a dismal failure in both respects—and even John Harvard has moved away!

President Lowell in his letter to Professor Moore, quoted, I think, in the appeal for funds for the church, makes an argument in favor of the memorial church as having a very potent influence in promoting moral standards in the college. His letter is too long to quote here, but it seems to me that his argument could equally and with stronger force be applied to a memorial monument. Is there any reason to suppose that any great number of students are going to frequent the new church even if it is a memorial church for moral uplift any more than they do now in Appleton Chapel, either on week days or Sunday except on special occasions?

On the other hand, what could be more inspiring and suggestive of high moral ideals than a monument in some conspicuous place within the college boundaries on which generations of students would look in ages to come, and read the names of those brave Harvard men who made the one supreme sacrifice for a cause which seemed to them worthy of such high adventure.

That soul would be dead indeed which could not be quickened by such a memorial.

How many thousands of travelers have stood in awe before that simple shaft on the Dufferin terrace in Quebec, erected to the memory of Montcalm and Wolfe, and read that beautiful Latin inscription, without having awakened in them noble impulses and admiration for those valiant soldiers who fought each other bravely and died in performance of their duty.

Let the college go on and complete its subscriptions for a new and beautiful church and build it as a church—and persuade its students to accept its privileges.

Let the great mass of the alumni, each by small free-will offerings, build a monument with no practical use but with a spiritual significance, which in my humble opinion no combination of church and memorial could give.

TWO GIRLS INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE

Miss Pearl and Miss Vera Langille, sisters employed as domestics in the home of Mr. Arthur D. Speedie on Oxford street were injured shortly after 10 o'clock last Friday evening when they were struck by an automobile upon alighting from an eastbound electric car on Church street near Glen road. According to the story told the police the young women had gotten off the car and, in walking around the rear of the electric, stepped directly into the path of the automobile, a Reo sedan owned by Leonard J. Scanlon of 15 Montview road, Medford. The Reo was headed West on Church street.

The Misses Langille were both knocked down and Miss Pearl Langille appeared to be badly injured. Both were rushed to the Winchester Hospital where they were attended by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy. Miss Pearl Langille was found to have sustained a dislocated thumb on her left hand, numerous cuts and bruises about the head and face, a broken right wrist and a dislocated right knee. She was at first thought to have been injured internally but an X-ray examination found nothing wrong. Miss Vera Langille sustained injuries to one of her knees but was able to leave the hospital after receiving treatment.

Mith Miss Harris in the Reo were its owner, Mr. Scanlon, Miss Thelma Jergusen of 93 Walcott street, West Medford and Miss Frances Abbott of 13 Billings avenue, Medford. Officer Robert White conducted the police investigation of the affair.

FATHER AND SON DAY OBSERVED AT FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Sunday was observed as Father and Son Day at the First Baptist Church. The large congregations, which filled the auditorium at both the morning and evening services, were delighted at the ease and skill the sons filled the positions ordinarily occupied by the fathers. Those participating in the morning were Andrew Skilling, who led the responsive reading; Lorenzo Crowell, the scripture lesson; and Francis Kempton, who made the announcements. The ushers were Lemert Clark, Clyde Clark, Frederick Cobb, and John Blank. In the evening, another group presided: Albert Cutler as pastor; Earl Waters, song leader; Frederick Sanborn, scripture lesson; and Woodrow Pynn, who announced the hymns. The ushers were Donald Dalrymple, John Blank, Howard Coy and Ralph Johnson. Five deacons were present: Bradbury Gilbert, Theodore Johnson, Leonard Berry, Merton Coy and John Lute.

The services of the boys were much appreciated and added greatly to the interest and enjoyment of the day.

Use for Mouse's Whiskers

Not only are the cat's whiskers famous, but the mouse's hirsute adornment is having its distinction. Painters have found that in the application of majolica a very delicate brush is required, and that the best material for it is the whiskers of mice.

FAY SECOND IN RECORD BREAKING 600

Marshall H. Fay, of this town who is one of the track men at Tech, competed last Saturday in the New England Amateur Athletic Association Union races at the Arena, specializing in the 600-yard run.

His work in this event shows that he is a consistent scorer, taking second place in his heat and pushing Frank Burns of the Boston Athletic Association for first place in the finals to such an extent that Burns broke the record for this event, making the time 1.15 2 5 seconds.

The race has given Fay the opportunity of adding one more medal to the collection which he has received for running during the past three years.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Winchester's new jewelry store, the latest addition to the Town's industrial establishments, is to open its doors to the public tomorrow, Saturday, March 3, at 557 Main street, next to Hevey's Pharmacy.

The merchandise offered for sale has been chosen with a view to satisfying the discriminating purchaser. Only the products of reliable manufacturers will be offered and each piece sold will carry the guarantee of service and satisfaction.

Mr. Ludwig E. Heinz, the proprietor, is an experienced jeweler and watchmaker, having been associated for many years with the Waltham Watch Co., and also with Smith, Patterson & Co., jewelers of Boston. He solicits the patronage of careful buyers and calls attention to his advertisement appearing elsewhere in this issue of the Star.

WILL KRAKATOA EXPLODE AGAIN?

Is Krakatoa lighting the fuse for another explosion?

The tiny island volcano in Sunda Strait, between Java and Sumatra, already has tossed out another little land mass into the adjacent waters. The Dutch Government, recalling the terrific eruption of 1883, has sent out radio warnings to both the Sumatrans and Javanese.

That explosion was the most violent in modern times, according to a bulletin from the National Geographic Society's headquarters at Washington, D. C. It has been said that it made the biggest noise ever heard by the ear of man. Men and women still live in the Americas who recall the eruption, for, while they did not hear its record detonation, they saw the marvelous sunsets which its dust, circulating in the upper atmosphere, helped create.

Sound Travels Four Hours

The sound of the eruption was heard on Rodriguez Island, 3000 miles distant, four hours after the catastrophe. It shot volcanic dust 20 miles high and it was this dust that was caught up in a lofty wind and whirled around the earth in 13 days. It raised a tide in South America, 10,000 miles away, and, nearer by, it threw up a wall of water more than 100 feet high which traveled 400 miles an hour.

Two months before it exploded in 1883 Krakatoa was regarded as an extinct volcano.

No person who saw the eruption lived to tell the story. It snuffed out 30,900 lives. A Dutch pilot who miraculously escaped death at Anjer, 25 miles from the volcano, supplies a vivid account of one effect of the disaster.

About 6 o'clock in the morning I was walking along the beach, the pilot said. Looking out to sea I noticed a dark, black object through the gloom, traveling towards the shore.

A Wall of Water

At first sight it seemed like a low range of hills rising out of the water, but I knew there was nothing of the kind in that part of the Sunda Strait. A second glance—and a very hurried one it was—convinced me that it was a lofty ridge of water many feet high, and worse still, that it would soon break upon the coast near the town. There was no time to give any warning, and so I turned and ran for my life. My running days have long gone by, but you may be sure that I did my best. In a few minutes I heard the water with a loud roar break upon the shore. Everything was engulfed. As ther glance around showed the houses being swept away and the trees thrown down on every side. Breathless and exhausted I still pressed on.

As I heard the rushing waters behind me, I knew that it was a race for life. Struggling on, a few yards more brought me to some rising ground. And here the torrent of water overtook me. I gave up all for lost, as I saw with dismay how high the wave still was. I was soon taken off my feet and borne inland by the force of the resistless mass. I remember nothing more until a violent blow aroused me. Some hard, firm substance seemed within my reach, and clutching it, I found I had gained a place of safety. The waters swept past, and I found myself clinging to a coconut palm tree. Most of the houses near the town were uprooted and thrown down for miles, but this one fortunately had escaped and myself with it.

The huge wave rolled on, gradually decreasing in height and strength until the mountain slopes at the back of Anjer were reached, and then, its fury spent, the water gradually receded and flowed back into the sea. The sight of those receding waters haunts me still. As I clung to the palm tree, wet and exhausted, there floated past the dead bodies of many a friend and neighbor. Only a mere handful of the population escaped.

SIMON BOLIVAR: SOUTH AMERICA'S GEORGE WASHINGTON

When Colonel Lindbergh placed a wreath on the tomb of Simon Bolivar in Caracas, recently, he was paying homage not only to a great son of Venezuela, but also to the cherished hero of four other South American countries, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Bolivar has been called by North Americans "the George Washington of South America;" but to his own people he is "the Liberator". It was under his leadership, between 1811 and 1824, that the Spanish forces were pushed out of northern South America, and independence attained. The present countries of Venezuela, Columbia, Ecuador, Peru, and Bolivia all owe their existence to the liberating armies of Bolivar. Bolivia, at first "Alto Peru" showed her gratitude by taking the name of her deliverer.

Fled for Life

Bolivar was born to wealth and position in Venezuela and was educated among sons of nobles in Spain; but he kept his early passion for the independence of his country and gave up all privileges and comforts to carry on the fight. He did not find the struggle easy. Time and again when Spain imported huge armies, and defeated the revolutionaries, he had to flee for his life. In 1815 he went to Jamaica, spending his time writing in the cause of Venezuelan independence. Later he went to Haiti, and there forming a small expedition, again entered the fight on the mainland, in 1817.

Bolivar's drive for idependence began in Nueva Granada (now Colombia), then swept to his native Venezuela. Alternately he delivered these two countries, only to see them, in the early years of the independence movement, slip back repeatedly under Spanish control.

Wanted Free Continent

From the first Bolivar's aim embraced more than the independence of his native colony; he wanted to see all Spanish America free. In 1819 he found both Venezuela and Nueva Granada in the hands of the independents, and brought about their combination into a single nation, Colombia. Of this land of his creation he was made "Liberator President".

In 1822 he turned south, and like Napoleon and Hannibal crossing the Alps, crossed the Andes into Ecuador. There he defeated the Spanish forces, freeing his third colony. The next year he went to Peru was proclaimed commander, and was again victorious. The battle of Ayachucho, won by Sucre, Bolivar's Lieutenant, Dec. 9, 1824 brought to a favorable end the long struggle for independence in Spanish South America. In 1825 the Liberator passed on to La Paz and organized the government of Alto Peru, now Bolivia. He even considered a movement to free Porto Rico and Cuba.

Refused Imperial Honors

At the height of his power after the freeing of the colonies, Bolivar was urged by many to make himself "Emperor of the Andes". This ambition he resolutely put aside. He had often declared that he had no ambition for civil office, that he wanted only the "post of danger at the head of soldiers".

Strife broke out in all the freed dominions, led by generals jealous of Bolivar. There was even an effort to assassinate him in 1823. Ill, he resigned all civil and military offices in 1830, and retired to Santa Marta, a small Caribbean coast town. Toward the end of the year he died, crushed by the ingratitude that had been shown by his lieutenants.

Death brought a realization of Bolivar's greatness, and the Venezuelan government took his remains reverently to Caracas, the capital. There they rest today in a handsome mausoleum, which is a national and international shrine.

COUNTY DONEGAL WILL KEEP ITS NAME

County Donegal, Ireland, has had its name confirmed by historians and geographers following a recent attempt to change this musical appellation. Although in the same latitude as northern Labrador the northwest county of the Free State enjoys the temperate climate of Virginia says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. This freedom from severe cold Donegal owes to one of the pleasant little pranks of the Gulf Stream which washes its rocky coast with warm waters from the American Tropics.

Although slightly smaller than Delaware, Donegal was in ancient times the kingdom of the Clan O'Donnell. Scattered throughout the county are many interesting ruined castles of the days of the Irish kings and later struggles with the Danes and the English. Parts of the country were not subjugated until the last years of Queen Elizabeth's reign.

Seat of Ancient Culture

Ireland became Christianized at a very early period and from its cultured monasteries missionaries went forth to convert many sections of northern Europe. St. Columba was born and lived in Donegal and founded several religious sanctuaries.

The county is a land of wild mountains and lakes, less than half of the surface being under cultivation. Its streams are noted for salmon and trout fishing. The coast is rocky and indented, bold headlands jutting out into the sea. Though boasting nearly 200 miles of coast line there are no good harbors from Killybegs in the south to Lough Swilly in the north. Rye, oats, and potatoes are the chief crops of the valley farms. In Donegal cottages are woven some of the homespun tweeds for which Ireland is famous.

Boat Construction Same for Centuries

Attempts have been made in recent years to give impetus to the fishing industry along the coast. Fishermen still use the ancient coracle or skin boat without keel or rudder. They are easily handled in fine weather but become extremely dangerous when surf pounds against the rocks. These primitive boats probably represent the next step in navigation after the raft and have not changed during many centuries of use. Now fine seaworthy fishing craft are being introduced.

On the north shore of Donegal are several modern summer resorts with luxurious hotels frequented by Irish and English holiday makers because of the excellent golf and sea bathing to be had there. Two of the best known of these gathering places are Rosapenna and Portsalon. Further south Bundran, with its scarred and weather-beaten cliffs, offers a splendid view of the sea. Here three galleons of the Spanish Armada, staggering homeward from the famous defeat in the English Channel, were washed ashore in a storm and completely wrecked. Only a few antique cannon and anchors were recovered. When Philip of Spain learned of the destruction of his supposedly invincible fleet he is said to have philosophically remarked that he had sent them against the English, not the elements.

Donegal Home of the O'Donnells

Donegal town from the dawn of history has been the seat of the O'Donnell family. Their ruined castle, whose shell has been remarkably well preserved, is still the most interesting sight of the countryside. It remained in the hands of the O'Donnells until the days of Charles I when their line ran out and the castle passed to Sir Basil Brooke, an English Catholic supporter of the king. Donegal town is now chiefly noted for the Irish tweeds and soft steamer rugs which it exports.

Inhabitants of County Donegal are noted for their courtesy and quick intelligence. Though the district is poor, hospitality is universal and beggars are rare. Country customs hark back to ancient times. It is a common sight to see women riding pillion fashion on horseback, behind the men, and bare feet are not unusual. Though lying in the far northwest Donegal forms a part of the Free State, its population being largely of Celtic origin.

THE THREE GUIANAS

If a freight air line should connect Chicago with Buenos Aires along the route now being discussed, one of the most interesting sections of the journey would lie over British, Dutch and French Guiana says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. This leg of the proposed route begins at Caracas, in Venezuela, and ends at Cayenne, in French Guiana, a stretch of South American coast sighted by Columbus but still one of the least settled portions of the New World.

Guiana has been so little in the world's eye that its name was confused with Guinea on the African coast and the small rodent from Guiana was christened the Guinea pig by mistake.

Early Sighted But Thinly Settled

The three Guianas are the only European colonies on the continent of South America. The word Guiana is derived from the name of an old Indian tribe which once inhabited the entire country between the mouths of the Orinoco and Amazon Rivers as far back as the Rio Negro and the Casiquare. This huge territory formerly went by the name of Guiana, but much of it is now included in Venezuela and Brazil.

Sir Walter Raleigh visited the region in search of El Dorado, fabled land of riches, but, discouraged by Indians, heat, and swamps, he turned back. The first actual settlements were made by Dutch colonists in the last quarter of the 16th century. Paramaribo, or, as the Dutch call it, Surinam, the capital of Dutch Guiana, is interesting as the city which was traded to the English for the settlement of New Amsterdam on Manhattan Island, present day New York. Paramaribo now has a population of about 40,000 people, mostly negroes.

Hindered by Labor Shortage

French Guiana, perhaps the most beautiful section of the coast from a scenic point of view, has long been used as a convict colony and has made few attempts at agricultural or commercial development.

British and Dutch Guiana have had a struggling existence, the settlers being crowded upon a narrow strip of agricultural land between tropical jungles and the Atlantic Ocean. Much of this strip is below sea level and has to be diked and artificially drained. Sugar, molasses, rum, molascuit, a sort of cattle food made from the residue of molasses, and rice are the chief agricultural products. Successful attempts have been made to raise bananas, cacao, and rubber, but plant diseases and lack of labor have been a great detriment to development of the country. Following freeing of negro slaves, the sugar industry, which had been a mainstay of the colonies, languished considerably. A certain amount of East Indian indentured labor was induced to immigrate, but the need for workers who can stand the sun has never been met, and is still one of the vital problems of the Guianas.

Accounts Kept in Dollars

Behind the coast is a wide belt of tropical jungle; after which the explorer reaches high treeless plains or savannas. Farther still are great ranges of mountains, furnishing magnificent scenery. Kaieteur Falls, in British Guiana, are 400 feet wide and 741 feet high, more than four times the height of Niagara. This region is reached from the coast by following rivers inland, first in larger boats and then in canoes. Gold mines are worked in paying quantities and small diamonds are exported. The Indians who roam the country are primitive in their mode of life but not unfriendly. Bauxite and balata are other Guiana products, as well as hardwoods from the jungle belt.

In Paramaribo there is a street shaded by mahogany trees said to be worth $40,000. Americans are interested in the fact that in Georgetown, capital of British Guiana, although English pounds and shillings are in circulation, accounts are kept in dollars at the rate of 4s-2d per dollar. This is said to be for convenience in exporting, much trade being carried on between the United States and Canada.

Business Man Really Not Taking Chances

In Portland lives a business man who not so long ago took to himself a most attractive young wife. She is reported to be what is sometimes denominated as dangerously beautiful. Recently he took a "traveling man" home to dinner with him. When, after dinner, the two men were in the smoking room together, the traveling man felt moved to say:

"Mr. Blank, as you know, I go about a great deal, and I may confess to you I am an observer of the fair sex, and in the course of my travels I see many handsome women, but I must say Mrs. Blank is about the handsomest woman I've ever met. I should think you'd be afraid to bring other men into your home."

"Oh, I trust my wife to look after the honor and welfare of the family, but I do sometimes find myself taking the precaution to invite only such plain, commonplace men as no woman would care to see the second time."—Boston Globe.

New Zealand's Fjords of Surpassing Beauty

The marvelous fjordland of New Zealand is described by those who have seen it as the most wonderful in existence, surpassing in beauty the famous fjord country of Scandinavia.

Splendid new fountain pen desk sets with marble base at the Star Office.

Monday afternoon three Melrose boys while walking through the Fells started a small fire on the old picnic grounds, known to most residents of this district as the sheep fold. The blaze, despite their best efforts, soon got beyond their control and becoming alarmed, the boys took to their heels. Mounted Officer Ned Shea had seen the proceeding from the tower and succeeded in heading the boys off. Meanwhile the men of the Town's reservoir department assisted by Metropolitan workmen put out the fire which burned over an area of about an acre and a half. No particular damage was done and the three thoroughly frightened boys were allowed to go with a stiff reprimand.

With the co-operation of Registrar Goodwin's office and the Lexington Police Department, Sergt. Thomas F. Cassidy of the local police was finally able to locate the owner of the Chrysler coupe which was found by Officer John E. Hanlon abandoned on the Parkway near Bacon street late last Thursday evening. The machine bore Massachusetts plates but also had a set of West Virginia plates in the tonneau. It was found to belong to Russell C. Gentry of 3 Waltham street, Lexington and had been stolen from a Lexington garage man while the latter was getting a lunch in a Medford restaurant. The machine which was in a somewhat damaged condition when found by the local authorities was returned to its owner.

THIEVES JUGGLED NUMBER PLATES

A group of auto thieves operating in town last night did some clever juggling of number plates to prevent their identity from being discovered by the authorities in any towns or cities through which they might subsequently happen to go.

Apparently the thieves came to Winchester in a Gardner sedan which they abandoned on High street. The machine was discovered shortly before 9 o'clock by Officer William Cassidy. An investigation disclosed the fact that it had been stolen from the S. P. Anthony Company Garage in Brighton and was the property of Pauline Rapp of Braintree.

The further operations of the auto thieves included the theft of a Chrysler sedan, the property of Mary L. Williams of 26 Wedgemere avenue and the removal of a set of dealer's number plates from a Cadillac car parked in front of the residence of Warren M. Cox on Salisbury road. Taking the Chrysler to the spot on High street where the Gardner was abandoned the thieves removed the number plates and substituted those taken from the Cadillac. They then left town in the Chrysler. The police found one of the plates taken from the latter car in a field near the abandoned Gardner machine. They are working on the case but are apparently up against the operations of experienced automobile thieves who went to considerable trouble to make a clean getaway.

PRESENTED GIFT TO FORMER CHOIR MASTER

The choir boys of the Parish of the Epiphany, formerly trained by choir master J. Albert Wilson, met at the studio of Mr. Wilson on Tuesday afternoon and presented him with a beautiful lamp as a remembrance in token of their appreciation of his faithful service and efforts rendered the Parish during his 20 year period of service.

Mr Wilson, because of his marked success as a choir master, won the sincere respect of the choir boys, and they all regret that they will no longer have the benefit of his knowledge of music as well as the enjoyment of his personality and supervision. The following boys were present.

TAX COLLECTOR EXPRESSES APPRECIATION

I want at this time to thank the voters of Winchester who supported me at the polls on Monday.

When a public official such as a Collector of Taxes discharges his duties to the best of his ability, disagreeable as some of those duties are, because of laws governing them, it is indeed gratifying to him to know that the thinking public appreciate the efforts put forth.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

Twenty dollars in gold was given to Mrs. Electa Sherman at the final session of the parliamentary law course which she conducted for the Women's Republican Club of Winchester.

Mrs. Fessenden, in making the presentation, said that the quality of the gift pure gold represented the affection and esteem in which Mrs. Sherman is held by the members of the class as well as the worth of the training they had received.

Friends of the club very generously opened their homes to this class for the eight lessons of the course and an average of 28 took advantage of Mrs. Sherman's able instruction.

At last Monday evening's meeting of the Board of Selectmen Daniel F. Higgins of 16 Fletcher street and Theodore C. Hurd of 34 Winthrop street were drawn to serve as traverse jurors in the Superior Civil Court at Lowell. At the same session Jacob F. Hodge was drawn to serve as a traverse juror in the Superior Criminal Court at East Cambridge.

CALUMET NOTES

Prizes were awarded last Saturday evening to the winners of Washington Birthday bowling. The prizes were given by members and their generosity was large in quantity and quality. About everybody participating received something including the bowling committee and some were lucky enough to get several.

"Charlie" Hart and Herman Roessler took first prize in the two-men duck pin team rolling a total of 204 for high; Harry Moulton and R. C. Orpin took second with team total of 195. The ducks were rather shy and the pin fall light.

"Joe" Gendron—just for practice—rolled five consecutive strings recently—101, 136, 111, 119, 118—pretty fair for an old timer.

There have been quite a few names added to the ping pong tournament list and matches may start anytime. Sign up at once and have some fun.

Tonight we have our first formal dance of the season. Members may invite their immediate families. Let's make it as large and successful as our Leap Year party.

Tomorrow evening we shall have our regular smoker with the Rev. M. J. Ahern, S. J., of Weston College as the speak. He will give an illustrated lecture on, "Science and Religion".

Next Friday, we shall have another one of those enjoyable suppers and bridge, with Mrs. Clarence H. Young in charge. Members must send in their reservations not later than March 14 in order that the committee may make suitable preparations. These parties have been very successful and there has been an extra large attendance. Fifty cents will cover both supper and bridge.

On Tuesday afternoon there was a large attendance of the ladies for the bowling party. Mrs. F. L. Pitman won the prize for the best single string with 107 and Mrs. Sittinger that for the best single with handicap, 98 and 10, making 108. The best score for two string total went to Mrs. Preston with 181, Mrs. Warren Cox taking the high total with handicap with 178 and 16, making 194.

PHILIP A. MARR

Philip A. Marr, 86, a Civil War veteran and a former resident of this town, passed away Monday of this week at the home of his son, James A. Marr, in Malden.

The deceased was a native of Ireland. As a young man he came to this country and at the outbreak of the Civil War enlisted in the Union Army. He was captured by the Confederates and was for some time confined in Libby Prison at Richmond. Following the war for some years he made his home in Winchester and was a member of the local A. D. Weld Post, G. A. R., serving for a time as commander. Surviving are two sons, James A. of Malden and Edward P. Marr of California.

Funeral services were held from the late residence on Wednesday. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

METROPOLITAN DIVISION MEETING

The Metropolitan Division of the Massachusetts Girl Scouts had their monthly meeting at the University Club, Boston, on Sunday, March 6. Luncheon was served at 12:30.

Mrs. Edward Gray wife of the British Consul General, was the guest and spoke of the attitude of English women toward the Girl Scout movement.

Mrs. Louis Snyder, Commissioner of Winchester, Mrs. Walter S. Wadsworth, Mrs. Clifton Hall and Mrs. Vincent Farnsworth represented the Winchester Council.

LUIGI MARABELLA

Luigi Marabella, aged 70, a resident of Winchester for some years, died Sunday at his home on Irving street, following a long illness. He is survived by his wife, Christine.

Funeral services were held from the late residence Tuesday morning, followed by a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. The interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

DR. BLAISDELL NEW CHAIRMAN OF BOARD

At a meeting of the newly elected Board of Selectmen held last Monday evening Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell was unanimously elected to act as chairman for the coming year. Dr. Blaisdell has served on the Board of Selectmen since 1925 and was previously chairman of the Finance Committee. He is at present serving the Town also as chairman of the Board of Health.

EXPRESSES THANKS TO VOTERS

I wish especially to thank the voters of Winchester for the splendid endorsement they gave my candidacy for the office of Selectman at the polls on Monday. Your confidence in me was particularly gratifying this year and it will be my earnest endeavor to so serve the Town as to merit its continuance.

Thomas F. Fallon

Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott of this town presided at the meeting of the Boston branch of the American Association of University Women held Wednesday in the Wellesely Club, Boston. Horace B. Gale, chairman of the Massachusetts Billboard Law Defense Committee was the speaker.

Last Year's Record Number Beaten at Monday's Election

One Vote Separtes Clarke and Stevens in Contest for Selectman—Nichols and Cassidy Win

One of the closest contests which Winchester has seen waged for the office of Selectman resulted in Vincent P. Clarke being returned a winner over Harry W. Stevens in last Monday's Town Election by the hair-line margin of a single vote. Mr. Clarke's total was 1191; Mr. Stevens, 1190. The members of last year's board standing for re-election, Messrs Blaisdell, Dotten, Fallon and Worthen, were returned to office.

JOSEPH W. WORTHEN
Re-elected Selectman

Following the election and despite his own desire to allow the original vote to stand supporters of Mr. Stevens took steps to petition for a recount, with the result that the necessary papers were filed with the Town Clerk on Thursday. The recount is scheduled for Saturday at 1 o'clock.

THOMAS F. FALLON
Re-elected Selectman

The early morning promise of a light vote was not sustained by the evening check-up which followed the closing of the polls at 6 o'clock. Thirty-one more votes than last year's record were cast this year, despite the fact that one of the shortest ballots in the Town's history was offered the electorate.

FIRST SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

Voters in General, Support Finance Committee—Plenty of Room in the Hall

Proponents of the limited form of Town Meeting found little to support their contention that the Town Hall is not large enough for those who wish to attend, at least at the opening session of this year's annual meeting held Monday evening when 453 of a total number of 4905 voters gathered to pass upon matters of importance effecting the entire community. The gathering was characterized as representative and in general the meeting was very satisfactory.

Once again the electorate showed a disposition to follow the recommendations of the Finance Committee in the matter of appropriating money and throughout the 10 articles considered at the meeting the figures of Mr. Spencer's group were varied but slightly.

The total appropriations authorized at the opening session amount to $861,180.39, most of the items being accepted without debate. As a matter of fact until drawing to its close the meeting was rather quiet, much of the debate upon the various articles being offered by Mr. Whitfield L. Tuck and Mr. Jonas A. Laraway.

Following the routine swearing in of the newly elected Town officials Moderator George L. Hayward announced the meeting open for the transaction of business. Under Article 2 the reports of the Town officers and Finance Commitee were accepted and placed on file while under Article 3 it was voted to appropriate $84,850 to meet the payment of Town bonds and notes becoming due during the current financial year. Of this amount $34,850 is to be raised by taxation and $50,000 by transfer from the excess and deficiency fund.

This brought the meeting to the consideration of Article 4, relating to appropriations to defray the yearly expenses of the Town, usually one of the most trying upon the entire warrant. While there was somewhat more debate in disposing of its items Monday than was the case a year ago the article was nevertheless treated thoroughly and dispatched with reasonable speed. With the exception of that part relating to certain street acceptances, some of which involved no money, the entire article was gotten out of the way.

To a great extent the figures recommended by the Finance Committee were accepted by the meeting but here and there they were more or less vigorously challenged. Mr. Harry T. Winn early entered the lists to ask that the $7225 allotted his Board of Assessors be raised to $7600, the additional money to be expended for plans and salaries. Mr. Tuck felt that the figures instead of being raised should be reduced. Mr. Spencer of the Finance Committee in championing the figures recommended stated that no money was necessary for plans since with the present personel of the Engineering Department this work should be done in that office during working hours. Mr. Laraway felt that the Finance Committee's recommended figures were sound but wished an amendment made to the motion for their acceptance to include the provision that $1500 of the amount appropriated should be expended for the salary of the assessors' clerk. The meeting passed the amendment and the original figures were accepted.

The next change in the recommended appropriations came under the amount asked by the Fire Department which was increased $200. This increase, however, was approved by the Finance Committee previous to the meeting and was passed without debate.

In two other instances the Finance Committee approved increases to the figures as printed in its table published in the warrant recommending under Highways and Bridges (General Account) an increase from $68,580 to $69,080 and under Highways and Bridges (Public Ways) a raise from $15,450 to $16,450.

The apparent increase under insurance from $9,412.33 to $15,226.27 was explained by Mr. Spencer as really no increase at all, since it simply included the amount originally recommended to be expended for workmen's compensation.

Under the item, Legal Department, objections were raised by Messrs. Laraway and Tuck to the increase in the appropriation to be expended in raising the salary of the Town Counsel. Selectman Joseph W. Worthen championed the higher figures and they were accepted by the meeting.

Selectman J. Harper Blaisdell sponsored a raise in the appropriation for the Police Department from $42,000 to $43,000, explaining that the increase was asked that the department might put on an additional patrolman in June. He was backed in his argument by the voters until he also attempted to get a second increase of $400 to be expended in the purchase of a second motorcycle for the department. In this he was opposed by Mr. Spencer of the Finance Committee and the latter was sustained by the meeting, the original increase only being accepted.

Mr. Laraway attempted unsuccessfully to get the meeting to pare the amount allotted the Department of Public Welfare, and the voters quickly passed to the consideration of the appropriation for the Town's reserve fund. Under this item it was voted to appropriate $500 for the excess and difficiency account and $9500 from the overlay reserve.

The appropriation of $231,066.27 for the expenses of the School Department was passed with but one dissenting voice, Mr. Tuck attempting to decrease the figures by $1000 asked by the School Committee as a raise in salary for the Superintendent of Schools. The original figures were accepted.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB

The meeting on Wednesday gave special pleasure to the large gathering because of the variety and excellence of the program. The Fortnightly Trio rendered two groups of songs in their usual delightful manner. The President gave a comprehensive and most interesting ten-minute report from the School of Republicanism which she attended as delegate from the Club.

The feature of the afternoon was presented by Mrs. Woodside, founder and first President of the Club, who came dressed in a most fascinating—and, incidentally, most becoming—Norwegian costume, to present some interesting observations from abroad. The observations were not only wonderfully interesting but challenging to a group of women interested in the political situation at home and abroad. Mrs. Woodside spoke of the marriage laws, rights of property and status of children in Norway. She described the method of casting the vote; she spoke at some length of the menace of Communism both in Norway and in our own United States, quoting from a printed report the fact that 47 votes for the Worker's (Communist) Party were cast in the Town of Winchester, Mass., in a recent election. Two items of great interest were the origin of seals for charitable purposes and ski-jumping for which Norway is famous. Altogether Mrs. Woodside's lecture was most enjoyable. At the close of the address Mrs. Hamilton the first vice-president of the Club moved to make Mrs. Woodside honorary president of the Club, with full privileges. This vote was carried unanimously.

One notice that gave interest and pleasure to the members of the Club was the announcement that the president, Mrs. Fessenden has been asked to serve as alternate to a delegate of the 8th Congressional District to the Republican Convention for the nomination of a candidate for the Presidency, at Kansas City next June.

CATHERINE SULLIVAN

Winchester lost another of its long time residents Wednesday morning when Catherine Sullivan, widow of Patrick Sullivan and for more than half a century a widely known and universally respected citizen of the town, passed away at her home on Spruce street.

Mrs. Sullivan's death came as a distinct shock to her family and friends. Her health had begun to fail during the past October but of late her condition showed a marked improvement and she was believed to be recovering nicely when a sudden turn for the worse proved fatal.

The deceased was born in Ireland, the daughter of Maurice and Ellen Breen. Coming as a young girl to America she settled in Winchester and for the past 50 years had made her home on Spruce street. A staunch member of St. Mary's Church, Mrs Sullivan was active in parish affairs and was for many years a member of St. Mary's Married Ladies' Sodality.

Surviving are four daughters, Mrs Julia E. Lane, Miss Catherine T. Sullivan, Miss Nellie M. Sullivan and Miss Teresa E. Sullivan and two sons, Eugene P., and Maurice J. Sullivan, all of Winchester. A brother, Jeremiah Breen and three grandchildren, John, Eugene and Robert Lane, all of Winchester, also survive her.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday morning, March 10, from the late residence, 18 Spruce street, at 8:15 with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. The interment will be in Calvary Cemetery.

FORMER WINCHESTER WOMAN TO SPEAK HERE

The "Pre-School Child" will be the subject of the talk by Mrs. Henry G. Pearson of Newton Center at the meeting of the Washington Chapter of the Mother's Club on Wednesday, March 14 at 3 o'clock at the George Washington School.

Mrs. Pearson is President of the Nursery Training School of Boston, at 147 Ruggles street the oldest school in this country for training workers and directors for nursery schools. Before her marriage, Winchester was her home and she will be remembered as Miss Elizabeth Windsor.

The meeting is open to all, but mothers of young children especially are invited to come. Children of second grade age and under will be supervised. Refreshments will be served.

OBSERVED 56TH ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. James Johnson observed on Tuesday, Feb. 28, at their home on Elm street the 56th anniversary of their marriage. Due to the fact that Mr. Johnson has not been in robust health the gathering was limited to members of the immediate family, including the couple's five sons and one daughter with their two grandchildren. The affair was a complete surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Johnson who were presented during the evening with a substantial purse of gold. The house was attractively decorated with cut flowers and refreshments were served during the evening. It is of interest that Mrs. Johnson, who is 73 years of age, was born and has spent her entire life in the house she now occupies with her husband and daughter on Elm street. She was married there 56 years ago by the Rev. Dr. Steele, a Congregational clergyman.

WINCHESTER MAN TO HEAD N. E. MUSIC TRADE ASSOCIATION

Mr. Shepard Pond of 192 Cambridge street was on Tuesday evening elected to the presidency of the New England Music Trade Association at the association's annual convention and banquet held in the Hotel Statler, Boston. Mr Pond is widely known in Boston business circles through his association, in an executive capacity with the Ivers & Pond Piano Company.

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

The Fire Department was kept on the jump yesterday afternoon putting out grass fires, four runs being made between 1:35 and 4:15 o'clock. The first fire was on Irving street, the second at 3:10 o'clock on Pond street and the third at 4:05 on Arthur street. The final blaze was on Main street near Black Horse terrace.

Miss Mabel Doherty, general clerk at the Town Hall, is to spend the week-end in New York. She refused to divulge on which candidate or with whom she wagered.

Dr. Roger M. Burgoyne is driving one of the handsome new Buick coupes.

Mrs. Gertrude Jones of Park avenue has returned from the Choate Hospital in Woburn where she recently underwent an operation. She is reported as recovering nicely.

An unofficial "victory banquet" was staged Monday evening, following election at Terrace Garden Inn in Burlington by a party of successful town politicians. Details were not made public but rumor whispers that the affair was "some party."

Mrs. Dr. Henry L. Houghton was hostess to more than 40 guests at a delightful musicale held at her home on Wednesday.

Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance

What It Is

The Massachusetts system of Savings Bank Life Insurance is a State-aided plan which aims to give to Massachusetts wage earners and their families all that their money can possibly buy of real life insurance.

The State utilizes the Savings Banks as the medium through which to perform this important function, because the Massachusetts Savings Banks have no stockholders and are operated solely for the benefit of the depositors. Thus is made possible the existence of a purely mutual insurance organization. The expense of commissions to agents is done away with by a provision in the Savings Bank Insurance Law which prohibits the Savings Banks from employing paid solicitors.

The system rests upon the undeniable proposition that the cost of providing for death and old age is a part of the cost of living in youth; that this cost should be recognized as a fixed charge upon current wages; and that any person who, having the opportunity, does not make such provision, is simply shifting upon the community, or upon his family or his friends, the burden he should himself have borne.

Prophetess Mrs. Ella Foley
Monitor Mrs. S. Quigley
Sentinel Mrs. B. Young
Organist Mrs. M. McGrath
Directors for 3 Years Mrs. Mary Gilson, Mrs. Kathryn Callahan

Sunday, March 18, is Guild Sunday at the Holy Ghost Hospital. A most delightful and entertaining program has been arranged by the joint efforts of all the Guilds and it is hoped many of the individual members will find it convenient to visit the hospital on that day. It is most gratifying always to learn from Sister Superior of the hospital the cheerfulness which these Guild Sundays afford to the many patients at the hospital, who would otherwise find their day more or less wearisome. This is the 12th concert program which the several branches of the M. C. W. G. have presented to the Holy Ghost Hospital.

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

The Ladies' Friendly Society will hold their executive board meeting Tuesday at 11:30 a. m. in the church parlors. The monthly luncheon will be held at 1 o'clock followed by the regular meeting at 2:30 p. m. The ladies are pleased to have their own pastor, the Rev. George Hale Reed as the speaker of the afternoon with the subject, "Test of the Gothic Arch."

Mrs. Apsey reports that she has had several requests for tickets for the Richard Halliburton lecture from citizens of our neighboring cities.

WAKEFIELD LODGE, NO. 231, I. O. O. F.

The regular lodge meeting will be held at 7 o'clock on Monday evening to make way for the dedication of the home at 8 p. m. by the Grand Lodge officers. The ceremony will be open to Odd Fellows and their friends, and will be an evening long to be remembered in Odd Fellowship.

TEA FOR MISS AVERY

The last of the Smith College Current Events lectures will be given on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the Wyman School. A reception and tea will be held at the close of the lecture. All who attend are cordially invited to remain and meet Miss Avery.

Dr. Mary T. Maynard, president of the oBston Parliamentary Law Club, spoke on the subject "Club Parliamentarian" at the last meeting of the Club Institutes of the State Federation held at Hotel Vendome.

REV. BENJAMIN P. BROWNE INSTALLED

Before a very large audience in the First Baptist Church last Sunday evening, Rev. Benjamin P. Browne was installed as pastor of the church. The moderator of the council, Darrell C. Linscott, presided, and after briefly explaining the nature and purpose of an installation service, presided over the different speakers.

Rev. Everett C. Herrick, D.D., president of the Newton Theological Seminary, preached the installation sermon on the theme, "Old and New Loyalties." Rev. Nathan R. Wood, president of Gordon College of Theology and School of Missions, gave the charge to the church, and Rev. R. G. Schell, D.D., assistant pastor of Tremont Temple, gave the charge to the new pastor. Mr. Linscott then called on President Herrick to offer the installation prayer.

The musical features of the service included a trombone solo by Charles English of the Aleppo Temple of Boston, a duet by Mrs. Everett C. Herrick and Mrs. Benjamin P. Browne, and an anthem by the church entitled, "As Christ Upon the Cross," by Ballard. The service closed with the benediction pronounced by the newly installed pastor.

The Rev. Mr. Browne has a winning, but quiet personality. The church has a bright future before it, and will start immediately upon a building program.

Next Sunday evening there is to be a "Pageant of the Ten Virgins" by 10 young women after which the pastor will speak briefly on "Have You Rejected Christ Again"?

HIGH SCHOOL NOTES

At an assembly Tuesday of this week we were honored by having the world's champion typist, Mr. George L. Hossfield give a demonstration of his ability as a typist and holder of the world's speed record.

The demonstration was given under the auspices of the Underwood Typewriter Company, and the honor was bestowed upon the Winchester High School Commercial students for having attained the greatest number of awards as well as speed and accuracy in this district. Before he demonstrated, Mr. Hossfield gave the following five essentials which are necessary to become an expert typist:

1. Concentration
2. Rhythm
3. Position at the machine
4. Keep eyes on copy constantly
5. Love for work of all kinds

Mr. Hossfield's official record is 143 net five-stroke words per minute for one hour. His average is 13 strokes per second.

Reports of our last year's boys who are now at Amherst, Colby, Boston University, Cornell, Dartmouth, Norwich and Harvard show that most of them are doing very well and that not one is failing.

William Wallace, a freshman at Cornell, received six honor grades.

PHOTOPLAY SUNDAY EVENING FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

A seven reel religious film, "The Miraculous Icon of Tinos" will be shown in the social hall of the First Congregational Church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock. These reels show the Pelasgian ruins, Greece, the Miraculous Icon of Tinos, Syria, Jerusalem on Easter Day, Four American Colleges, and Constantinople. These films will give a most remarkable picture of life in the Near East. Included among them will be a picture of Van D. Lorgat, the Galilean Horn in Constantinople, children of Greece in costume, also pictures of what the Christian church is doing along various lines of service in the Near East.

CHAMPION BUGLERS HERE

An exhibition of drum and bugle playing is to be given in the Winchester Town Hall on this Saturday evening, March 10, by the corps of the Winchester and Lexington Girl Scouts. The Lexington corps was State champion in 1927. All friends of the Girl Scouts and the public generally is invited to attend this exhibition, which will open at 8 p. m.

Where Intuition Fails

Women's intuition doesn't seem so impressive when Central uses it to decide what number you really want.—Quincy Whig-Journal

THE FORTNIGHTLY NEWS

The regular meeting of the club will be held on Monday, March 12, at 2:30 p. m. in the Town Hall. The program will consist of a concert by the Boston Sinfoinetta, Arthur Fiedler, Conductor. This orchestra is composed of prominent members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The afternoon should afford a treat to all music lovers. This is a public meeting.

Club Luncheon

The club luncheon will be held on April 9 at 12:30 p m. in the Town Hall. The committee is planning to make this a fitting climax to the club year. Plan to come. Tickets will be on sale at the club meeting Monday. For further particulars watch The Fortnightly column in the Star.

Literature Committee

The Literature Group had their regular meeting on March 5 at 2:30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall.

The chairman of the afternoon, Mrs. Anna M. Swanson welcomed the group and then called upon Miss Mary Hodge, who gave a short account of many new and popular books. She closed by eulogizing Thomas Hardy, English writer of prose and poetry, who has recently died. The subject under consideration was "Modern Biblical Literature". The program so carefully thought out and so well executed seemed to be very much in keeping with the Lenten sason. Mrs. Swanson opened the program by reading three passages from the Bible with the purpose of showing the literary beauty of the language. The chapters chosen were Psalm 8, Corinthians I, Chapter 13, and Proverbs 31. In the paper which Mrs. Swanson read, she said that modern Christians regard the Bible as sacred literature to be criticised and appreciated by the ordinary canons of literary judgment.

The Greeks gave the world art and love of beauty; the Romans gave law and ordered government; but the Hebrews taught religion and righteousness. Each nation left to mankind a priceless heritage but that from the Hebrews was the greatest. Froude, the historian said, "The Bible thoroughly known, is a literature of itself—the rarest and highest in all departments of thought or imagination". Abraham Lincoln said, "The Bible is the best gift which God ever gave to man". Mrs. Swanson stressed the influence of the Bible upon the literature of England since the first translation made by Tyndale and Coverdale. All literature is colored by its influence. That the Bible is the most popular book of today is shown by the fact that more copies of it are sold than of any other book. So many literary thoughts are evolved by the reading of modern Biblical literature that the subject is overwhelming. Mrs. Swanson mentioned many books that she had read and enjoyed. At the conclusion of her paper, Mrs. Idabelle Winship sang "Abide With Me" by L. Liddle. She was accompanied by Mrs. Nancy Alexander. Mrs. Myrtie Hodge reviewed William Lyons Phelps's book "Human Nature in the Bible". Professor Phelps shows that human nature in Old Testament times was very much like what it is now. Mrs. Winship then sang with fine expression "O, Rest in the Lord" from "Elijah". Mrs. Irene D. Clarke read excerpts from Giovanni Papini's "Life of Christ" as translated by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. This book is the confession of a man who after years of turbulence and atheism turned back to the simple faith of Christ. It is written with a simplicity of style which makes the story clear and a passion that brings it home to every heart.

Mrs. Ivah C. Cove, gave an excellent review of "Brother Saul" by Don Bryne.

Mrs. Swanson closed the program by reading Sidney Lanier's poem, "The Crystal".

Dramatics Committee

"The special edition of the Fortnightly News" was an attraction that taxed the seating capacity of Fortnightly Hall on Tuesday afternoon, March 6. The club members and friends who attended are grateful to Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle, chairman of Dramatics, for another very interesting and diverting afternoon.

Mrs. Anna W. Lochman and Mrs. Alice M. Abbott were at the piano and accompanied the soloists and dancers most acceptably. The committee appreciates very much their valuable assistance.

Mrs. Martha Kelley opened the program with a clever monologue "Learning to Drive" which was extremely well done and was appreciated by many sympathetic listeners.

Little Ruth Aseltine was lovely in two well executed dances. She was followed by Mrs. S. J. Trudeau who pleased the audience with a cello solo. Mrs. Lorence M. Woodside gave most interesting glimpses of Scandinavian countries and spoke particularly of the School Theatre. Later she apdances, the first in Spanish costume

Miss Doris Lawson presented two dances, the first in Spanish costume and the second in gypsy. Next came Mrs. Annette Hughes with two songs, "Les Yeux" by Robey and "Thou Art So Like a Flower" by Chadwick. Then in quite a different vein, Mrs. Mary Briefer recited to music two selections, "Counting Daisy Petals" and "Katy Did." The joke department followed for which Mrs. McGaragle called for volunteers. Several ladies responded with some good stories which caused a great deal of merriment.

At the close of this part of the program came a fashion show. The spring gowns and hats exhibited were from "The Small Shoppe." They were all very smart and attractive and judging from the applause appealed strongly to the audience. The club is very much indebted to Mrs. Small and Miss Bellows, the proprietors of this shop for their kindness in showing these gowns. The following served as models: Mrs. Katherine Blood, Mrs. Hazel Purrington, Mrs. Catherine Hooper, Miss Barbara Locke, Miss Marjory Hayden, Mrs. Lillian Howe, Mrs. Margaret Hintlian, Mrs. Dorothy Wills, Mrs. Edith Maddocks, Mrs. Ethel Bond, Mrs. Mary Ahern, Mrs. Beatrice Hatch and Mrs. Frances Breen.

Tea was served under the direction of Mrs. Clare Dawes.

Inasmuch as a limit of two prizes to an indivdual was imposed, there is listed above only the two highest scores turned in by any member.

The duck pin roll-off for teams of two men each last Saturday evening was won by the team of Charles Hart and Herman Roessler, which turned in a score of 204. Harry Moulton and R. C. Orpin were second with 195. The ducks seemed to present more difficulties to our members than do the Boston pins.

Reply Not Recorded

Mildred, age five, having been born in a day far removed from the dark ages, had never seen a man with a beard. One day an uncle who possessed a crop of rather short whiskers came to visit them. After the first salutations had been given, Mildred stared at her newly found kinsman with intense interest.

Evidently arriving at no satisfactory conclusion, she asked: "What kind of fur is that on your face—fox or rabbit?"

Powerful Colloids

If you leave the dishes in which gelatin desserts have been served to lie unwashed, you may find them broken next morning, says Hygeia Magazine. Gelatin is one of those substances, neither liquid nor solid, known as colloid. When it dries it exerts a force strong enough to pull chips of glass out of a dish in which it has been placed.

The same force is exerted in reverse direction when dried colloids absorb moisture and expand. This was the principle used by the Egyptians when they drove a wooden wedge into a crack and poured water on it. This caused the expansion of the colloid in the wood and split the rock.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

A slanderer kills a thousand times while assasins kill but once.

The handsomest flowers which we know are by no means the sweetest.

There are many rare abilities in the world that fortune so far has never brought to light.

A person who throws mud at another must not overlook the fact that he has soiled his own hands also.

Any kindly act done toward a neighbors child will reach its mother's heart.

The dangers and delays at our grade crossing were amply illustrated last Monday morning during the busy traffic incidental to our town election. Owing presumably to brake trouble, the train due at the station from Boston at 7:51 could not stop until it had run onto both sides of the crossing. Safety of the public was assured as usual by the vigilance of the gate tenders, who always lower the gates upon the approach of all trains, even though they stop at the station. In this instance the gates were lowered before the train reached the station and remained down during its stop and departure. As the 7:57 inward train was approaching by this time, the gates were continued down. As an outward train which runs through express was approaching after the 7:57 had passed, the gates were still kept lowered, and as a freight on the siding below the station pulled out immediately following this express, the gates continued down. Following these trains there was another inward train, and hardly had the gates been raised when they were lowered for still another train. No time was kept of the period during which the gates were down, but one can well imagine that the wait was a long one and that traffic piled up sufficiently to make our centre anything but a safe spot. Surely those who stood in the cold north wind suffered more inconvenience than the impatient passen... in the automobiles, but in either ...nce the delay might well be ...d annoying, especially to the ... going to vote before catching their Boston train.

SELECTMAN FALLON SURPRISED

Following the election returns Monday evening Selectman Thomas F. Fallon, newly re-elected was tendered a complimentary surpirse party at his home on Highland avenue. About 100 friends and supporters of his candidacy gathered to offer congratulations and to express their pleasure upon the success of his campaign.

During the evening quartet numbers were rendered by John H. Boyle, Henry P. Dempsey, Edward Rodina and Frederick Fitzgerald, while solos were sung by Daniel Russo, Donald McCarthy, Joseph Fallon, Michael Queenin, Norman Harrold and William Fallon. Norman Harrold acted as accompanist and also played several piano selections. Selectman Fallon delighted the guests with a number of violin solos and there were dance exhibitions by Donald McCarthy and Daniel Russo. Delicious refreshments were served during the evening by Mrs. Fallon.

Numbered among the guests were many from Medford, Stoneham and Woburn.

Donkey-Foot Mascot

Thieves of all kinds have the strongest belief in charms. In a London police court a detective produced a black pebble taken from the waistcoat pocket of a man he had arrested, and said that that kind of thing was a charm for good luck. A burglar caught in Camberwell said bitterly to the officer who had arrested him: "It serves me right. I came out without my donkey foot." His mascot was the shod hoof of a donkey, which he had carried during the whole of his criminal career.

The black cat superstition is as powerful as ever, and a burglar will ... away from a house if he ... seated on the door...

Start of Honeymoon

The honeymoon journey is stated to have had its birth in the reign of George II of England, declares Gas Logic. It became, declares an authority on wedding customs, "a recognized bridal institution in the aristocratic world in the earlier days of George III's reign. Many years passed before modest gentlefolk in the middle rank of life presumed to imitate their betters in respect to this convenient custom."

SHORT BALLOT LONG ON VOTES

Twenty-seven hundred and eighty-seven voters of an electorate numbering 4305 cast their ballots on Monday with 1534 men expressing their preference as opposed to 1253 women. A slight falling off in the women's vote might have been expected since there was this year no contest for school committee, in the membership of which the women always take a keen interest.

In only three places on the ballot was there an opportunity for voters to express a preference and the greatest interest seemed to center about the contest for membership upon the Board of Selectmen waged by J. Harper Blaisdell, William P. Callahan, Vincent P. Clarke, Walter H. Dotten, Thomas F. Fallon, Harry W. Stevens and Joseph W. Worthen. Not for some years has the feeling in this particular department of the ballot been so intense. Messrs. Blaisdell, Dotten, Fallon and Worthen, standing for re-election to the Board, were returned to office with Vincent P. Clarke, former Commander of Winchester Post, A. L., and a new candidate for political honors, being chosen by one vote over Harry W. Stevens to complete the Board. It is of interest to note that the veteran Selectman, Walter H. Dotten, in being returned to office for the sixth consecutive year, received the highest number of votes cast in this particular contest, a splendid expression of the voters' confidence in his ability and integrity. Mr. Dotten's total was 1653, four more than that polled by J. Harper Blaisdell who finished second.

Running the contest for Selectman a close second in point of interest was that for the office of Assessor in which John F. Cassidy, a candidate for re-election, was opposed by Robert M. Hamilton, a newcomer to Winchester's political lists. Mr. Cassidy was returned to office by the close margin of 34 votes, his total being 1331 to 1297 for Mr. Hamilton. Here again supporters of the unsuccessful candidate filed a petition for a recount which will be held in conjunction with that for Selectman.

The remaining contest on the ballot was that for the office of Collector of Taxes in which Nathaniel M. Nichols running for re-election, was opposed by J. Ervine Johnson and John F. O'Brien. As a contest this turned out to be something of a joke, Mr. Nichols polling 509 more votes than the total cast for both his competitors. The winning figures were 1582; Mr. Johnson polled 695 and Mr. O'Brien, 378.

The distinction of receiving the highest number of votes cast in the election went to Chief of Police William R. McIntosh who polled 2071 for the office of Constable. Frederic D. Clement, candidate for re-election to the School Committee and Samuel S. Symmes, running unopposed for Tree Warden, each received 2043.

At 11 a. m., 1090 votes had been cast with 1510 at 1:30 p. m. Four hundred and eighty-seven votes were cast after 4:30 in the afternoon. The complete ballot follows:

Protection in Talisman

Talisman is a charm usually consisting of a figure engraved upon stone or cast in metal. The use of the charm is closely connected with astrology, and it was generally believed in the Middle ages that the talisman protected its wearer from evil spirits.

FIRST SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

Following the consideration of the item relating to the department of Sealer of Weights and Measures the meeting voted to consider that part of Article 10 relating to the report of the Waterways Committee. Under this head it was voted to receive and place on file the report of the Waterways Committee as printed and distributed prior to the meeting. The sum of $4,086.29 was appropriated to meet expenses incurred by the Waterways Committee appointed at the last Town Meeting. It was also voted that as much of the committee's report as relates to the abolition of the grade crossing be referred to the Selectmen and that the remainder, dealing with the improvement of the Town's system of waterways, be referred to a committee established by the meeting, to be known as the Waterways Improvement Committee and to consist of 12 voters of the Town to be chosen by the Moderator, the Chairman of the Board of Selectmen and the Chairman of the retiring Waterways Committee. This committee is to submit as soon as possible "its recommendation as to what action, if any, for improvement of the Town's waterways should be taken in the year 1928, together with an estimate of the cost of the same; to prepare and report at or before the next annual meeting a comprehensive program for improvement of the waterways, and to consider further the subject matter of the report and from time to time submit reports with recommendations in reference thereto, to the end that the general scheme for the improvement of the waterways set forth in said report, with such modifications and additions as the Town may from time to time adopt may be effected by the execution of a definite part thereof in each year".

During the discussion under Article 10, Hon. Lewis Parkhurst, speaking for the retiring Waterways Committee stated that he felt much of the work of improvement might well be done by various Town departments in slack seasons at a material saving. His committee was voted discharged with the thanks and approval of the Town for the excellence and thoroughness of its work already accomplished. The sum of $1000 was appropriated for the use of the new committee to be appointed.

Returning to the consideration of Article 1 it was voted to raise the appropriation for the Selectmen's Department from $1860 to $1910 with an additional appropriation of $1500 to be expended in defraying any expenses which might be met in acting upon the project to abolish the grade crossing.

The item, Snow and Ice, was cut with the consent of the Finance Committee from $21,550 to $20,550; that for Street Beacons from $2200 to $1200. The appropriations for Soldiers' Relief and State and Military Aid were raised $400 and $100 respectively.

Some little excitement and much debate were occasioned when Mr. Charles E. Kendall wanted to reduce the appropriation for Water Construction by $1500 to be expended in the construction of a fence between Chandler Field and the Reservoir as a precautionary measure. Mr. E. C. Sanderson spoke in favor of the original appropriation which was finally accepted.

Under the item, Water Maintenance, Mr. Kendall again took the floor to ask for an additional $3000 to be expended in the reforestation work which the Water Department is doing around the reservoirs. The speaker felt that the $6000 allowed by the Finance Committee was insufficient. Mr. Spencer of the latter committee did not concur and Mr. Sanderson felt that the extra funds were not necessary. Mr. Harry Lunt asked Mr. Kendall if he had ever gotten the full amounts granted him for reforestation work yearly, to which the latter replied in the negative with some heat. Mr. Kendall introduced charts to prove his contention that the reforestation work should be carried along and Mr. Laraway felt that inasmuch as Mr. Sanderson had gotten his fence, Mr. Kendall should get his trees. The meeting apparently felt in like manner as the increased appropriation was passed.

Article 5, inserted to see if the Town would authorize the Treasurer to borrow money in anticipation of revenue for the coming year, issue bonds, etc., was accepted as were the next three articles dealing with Town Counsel Engineer and the fixing of the number of measurers of wood and bark.

Under Article 9 it was voted to appropriate $200 to be expended in County Aid to Agriculture and elected Mr. Robert F. Guild to serve as director under this head for Winchester. The meeting adjourned following the consideration of this article until next Monday evening at 7:45 o'clock. The table of expenditures follows:

Canadian Lakes Beautiful

Among the seven reservations set aside by the government of Canada in the Rocky mountains there is none more beautiful than Waterton Lakes National park, which lies on the eastern slope of the Rockies where these mountains approach the international boundary. The park forms a rough square with a long L-shaped section added to the east, the whole having an area of about 220 square miles.

Wearisome

"The man who means well is as distressing as a camel's hair under shirt," said J. Fuller Gloom, the human hyena. "He is so free from evil intent that he greatly resembles a dead clam. On account of his innocence he is always getting into predicaments that no one else would think of, and after becoming embroiled in trouble he expects, because he meant well, that all the rest of us will drop whatever we are doing and rush to his rescue. I am weary of the well-meaning man."—Kansas City Times.

Odd Wedding Customs Prevailing in India

There are certain tribes in India the male members of which sometimes contract marriage with a tree. When a man loses two wives by death and wants to marry a third, the fear lurks that she, too, may die. So before the marriage the man is married to a banana tree or some other plant. All the ceremonies pertaining to an actual marriage are gone through, and at the end the tree is cut down and mourned over. Now the way is clear for the man's real marriage, the new wife being considered immune from evil influences.

From Bombay comes news of an extraordinary wedding ceremony at Bardoli, near Ahmedabad, the principals being a Brahmin girl and a pipal tree, the sacred fig of India.

The girl became blind through smallpox at the age of six, and her father, knowing that no one would accept her in marriage, expressed the desire, before he died last year, that she should wed a pipal tree. He advised her to stay at home all her life, dedicating her spare moments to the contemplation of Divine Providence.

A caste dinner was held in honor of the marriage, which was celebrated with the prescribed Hindu rites.

Sometimes when a suitable husband for a girl cannot be obtained, she is married to a sword, a bow and arrow, a grinding-stone, or other inanimate object. She is thus freed from the reproaches which would otherwise be showered on her by her caste people, for in India marriage is regarded as a sacred duty which must be entered into by every man and woman.

Profit by Past Errors

The past is gone, and gone forever. You may learn by your mistakes, but do not be guilty of the sin of constantly worrying over them. Turn your face toward the future. Give your mistakes and blunders a decent burial in the past, and let the memory of them furnish you with implements of industry by which you may operate the gold mine of future possibilities.—Exchange.

Arkansas Cotton Gin One of Earliest Made

Rambling about the Ozark mountains, an artist of Little Rock, Ark., discovered an ancient cotton gin, said to be one hundred years old and one of the oldest of its tribe. Constructed on the same principle as the roller gin and other more modern improvements, this hoary ginning device differs from later structural variations only in capacity. It literally represents the infancy of cotton ginning. Its construction is that of a box without a top. One end is open, while the other end is fitted ingeniously with two rollers, one on top of the other. Between these cylinders the cotton was fed by hand. The upper roller is secured to eccentric motion of the half inch hickory rollers, which are fitted so closely as to gin the cotton, is secured by the fitting of the wheels on each side of the open end with the wheels at the ginning end.

Turning of a wooden handle at the open end fitted to one of the wheels operates the device. The wheels are bigger at the open end of the box and are connected to the smaller drum by cotton cords.

Whale Once High in Favor as a Delicacy

The scientists who returned from the Antarctic in the famous Discovery —after two years investigation into the secrets of the whale's life—have been more interested in what the whale eats than in the whale itself as an article of food. Yet, at one time in England, the flesh of the whale was esteemed a luxury and always appeared in the menus at royal banquets.

The whale, the sturgeon, and the porpoise were, in fact, regarded as royal fish, to which private individuals had no right except by special grant from the crown. Even then, some portion was often reserved for the king.

The tongue of the porpoise, like caviare, was considered a special delicacy, and when Henry I—whose death from a surfeit of lampreys shows him to have been an epicure where fish was concerned—granted the bishop of London the right to all porpoises taken on his territory, he specially excepted "the tongue, which I have retained for myself."

The whale and the porpoise are not the only fish which have been eclipsed by the vagaries of taste. The herring, too, which is said to be now waning rapidly in favor, was not in early days considered too cheap a dish to set before a king. The city of Norwich used to render annually to the king 24 pies of the first fresh herrings of the season.—London Tit-Bits.

Historical Periods

The Jacobean period, in Great Britain, extended from 1603 to 1688. It may be divided into three phases. From 1603, when James I ascended the throne, to 1649, when his son Charles I, was beheaded by Cromwell; 1649 to 1660 is the Commonwealth, or Cromwellian period, and from 1660 to 1688 known as the "Restoration," or "Carolean period."

Grasshopper Vane Not Original With Faneuil

It is generally conceded that when Peter Faneuil caused a large grasshopper to be placed on top of Faneuil hall in Boston as a weathervane, he did it in emulation of Thomas Gresham, who 170 years before had given his home city, London, a handsome bourse for merchants dedicated by Queen Elizabeth as the Royal Exchange and crowned by the Gresham family crest, a gilded grasshopper. The grasshopper had been adopted for a crest by the Greshams obviously because the name Gresham is regarded as a corruption of the German word for grasshopper, "grassheim." Faneuil, undoubtedly had seen the London grasshopper and liked it, so he chose it for the building he gave to Boston. The Faneuil hall grasshopper has fallen to the street three times in its 185 years existence, once in the famous 1755 earthquake, again in 1761 when the building was burned, and finally in 1889, as a result of getting entangled with the flagpole halliards. After the 1755 tumble a demolished leg had to be replaced, and in 1889 new glass eyes, as well as horns and feet were required.—Detroit News.

Work of Locksmiths Encouraged by Kings

The evolution of the lock in France may be traced in great part to the direct encouragement given to the craft by her kings. It was Charles VIII who in 1411 made it compulsory for every locksmith apprentice who aimed at becoming a master to produce a "chef d'oeuvre" lock of such degree that it would entail anything from one year to two in the making. The delicate and intricate examples that are treasured in museums are mostly drawn from the test pieces, none of which, however, bears the name of the smith, though the majority are sufficiently interesting to merit a signature. The forge had little connection with such locks and none was cast in the rough. Great is the ingenuity brought to bear on them in order to display some hitherto unexploited device or to break some fresh ground in ornament. For strong boxes there were contrived locks that are a miracle of intricacy.

Under Francois I, an enthusiastic patron of the locksmith, the craft reached its summit, whence it was then to decline, if not in respect of elaboration, at least in respect of true beauty and feeling. Under Louis XIII, who was so keen a lover of fine ironwork that he himself toiled at the forge and in the workshop, the lock excelled in point of mechanism and ingenuity, but rapidly deteriorated from the esthetic standpoint. It had reached the point where the production of puzzle and letter locks began to take precedence of locks that represented compositions of real artistic quality.

Motor Philosophy

One touch of gasoline makes the whole world spin. Give a man a chassis, four tires, a soup box and a horn, and he immediately wants to become the Vanishing American. Essential to Great Work

No man can produce great things who is not thoroughly sincere in dealing with himself, who would not exchange the finest show for the poorest reality, who does not so love his work that he is not only glad to give himself for it but finds rather a gain than a sacrifice in the surrender.—Lowell.

World's Timber Supply

The world will face a serious shortage of timber within a few decades, says Christian Storjohann, a leading industrial and forestry expert of Sweden. Sweden's effort to safeguard and maintain a future supply of timber is in contrast, he says, to the indiscriminate felling of trees in many countries. Russia still has large forest reserves, but only a small part of them can be utilized because of lack of transportation facilities. Among the northern countries only Sweden now keeps the cutting of trees on a level with reforestation. Steps to convert waste and swamp lands into forest areas by draining are now also being taken.

Fair Uniting Countries

Because of the great interest taken by Cuba, Porto Rico and Haiti in the annual provincial fair at Santiago, Dominican republic, the event is becoming Inter-Antillican in scope. It is believed that the little fair will attract other Caribbean countries, and result in uniting that area more closely in political, social and economic relations.

Growth of Beard Not Stimulated by Razor

Whether or not shaving makes the beard grow faster is a question that never has been definitely answered to the satisfaction of all scientists. It is the general belief among medical men and physiologists that shaving itself does not make the beard grow faster and that cutting does not increase the growth of hair.

There is a definite rate of growth in the hair of normal and healthy persons and this growth is not affected by mere cutting. It is possible, however that shaving makes the beard grow faster for a different reason says Pathfinder Magazine. Shaving tends to irritate the skin somewhat and causes an increased flow of blood to the shaved section. Consequently there is an increase in the nourishment of the hair follicles, and this may cause the beard to grow stiffer and heavier and perhaps faster.

It is widely believed that if a man never shaved he would not have as heavy a beard as he would have if he shaved a few years and then stopped.

The Task of Adaptation

Life for most of us is a continuous process of getting used to the things we hadn't expected.—Boston Transcript.

Briefs Today Briefer Than in Former Days

Laymen have often wondered why in the legal profession briefs are so called, when as a rule owing to the more or less elaborate legal phraseology, they are anything but brief.

A lawyer explains that this name was given because such documents "are supposed to cover the necessary subject matter in as brief a space as possible." It is also pointed out that many of the "Whereases," the "aforesaids" and the "to wits" are really essential.

Although the uninitiated may still flounder in the mazes of law technicalities, modern briefs are very much less encumbered with verbiage than were the briefs of the earlier days, says the New York Times. The modern tendency is to simplify.

Writing long legal documents used to be profitable, because, to begin with, they were prepared by scriveners who were paid by the word.

An amusing story is told of a certain ancient scrivener in England who has lived through the ages because he perpetrated the most voluminous brief ever evolved in the profession. It was so prodigiously long the authorities thought the time for reform had come.

They decided to make of him an example. The wordy manuscript was affixed to a placard board and as punishment the scrivener was forced to parade with it about the town.

NEW HONORS FOR MARIBEL VINSON

Tuesday of this week on the glassy surface of London's new ice club Winchester's Maribel Vinson, 16-year-old daughter of former Rep. Thomas M. Vinson and Mrs. Vinson of High street, lost a close decision to Sonja Henie of Norway in the finals of the ladies' figure skating championship of the world. Maribel totalled 1779 points to 1865¼ for the Norse entrant who was repeating her recent victory in the Olympic championships at St. Moritz, Switzerland, where Maribel finished fourth. Both were brilliant, and in commenting upon the Winchester girl's showing Ulrich Salchow, president of the International Skating Union, stated that Maribel stands an excellent chance of winning the championship at Budapest next year.

The Associated Press has the following to say about her London exhibition:

"Miss Vinson, a beautiful slim figure in a mauve costume, faced a difficult task against Miss Henie, but she smiled as she met it, and at the termination of her five minute exhibition of glides, spins, jumps and spread-eagles, she was greeted with great applause."

Since her arrival at St. Moritz to compete in the Olympic games Maribel has been upholding the prestige of the United States in international competition in a manner to reflect much credit upon herself and delight her many admirers. The climax of her successful European trip came Monday when she appeared in the London ice club where she gave an exhibition of fancy and figure skating by special request before King George, Queen Mary and other members of England's Royal family. The London press referred to her appearance as follows:

"She pirouetted, whirled as lightly as in a ballet dance and skimmed over the ice in intricate convolutions with the speed and grace of a bird. When it was over the queen asked her to come to the royal box with three European skating champions and meet the royal family.

Queen Mary, a regal figure in a sable cloak, shook hands cordially with the little American girl in her black and white skating costume and still breathless from her strenuous performance. Then Miss Vinson was presented to the King, who had applauded her from the balcony rail, and to Princess Mary, the Duke of York, Prince Henry and Viscount Lascelles."

Maribel appeared Monday in connection with the finals in pair skating which were won by Mlle Andree Joly and Pierre Brunet of France. Miss Beatrix Loughran and Sherwin Badger of the Skating Club, New York, were fifth. The Winchester girl was not entered in the pair skating but following the competition she appeared alone on the ice of the huge rink before thousands of onlookers and gave an exhibition by royal command. No seasoned campaigner could have conducted herself with more dignity than the local school girl who charmed her audience with her inherent grace and charm.

This young lady shares with Leon Tuck and John N. Watters the distinction of being the only Winchester athletes to appear in the great Olympics. Tuck, a former Dartmouth hockey captain, played upon the American hockey team at the Antwerp Olympics in 1920 while Watters, ex-Harvard middle distance runner, went abroad with the United States track and field group competing in 1924 at Paris. A former Winchester athlete, Irving Small, also competed with the American hockey team at St Moritz in connection with the games in '24.

Following her appearance in London Tuesday Maribel sailed Wednesday for home to resume her studies at the Girls' Latin School, Boston. Needless to state she will receive a royal welcome from her schoolmates.

HOUSE ON SHEFFIELD ROAD BROKEN INTO

Shortly after 9:30 last Sunday evening Patrolman John Regan and John E. Hanlon discovered that an attempt had been made to enter the home of Mr. John C. Meyer on Sheffield road. The police investigation was prompted by a telephone message received at Headquarters which stated that a man had been seen to run from some shrubbery in the yard of the Meyer residence and make his way along Church street. His description tallied with that of a man wanted in several surrounding cities and towns for breaking and entering.

Lieut. John Harrold dispatched Patrolmen Regan and Hanlon to the Meyer home where it was found that a small rear window in the house had been broken, by means of which access was gained to the kitchen. The police are of the opinion that the marauder was frightened away before he was able to steal anything, since a check-up disclosed nothing missing from the house. The Meyer family had left Winchester Sunday morning to be absent from town for three months.

THOMAS F. FALLON NEW EXALTED RULER OF ELKS

One of the largest gatherings of the year was present Tuesday evening when Winchester Lodge, 1445, B. P. O. E., held its annual meeting and election of officers in Lyceum Hall. Exalted Ruler George H. Lochman presided and the balloting resulted in the following officers being elected to serve the lodge for the ensuing year:

Exalted Ruler Thomas F. Fallon.
Esteemed Leading Knight Bernard F. Culien.
Esteemed Loyal Knight John D. Donaghy.
Esteemed Lecturing Knight Charles A. Farrar.
Secretary Dr. James H. O'Connor.
Treasurer John D. Coakley.
Tiler Andrew P. Harrold.
Trustee for 3 Years Fred D. Clement.
Delegate to Grand Lodge George H. Lochman.
Alternate Delegate Fred H. Scholl.

The elected officers will be installed at the first meeting to be held in April the date being Tuesday, April 3.

REPRESENTATIVE ELIOT WADSWORTH
To Speak in Winchester Under Auspices of Women Voters' League

WHO WILL BE THE NEXT PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES?

On Tuesday evening, March 13, at 8 o'clock, at a citizen's meeting in the Town Hall, Representative Eliot Wadsworth of Boston, Republican, and Senator William I. Hennessey of Dorchester, Democrat, will discuss "Presidential Possibilities" of the respective parties.

Eliot Wadsworth, former Assistant Secretary of the U. S. Treasury, was operating head of the American Red Cross during the World War, Chairman of the Boston Celebration last summer in honor of Colonel Lindbergh, and is now Chairman of the Boston Sinking Fund Commission. He was elected a Representative to the Massachusetts Legislature in 1926. Representative Wadsworth, with such a background is considered one of the best informed men in his party; he is a convincing speaker, and will have much to offer on Republican Presidential calibre.

William I. NOTES FROM WINCHESTER RED CROSS

Thank goodness no major calamities are inflicting their miseries upon us locally. Our Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross is continuing it's regular work. Medicine has been provided for many who are in need, and in some instances money has been loaned or given. There is nothing institutional about the service we are rendering. Every case brought to our attention is investigated by a member who knows nothing whatever about so-called "statistical charity", but who does realize the importance of getting the truth quickly and of supplying human needs just as quickly. If it were not for our rule which prevents us from giving publicity in detail to the work we are doing here in Winchester, some mighty interesting stories might be told to the readers of the Star.

Great work is still being done by the Red Cross in the Mississippi Valley flood area. In January the organization was feeding 20,271 persons. In its fight to prevent disease in those afflicted states, the Red Cross expended $600,000 in supplies and in providing personnel. Seven thousand homes were screened, 410,000 persons given typhoid inoculations, and 121,000 persons were given small-pox vaccine. The Red Cross supplied 329 nurses. Reconstruction aid was given to 565,000 persons. The total relief fund amounted to $17,517,684.92.

Of course, Florida is a long way from Winchester. Possibly we'll never have any hurricane here. Few of us in New England, however, as we read the reports of the Mississippi flood, entertained for a moment the idea that it was possible for us to have a flood such as that which created so much misery in Vermont and New Hampshire. Should we people of Winchester be overtaken by any great disaster, though, there is comfort for us in the thought that what was done in Florida by the Red Cross may be done for us by that same organization. Immediately after the Florida hurricane 317 experienced social workers were sent into the stricken territory. Emergency hospitals were established. Tent colonies were created to house 15,000 homeless individuals. Foodstuffs and medicines were rushed into the stricken area. The American Red Cross spent over $4,000,000 in helping the people of Florida.

It Does

In a lesson in parsing a sentence, the word "courting" came to a young miss of fourteen to parse. She commenced hesitatingly, but got on well enough until she had to tell what it agrees with. Here she stopped short. But as the teacher said, "Very well; what does courting agree with?" Ellen blushed and held down her head.

"Ellen, don't you know what courting agrees with?"

"Ye-ye-yes ma'am."

"Well, Ellen, why don't you parse that word? What does it agree with?"

Blushing still more and stammering, Ellen at last replied, "It agrees with all the girls, ma'am."

RUANDA: FOOTBALL AMONG AFRICAN MANDATES

Ruanda, which might be called the little Ethiopia of Africa, is settling down largely under native control after having been the football of African mandates. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society tells of this seldom visited kingdom on the "roof of Africa".

Ruanda may be considered a small edition of Ethiopia, or Abyssinia, says the bulletin, because next to the regent of that country its ruler is probably the most powerful native chief on the Black Continent. The country formed the westernmost and inmost tip of Germany's vast territorial holdings in East Africa. This extensive former German region has come to be called Tanganyika Territory since the World War.

On Isolated Plateau

Ruanda, before the advent of European influence, was an isolated plateau region, densely populated by a people of a single language. There was little contact with peoples of the surrounding plains, and Ruanda was even exempt from the raids of Arabian slavers who harried the lands closer to the coast. As a result Ruanda became a strong and self-sufficient kingdom.

The Germans permitted the King or Mwami to continue his rule. During the World War the territory from Lake Victoria west to the Congo, including Ruanda, fell under Belgian control. Later Belgium was given a formal mandate for this territory, while Great Britain received under mandate the remainder of the nearby former German holdings. Still later Belgium, to co-operate in affording Great Britain protection for the proposed Cape to Cairo Railway, ceded to Great Britain a strip of the mandated territory lying west of Lake Victoria. This took in a portion of Ruanda, including important grazing lands. Because of the protest raised by the Ruandans over the partitioning of their territory, a final readjustment was made whereby the British corridor was narrowed, western sections being receded to Belgium.

Cooking Place of God

Today the greater part of Ruanda — some 18,000 square miles — forms a Belgian mandate, but there are small areas of the old kingdom both in the British mandate of Tanganyika and in the British Protectorate of Uganda. The population in the Belgian mandate is estimated to be between two and three millions.

The most active of Africa's volcanic regions is included in Ruanda; the Birunga or Mufumbiro range, whose picturesque name in the native tongue means "cooking place of God". Several of the peaks reach an altitude of 11,000 feet. Some of the streams originating in these mountains flow into the Nile drainage system, while others drain into Lake Kivu and so contribute their waters to the westward-flowing Congo.

Gorilla Sanctuary

The Ruanda plateau is one of Africa's best cattle countries. The highest of the three castes among the Ruandans are the cattle raisers. Below them are the agriculturists and still farther down the scale, the pygmies who live in the forests, chiefly by hunting.

The King is greatly helped in his way over his people by his state religion. By its tenets he is the earthly representative of the chief diety, Muhavura, one of the large volcanoes, is the sacred mountain, and plays an important part in the religious myths.

On the mountain slopes of Ruanda the huge gorilla, largest of the ape family, will probably make his last stand. The Belgian Government has created a gorilla preserve there, a protective measure that has not been taken in the few areas where the rare beasts live.

Moving Picture Idea Ascribed to Chinese

Edison once is said that most of his inventions are the development of the ideas of some one who has preceded him, and now some one comes forth with the statement that the real origin of the moving picture dates back to China 2,000 years ago. The Chinese in 200 B. C. had their equivalent of our "pictures" in their "shadow shows." They made figures of wax, exquisitely modeled and dressed, a few inches in height and flung the shadows from these on buffalo skin rendered transparent. Moving pictures thrown on a screen.

A set can be seen in the Science museum, South Kensington, England. It forms part of an interesting collection of "cinema relics" gathered together by W. Day and loaned by him to the museum. These relics tell the tale in full of motion-picture development.

One European People Was Napoleon's Dream

In all the six years of his captivity, he does not seem, even once, to have sung the praises of General Bonaparte, if he is summing up what he achieved, he says:

"My fame does not rest upon my 40 victorious battles, nor does it lie in the fact that I bent the monarchs to my will. Waterloo will wipe out the memory of so many victories; the last act makes one forget the first. What will never pass away is my book of laws, minutes of my council of state, my correspondence with my ministers. . .

Through its simplicity my code of laws had more effect than any civil codes before it; the schools I have kept up, my methods of instruction, are creating a new generation; crime decreased during my rule, whereas in England crime has become more prevalent. . . . I wanted to found a European system, a European code of laws, a European court of appeal; there would have been but one people throughout Europe."—From Emil Ludwig's "Napoleon."

HIDDEN CITY OF PETRA MAY HAVE KNOWN MOSES

Discoveries which have led some archeologists to accept the view that the hidden city of Petra, near the Dead Sea, is the real "Mount Sinai" from which Moses obtained his laws, gives that mysterious and unique city a new interest. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society tells of Petra and its unusual site.

Petra is like a fairy city hidden in mountain, says the bulletin. It is as though a huge peak had been disemboweled and the ancient city set down in the chasm.

Enter Through Canyon

The old entrance to the city, which was an important factor in its strength, can be used today. From a semi-desert plain one enters a narrow canyon which is a mere cleft in towering walls of red sandstone. Along the bottom of this canyon a little stream flows. The high, jagged walls, at many places overhanging, give the passage a gloom even at midday. At one point the floor of the canyon narrows to 12 feet, and at no place is it wider than 40 feet.

After one has followed this tortuous chasm for two miles he comes out unexpectedly into an open plain, approximately a mile across, entirely surrounded by sheer cliffs and precipitous slopes. Through the center winds the little stream, a municipal water supply ages ago. On the level ground on each side of the stream rose the ancient city.

"Buildings" Carved from Cliffs

Nearly all traces of the ancient structures that rose on the plain have disappeared. But against the cliff walls remains a unique, and almost imperishable Petra. One-piece buildings have been carved out of the solid sandstone and are almost as well preserved today as when the chisels of their creators were laid down.

One of the most striking of these creations is the so-called "Treasury of Pharaoh", a product of the Greek period several centuries before Christ. The front of the edifice stands in deep relief, its pillars, capitals, pediment, and superstructure intact. A doorway leads into the cliff from which rooms were hollowed.

Another carved masterpiece is the rock-hewn Greek theater that seated some 5000 spectators. Temples also are carved in the cliffs; but the most numerous of the monuments are tombs. Thousands of them look down on the Petra plain, many showing the most elaborate and exquisite carving.

Was Ancient Distributing Center

Petra has been called by poets the "rose-red city half as old as time. Its deeply colored walls—rose, purple, yellow, crimson—are indeed beautiful; and the skillful use of the colored strata in the carvings shows that the Petra artists made the most of the aesthetic possibilities. But Petra did not exist for beauty alone. If it had possessed a chamber of commerce in its heyday of importance, that organization could have boasted truthfully that Petra was "the world's premier distributing center" and that its weekly "bank clearing" ran into many hundreds of talents.

The city was the Suez and Panama of its day, a meeting place for the chief trade routes. Incense, spices, and other treasures of the East came from India, Persia, and farther Arabia to this "safety deposit city" of the desert. From there goods were distributed to Egypt, Palestine, and Syria, and through Tyre and Sidon to the Mediterranean countries to the west. An important special traffic of the city was the furnishing of Dead Sea bitumen to the embalmers of Egypt.

How far Petra reaches back into antiquity is not known, but its history is at least known stretching from about 600 B. C. It is now suggested that the more ancient town may have served as a distributing center for the religious ideas of the East as its successor served for rewarding Eastern goods.

Bottled Sunshine

That sunshine may be bottled and sent to any part of the world is a scientific possibility according to a report recently read before the Association of German Chemists in Berlin The Germans believe that by means of huge sun engines along the Nile, water can be converted into hydrogen, which can be transported to colder regions of the world in quartz bottles and later burned for light and heat.

Great Wall of China

Few people realize what an almost perfect condition prevails along a large part of the great wall of China. The bricks of the parapet are as firm as ever, and their edges have stood the severe climate of north China with scarcely a break. The paving along the top of the wall is so smooth that one may ride over it with a bicycle, and the great granite blocks with which it is faced are as smooth and as closely fitted as when put in place over 2,000 years ago. The entire length of this wall is 1,400 miles; it is 22 feet high and 20 feet in thickness. At intervals of 100 yards or so there are towers some 40 feet in height.

Priceless Relics in Old Turkish Capital

Not the least remarkable of the treasures shown in the old Sultan palace in Constantinople is a jeweled reliquary containing a reputed portion of the skull of St. John Baptist, a gold reliquary in the form of a forearm and hand, containing his reputed hand, and three swords with inscriptions on their blades, which make it probable that they belonged to the last Emperor Constantine, who fell at the capture of the city in 1453.

Artistically, the supreme treasures are the sword of Suleiman the Great and the Sixteenth century case for the mantle of the prophet. The former object has a hilt of ivory overlaid with a delicate gold filigree, and the blade is inlaid with gold inscription and an exquisite flower pattern in gold, while on the hilt, just below the hilt, are two curious figures in relief, a dragon facing a mythological bird. The golden case for the prophet's mantle is an unexcelled example of goldsmith's work, with its incised design and colored stones [illegible].

There are jeweled swords, whisks, girdles, pipestems, inkstands and vessels galore. Those are of a [illegible] whose sumptuousness is staggering, [illegible] there are tables also whose rare beauty takes the breath away. Chicago Journal.

VON ROSENVINGE—WORCESTER

A largely attended ceremony in the Unitarian Church marked the wedding last Saturday evening of Miss Mary Jarvie Worcester, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Worcester of 111 Church street and Theodore von Rosenvinge, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Theodore von Rosenvinge of 88 Church street. Rev. George Hale Reed, minister of the church, was the officiating clergyman. The auditorium was attractively decorated with Easter lillies and palms.

The bride wore a wedding gown of Chantilly lace with veil of tulle which was trimmed with rose point lace and caught up with orange blossoms. Her bouquet was of lillies of the valley and white roses.

Miss Ruth Shultis of Winchester was the bride's honor attendant. Her gown was of orchid taffeta and she carried yellow roses and freesias. The bridesmaids, Miss Katherine Kimball and Miss Marcia Stickney of Belmont, ~~Miss~~ Florence Jones of St. Louis, Miss Priscilla Wentworth of Watertown, Miss Marjorie Blackman of Cambridge and Miss Marcia Stevens of North Weymouth, wore frocks of pink taffeta and carried sweet peas and yellow freesias.

Mr. von Rosenvinge had for his best man Wesley Pear of Cambridge and the ushers were Alfred Eames of Boston, Philip Crocket of New York, Frank King of Belmont, and Henry E. Worcester Jr., Melvin von Rosenvinge, Norman von Rosenvinge and Frederick M. Ives Jr., all of Winchester.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. von Rosenvinge are to make their heme in Cambridge.

MOVE BODIES OF THOMAS W. LAWSON AND WIFE FROM MAUSOLEUM

Arnold Lawson, son of the late Thomas W. Lawson, Boston financier, and former resident of Winchester, announced last Saturday that the bodies of his father and mother had been removed to Fairview Cemetery from the costly mausoleum on the old Lawson estate in Scituate. He said that in view of the fact that the estate had been cut up, and part of it was now occupied by an inn, he believed it more suitable that the bodies should be taken to a more secluded place.

The one-time spectacular figure in the stock market built the mausoleum in 1906 as a tribute to his wife. On a huge marble slab surmounting it was the word "Sweetheart".

BELL AT UNITARIAN CHURCH TO BE RECAST

The hour bell of the chime at the Unitarian Church was removed from the belfry Wednesday afternoon and shipped to the foundry at Watervliet, N. Y., to be recast. The big bell, while striking at a recent church service, gave out a most unpleasant note and an investigation disclosed a three-inch crack in the circumference where the tolling hammer struck.

Such breaks are unusual, the E. Howard Clock Company of Boston from whom the chimes were purchased stating that nothing of the kind had happened to their bells under similar conditions for the past 25 years. It is not out of the ordinary to have a bell split during the course of a fire, but no apparent cause could be discovered for the crack in the local bell.

The chimes of which the broken bell is one were given to the Unitarian Church in 1924 by Mr. Jere Downes and his sister, Miss Elizabeth Downes, in memory of their mother. They are of bell metal, a copper and tin alloy, 77 parts copper to 23 parts East India tin. Cast in the foundry of the E. Howard Clock Company at Watervliet, N. Y., a foundry of 100 years' experience, the chimes have been highly commended for their beautiful tonal qualities. While the cracked bell is at the foundry to be recast it will also be retuned and put in perfect condition. It is hoped that it will be returned to Winchester before Easter.

The Emerson-Mason Corporation announce the opening of sales distributing offices for the Petro oil burner at 834 Commonwealth avenue, Boston. This firm has recently acquired the distributing franchise for the Petro burner from the Petroleum Heat & Power Company and are combining their offices with them on Commonwealth avenue.

Scott Emerson, 16 Lawson road, is president of this concern, as well as of Emerson & Mason, Inc., who are the distributors of Frigidaire electric refrigeration in Southeastern Massachusetts. Associated with Mr. Emerson is T. B. Mason who is well known in Winchester. Mrs. Mason was formerly Dorothy Hammond of Hancock street. Mr. Leroy Jordan, formerly of Winchester and R. H. Hooper of Foxcroft road are associated in the refrigeration division. Mr. Douglas Martin of Church street and E. J. O'Melia, formerly of Loring avenue are associated in the oil burning division.

The Petro burner is a product of the Petroleum Heat & Power Company who have been specialists for 25 years in the oil burner field and in the opinion of the firm, after lengthy investigation, is believed to be the finest and most dependable on the market.

THURSDAY EVENING MUSICALE

The fourth and last of the evening musicales held under the auspices of the Ladies' Friendly Society of the Unitarian Church took place on Thursday March 1, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. Alexander of Lakeview road. The artist was Leon Tumarkin, a young Russian-American pianist, whose name is familiar to the musical people of Winchester. He presented the following program:

Rondo Expressivo	P. E. Bach
Capriccio	Scarlatti
Variations Serieuses	Mendelssohn
Ballade G Minor
Two Preludes F Sharp Minor, B-Flat Minor	Chopin
Two Etudes C Sharp Minor Op. 25, G Sharp Minor	Chopin
Polonaise A-Flat Major	Chopin
Triana	Albeniz
Intermezzo	Brahms
Paganini Stude	Paganini-Liszt

Mr. Tumarkin's playing is distinguished by poetic feeling and colored by the ardor and intensity of his temperament. The high degree of technical proficiency that he has acquired as a pupil of Alexander Siloti is nothing short of astounding in such works as the Paganini-Liszt Etude, but it is always used as a vehicle of expression of the deeper meaning of the music. The Chopin group was to many the most enjoyable part of the program, and in it he most truly voiced the spirit of the composer. An enthusiastic audience re-called Mr. Tumarkin many times, and he played as encores an etude by Scriabin and "The Lark" by Glinka, arranged by Liszt.

FORMER WADLEIGH PRINCIPAL DEAD AT LYNN

Many in Winchester will learn with regret of the death last Friday night in Lynn of Arthur P. Briggs, formerly principal of the Wadleigh Grammar School and for the past 18 years occupying a similar post in the Shepard Grammar School at Lynn. His death was caused by apoplexy.

Mr. Briggs was 52 years of age and was born at Mansfield. He received his early education in the public schools of New Boston, N. H., and Dighton, entering Bristol Academy, Taunton, in 1890. He worked his way through Brown University, graduating with the degree of A. B. in 1894. His first teaching was done at North Dighton where as principal of the grammar school he received a weekly salary of $12 which was augmented by $3, paid for serving also as janitor.

In later years Mr. Briggs was in charge of schools at Cumberland, R. I., and South Natick before coming to Winchester where he served for several years as principal of the Wadleigh School, being succeeded by the late Joseph H. Heffion. He left Winchester in 1909 to assume the superintendency of the combined schools of Chelmsford, Carlisle and Dunstable. A year later he went to Lynn to become principal of the Shepard School in which position he continued until his death. His home in Lynn was at 119 Bellevue road.

PARIS AGAIN IN ARLINGTON AT LOCATELLI'S CAPITOL THEATRE

Entire Week of March 12

Well, well, here is spring just around the corner—and what to wear in the Easter parade will soon be uppermost in the thoughts of the feminine mind. But no need to ponder on your apparel problems for Fredley's Fashion Show is here.

Promenading before your admiring eyes will saunter one mannequin after another, displaying in a truly Parisiene manner the last word in style development. It will be very exciting and thrilling to see these new clothes—to realize that many of them are as yet not even being worn in Paris, but are just being finished there as you are viewing them here at the Capitol Theatre.

This style show is a marvelous collection of all these new style ideas, all brought together here for your entertainment. Ensembles, sport outfits, beautiful afternoon and evening dresses, and evening gowns that will make you hold your breath with their sheer beauty. In addition to this Fashion Show, a complete orchestra together with a number of clever vaudeville acts round out a program that for variety and quality will be hard to equal.

The photoplays during this Fashion Show for Monday to Wednesday are "The Valley of Giants" and "Two Flaming Youths". Thursday to Saturday, "The Spotlight" and "The 13th Hour".

Log-Rolling

Suppose you are a prominent author. If you can get another prominent author to say something nice about your next book (which he may not read) is it not perfectly proper for you to say something nice about his next book? Thus a publisher will throw a book to the lions; that is, he will send advance copies to the lions and each lion will roar a little about it. The roars of all these lions will be compacted in an advertising campaign, the whole affair being concocted before the book is out. There is nothing seemingly wrong about this. Of course each lion will naturally expect to have some roaring done for him later by the author of the book.—Thomas L. M[illegible] in Patches Magazine.

Plenty of Ignorance

The uneducated have to pass through life with crippled powers, they have not a fair chance of contending in that struggle for existence upon which all have to embark who are obliged to earn their own livelihood. Few, if any, industrial operations are so entirely mechanical that a man will perform them equally well whether his mental powers have been developed or have been permitted to remain dormant. Ignorance takes away a considerable part of the power of a man to acquire the means of living.—Henry Fawcett.

SOME CURIOUS WAYS THE WORLD PRAYS

Occasional revision of the prayer books of Western churches is a reminder to the geographer of curious prayer customs that prevail in certain other parts of the world, according to a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

Central Asia and Tibet have been called the "Land of Mechanical Prayers". Wherever the natives congregate, there is a constant muttering "Om Mani Padme Hum (O Jewel in the Lotus) while numerous contrivances bearing the same prayer are in use, supplementing the vocal petitions.

Prayers by Wind and Water Power

The praying wheel has long been a favorite apparatus among Buddhists of these regions. In the villages and along the highways, the faithful carry the hand model of the wheel consisting of a revolving cylinler with a mallet-like handle. As the holder walks or rides he spins the cylinder upon which the prayer is written hundreds of times. Each revolution of each prayer is an individual prayer. In this way thousands of prayers can be said in a minute.

The larger wheels, some of which are six feet high and from 10 to 12 feet in circumference, are placed under shelters along trails to sacred places, and in the temples. When a pilgrim passes the wheel he gives it a vigorous spin.

There are lazy Buddhists as well as lazy members of other religious sects. Sometimes the owner of a plot of ground where there is a stream will set up a water-propelled prayer wheel. The pole to which the prayer wheel or cylinder is attached is stuck through a hole in a board which rests on the banks. Then a sort of mill wheel is attached to the bottom of the pole so that the water of the stream revolves the pole and cylinder, constantly grinding out prayers. Often the traveler sees a public wheel or two, bridging or beside a stream which resembles, at first glance, a small rural grain mill of this country.

Prayers by the Piles

In the land of the Nashi near the Tibetan border the natives, in bright red cloaks, journey to their sacred places, pounding drums and ringing bells. The difficult trails are lined here and there with prayer pyramids or piles of rocks of various heights.

Prayer flags also play an important part in the religious life of the Nashi people. Nearly every village has a prayer flag pole which is seldom without a fluttering piece of cloth or hide. Each flag bears at least one prayer and each flutter is equivalent to a word of mouth petition of the villagers. The devout Buddhist often ties hundreds of these flags to a rope which he strings across an open space where the wind will strike them and shower merit upon him.

Moslems Use Prayer Bricks

The Moslems are more conservative than their Buddhist neighbors. Prayer rugs, some of which are beautifully designed and colored, are important prayer accessories. Wherever the Moslem may be, in the shop, or in the street, at prayer time he spreads out his carpet, removes his shoes and facing Mecca, goes through the formula of Moslem prayer postures. First he holds both hands before his face with palms upwards, then bending at the hips he places his hands on his thighs. His next move is to kneel without moving his hands and from this kneeling posture he leans forward, touching the palms of his hands and his forehead to the ground.

Some sects of the Moslems use prayer bricks as a part of their prayer paraphernalia. They are cakes of baked clay from Mecca, Medina or some other sacred place. They are placed so that the head of the praying Moslem will touch them instead of the ground. If he loses his prayer bricks, a piece of green paper or leaves of any plant that does not grow fruit will answer the purpose.

Siamese Pray by Rockets

The prayer rocket of the natives of northern Siam bears a crude resemblance to our "Fourth of July" rocket. When the barrel is filled with powder, the rocket is placed upon a lofty platform and fired during religious rites. The natives are brave people but they dread the spirits of their dead. The rocket is used to scare off the evil ones.

When Kei islanders go off to war, the women of the tribe place baskets of stone and fruit on a board while they pray that the bullets of the enemies will rebound from their husbands and brothers as rain drops would rebound from their offerings if the latter were smeared with oil. Natives of the Celebes kill a rooster and a pig and, placing them side by side, pray "O gods above and gods below, if you have pity on us and will that we eat, give us rain". In Malay the rice growers must take a pint of rice to the mosque when prayers are to be said for the success of the rice crop.

Some of the Nebraska Indians used prayer pipes. Instead of repeating the Indian prayer, the tribesmen sought a quiet place where they smoked their prayer pipes which accorded them equal merit to spoken words. Some tribes would put soft clay on their faces before seeking a place to pray.

Insect Types

Modern entomologists, says Hygeia Magazine, are now classifying insects according to the same types as those used for classification of human beings. The asthenic individual with the lean and hungry look may be found among [illegible]. The chunky, rounded "pyknic" type is found among beetles, bugs and moths, while grasshoppers, mosquitoes, walking sticks and dragon flies are "asthenic." The intermediate types dominate among these creatures as among humans, and this group is designated as "athletic."

Why not see the World's Greatest Sporting Classic the "GRAND NATIONAL" at Liverpool, in March?

The Race

The Grand National Steeplechase is the most exciting, valuable and brilliant steeplechase run in the world. It is to steeplechasing what the Derby is to flat racing—only it is socially much more important—more thoroughbred,—in that way more like Ascot—or the Prix des Drags . . . . . It marks the end—and the climax—of the steeplechasing season . . . . . The race is run on the last Friday in March over a course of a little over four miles, at Aintree—just outside Liverpool. . . .

The Purse

THE PURSE is 5000 pounds . . . and the Grand National Trophy—a cup (now twice won by American horses—Stephen Sanford's Sergeant Murphy in 1924; A. C. Schwartz's Jack Horner in 1926).

The Jumps

THE JUMPS are usually described as "hair-raising" . . . The hedges are high, wide and firm—no brushing through at "Becher's Brook", or "Valentine's" . . . . . A horse and his rider can stand—have stood! on top; and the hedge did not give . . . . It is the thing to "walk the course" at noon—to inspect the jumps before the race, which comes off in the early afternoon. The course is so stiff that, last year, of a field of 38, only seven horses finished. And it is said that no horse younger than a ten-year-old has ever won it . . . . Last year's winner was Sprig—owned by Mrs. Mary F. M. Partridge, of Exmouth . .

The Spectators

THE SPECTATORS, (in the County Stand) are the most brilliant of the international year, including Royalty which always stops at "Knowsley" with the Earl and Countess of Derby . . . .

In England! all the hunting, polo and racing "sets" go, as a matter of course—(which means most of Burke, and De Brett) . . . and so does everyone else, who is anybody! . . . And from France and American come people who are either very keen followers of the "turf" or excessively smart . . . . Altogether, it is an exceptionally distinguished and very characteristically English gathering . . . . And there is no denying that the place to be on the last Friday of any March is Aintree!

Where to Sit

The place to sit is of course—the "County Stand" from which you can see almost all the jumps, the start, and the finish . . . . This is the stand where "everyone" in the social sense—from the Royal Family down to "The County" has seats . . . so it may be extremely difficult—although correspondingly important! to get yours there. Then, of course, there is the "Canal Stand" at the Canal Turn (where most of the casualties occur).

Where to Stay

The Race Ball, part of the general program, takes place in Liverpool—almost everyone stays over for it. But at the time of the Grand National, only the forehanded or the [illegible] lucky get rooms in Liverpool at [illegible] Cunard Line offers excep[illegible]es . . . . Country homes, furnished, within reach . . . Or hotel accommodations in Liverpool at the Exchange Station Hotel or the North-Western, or on board the Caronia which has been held over for the Fox hunters' Steeplechase Saturday afternoon. If you stay in London a race "special" on the London, Midland and Scottish Railway leaves in the morning and returns that night . . . and of course many people motor up. If you are not taking your own car, you can hire a Rolls or a Daimlet—by the day—if you must!

What to Wear

DON'T mix the "Grand National" up with Ascot, or the French race-meetings, and think to wear elaborate Belmont-y clothes . . . . In the first place, March in England is a very cool proposition indeed—In the second place, it will probably rain . . . . And—anyway!—at Aintree, society just does wear sport-clothes—in the strictest sense. Very English. Marvelously good-looking. Harris Tweeds, Chanel Jerseys, Barberry's, felt hats, stout boots by Peel or McAfee . . . . All marvelously cut, and made . . . The shops of Bond Street and Hanover Squnre are busy turning out tailor-mades for weeks ahead of the race . . . .

DON'T forget an umbrella — preperably "composed" as a part of your costume. Don't wear rubbers or a slicker unless you expect to be an object of public scrutiny. And, above all things, don't look "slick" if you're a man—or "feminine" if you're a woman. Save your Louise Boulanger and Lanvin gowns for the GOLD CUP DAY at Ascot, and go tailored, business-like, and weather proof — to Aintree!

AMASSING A FORTUNE

There once was a printer who started some years ago as poor as a church mouse.

He worked hard, personally supervising all his business, attending all salesmen's conventions, interviewing all buyers, rising early every morning to make long journeys and sitting up most of the night writing up his orders and planning extensions to his business.

And when he got a little job, even though it was worth two or three dollars, he would send for at least ten salesmen from different firms and interview them in due course to be sure he had the lowest price.

He has now retired, worth a comfortable fortune of $250,000. This money was acquired through industry, economy, conscientious effort to give full value, indomitable perseverance and the death of an uncle who left him $249,999.99.

WOODMAN SPARE THAT TREE

To the Editor of the Star:

At the next session of the annual Town Meeting the electorate will be called upon to decide the fate of one of the most magnificent trees in Massachusetts—namely the gigantic, gorgeous and marvelous elm tree on Church street; a tree that was most likely well developed when George Washington assumed command of the American forces under the branches of the famous elm tree that the inhabitants of Cambridge, did their utmost to preserve. It certainly is pathetic to think that some of our residents suggest the removal of this one of the most beautiful trees in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

Your humble servant is familiar with some elm trees in Winchester that were planted in 1801. Not one of them compare in size, symetry or beauty with the elm tree on Church street.

Now Mr. Editor, when Church street was widened, the tree at that time was adjacent to the sidewalks. Some folks believed the tree should be removed. At that time a larger number of folks believed the tree should remain in the natural place that nature provided for it. When the street railway was under construction some folks asserted now is the opportune time to remove the tree. They chopped and hammered at the roots, but fortunately they did not injure the main tap root; hence the tree still survives. Surely every kindergarten pupil remembers the agitation manifested a few years past in regard to the removal of the elm tree? After some discussion at Town Meeting we decided not to remove the tree.

It seems to me Mr. Editor that some folks desire to remove the tree simply because "Henry made a lady out of Lizzy"—and remember, if we remove the tree there will be room for only one lady.

Some folks believe the tree is a menace. I do not subscribe to their views because I believe the tree is a valuable asset, inasmuch as it acts as a signal and has a tendency to slow down automobiles at that point where there is a group of stores, a hall that is used for entertainments, etc., the Winchester Trust Company, a real estate office, several physicians who reside in that immediate vicinity and the church on the hill with an entrance is not far away from the tree.

I for one shall try to follow in the footsteps of the pioneers who preserved the tree and were instrumental in the construction of our wonderful reservoirs, beautiful bridges and magnificent park system and I shall certainly vote to let nature take its course with the gigantic elm.

Perhaps I will say a few words in regard to the elm tree at the next session of the Town Meeting if there is no objection.

Very truly yours,
Patrick H. Craughwell

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

Regular meeting of the W. C. T. U. will be held in the parlors of the First Congregational Parish House on Friday, March 16 at 2:30 p. m. As this meeting is under the department of co-operation of temperance and missions, the various missionary societies of the Town have been invited to send representatives. Miss Carolyn D. Smiley who for years was a missionary in India will be the speaker. Subject: "Temperance and Missions in India".

Nominating time is approaching and the wets are trying to fool the drys into voting for a wet because evidently there are not enough wet votes in the country to elect a president. One of their tricks is the spread of falacious propaganda that it takes more than a mere president to change the prohibition laws or weaken the 18th amendment. "A president" they say, "can only enforce the laws, not change them". If so why are the wets so dead set on placing a wet in the White House?

We know they want a wet president because of the enormous advantage they will have in the kind of men he will appoint to office. He could appoint to the next vacancies on the Supreme Court Jurists who could undo the strong support given to the 18th amendment by the Court in the past eight years. Whether prohibition will stay depends in large measure on the interpretation of the courts a fact clearly stated by Assistant Attorney General Mabel Walker Willebrandt at the Washington Conference of the National W. C. T. U. It is almost literally true to say that every wet argument against prohibition has been answered by the Supreme Court, as constituted at present, in its decisions; and if the public were not ignorant of this the wet propaganda would not get so far. Justices of this court have been appointed for life and may retire at the age of 70. It is to be expected there will be vacancies on that high bench in the next administration. That is one reason why the wets want to elect the next president; they want a man whose views are all against prohibition; a man who favors liquor. The public expects such a man to appoint to courts and other offices men of his own views.

Free Speech Invaluable

Without free speech no search for truth is possible; without free speech no discovery of truth is useful; without free speech progress is checked and the nations no longer march forward toward the nobler life which the future holds for man. Better a thousandfold abuse of free speech than denial of free speech. The abuse dies in a day, but the denial slays the life of the people and entombs the hope of the race.—Charles Bradlaugh.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Night Life," with Johnny Harron, Alice Day and Eddie Cribbon as the stars, is the screen attraction the Granada Theater in Malden is offering the last three days of this week. The story as unfolded on the silver sheet, tells in highly dramatic and deft touches of a young sleight-of-hand performer in a Vienna beer garden who earns his livelihood by keeping the audience mystified and is ably assisted by a partner. Paul Remos and his wonderful midgets, a European novelty act, heads the five act bill of vaudeville now being presented at the Granada. Remos assistants are three midgets of wonderful muscular development. There is not another act like it in the world.

One of the most sensationally selling books in all history has been made into a motion picture comedy which will be shown at the Granada Theater starting next Monday. It is "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes", Anita Loos' classic of satire, which has been transcribed to the screen under the direction of Malcom St. Clair. A cast of comedy favorites including Ruth Taylor, Alice White, Ford Sterling, Trixie Friganza and Chester Conklin interpret the characters of the famous Loos book. Never in the history of American literature, book publishers say, has a book swept the country like "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes". The sales are already over half a million copies with orders still pouring in. The regular five act program of vaudeville will also be offered the first half of next week.

WHY THE MOON RAISES HIGHER TIDES THAN THE SUN

Although the moon is the chief factor in creating tides, the sun also makes itself felt noticeably in piling up the ocean's waters, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

But the sun is tremendously greater than the moon—more than 27 million times as large. Why does it play a subordinate part to the little moon in tide production?

Distance is Chief Factor

Distance is one answer, but it is not the whole answer. If the sun were as close to the earth as the moon is it would pull the earth and its waters some 27 million times as hard as the moon does. But since distance is such a great reducer of gravitation the sun's pull on the earth is roughly only 183 times that of the moon.

But the question persists: Why does the moon produce the higher tides when the sun pulls on the earth 183 times as strongly?

The total pull of a body on another, and its tide-producing force are not the same. The tide on the earth results from the difference between the pulls on the center of the earth and on the near and far sides. These are the pulls that tend to separate the waters and the earth, and therefore to pile the waters up. And it will be seen on close thought that two weak forces that are considerably different, operating one on the earth and one on the waters, can cause a greater separation than two very strong forces that are nearly equal.

Light and gravitation act somewhat alike in that each grows weaker as the source of light or gravitational pull is moved farther and farther away, and that both grow weaker very rapidly—in proportion to the distance of the source multiplied by itself. The differences in gravitational pull on which tides depend, can be visualized, therefore, by an experiment with light.

Light Shows How Gravity Diminishes

Turn on an electric desk light or other single bulb and hold near it a sheet of ordinary white paper. Hold the paper with one edge toward the light and only two or three inches away and turn it very slightly so that the light shines along the sheet and illuminates its whole surface. There will be a noticeable difference between the brightness of the light at a point near the close edge and at a point near the far edge.

Now hold the paper in the same way at a distance of 10 or 12 feet from an even brighter light, or hold it in the daytime at such a distance from a bright window. You know that there is still a difference in the degree of illumination of the two sides, but it is so very tiny that you can not detect it.

The two points on which the sun pulls to make the near tide—the surface of the ocean nearest the moon and the earth's center—are 4000 miles apart, and this 4000 miles is a tiny fraction of the earth-sun distance, a little over four-one-hundred-thousandths. In the case of the moon this same 4000 miles is a relatively large fraction of the earth-moon distance—1666 one-hundred-thousands.

When all the values for distance and mass are inserted in the rather formidable equations for the pulls of the moon at the center of the earth and at the surface, and for the pulls of the sun at those points, it works out that the difference in the moon's pulls are roughly two-and-a-quarter times the difference in the sun's pulls. The moon therefore, exerts two-and-a-quarter times the tide producing power exerted by the sun.

What Makes Highest Tides

Most of the time the sun and moon are pulling in different directions. But twice each month they pull in the same line. It is then that our coasts have their highest tides.

Theoretically, every star and planet and satellite in the universe raises its separate tide in our oceans. Actually, however, even Jupiter, the greatest of our sister planets, is so far away and relatively so small, that its influence cannot be detected. To all intents, therefore, it may be said only the moon and the sun, our nearest and our most powerful neighbors in space, have a share in making the earth's tides.

ABBIE M. SYMONDS

Abbie M. Symonds, aged [illegible], widow of William F. Symonds, passed away Sunday shortly after noon at the home on Myrtle terrace of her daughter, Mrs. Harry E. Gardner, following a week's illness with pneumonia.

Mrs. Symonds was born at Hancock, N. H., the daughter of Elijah and Mary (Hills) Washburn. Nearly her entire life was spent in Hancock, though as a young woman she studied music for a time in Boston. She came from Worcester to make her home with her daughter in Winchester five years ago. Besides Mrs. Gardner she is survived by a son, Henry Symonds of Newton.

Funeral services were held from the Gardner home Tuesday afternoon and were conducted by the Rev. George Hale Reed, pastor of the Unitarian Church. Following the funeral the remains were taken to Hancock, N. H., where additional services were held and the interment took place on Wednesday.

DIED SUDDENLY OF HEART ATTACK

Robert C. Hagens, colored, a butler in the employ of Dr. Hunter Robb, died suddenly of a heart attack at 5:30 last Saturday afternoon in the kitchen of the Robb home on Bacon street. Mr. Hagens had been under the doctor's care for about a week previous to his death, but had stated that he was feeling unusually well on Saturday. He was leaving the kitchen to meet members of the Robb family who were returning from Boston when he was stricken. Dr. D. C. Dennett was immediately summoned but upon his arrival pronounced Hagens dead. The remains were taken in charge by the local undertaking firm of Kelley & Hawes and shipped Sunday evening to Washington, D. C., where funeral services were held on Wednesday.

Mr. Hagens was 39 years of age and a native of Atlanta, Ga. He had been employed by Doctor Robb as a butler for about 10 months, his wife serving as cook in the same household. Besides his widow, a [illegible], survives him. The deceased was widely known among the colored people of Washington, was a 32nd degree Mason and a member of the Shrine.

GOOD AT LAND SPORTS TOO

They're rather an all-round crowd at the Winchester Boat Club and while they specialize in water sports it is more than possible for members to take a highly successful flyer in indoor sports of the land variety when the opportunity presents itself. A case in point is the recent win of the men's Winter Bowling Tournament at the Calumet Club by the W. B. C. quintette, comprising "Ed" Sandberg, "Jocko" Hovey, "Win" Palmer, "Doc" Blanchard and "Pretzels" Pratt. The hard part of it for veteran Calumet rollers is that with the exception of "Doc" Blanchard the winning quintette is composed entirely of new members all having signed the Calumet register for the first time this fall. Give the boys a bit more practice in tournament rolling and there'll be no stopping them.

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The regeneration of an East Side boxer, through the travail of war and the love of a woman, is the graphic story of "The Patent Leather Kid" coming to the University Theatre for four days beginning Sunday. "The Patent Leather Kid" stars Richard Barthelmess, and is an ideal vehicle for the artistry of this young screen star whose work in "Tol'able David", "Broken Blossoms" and "Way Down East" will never be forgotten. In "The Patent Leather Kid" Barthelmess surpasses even his finest efforts in these former vehicles. It also offers a new screen star, Molly O'Day who plays opposite Barthelmess and who has proved a screen find by her clever work in this picture. The story is by Rupert Hughes. On the same program is "On African Game Trails" with Prince William of Sweden.

For the last three days of the week the program includes "The Cohens and Kellys in Paris", a roaring sequel to "The Cohens and Kellys" with Geo. Sidney and J. Farrel MacDonald and "The Gay Defender" with Richard Dix.

This Flaming Age

The sad plight of the wife of the editor of one of the sex magazines has been reported to us. The other night she said to him wistfully, "Henry, you never make love to me any more," to be put off with, "Darling, I don't like to talk shop at home."—The New Yorker.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

At our meeting this week we had the pleasure of entertaining many members of the Waltham Rotary Club. Evidently the Waltham Rotarians are a splendid body of men, and we are gratified that so many of them could visit us. These inter-club meetings afford wonderful opportunities for spreading the Rotarian spirit and we believe that they should come as frequently as circumstances will warrant. Our district is very compact and comprises many clubs. These clubs should and doubtless will become well acquainted with each other.

We listened to an address by Rev. Mr. Gray, pastor of the First Congregational Church at Woburn. We understand that Mr. Gray is about to become a member of the Woburn Rotary Club. He creates the impression that he will be a highly valued member of that club and we extend our congratulations both to Mr. Gray and the Woburn Rotary Club.

Mr. Gray's topic was, "The Rotarian—What Manner of Man Is He."

The speaker demonstrated that the Rotarian not only should have high ideals but should also live up to them—should make his ideals a part of his own self. It was a most convincing address and held the close attention of all.

It would seem that our attendance record was high this week. We believe that all of our members feel that they are "missing something" when absent. Don't forget that we are striving for a record this month. Doubtless you will feel well repaid for a bit of extra effort if that is needed. And besides all delinquents will have to tell it to Roscoe. We confidently expect you to be punctual at our March meetings. We thank you.

Trade Mark Protection

"[illegible] said that a person [illegible] field of endeavor already [illegible] another should, in the selection of a trade name or trade mark, keep far enough away to avoid all possible confusion. Whether there is an infringement of a trade mark does not depend upon the use of identical words, nor on the question as to whether they [illegible] so far that a [illegible] one would be deceived into the belief that it was the other. The courts incline to hold that infringement occurs if one adopts a trade name or a trade mark so like another in form, spelling or sound that a person with a not very definite or clear recollection as to the real trade mark is likely to become confused or misled."

Jewels in Profusion Decked Desert Queen

It is [illegible] generally known that the Sahara [illegible] has encroached hundreds of miles eastward during the centuries since the great days of Egyptian civilization, and has in consequence buried in sand many forgotten cities and centers of population. One often thinks of the treasure lying on the floor of the ocean, but the treasure buried under desert sands must also be incalculable.

A sensational discovery was made recently, not on the Egyptian side, where the sand almost succeeded in overwhelming the mighty Sphinx, but on the western side of the desert. The body of some ancient queen of the Sahara was found beneath the sand. On her arms were found eighteen bracelets, nine of gold and nine of silver; five necklaces of jewels were around her neck, and on her head was a diadem of gold starred with jewels.

There was much exquisitely carved furniture in the tomb, and near by were piles of jewels—emeralds, rubies, onyx, and so on. On the opposite side was found a superb statue of a woman carved in stone. The date of this tomb is placed at least a thousand years before the Christian era.

Wouldn't It?

It would be grand if, when a fellow was down and out, his creditors were forced to take neutral corners and wait until he had again gotten on his feet.—Louisville Times.

Fragrant Memories

[illegible]

Old Criticism of Dance

The dance craze was the object of almost as much criticism a century ago as it is today. This was shown by a book, yellowed with age, which was found recently in the walls of an old mansion demolished in Medford, Mass. Under the heading, "Dancing," the author, in 1831, wrote: "Nothing shows the national character, or thoughtlessness and gayety, more plainly than a strong and general propensity for dancing. A passion for this amusement affects persons in every grade of life. It might be supposed that those only would be disposed to engage in it whose spirits are continually elastic and buoyant, under the cheering smiles of prosperity and ease. But this is not the fact. The thoughtless and gay will often do it in order to suppress those movings of conscience which would lead them to a life of religion."

Ancient Cross Erected

One hundred years after its discovery, a Celtic cross more than one thousand years old was erected during a ceremony held recently in St. Patrick's church, Ballymena, Ireland. The cross was unearthed in 1827 while a ditch was being dug in the Kirconriola church yard, near Ballymena, and placed in the tower of the church, where it remained until 1879, when the church was burned. It was not until recently, and was found broken in three pieces in the cellar of Ballymena castle. The cross is of rough, hard limestone, 22 inches long and about 3 inches thick. The inscription was carved early in the Tenth century.

The Difference

An inspector paid a surprise visit to a village school. The teacher, who was of decidedly corpulent build, proceeded to question the children as follows:

"Now, children, tell me in what way I resemble a clock."

The response soon came. "Please, miss, you have a face." "You have hands," and so on.

Then came the question: "Tell me some ways in which I do not resemble a clock."

There was a long pause; then piped a small voice: "Please, miss, you have no spring."

All Right, If—

[illegible] are [illegible] to world peace. This would be reasonable if somebody would invent a contest which both sides could win.

Married in the Cemetery

An [illegible] in a neighboring [illegible] the bridegroom was an undertaker whose father had been an undertaker before him. The ceremony took place at midnight in the cemetery before the father's grave. Asked why he was married in this way, the bridegroom said: "Well, I've been to the cemetery so often on sad occasions that I felt I should like to come here just once for some happy event." . . . Couples afraid of being too happy might try this.—Capper's Weekly.

The Last Straw

Our sympathy [illegible] expressed [illegible] of our most corpulent [illegible] had gone to a doctor [illegible] had been ordered [illegible] A glass of [illegible] nothing more. On the night of the third day the man awoke from a nap in which he had dreamed that a thick, mediumrare beefsteak had been set before him. Restlessly he went for a stroll in the park, casting hungry, covetous glances at every youth with a peanut and every babe with a nursing bottle. Suddenly he was accosted by an individual who said:

"Say, boss, you couldn't give a poor fellow a dime, could you? I haven't had anything to eat since this morning."—The New Yorker.

FIRST ADJOURNED TOWN MEETING SESSION HELD

Sense of Meeting Vote to Remove "Tree"—Action on Junior High Postponed

Once again there was plenty of room for all those who wished to attend the first adjourned session of the annual Town Meeting, only 522 voters gathering Monday evening in the Town Hall for the consideration of several articles over which there had apparently been considerable pre-meeting interest.

Moderator George B. Hayward opened the session by reading the registrars of voters' certificate, giving the results of the recent re-count in connection with the contests at the annual election for the offices of Selectmen and Assessor. The newly elected Selectman, Harry W. Stevens of Winthrop street, had been sworn in previous to the meeting.

The articles of the warrant were not taken up in order and keeping track of the business transacted was rather a difficult feat. Article 17 was first discussed. Inserted in the warrant to see whether the Town would vote to "interest" the Selectmen in the removal of the big elm on Church street at the Winchester Trust Company, it had aroused considerable feeling. President George F. Arnold of the local Chamber of Commerce introduced a motion seeking to place the question of the tree's removal upon the ballot at the next annual Town Meeting. This motion was declared out of order and a succeeding motion offered by Jonas A. Laraway to indefinitely postpone the article was lost. Mr. Laraway stated that the Selectmen needed no delegated authority to remove the tree and further announced that for the past 10 years the tree warden had an order to cut down the elm, an order which because of public sentiment it had been considered best to ignore. At this point a recommendation was offered by the Finance Committee that it be the sense of the meeting to remove the tree. The sense-of-the-meeting vote was passed by the somewhat close vote of 242 to 198.

CALUMET NOTES

The first formal dance of the season was held last Friday evening. One of the worst snow storms of the season was raging but, not withstanding that handicap, there were fully 109 persons present—a fine testimony to our entertainment committee. Calumet members realize and are taking advantage of the good times we are giving them and there seems to be a desire on their part to attend our social functions in large numbers. While it was cold and stormy outside, the clubhouse inside was filled with warmth and pleasure. If pleasant weather had obtained, we fear the dancing would have been held under crowded difficulties. The orchestra was late arriving on account of the storm and we were just on the point of moving our new radio upstairs when the missing musicians appeared on the scene. The dress was formal and Calumet ladies looked even more charming than usual. A collation was served at intermission.

Among those present were the following:

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Allen.
Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Aseltine
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas A. Barnard
Mr. and Mrs. Thomas R. Bateman
Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Bostwick.
Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Brown.
Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Brown
Mr. Glenn H. Browning
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Butters
Mr. Kenneth F. Caldwell and Mrs. Salzmann
Mr. Ernest D. Chase.
Mr. and Mrs. Willis W. Clark
Mr. and Mrs. Floyd S. Clement
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. French
Miss DeLuhs.
Mr. and Mrs. Irving E. Gamage
Mr. and Mrs. Edmund N. Giles
Mr. and Mrs. Earle B. Goldsmith
Mr. and Mrs. Vernon H. Hall
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Kelley
Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm Lees
Mr. and Mrs. William L. Little
Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Winship
Mr. and Mrs. Clarence H. Young
Mr. and Mrs. Percy Bugbee
Mr. and Mrs. Henry A. Loudon
Mr. Edward H. Merrill and Miss Merrill
Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Mitton
Mr. and Mrs. George E. Motlette
Mr. Winthrop A. Palmer and Miss Cox
Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Parish
Mr. and Mrs. Harry I. Pilkington
Mr. and Mrs. Arthur W. Pitman
Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Phippen
Mr. and Mrs. B. G. Preston
Mr. and Mrs. Geo. F. Purrington
Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Rogers
Mr. Edward B. Sandberg
Mr. and Mrs. Paul Sears
Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Smith
Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stidstone
Mr. and Mrs. Alfred E. Sweet
Mr. and Mrs. John H. Taylor
Mr. and Mrs. S. W. H. Taylor
Mr. Philip S. Hight
Mr. Richard Sawyer and Miss Sawyer

Last Saturday evening, we had the pleasure of listening to the Rev. M. J. Ahern, S. J., at our smoker. One of the largest gatherings of the season turned out and we were very well repaid for our efforts. Father Ahern is head of the Department of Chemistry and Geology at Weston College. The subject was "Cave Man Stuff; a Critique of Human Evolution". He took the position that science had proved nothing about the evolution of the human race, though it has inferred much, and he showed that there was no unanimity among the experts themselves. He approached the subject in a friendly way and discussed it as a teacher of science, not primarily as a clergyman. He said that science had proven time and time again that God is Creator of the universe. That if you can not explain the existence of God you cannot explain the existence of anything. Eighty-five per cent of the real scientists, he said, express belief in God and that for every one scientist who does not believe in God, there are a thousand who do. At the close of the address, Father Ahern answered questions from the floor and showed remarkable understanding of his subject.

The regular monthly supper and bridge takes place tonight with Mrs. Clarence H. Young in charge. This is another one of those popular social affairs and we hope you were lucky in sending your card in time as advised by the entertainment committee.

Don't forget the bowling dinner on Tuesday, March 20. It will take place at 6:30 sharp. We shall entertain the University Club bowlers and will have a match on our alleys after the dinner. Any of those who are not so fortunate as to be able to attend the dinner are invited to come down later and watch the match.

On aSturday, March 24, there will be the regular bowling roll-off.

Sewell Newman of the University Club, Boston, was a visitor last Saturday evening. Sewell will head the University bowlers next Tuesday evening and was feeling out the alleys in preparation for the match.

LENTEN SERVICE

First Congregational Church Wednesday at 4 O'clock

The third Lenten service will be held in the auditorium of the First Congregational Church on next Wednesday. Rev. David Fraser of West Somerville will be the speaker. His subject is "The Master and the Masters." There will be special music by Mr. Leonard and other musicians. All are welcome.

BIRTHS

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Howard Bryan of 68 Irving street are the parents of a daughter, Lena Lois, born March 11 at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Lester E. Savage of 20 Hillcrest Parkway are the parents of a daughter, born March 12.

In accordance with the orders of the Selectmen the property on Thompson street was renumbered by the Town engineers Wednesday of this week.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Spring is on the way and it gives promise of being an active spring in Rotary.

To begin with there is a Charter Night to be celebrated in the neighboring city of Chelsea. Naturally this is a big event for the Chelsea Club. Our own Charter Night is not so far distant but that we realize the importance of that occasion. Those of our members who can be with the Chelsea Club on March 27 will doubtless be well repaid for the effort.

And then there is the Spring Conference to be held at Salem on Monday and Tuesday, April 23 and 24. This is the first time that we, as a club, have had an opportunity to participate in a Rotary Conference; it should be a big attraction to each and all of us. There is a District Governor to be elected and other matters of importance to be acted upon. President George informs us that cach Rotarian may vote as an individual at this conference; it is not an assembly of delegates. This is an incentive for every man to be present and make his influence felt. Make your plans accordingly.

We had an unusually interesting talk this week. When we say that "Nat" Nichols did the talking one can realize that it must have been interesting. "Nat" is a devotee of the out-of-door life. He knows that the great open spaces are wide open if one will only walk in. One has to be an expert traveler to get as much out of his wanderings as "Nat" does, but the interesting points are there, and most of us would do well to take a leaf from "Nat's" book and peruse it thoughtfully. A large part of Eastern Massachusetts was covered in this talk and there were photographs to give emphasis to important places in the itinerary. We are indeed grateful to "Nat" for an extremely interesting and instructive hour.

We take great pleasure in announcing that the first two meetings in March were 100 per cent in attendance. This shows what can be done when each man tries and when Roscoe is mentor. "Let the good work go on."

WINCHESTER WOMAN PROMINENT IN STATE ACTIVITIES OF D. A. R.

Among those who took an active part in the Annual Conference of the Massachusetts D. A. R. held Wednesday and Thursday at the Hotel Statler, Boston, was Mrs. Archibald C. Jordan of this town, State Corresponding Secretary of the organization. The following commentary, is of interest to her many friends in Winchester.

As State corresponding secretary, Mrs. Jordan has not been well-known to the public. As State chairman of the constitution hall finance committee, Mrs. Jordan is known not only in Massachusetts but throughout the entire country. Under her guidance Massachusetts was headed by only the State of New York in its contributions to the permanent memorial in Washington, D. C., of the D. A. R.

The chapters of the State have worked in an untiring effort to meet Mrs. Jordan's constant appeals and the result has brought Massachusetts into the front line once more with subscriptions of nearly 20 per cent of the entire amount raised by the 48 States and in addition the purchase of 170 memorial chairs at $150 each in the hall. Through her efforts, the State society has completed its quota to the national fund and is on the roll of honor as a donor and the owner of a platform chair.

Mrs. Jordan's career in the D. A. R. is as follows: with the Bunker Hill Chapter, 1920, 1921, on the board of management; 1921-1922, vice regent and 1922-1925, chapter regent and member of State board. With the state society Mrs. Jordan served from 1925-1926, chairman of finance; 1925-1926, chairman of Constitution Hall building committee and since 1926 and still serving in the capacity of chairman of Constitution Hall finance committee and State corresponding secretary. With the National Society she was made a member of the tellers committee, 1924; from 1925-1926, chairman of tellers committee; 1926 and still serving, Constitution Hall finance committee and in 1927 and still serving second general vice chairman of the house committee.

NEW SHOP TO OPEN HERE

Winchester householders will be interested in the announcement that on or about March 21 there will open at 24-26 Thompson street a shop which will make available the very best service in upholstering, awning making, repairing and automobile trimming.

G. W. McGray, the proprietor, is relocating in Winchester after several years in Somerville. He is a skilled specialist in his line, having had 27 years' experience with the best Boston and New England shops. He has been associated with the Paine Furniture Company, Irving, Casson & Davenport; Jordan Marsh Company and the Shaw Furniture Company as well as with many of the larger automobile concerns, including Locomobile, Stevens-Duryea, Rolls-Royce, Franklin and Bay State.

Besides the usual upholstering, awning and auto trimming service, Mr. McGray is prepared to do expert furniture repairing and interior decorating. Orders for slip covers and all sorts of re-modeling will receive prompt attention. All work done in Winchester's newest upholstering shop will be done only under the strictest of sanitary conditions.

Miss Katherine F. Pond of Prospect street is at Florence Villa, Fla.

WILLIAM PARKMAN HAD STUNT NIGHT

William Parkman Lodge, A. F. & A. M., held what old timers would call a "symposium" in connection with its regular meeting Tuesday evening in Masonic Apartments. For those of the younger generation who were not present it might be stated that the words "stunt night" may with entire propriety be substituted for "symposium" to designate that part of the evening which succeeded the business session, the latter presided over by Worshipful Master Edward B. Smalley. A dinner preceded the lodge meeting.

At the conclusion of the business session Harry W. Brown gave an interesting address dealing with the life, particularly with reference to his connection with Masonry, of William Parkman, from whom the local lodge takes its name.

Adjourning from the lodge room to the banquet hall the large gathering was treated to an entertainment of considerable originality and some merit, the contributing talent being in all instances drawn from the membership of the local organization.

It is whispered confidentially that booking agents from several large vaudeville chains were prevented only by main force from injecting themselves into the hall in an effort to sign certain of the performers for appearance in the leading show houses of the country. Perish the thought that any such talent should be lured by filthy shekels from the William Parkman fold.

The various skits were enthusiastically received and even though an occasional raucous shout of "get the hook" or strident roar, "drown 'im" seeped through the generous applause and tobacco smoke, there could be no doubting the audience's pleasure.

Opening the program was an instrumental number played by a selected orchestra troup, comprising H. Earl Richardson and Adna E. Smalley, violins; Fred A. Preston, cornet; Harry N. Squires, traps; and Selectman Harry W. Stevens, piano. The boys were immense. Paul Whiteman would have been green with envy, and just to prove their right to being classed with the headliners the team absolutely refused to play their "other piece."

Following the orchestra Albert O. Wilson, choirmaster of the Swedish Congregational Church, Cambridge, and a widely known vocalist, charmed his audience with several beautifully sung tenor solos, accompanied by Mr. Stevens. Mr. Wilson was enthusiastically encored and good naturedly appeared several times, among his encores being the lovely "Duna," made popular by Reinald Werrenrath.

Alden H. Symmes was next in line with his widely known monologue, "Levinsky at the Wedding," given in unabridged but no less enjoyable form. "Serames" was good. A violin solo was next offered for the audience's pleasure, the same being played with much "feeling and depth" by H. Earl Richardson. Mr. Stevens again assisted at the piano. In fact Harry was credited with plenty of assists throughout the evening, and we failed to note an error in his box.

One of the headline acts of the evening was the singing of several quartet numbers by William H. Corliss, assisted by Vincent P. Clarke, Benjamin Small and H. Earl Richardson. As an accompaniment and in addition to chirping a mellifluous double B bass "Will" strummed what might be slangily referred to as a "mean banjo." The boy can play, and how.

Dr. J. Churchill Hindes appeared in several fine solo numbers, accompanied by Harry Stevens, but the peak of his act was not reached until in his inimitable manner he sung a little known but much appreciated "Siamese Folk Song," the words of which were furnished especially for the occasion by Ralph W. E. Hopper.

Another shepherd of the molars, Dr. "Charlie" Kelley sank several selections which were well received, more especially, perhaps, his ballad of the country inn, entitled, "Save a Dram for Me."

Few will quarrel with the statement that Samuel Ernest Perkins, sometimes known as "Si," in his monologue act, "Stories of Steep Falls, Me," was one of the hits of the bill. His introductory remarks were much appreciated and we saw no one leave the hall while he was "on."

Last on the program but by no means least in general interest was a demonstration of wrestling holds by "Gus" Hakenson, former amateur and Olympic champion who concluded his act with a spirited 10-minute wrestling bout in which he was assisted by an un-announced team mate. No one offered to take on "Gus" following the battle.

The entire show was conceived and promoted by John Hart Taylor, junior warden of the lodge, to whom the thanks of all are extended.

MARIBEL VINSON ARRIVES HOME

Maribel Vinson, Winchester's 14-year old Olympic skating star, arrived home Wednesday via New York from London where she recently finished second in the ladies' fancy skating championship competition, after winning fourth place in the Olympic championships at St. Moritz, Switzerland. She was presented to the King and Queen of England and members of Briton's royal family following an exhibition of figure and fancy skating which she gave by special request in the London Skating Club. After being feted in New York the youthful champion was received and congratulated upon her arrival in Boston by Mayor Malcolm Nichols, who was a State House reporter when Maribel's father, Thomas M. Vinson, was a representative from Dorchester.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Bows of the Parkway have returned from a cruise to the West Indies on the S.S. Yarmouth.

WINCHESTER GIRLS FINISHED SUCCESSFUL SEASON

With the victory over Melrose Tuesday afternoon the Winchester High School girls' basketball team wound up one of its most successful seasons in recent years. Out of nine games played six resulted in wins for Coach Wheeler's hopefuls, who rolled up 250 points to 229 for their opponents. One of the three reverses came at the hands of a strong alumnae team in the season's first game, the two school sextettes to win verdicts over Winchester being Arlington and Melrose. The locals won an even break with the latter outfit Tuesday by their win at Melrose, leaving only the Arlington game a real blot on the escutcheon.

For the first time in some seasons Winchester had a scoring punch this year, Captain Jean Davis and Virginia Merrill doing some very consistent sharpshooting throughout the schedule. The local club was by no means a veteran outfit but its all around play under the guidance of Coach Priscilla Wheeler improved greatly as the season progressed. Following two defeats, the girls braced perceptably and won their last four games in a row.

Playing her first year of varsity basketball, Mary Cutter did well with the jumping center assignment while "Toots" McKenzie, a letter player from last year, was consistantly good at the all important side center berth. Despite her diminutive proportions the latter was seldom outplayed and her effective passing was one of the features of the local team's offense.

Marie Merrill and Margaret O'Donnell played steadily at the guard positions, the latter alternating with Frances Pettingell in most of the games. Frances came very fast toward the end of the schedule and should be an important cog in next year's machine.

Marjory Kendrick, Mary Reed, Nancy Bradlee and Helen and Florence MacKinnon were second team players who saw service with the varsity at odd times during the campaign.

This year's club was coached by Miss Priscilla Wheeler of the Department of Physical Education, captained by Jean Davis and managed by Marjory Mobbs.

The season's record follows:

Winchester	21	Alumnae	23
Winchester	21	Stoneham	20
Winchester	32	Wakefield	29
Winchester	21	Arlington	42
Winchester	22	Melrose	23
Winchester	30	Reading	21
Winchester	15	Wakefield	17
Winchester	20	Stoneham	13
Winchester	31	Melrose	30
Winchester	250	Opponents	229

ELIZABETH ELLIS LOCKE

Elizabeth Ellis Locke, widow of George L. Locke and for nearly 50 years a resident of Winchester, died suddenly Wednesday about noontime at her home on Ridge street. She had but recently returned to her home from the hospital where she had been confined following a fall which she experienced about three weeks ago. Apparently she had been recovering from her injuries nicely when she was suddenly stricken on Wednesday, death coming almost immediately.

Mrs. Locke was born 69 years ago at Truro, N. S. The entire 48 years of her life in the United States had been spent in the house on Ridge street which had been the birthplace of her husband, who died in 1921. Besides her membership in the Women's Fortnightly Club Mrs. Locke was a member of the First Congregational Church.

Surviving are six sons, G. Ellis, Chester C., Wendell W., and Harry D. Locke, all of Winchester, Arthur C. Locke of Bristol, Conn., and Willard R. Locke of Sarasota, Fla., and two daughters, Edna F. Millar of Manchester and Alice B. Locke of Hartford, Conn. A sister Miss Emma Ellis, living in Truro, N. S., also survives her.

Funeral services will be held on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock at the late residence 17 Ridge street, and will be conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church. Interment will be in Wildwood Cemetery.

VIRGINIA MERRILL CHOSEN

At a meeting of the letter basketball players in the high school following the Melrose game on Tuesday Virginia Merrill, star left forward, was elected to captain next year's sextet. Virginia is a junior and one of the best all around athletes among the girls in school, having won letters in field hockey, basketball and tennis. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Merrill of Rangeley road.

FIRST BAPTIST CHURCH

Apollo Male Quartet to Sing Sunday at 7

The famous Apollo Male Quartet is to sing at the service Sunday evening at 7. Their selections will include "Rock of Ages," "My Master and My Friend"; tenor solo, "If With All Your Hearts" from the Elijah, "Nearer, Still Nearer," and "Eternity" by Brackett.

At the beginning of the meeting, there will be the usual song service with piano and organ. This feature is becoming very popular and is justifying the title given the church, namely, "The Singing Church."

Another feature of the service will be a trio by "The Little Brownies," composed of the pastor's three small children, Rachel, Priscilla and Benjamin. They will sing, "Now the Day Is Over."

The pastor's topic in the morning is, "The Unnamed Sin" and in the evening, "The Worst Member of This Church."

The pageant of "Ten Virgins" given last Sunday evening, witnessed by a very large audience, was written by the pastor of the church. Those who took part were Elizabeth Berry, Elizabeth Clark, Dorothy Friend, Ruth Smith, Dorothy Linscott, Hazel Nagle, Phyllis Dalrymple, Dorothy Johnson, Clara Smith and Leone Waters. The virgins were attended by Alice L. Johnson and Gladys Moulton as angels. Avard L. Walker represented the bridegroom.

The pageant was well performed and very impressive. It was given under the direction of Mrs. Alfred W. Friend, Miss Eda Knowlton, Mrs. H. Wadsworth Hight and Mrs. Charles A. Burnham.

EPIPHANY CHURCH SCHOOL ENTERTAINMENT POSTPONED

Owing to illness among the children of the town, the Epiphany Church School entertainment originally planned for Saturday of this week (March 17th), has been postponed until Saturday afternoon, April 14. Tickets which have already been purchased will be good on the later date.

APPRECIATION

I want to take this opportunity to thank each and everyone who worked so hard for me during the late election.

With a difference of but one vote between Mr. Clarke and myself, thereby creating a situation never before known in Winchester between candidates for Selectman, there surely is glory enough for both.

I shall always remember with pleasure the loyalty and hearty support my friends so freely gave.

Maurice Dinneen, Agent

Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance

What It Is

...usetts system of Savings Bank Life Insurance is a State-aided to give to Massachusetts wage earners and their families all ... money can possibly buy of real life insurance.

The State utilizes the Savings Banks as the medium through which to perform this important function, because the Massachusetts Savings Banks have no stockholders and are operated solely for the benefit of the depositors. Thus is made possible the existence of a purely mutual insurance organization. The expense of commissions to agents is done away with by a provision in the Savings Bank Insurance Law which prohibits the Savings Banks from employing paid solicitors.

The system rests upon the undeniable proposition that the cost of providing for death and old age is a part of the cost of living in youth; that this cost should be recognized as a fixed charge upon current wages; and that any person who, having the opportunity, does not make such provision, is simply shifting upon the community, or upon his family or his friends, the burden he should himself have borne.

ANNA D. NOONAN

Anna D. Noonan, nee White, wife of Henry G. Noonan, passed away Monday evening at her home on Salem street, following a short illness. Mrs. Noonan was a native of Nova Scotia but had spent much of her life in the United States, coming to make her home in Winchester about 10 years ago. She was 43 years of age and besides her husband leaves eight small children.

Funeral services were held on Thursday morning, followed by a high mass of requiem in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

Roger Sherman of this place, a senior at Norwich University, is among the veterans available for this season's baseball squad, according to information receive here from the military college in Northfield, Vt. The local boy is an infielder, playing third base. He was also prominent as a football player and was captain of the team this past fall.

REFUSED TO SURRENDER COLOSSAL ELM

To the Editor of the Star:

I desire to grasp this opportunity to most heartily thank through the columns of the Star an ex-Chairman of the honorable board of Selectmen and others who so gallantly refused to surrender the colossal elm tree on Church street, or in other words, they supported the successors of the men who for 78 years, or I might assert since Winchester was incorporated a town in 1850, in the preservation of the beautiful elm trees and were instrumental in developing Winchester into one of the most beautiful residential suburbs in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, the Athens of America, the home town of the late World War Governor, his excellency Samuel W. McCall, the late Samuel J. Elder and the honorable Lewis Parkhurst.

Very truly yours,

LEGION NOTES

Post to Entertain Winchester Fishermen

Arrangements have been completed for a Fishermen's Night at the next meeting of the Winchester Post to be held at the Legion House Thursday, April 12, at 8 o'clock.

Through the National Sportsman's Publishing Company moving picture films of fish preservation and many pictures of the thrilling catches of the fighting muscalonge, salmon and speckled brook trout as well as a film of pictures of wild life have been secured.

It is the intention of the Post that all male residents of Winchester interested in fishing be invited to attend this meeting and see these exceptional pictures.

This meeting coming as it does just previous to the fishing season should produce a large turn out of enthusiastic followers of Isaac Walton.

In response to a complaint received at headquarters about a dog acting in a threatening manner on Cross street Monday, Officer Edward O'Connell of the Police Department was dispatched to the scene. After an investigation Patrolman O'Connell shot the animal, a black and white mongrel. Chief of Police William R. McIntosh ordered the carcass examined by Dr. William Buckley before it was buried at the Town dump.

THREE ACCIDENTS DURING SNOWSTORM

Three automobile accidents occurred in Winchester during the height of last Friday evening's snow storm. Fortunately in none was any one injured.

At 5:20 o'clock as James F. Corbett of 32 Highland avenue, Lowell, was driving his Packard sedan north on Main street the machine skidded when near Symmes corner and collided with an electric car, headed south on Main street and in charge of Conductor Edward P. Whidden of Melrose. After the collision the sedan continued across the road to the left curb where it came to a stop. Both the automobile and street car showed the effects of the crash, but no one was injured.

Forty minutes later a Chandler sedan, driven by Ruth E. Nicola of 14 Mill street, South Lancaster, in making a left turn from Forest street onto Washington street, skidded into a sign post at the intersection of the roadways, smashing the post off short. The Chandler was not badly damaged. It was the property of Miss Nicola's mother, Mary B. Nicola of South Lancaster.

Another accident, the details of which are not complete, occurred late in the afternoon on the West Side where an Essex touring car, owned and operated by Albert W. Twombley of 21 Forest street, was badly damaged in a collision with an out-of-town machine, also badly smashed. Both cars had to be towed away and the operator of the out-of-town machine was severely shaken up. According to one account of the affair the latter lost control of his car following a skid on the car tracks and crashed into the Essex which Mr. Twombly had driven up onto the sidewalk in an effort to avoid the collision.

WINCHESTER DOCTOR CONSULTANT DIAGNOSTICIAN

Dr. Harold Brown of Winchester has been invited to assist as a consultant diagnostician in the free spinal inventories offered the public next week by the clinic of the Massachusetts College of Osteopathy in observance of annual national normal spine week.

The clinic, which is located at 415 Newbury street, Boston, is one of the oldest and largest osteopathic clinics in the world. Dr. Brown has been a frequent contributor to the clinic since his graduation, having specialized in technique of osteopathy.

During last year's normal spine week the clinic provided more than a thousand spinal inventories free in co-operation with clinics the country over in an effort to awaken the nation to the preponderant importance of spinal health.

New features of this year's clinical program, in the arrangement of which Dr. Brown collaborated, will include special clinics for special groups, with a free evening lecture on disease prevention and correction. These clinics will be held every day from 1 to 3 o'clock and the lecture will be at 8 o'clock.

WINCHESTER SALE

Walter Channing's office reports the sale of a lot of land on Main street, Winchester by Paul D. Childs, adjoining the new English type brick house which he recently built, to Dr. Joseph B. Ellis of West Medford for whom Mr. Childs will erect a modern Colonial house of nine rooms in the near future.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The regular meeting of The Fortnightly was held as usual in the Town Hall at 2:30 on Monday afternoon. After a brief business meeting lasting not over ten minutes, the Boston Sinfonietta was announced, and the stage made ready for the artists. The coming of this organization had been anticipated with pleasure as the most important event of the kind during the year; and the audience was augmented by the presence of many guests, as this was a public meeting.

The Boston Sinfonietta is a group of 12 men from the Boston Symphony Orchestra, conducted by Arthur Fiedler. It is an unusually well-balanced group, with strings, wood-wind, brass and piano; and, in spite of the limited number, is able to produce successfully many things intended for a large orchestra. It is also eminently suited to the performance of many charming selections for small orchestras that would be less effective with a larger group.

The program was as follows:

Overture "Magnon" ..... Thomas
Largo from the "New World" Symphony ..... Dvorak
Spanish Rhapsody ..... Albeniz
("A Night in Seville")
Intermission
Ballet Suite ..... Gluck-Mottl (1714-1787)
a Air Gai, from "Iphigenia in Aulis" b Dance of the Happy Spirits, from "Orpheus"
c Musette, from "Armide"
Dreamy ..... Wagner
(Violin Solo, Mr. Heinrich Graeser)
Jota (Spanish Dance) ..... Granados
Dance of the Hours ..... Ponchielli
("Ballet Music from 'La Gioconda'")

It was a relief to the music-lovers of the club to be presented with a program which did not insult their intelligence and their musical taste. Far too often in the past have symphony groups given us a melee of operatic airs and popular tunes of a sort that might be expected from any theatre orchestra and that were of no greater value. Just why it should be considered necessary to play down to club women we have never found out. Club women fill the seats at symphony and other concerts, and they never fail to respond with enthusiasm to a performance of real merit.

The program arranged by Mr. Fiedler was of high quality, and yet intelligible, to those who came for enjoyment without musical knowledge. There was too, variety in mood and style—from the sad seriousness of the Largo from the "New World" Symphony to the colorful Spanish Rhapsody of Albeniz, or the measured rhythms of the Gluck dances.

The Dvorak Largo is familiar to almost everyone through its arrangement to the words "Goin' Home," and perhaps some had never heard it in any other form. Either for this reason, or because it was performed as beautifully as anything on the program, it was welcomed so heartily that Mr. Fiedler inserted after it an extra number. This was also a Dvorak song—"Songs My Mother Taught Me".

The Ballet Suite by Gluck was particularly well suited to the small orchestra. Orchestras of the 18th century were considered quite satisfactory with far fewer men and instruments than in the great orchestras today; and in these pieces the Sinfonietta was able to create the illusion of the antique by the precision, clarity, and delicacy of its playing. Anitra's Dance from the "Peer Gynt Suite" of Grieg was added as an encore to this group.

The last three compositions were well contrasted—the yearning Dreams of Wagner, with its beautiful violin solo by Mr. Heinrich Graeser; the languorous swing of Granados' Spanish Dance, and the sprightly Dance of the Hours from "La Gioconda". In response to the enthusiastic applause at the end of the program Mr. Fiedler led his band in a Hungarian Dance by Monti.

It should be a source of great satisfaction to The Fortnightly that it has been able to give its members and guests such a thoroughly fine musical entertainment as this concert by the Boston Sinfonietta. Both as an artistic performance, and as a purely enjoyable occasion it has met the most exacting standards; and it it, in fact, the best thing of the kind that has come to the club in many years.

Last Saturday afternoon at 1:20 as a Pierce-Arrow truck, owned by Thomas Quigley of 18 Lake street and driven by James J. Haggerty of 17 Loring avenue, was backing out of Stevens street onto Mt. Vernon street it was in collision with a Ford sedan, owned by Caroline Perriello of 37 Arlington street, Woburn, and operated by Felix Perriello of the same address. The Ford was heading west on Mt. Vernon street and was somewhat smashed about the front end. The truck was unharmed.

Last Saturday morning at 7:40 o'clock the Fire Department was given a run through the snow to put out a fire caused by a poorly functioning oil burner at the home of Mr. Arthur F. Dow at 275 Main street. The blaze was extinguished with chemicals and caused relatively little damage. The alarm came in from Box 27.

FREDERIC S. SNYDER ALTERNATE DELEGATE

Favors Nomination of Hoover

In the Eighth Congressional District, Prof. Joseph H. Beale, of the Harvard Law School, Cambridge, and Richard B. Coolidge, former Mayor of Medford, announce themselves as candidates for delegates to the National Republican convention together with James W. Bean, former State Senator of Cambridge, and Frederic S. Snyder, Chief of the Division of Co-ordination of Purchase of the U. S. Food Administration and ex-President of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, as alternates. They are unpledged.

The candidates make the following joint statement:

"We announce our candidacies as unpledged delegates and alternate delegates from the Eighth Congressional District to the National Republican Convention. We believe that the voters, whom the delegates are elected to represent, are entitled to know where candidates stand on the question of the presidential nominee.

"We believe that President Coolidge, because of his administration, is entitled to the nominaton, but he appears to have eliminated himself as a candidate.

"Massachusetts has in Governor Fuller an executive of national reputation. Despite his own substantial claims, he has generously expressed his preference for Hoover for President.

"Under these circumstances, we favor the nomination of Herbert Hoover. He has a record of outstanding achievements."

La Salle

FIVE-PASSENGER FAMILY SEDAN
$2350 f. o. b. Detroit

A Matchless Motor Car Investment

The new La Salle five-passenger family sedan, at $2350, means vastly more than just a motor car. ¶ It means long years of that supreme motoring luxury which the whole world has learned to associate with only a Cadillac-built car. ¶ It brings to its possessor the distinction of that vogue which La Salle created—that vogue which will be the symbol of good taste in motoring long after the transient enthusiasm for cars designed merely to look like La Salle has waned. ¶ For, as everybody knows, the slightest vestige of resemblance vanishes in the light of the surpassingly brilliant performance of La Salle's famous V-type, 90-degree, 8-cylinder, Cadillac-built engine.

Five new models. Substantially lower prices on the entire La Salle line. Only a small initial outlay is required under the liberal General Motors convenient payment plan.

An open letter to the people of WINCHESTER

Dear Friends:

You have a radio for which you have invested your good money, and it has served you well, but probably due to present broadcasting requirements it does not measure up to your full expectations. You have wanted to trade it in on a modern or light-socket radio that will meet all the demands of present-day broadcasting.

Now, with full authority from the makers of Federal Ortho-sonic radio, we can offer you, for a limited time, a startling trade-in allowance for your set.

In all of our merchandising experience, we have never been able to make a proposition like this. We want you to bring in your radio and see the various Federal models on display in our store. Choose the one you like best—the one that will fit in your home, the radio that meets your every demand—and let us make you our unusual offer. We are allowing from $20.00 to $100.00 on old radio sets.

The beauty of this offer is that you do not have to have a radio of recent purchase. Any type or kind, regardless of its age—we want your old radio.

There is no catch in this proposition. It is a pure out and out remarkable offer that everyone in this town may take advantage of. You will marvel at the difference in quality of tonal rendition and beauty of the Federal as against the set you have brought us.

We repeat—this is a limited offer, and we suggest your immediate investigation of this proposition. For information call Winchester 1305.

Cordially yours,

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The man who will not sail until he has a full fair wind, will lose many a voyage.

In speaking of slander: The dog who fetches a bone will also carry one away.

Be always as merry as ever you can, for no one delights in a sorrowful man.

Much wealth and contentment do not always live under the same roof.

Any man who cheats in small things is a fool and if in greater things a rogue.

Judging from the last two weeks during which the workmen of the Eastern Massachusetts Railway have been at work in the centre, the Town would do well to hire another man to assist in cleaning up after them. Wire, rope and litter of all sorts scattered about the centre does not improve its looks nor add to the longevity of automobile tires.

The Editor extends thanks to Mayor William B. Davidson of Louisville, Ky., and particularly to the Winchester Conservatories, for a beautiful gift of spring flowers. This gift, sent by Mayor Davidson, signifies the occasion of the opening of the ninth national flower show at Louisville, and his flowers were most fittingly delivered by the local firm, which enjoys the reputation of doing these things "just right".

The annual town meeting at Reading drew the largest attendance of any in recent years Monday night, the seating capacity of the main hall and gallery being filled to the limit and many being compelled to stand throughout the three hours that the session lasted. Two propositions vital to the future of the town were responsible for the crowd, but action was taken on neither. One of these questions was the matter of an underpass and fence between the railroad tracks for safety at the railroad station. The matter was presented by the committee, which informed the voters that it had finally obtained a proposal to eliminate the danger at a cost of $29,800, of which the town was to assume one-half. The matter was held over until the next session of the meeting. Other places than Winchester appear concerned for the safety of their residents and are pushing needed changes through. Winchester's grade crossing menace is of many years' standing, and it should be remedied at once, before the Railroad spends all its money elsewhere.

The STAR certainly hopes that the wood of the "redossal" elm tree in Church street will be carefully preserved upon its removal. Surely this historic tree deserves a better fate than an ignominious end in the dump at the town yard! What will have a few millions "keys to our city" fashioned from its sturdy frame—for future use when the celebrites call to congratulate us upon the removal of our grade crossing or wiping out the debt on our War Memorial? If it were only a coniferous instead of a deciduous it might serve as an understudy to our municipal Christmas tree or at least do its part in producing its gallons of aqua vita in the water-shed at the reservoirs. And at that it probably has enough wood in it to build that fence the Water Board desires. As a matter of fact, if the parking of automobiles was stopped in its vicinity, we would certainly holler to keep it where it is until its worthy and history-filled self really needed its keys will undoubtedly come in handy when we get through building new school houses, and it might as well keep on growing, for we are building the schools fairly fast to say the least. The street is plenty wide enough at this point for two cars to pass on each side of the tree—the trouble seems to be that parked automobiles leave hardly room for one car to pass on one side. We surely would do better and save expense in leaving the tree standing, rather than remove it and then instal a beacon in its place. That suggestion lacks all kinds of appeal. In fact it has no appeal at all. The old tree makes the best possible beacon. There has been a growing habit, especially among our feminine automobile enthusiasts of leaving one's car in the middle of the street when doing any shopping or a little mid-day visiting. This habit has now extended beyond the centre to the Trust Company, and it does not add to the safety of our traffic one bit. In fact it is more than a little annoying to those who have some consideration in their make-up. But as one driver says: "when in Rome there is but one thing to do".

THE PASSING OF A TREE

A fine old tree, now in the way.
Is being taken down today.
A gang of men attacks its crest,
Where once the robin built its nest,
And those great priestly arms which blest
The worshippers who came to rest,
Now fall and lie beside the road
To make a common truckman's load.

For years that friendly tree has stood
The glory of the neighborhood,
And it has heard the traffic's roar
Each day grow nearer than before,
And seen its brother trees go down
Before the builders of the town.
Surely that fine old elm has known
It must make room for steel and stone!

And now the axe is at its trunk,
Its leafy arms in sorrow sunk,
Its roots, which long have loved the earth,
Are marked by stern destruction's girth.
The builders wait. Nearby is seen
A greedy, pitiless, machine,
Ready to chew great holes where stood
A friendly tree, so brave, so good.

I know not what these men shall build
What room with joy and laughter filled,
What towers of beauty shall arise
Beneath this space of sunny skies;
Perhaps a temple shall be reared
Where God is loved and God is feared
But nothing man can build shall be
So lovely as this fine old tree.

THE NOONAN SCHOOL PROBLEM

To the Editor of the Star:

As there seems to be a misunderstanding as to the overcrowded condition at the Noonan School it might be well to discuss the situation at this time when we seem about to embark upon an ambitious secondary building program.

About a month before the closing of this year's warrant, there was created at a meeting of the Noonan School Mothers' Association, a committee to draw up an article for this year's Town Meeting Warrant. The purpose of this article was to request the town to enlarge the Noonan School at an approximate cost of $75,000. The committee of ten citizens from the Noonan district met and voted to write the article and ask the School Committee to sponsor it in the warrant. It seemed to them expedient that the condition of this school receive attention and relief before any other extensive program should be planned.

Accordingly a meeting was arranged between our committee and Mr. Stone and Mr. Tucker of the School Board. At this meeting our committee received the impression that the addition to the Noonan School would take precedence over any other school project and that the School Committee had been closely observing conditions in our district and was thoroughly aware of the emergency.

So that our committee decided not to insert an article in this year's warrant, feeling that next year the situation would be relieved.

However, with the building of a grammar school and the great expense of this project, we now feel that the citizens of the town should know that they have two emergencies facing them instead of one.

The Noonan School has besides the small kindergarten and assembly hall, six small classrooms each planned to accommodate but 35 pupils at the outside. In some instances during the present year extra seats have been placed in a room, but in such case there is left hardly space enough in which the teacher may turn around.

Then in our second grade room which can accommodate only 35 pupils we will have next year at least 55 pupils. This year we have 35 pupils seated in the regular first grade room and 20 extra first grade children are in a little room that is wholly inadequate for the purpose of housing them.

We understand that it has been suggested that the additional second grade next year be seated in the kindergarten and the little kindergarteners be placed in the assembly hall. This year we have 34 pupils in the kindergarten.

Our committee is of the opinion that putting these small children in the assembly hall will be a menace to their health.

And aggravating this whole condition is the new development which branches out from the school on the north and west, several new houses having been built this year and permits having been obtained for several more.

Also the Assembly Hall of the school is inadequate. It can hold but a part of the parents at one time and at exhibitions the pupils must stay in their rooms until called upon to do their part in the program.

It has thus seemed wise at this time for us to place these facts before the town so that they will know that in planning their secondary program they have not yet considered the housing of the pupils of the elementary grades.

Frances T. Conlen, Chairman
Noonan School Mothers' Association Committee

BUILDING PERMITS GRANTED

The Building Commissioner has granted permits for week ending Thursday, March 15 as follows:

ENGAGEMENT ANNOUNCED

Miss Marion Ladd of Yale street was hostess at a delightful bridge party on Monday evening at which she announced her engagement to Mr. Marshall Symmes of Winchester.

Miss Ladd is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Ladd of Yale street and was graduated from the Normal Art School, Boston in 1926.

Mr. Symmes graduated from Tufts College in the class of 1917 and was manager of the track team. He is a member of Zeta Psi Fraternity and is now connected with Houghton, Mifflin Company, publishers.

Remove All of Them

"If every person devoted half an hour a day to study, half our lawyers would be unnecessary," declares a contemporary. Then it's up to all of us to devote one hour a day.—Passing Show.

Goat Saved Boy's Life

By his pet goat a twelve-year-old boy was saved from death in a quarry 40 feet deep at Portland, England. The boy was leading the animal on a 12 yard tether when he fell over the edge of the quarry. Fortunately the rope was twisted round his wrist. The goat, although thrown on its side by the unexpected pull, regained its feet and held the boy suspended in mid-air until rescuers came.

Joy in Books

Except a living man there is nothing more wonderful than a book? A message to us from the dead—from human souls we never saw, who lived, perhaps, thousands of miles away. And yet these, in those little sheets of paper speak to us, arouse us, terrify us, teach us, comfort us, open their hearts to us as brothers.—Charles Kingsley.

Ancient Egyptian Road

According to Herodotus, the Greek writer known as the father of history, the road in Egypt over which the stones used in the pyramids were hauled reached halfway across the African continent. It was built 4000 B. C. The importance of this road can be gathered from the fact that it required 100,000 men working for ten years to construct a single mile of it.

Famous Breed of Cattle

Friesian cattle were mentioned by the Roman historian Tacitus as being of importance as early as the year 28 A. D. Perhaps because of this early start, or by reason of the favorable location of the province in regard to industrial cities of northern Europe, Friesland farmers have grown prosperous through many years of furnishing their neighbors with butter and cheese.

Shortest Public Railway

The world's smallest public railway, a 15-inch gauge type, runs from Romney, through the famous marshes to Hythe, Kent, England. The engines, weighing about eight tons, have a speed up to 50 miles an hour with 25 coaches. The fare from one end of the line to the other, a distance of eight and a half miles, is 25 cents. A special train can be hired for $3.75.

Names on Ancient Books

Serving the same purpose as the lettering on the back or front cover of the modern book, the manuscript rolls of early Egypt and Greece had projecting labels of papyrus or vellum, on which the title of the work was written. These labels hung outwards as the rolls lay on the library shelves or stood in the buckets which served as portable bookcases.—Gas Logic.

Woman's Real Goal

The goal that most of us need to set for ourselves is the attainment of some of the "unpossessed possessions" of the age, and those are a contented mind, a loving, peaceful home that is a haven of rest to a tired business man, and the vision to see beyond the apparently menial daily tasks to the glorious opportunities that are ours for greater than any offered by the most successful career in the business world.—The New Age Illustrated.

Growth of Languages

Authorities believe that all languages had their origin in the dialects of one common language, whose home is conjectured to have been between the Baltic and Caspian seas. The tongue spread with migrations in the different places, and the separation and race admixtures increased the differences in the dialects until they became distinct languages which in turn spread and broke up into dialects.

. . . or a Rest

The story goes that several college presidents were discussing what they would do after they retired. What would they be fit for was the question.

"Well," said one of them, "I don't know that I'd be fit for anything, but I know what I'd like to do. I'd like to be superintendent of an orphan asylum so I'd never get any letters from parents."

"I've a much better ambition," exclaimed another. "I want to be warden of a penitentiary. The alumni never come t[illegible] Magazine.

Accommodating

"Say!" yelled a man who had had his feet run over for the third time while he was working under his car "I'm getting tired of this! If you do it again I'll get up and kick your flivver to pieces!"

"I can't help it!" responded the small town girl who was learning to drive and not succeeding very well "I don't know how to drive yet, and my car seems determined to run over something. I—"

"Aw, that's all right!" said the complainer, crawling forth. "I didn't see who you were. If you'll wait a minute I'll lie down in the street and let you run over me all you please."—Kansas City Times.

Thought for Today

How quickly a truly benevolent act is repaid by the consciousness of having done it!—Hosea Ballou.

Oh, Rats!

A single pair of rats living in moderate circumstances can be responsible for the arrival of 6500,000 rodents in three years.—American Magazine.

Tomorrow Always Comes

It is frequently said that tomorrow never comes. But the man who has a note falling due tomorrow knows that tomorrow comes. — Atchison Globe.

Death Double Victor

Death was twice a victor in a mighty battle between two deer for the supremacy of the forest range in Montgomery. After the antlers of the deer became locked the two pulled and tugged until one fell with a broken neck. Then the winner prepared to leave the scene to take up his lead ership. He was unable to shake his antlers loose from those of the defeated foe. The body of the dead deer was dragged for many feet until the living one dropped from sheer exhaustion. Death overtook it in the form of starvation and exposure.—Boston Globe.

Take Time to Smile

Smiles are multiple. The honey bees outnumber the hornets. Insults, like mud, drop off when dry. Smile or the spectators will think you are a flat tire. Laugh or other tourists will conclude you have run past your garage.

Quit crying; too much of this globe is salt water now. Borrow some yeast and put it into your dough. Laughing is the best way of lifting the face and then one side will not be higher than the other. The strongest fort in the world is comfort. There is no law against laughing.—Exchange.

There Was a Difference

Betty, age five, wanted a puppy and was frequently asking her father to get her one. One day daddy decided to fulfill her wish and spent one afternoon making the rounds of the pet shops, but none of the dogs seemed to suit Betty. Finally they drove out to the dog pond where there were quite a number of dogs, all shapes and sizes Betty was interested, but not in any one dog. The keeper of the pound said to her: "What kind of a dog did you want, little girl?" to which Betty replied, "I want a collie dog."

Middle-Age Scriveners

In the Middle ages it was not given for every one to be able to write and so letter writers, or scriveners, grew into a profession, and whenever one wished to write to a friend, one called upon the scrivener to help him, writes Frank H. Vizetelly, editor of the New Standard dictionary. At that time materials for writing were carried in metal or leather cases worn hanging from the girdle. Sometimes as many as six reed pens, and several kinds of ink, were packed away in the case. There are still places, even in England, where the quill-driver follows his calling.—Detroit News

Getting a Squatter's Right

Pioneer Telegrapher

James Francis Leonard at Lexington, Ky., was the first to do away with the dot and dash paper tape in reading telegraph messages, depending on the click of the instrument. Mr Leonard was one of the most accomplished telegraphers of his day, and it was when the telegraph was in its infancy that he learned to receive messages by sound on the first wires that were erected in Kentucky.

"Digger" Indians

"Diggers" was a name given to a number of tribes of North American Indians in California, Oregon, Idaho, Utah, Nevada and Arizona, which speak widely different languages and comprise a number of distinct linguistic stocks. The name is used especially to designate the Bannock, Piute and other Shoshonean tribes known to use roots extensively for food and who are hence "diggers" (in English). All it is a coincidence that the vernal and syllables "dika" and "tika" are common in Shoshonean band and tribal names.

Vinegar in History

Vinegar was first made from wine as its name indicates, at a remote period. Biblical writers mentioned it, and Hippocrates used it as a medicine. By the Sixteenth century vinegar from grapes was being produced in France for home consumption and for export. In England vinegar was first made from malt liquors as a method of disposing of ale and beer which had soured. For this reason it was known as "alegar." Although this name has long since become obsolete malt vinegar is still the standard in the British Isles. It is not known just when vinegar was first made in the United States, certainly very early as a home product.

Reading

The vast number of books we have impresses on us the necessity of a wise selection of what we read. One book may determine what a man shall be to all eternity. Benjamin Franklin said that a single reading of Cotton Mather's "Essay to Do Good," shaped his entire life. One page of a good book may save a soul. One paragraph of a bad book may ruin a soul. John Angell James, one of the best men England has produced, stood in his pulpit in his old age and said that he had never overcome the evil effect of having for fifteen minutes once read a bad book.—Exchange.

Slingshot Days

The country boy who uses a slingshot to knock some unwary sparrow off a limb has little thought that he is practicing one of mankind's earliest arts. Nor alone is the story of David an instance. There were long centuries of the Stone age when slung pebbles formed man's most effective weapon—his only weapon. It is probable—in the chase of that considerable fraction of his unkind food which had to be captured awing.

Newest American Sport

Critic-baiting has become an even surer and more typical American sport than training prize fights or fixing horse races and championship baseball games. Few men who practice professional criticism in this year of our Lord lives constantly in a metaphorical gasbouse district, his head and seat in imminent prospect of bush and hoot.—George Jean Nathan in Vanity Fair.

Golden Rule of Life

The Golden Rule, in various forms is found in the literature of several ancient peoples. It was taught by the Chinese philosopher, Confucius, more than five centuries before the Man of Galilee started on his ministry. In the Analects of Confucius appears this passage: "Tsze-kung asked, saying, Is there one word which may serve as a rule of practice for all one's life? The Master said, Is not Reciprocity such a word? What you do not want done to yourself, do not do to others."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Connecticut River

This name was given to the river before the region was colonized. Connecticut was formed from the first settlements near the mouth of the river.

The same occurred in many other cases—the Tennessee and the Missouri rivers, for instance.

The colonies and states near the mouth of the streams took the names of the rivers.

When the first settlements were made in what is now the state of Connecticut the region along the upper Connecticut river was an unexplored wilderness.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Paradox

Back in 1800 man rushed along on horseback or in horseless carriages at five or ten miles an hour. And in thirty-odd years he reached his final destination—the grave.

Nowadays by auto and airplane man dashes along at one to two hundred miles an hour. But it takes him, on an average, about fifty years to reach his final destination—the grave.

Moral: What's the use of hurrying?

Almost Any Family Can Own Its Own Home

That wasn't always true.

Co-operative banks were established to make it possible.

First you build up a foundation fund by regular monthly savings.

Later, you pay for the home that is contracted for, by regular monthly payments.

And since we operate on a co-operative basis, you share in our bank earnings when you are saving and also when you are paying.

Word Coined by Scientist

The word "protyle" was suggested by Sir William Crookes in 1886. In an address to the representative of the British association he says: "Let us picture the very beginning of time, before even the sun himself had consolidated from the original protyle. We require a word analogous to protoplasm to express the idea of original primal matter existing before the evolution of the chemical elements."

Taking Shine From Cloth

To remove the shine from long-used cloth, take an emery board or a piece of fine emery paper and rub it very gently with a rotary movement over the glossy surface. This raises the nap that constant rubbing has driven back into the material.

Making Genuine Diamonds

The mystery of the formation of diamonds has led scientists to experiment in making them. Lamp black was mixed into molten iron, which was dissolved in acid when cooled. Tiny diamonds thus were made.

The Salute

The order which abolished hat lifting among soldiers was given to the military school by Friedrich Wilhelm III in 1802. The soldier on entering a house was still expected to take off his hat, while a soldier on foot should lift his left hand horizontally to his eye, and the soldier on horseback should salute with his right hand.

Preserving Newspapers

The paper upon which modern newspapers are printed becomes brittle when exposed to air for a long time. Some libraries have solved the problem of preserving newspaper files by mounting each sheet between two sheets of thin Japanese tissue. This seals the paper from the air, reducing its legibility but slightly and strengthening the page.

Napoleon of Average Height

Napoleon Bonaparte, commonly spoken of as an abnormally short man, actually was of about average height. On his deathbed his physician, Antommarchi, found his measurement to be five feet six and one-half inches. In his prime he was probably taller. His dwarfed appearance was ascribed to his unusually short legs.—Mentor Magazine.

"Mechanical Ears"

So delicate are the "mechanical ears" perfected by scientists to detect sound waves in the air that a gun fired on the east coast of England was "heard" at Birmingham university, more than 135 miles away, says Popular Science Monthly. The sound was not heard by human ears, but was detected by the recording instruments.

Grandfathers on Vacation

Fifteen grandfathers, whose ages totaled 1,200 years, recently enjoyed their annual two weeks' vacation together at Littlehampton, England. They are members of the Browning Hall Grandfathers' club of London. The oldest in the party was eighty-four and the youngest seventy.

Boston's First Name

The name of the original settlement of Boston made it, August, 1630, was "Trimountaine." This name was given because of the three peaks of the most prominent hill, later called "Beacon Hill." The name "Boston" was formally given to the colony in 1752. This name was derived from the English town of Boston, the home of some of the leaders of the colony. The Indians called the settlement "Shawmut."

American History

S. Delaware is named for Thomas West, Lord de La War, who after his death was condemned to eternal hunger and thirst, although he stood in water to his chin with delicious fruits overhead.—"What's the Answer?" column in the San Francisco Examiner.

Hen Lays Twin Eggs

A hen in Exeter lays two eggs at a times, sometimes three. The owner explains this by saying that the hen, a last year's chick, has outstroke when a month old. Since it has grown up the hen has on four days a week laid two eggs at a time, and has twice laid three.

The Great American Bird

The great American bird, for the most practical of all utilitarian purposes, is the cuckoo, everyday, barnyard hen. She lays 720 eggs every second—that is to say, in modern, stimulated mass production she generically produces that many eggs in the country at large every second of every day in the year. Biddy is the best bird.—Savannah News.

Scots in Ireland

The term Scotch-Irish first came into use with the planting of the province of Ulster in Ireland with Scotch-Irish settlers in large six years after the accession of James VI of Scotland as James I of England. The original settlers were mostly Scotch and the Ulster plantation took on the character of a Scotch occupation of the north of Ireland.

PHOTOPLAY, "A CROWN OF THORNS"

First Congregational Church Sunday Evening at 7 O'clock

A beautiful photoplay on the life of Christ centering around the Crown of Thorns will be shown at the First Congregational Church Sunday evening at 7 o'clock in the Parish Hall. The following striking events in the life of Christ will be shown in this eight reel film: the desire of Judas to look upon the face of Christ; the sermon on the Mount; the Forgiveness of Mary Magdalene; the Healing of the Sick and Maimed; the Raising of the Dead; the Advent Into Jerusalem; Jesus in the Temple; Caiphus's Plot to Bribe Judas; the Lord's Supper; Judas' Kiss of Betrayal; the Trial before the High Priest of the Temple; Christ Before Pilate; the Crucifixion; the Resurrection.

This production was filmed in Germany, and is a religious classic. Rev. Orva Lee Ice, Pastor of the City Temple, New York City, says "I Must write you and express to you my satisfaction with the film, 'A Crown of Thorns'. This film measures up with any secular or popular screening. I stress this because the product must measure up to the showings in cinema houses, having the same clear and bright appearance. I like this presentation too for it brings 'new things out of old.' It is a different, and new angle to this age old and ever new, and everlasting theme of salvation. It will surely take with the ministry everywhere."

An offering will be taken to defray the expenses of the film.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On next Thursday evening a shamrock whist and social will be held at the home of the Regent, Mrs. Ambrose. Sister DeCourcey, Vice-Regent of the local Guild and Sisters McDonald and Davidson will be hostesses for this occasion. This affair is to aid the work of our charitable committee of which Sister Josephine Kane is chairman.

On next Sunday March 18 the several branches of the M. C. W. G. will conduct their semi-annual concert for the inmates and patients of the Holy Ghost Hospital in Cambridge. As is usual on these occasions many very delightful, as well as entertaining numbers will be presented for the enjoyment of the many individuals confined within the hospital. Little Evelyn Goggin who is receiving many favorable comments on her recent public appearances will read "The Rosary" with her usual youthful charm and will also dance the "Highland Fling" in costume, which is sure to please all. Mrs Helen Studley will render vocal solos, which as always, "take the house" for they are so well chosen that the listeners always receive just the type of entertainment they enjoy. Sister Mary McGrath of our local branch will also take part, and having performed at the Hospital several times before is now being looked forward to by the inmates who remember her talents. Each branch contributes concert numbers and shares in the expense of refreshments for the occasion, so all in all it is a red-letter day for the patients and the good Nuns who strive so hard to ease their suffering and ills.

The joint reception of new members and installation of officers will be held in White's Hall on Thursday evening, April 12. These exercises will be followed by a collation which is in charge of Sisters Callahan and Carroll, whom we can all rely on to do "it up brown" and to the "Queen's taste"

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The feature pictures at the University for four days beginning Sunday include "Old San Francisco" with Dolores Costello and "The Fourflusher" with George Lewis and Marion Nixon.

"Old San Francisco" portrays the lurid days of Chinatown and the Barbary Coast, before and during the "Great Fire". It is acclaimed by New York reviewers as one of the finest melodramas of the generation. Beautiful Dolores Costello plays the part of a Spanish heiress who is kidnapped by a half-caste boss of San Francisco's underworld, and goes through weird experiences and horrors which all terminate with the furious onslaught of nature and the great fire which relegates "the mile of hell" to oblivion.

"The Fourflusher" with Marion Nixon and George Lewis is unusually entertaining. It is a rare combination of dramatic story and comedy.

For the last three days of the week the pictures are "Beau Sabreur" and "The Girl in the Pullman".

"Beau Sabreur" is the sequel to "Beau Geste", the story of a French officer who vows never to look at another woman—then he meets one and falls in love with her while on a mission for his country. It is a story of the Foreign Legion and the Sahara desert, a thrilling tale of Touaregs. The cast includes Gary Cooper, Evelyn Brent, Noah Beery, Wm. Powell and a host of headliners.

"The Girl in the Pullman" stars Marie Prevost and Harrison Ford.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The date for the "Play" has been selected and it will be presented on Friday evening, April 27, in the School hall.

The next rehearsal will be held this evening at the home of the coach, Mrs. Frances T. Conlon, Canal street.

Besides the rehearsal there will be a meeting of the general committee for the play and it is hoped that as many of the committee as possible will be on hand.

DISABLED VETERAN'S WELFARE GROUP

The charming home of Mrs. A. K. Comins on Highland avenue was opened Wednesday to the Disabled Veterans' Welfare Group for their March meeting.

Reports of recent activities were given which included an interesting account by Mrs. R. K. Miller of a visit to the hospital at West Roxbury by Mr. Gross and Mr. Gibbs of the Edison Electric Company and Bob Emery (Big Brother) of WEEI. Through the efforts of the group these men gave the boys at West Roxbury an evening of entertainment. Pictures of the industrial development of the Edison Company were shown in the hut and fun was furnished by Bob Emery and his gang. Following this program the men visited Dr. "Jerry" Pagila to whom the group presented a radio at Christmas. Dr. "Jerry" was so moved by this visit that when his guests were about to depart he raised his apparently helpless hand to a full salute. that a constant visitor to Dr. "Jerry's" Dr. "Jerry" is enjoying his radio to the fullest extent. The nurses report that it is always tuned in and that a constant visitor to Dr. "eJrry's" corner is one of the blind veterans. That this man's days have been materially brightened by the radio is evident.

Mrs. Carlisle told of a letter of appreciation which she had received from a man who had derived much pleasure from a set of picture post cords.

Through the thoughtfulness of Mrs. Dutting four crippled boys from West Roxbury were taken to a sanitarium in Lexington for a day with one of their pals who is confined there.

Afghans continue to grow under nimble fingers and carry warmth and comfort to the boys at West Roxbury and Rutland. Yarn for this purpose is earnestly solicited. The regular Friday visits have been consistently made.

Following the business meeting bridge was enjoyed for an hour and tea was served by the hostess, Mrs. A. K. Comins, assisted by Mrs. E. D. Chase, Mrs. C. F. Winship, Mrs. P. E. Corey, Mrs. Sam. Taylor and Mrs. George F. Dutting. Mrs. C. F. Winship and Mrs. J. Robie Cove poured. Bridge prizes were won by Mrs. G. F. Burns and Mrs. W. F. Aseltine.

The next meeting of the group will be held at the home of Mrs. F. D. Fish, 15 Cambridge street on Wednesday, April 25. This is the annual meeting at which will take place the election of officers for the coming year.

EMBLEM CLUB AFFAIRS

At the last regular meeting night of the club, held on March 14, the following officers were elected to serve for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. Anne M. Hanlon
Vice President, Mrs. Caroline L. Coakley
Past President, Mrs. Emily A. Scholl
Recording Secretary, Mrs. Frances Sullivan
Treasurer, Miss Lillian S. Nicholson
Financial Secretary, Mrs. Kathryn I. Gerlin
Trustee for 3 Years, Mrs. Mary A. Fenton
Inner Guard, Mrs. Elizabeth F. Waman
Out Side Guard, Mrs. Doris L. Fitzgerald

Installation is scheduled for the first meeting night in April, at which time the appointive offices of Marshal, Chaplain, and Organist will be filled, the incoming President making the appointments.

The regular monthly social will be held in Lyceum Hall on Wednesday evening, March 28, under the direction of Vice-President Anne M. Hanlon assisted by members of the Entertainment Committee.

This, the last of the series of socials under the present regime, will be a testimonial to the Drill team. As announced by Mrs. Hanlon, the program will include a supper and costume party, with a grand march and prizes for the best costumes. A splendid menu from Friends' will be served at 6:30 p. m. The price is reasonable only enough to cover expenses—and the committee in charge guarantee full and plenty for the multitude. Of course the members of the drill team have Elk relatives who would like to see them honored, therefore this affair will be open to the public. Those who find it inconvenient to attend the supper will be admitted at half-price for the costume party and general dancing after 8 p. m. "Sonny" Coakley's jazz band will furnish the music. Tickets may be obtained from members of the entertainment committee.

On the request of President E. A. Scholl the team performed the flag drill after initiation exercises last Wednesday evening. Considering the lapse of time since the last appearance, it was a wonderful exhibition and every plaudit received was well deserved.

Last Sunday afternoon our drill team entertained the Degree team of Malden Auxiliary, Post 69, American Legion. Each gave a short exhibition under the direction of Drillmaster Martin McDonough of Stoneham and both teams were photographed by Mr. Frank Higgins. Luncheon was served by the chairman, Mrs. A. M. Hanlon, assisted by Mrs. Mae O'Neil, Mrs. Kathryn MacDonald, Mrs. Myrtle Goodhue, Mrs. Frances Sullivan and others. A visit to the post's quarters in Malden is planned for the near future.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

A most enjoyable social evening was conducted by the Court last evening in Lyceum Hall. After a program of Irish songs, readings and dances a chicken salad luncheon was served by the committee in charge.

Plans are being made for the supper and entertainment which the Court will hold in April at its second meeting.

NEW ODD FELLOW'S BUILDING DEDICATED

Large Attendance at Impressive Ceremony—Grand Master Present With Other Officers

The newly acquired home on Vine street of Waterfield Lodge, I. O. O. F., which was opened on New Year's Day, was dedicated Monday evening with impressive ceremonies by officers of the Grand Lodge in the presence of about 300 members and guests.

The regular meeting of the lodge was opened by Noble Grand John Lutes and immediately thereafter George H. Gunnison, Grand Marshall of the Grand Lodge, ushered in Charles R. Thompson, District Deputy Grand Master and suite, for whom places had been reserved.

Grand Master of the Grand Lodge, Charles T. Griffiths, with his suite was then ushered in by Marshall Gunnison, the former taking the presiding officer's chair. Included in the Grand Master's suite were George H. Gunnison, grand marshall; Waldo S. Ford, deputy grand master; Ralph F. Morton, grand warden; George H. Fuller, grand secretary; Samuel K. Walker, grand treasurer; Herbert B. Bond, brigadier-general of the Patriarchs Militant; Albert W. Bullock, grand instructor; G. Willard King, grand chaplain; and Mrs. May H. Gainor, past president and secretary of the Rebekah Assembly.

The ritual of dedication, with the laying of the altars, was exemplified in a finished manner by the grand officers with the Grand Master presiding. The incidental music occurring during the ceremony was sung by the Eliot Male Quartet.

Following the dedication addresses were made by Grand Master Griffiths and the members of his suite. Noble Grand John Lutes of Waterfield Lodge acting as master of ceremonies and introducing the speakers. Mr. Lutes also delivered the address of welcome to the grand officers. Interspersing the several addresses vocal numbers were sung by the quartet who were obliged to respond to frequent encores.

During the social hour opportunity was afforded every one to inspect the handsome bronze trophy donated by Governor Alvan T. Fuller and recently won in the initiatory degree competition from the Good Samaritan Association of Odd Fellows' lodges by the Prince Jonathan Association, of which Waterfield Lodge is a member. Five members of the local lodge were members of the winning team: Arthur H. Cameron, Walter Fancie, Milton Powers, Robert Hamilton and Walter Stewart.

Adding much to the pleasure of the occasion were the attractive decoration of palms and cut flowers by the Winchester Conservatories. The committee in charge of the entire affair included John Mead, chairman; J. Albert Hersey, Harley Fisher, George H. Hamilton, Carl Morse and Charles Forsaith.

BOSTON Y. W. C. A. CAMPAIGN

With an attendance far in excess of that at most opening dinners the Y. W. C. A. enthusiastically launched its building and maintenance fund campaign on Monday evening in the restaurant of the Boston Chamber of Commerce building. Bishop Wm. Lawrence, as principal speaker, said that the best part of the campaign is the educational effect upon the community. Mrs. Emma Fall Schofield, speaking for the business and professional woman, stressed the fact that the Association is open to every girl in Boston whether she be Catholic, Jew or Protestant. Mrs. Barrett Wendell, honorary chairman, also spoke. Governor Fuller was unable to attend the dinner but sent a letter of commendation for the campaign.

The new Y. W. C. A. building at Clarendon and Stuart streets, the ground for which was broken last summer is well under way and will probably be open for use in the fall. This is a completing campaign having as its objective the freeing of the building from mortgage. The swimming pool and gymnasium will be available to the school children of towns around Boston. It is hoped that there will be a swimming team entered from the Winchester schools.

Those comprising the Winchester campaign under the leadership of Mrs. Bertram Bernnard are Mrs. James S. Allen, Mrs. Harold Farnsworth, Mrs. Frederick N. Hamerstrom, Mrs. W. Holbrook Lowell, Dr. Mary Maynard and Mrs. James P. Heaton, publicity chairman.

Aim Is World Peace

The World Peace foundation known until 1911 as the International School of Peace, was founded by Edwin Ginn of Boston Mass. in 1909. Its object is to bring about by education through the college the press, the pulpit and the platform the peace and better order of the world. The management is vested in a board of trustees, a board of directors (corresponding to the faculty of a college) and an advisory council, the individual members of which are of high national and international reputation.

First Study of Comet

The comet of 1680 was the first one whose orbit was computed on the basis of the law of gravitation. Newton made the calculations and found that its period of revolution was about 600 years. At its perihelion it passed through the sun's corona at a distance of only 140,000 miles from its surface. It flew along this part of its orbit at the rate of 270 miles per second, and its tail 100,000,000 miles long changed its direction to correspond with the motion of the comet in its orbit.

Frog Raising in Japan

Frog raising has become a popular industry in Japan since the legs have been in such great demand for food. Frogs for breeding purposes bring as high as $18 a pair and tadpoles 18 cents apiece.

Saxophones Used in Fight on Devil

The saxophone—"instrument of the devil"—is being enlisted by the churches in their fight on the devil. It is indicated in advices reaching the Conn Music Center, Elkhart, Ind. All-saxophone quartettes and sextettes in church and Sunday school are among the "devil's own weapons" being used to win folks over to religion.

"Not so long ago it was quite common for church people to shun the mention of saxophone, let alone go to hear one played," says James F. Boyer, supervisor of the Conn Music Center. "The sentiment seemed to be, even among musicians, that the saxophone wasn't much good for but jazz, and for a while it did appear that the jazz artists were the only ones to recognize and make use of this comparatively new addition to the brass instrument family. Reports now coming in here, however, indicate a changed attitude on the part of the public. Artists know that the saxophone tones come nearest of all others in resemblance to the human voice, and recognize that there is nothing so beautiful musically as a saxophone solo. H. Benne Henton, one of the greatest living masters of this instrument, claims that no cleaner, more elevating or inspirational music can come from any instrument, and will not play anything that has the slightest taint of jazz in it. Saxophone quartettes and saxophone sextettes are winning a place for themselves in churches, especially those that cannot afford a pipe organ, and other churches have found that the appearance of an orchestra at church functions invariably draws increased attendance. This is indeed fighting the devil with his own weapons."

MUSICAL BUMP

The public school band movement now sweeping the nation is developing for America a "musical bump" that will even rival that displayed by the most colorful and tune-loving countries of the Old World, according to Frederick Neil Innes, internationally famous bandmaster of the 80's and now head of the Conn National School of Music, Chicago.

"The time is near at hand when even the smallest of communities will have its band," says Mr. Innes. "And they will be capable organizations, too.

"Never has there been such an indication of a widespread interest in band music. A school is as proud when their band wins the state championship as they are when their football eleven cleans up on every other aggregation in the section.

"The students are seeing music not only as a cultural pastime, but as the possible key to a remunerative profession.

"It is time the tide was turning. A year ago the average American spent but 10 cents on band music, while $1.50 was being spent on pianos, and $1 on talking machines. Those figures are due for material changes, and it will be the boys of the land who will change them."

Music for "Sissies"? Listen to These Boys

Elkhart, Ind.—The age-old contention that boys consider music as something for "sissies" is exploded in a survey brought to light by the Conn Music Center here.

More boys want to study music than do girls, questions put to 5,000 children between the fourth and ninth grades revealed. Forty per cent of the boys announced a willingness to study music if given an opportunity. Thirty-seven per cent of the girls manifested interest.

Parental influence was seen in the fact that while only 18 per cent of the musically interested expressed a preference for the piano, 50 per cent were studying that instrument. Only 12 per cent were interested in the violin, yet 20 per cent were taking lessons on the bow and fiddle.

The saxophone, the banjo and the cornet took honors for preference among the boys. None studying these instruments was dissatisfied. Among the extremely young boys the lowly harmonica ranked high.

To Spend Half Billion on 1928 Music Lessons

Elkhart, Ind.—Half a billion dollars will be spent by Americans for music lessons between now and next June, it is estimated by the Conn Music Center. The estimate is based on a statistical study by J. P. Blake of St. Louis.

According to Mr. Blake, there are 250,000 teachers of music who regularly practice their profession in the United States. These teachers average 20 pupils each. Allowing an average of two lessons a week for each student for the 25 weeks between now and June, means a total of 250,000,000 music-lesson hours, which at the average fee of $2 per hour, brings the income of the music teachers up to $500,000,000.

MUSIC AN AID TO ADOLESCENT BOY

Also Found Effective as Discipline in Corrective Institutions.

Rapid progress in the use of music as a means of discipline in corrective institutions, is reported by the Conn Music Center of Elkhart, Ind. Music is not only being used successfully as a tonic for diseased minds, but is also being found effective in safeguarding youth passing through adolescence. Wilhelm van de Wall, director of the Committee for the Study of Music in Institutions and a criminologist and sociologist who has spent a good portion of his life in experiments along this line, finds that musical work with the insane and mentally weak tends to make the inmates of such institutions forget their idiosyncrasies for a time at least. Musical exercises stimulate their mental activities, as well as their moral reflection. It makes them happier. Van de Wall tells of amazing transformations in patients brought about by music.

W. van de Wall.

"Music does for the abnormal mind identically what it does for the normal," says van de Wall.

"It dispels the gloom of morbid isolation and resultant delusions and hallucinations. It creates a direct, pleasurable, congenial and beautiful environment in tones. It stimulates some of the drowsy patients to vigorous action and many of the anti-social individuals to constructive activities. Even those unfortunates who are too handicapped mentally and physically to fit into the normal scheme of society, under the influence of music quickly drop their pathological moods and reflections, throw off their eccentric behavior and sing, dance, act and talk with full concentration of mind."

MUSIC PRACTICE AID TO SURGEON

Constant practice on a musical instrument as a means of acquiring that degree of skill which the surgeon must have for the successful pursuit of his profession, is advocated by a writer in an English medical journal, copies of which have been received by the Conn Musical Center. The editor of the magazine carrying the amazing article is a famous Gloucester surgeon whose advanced opinions are widely quoted.

The writer of the article maintains that constant and intensive practice on a musical instrument gives the surgeon a super-degree of dexterity. The difficult exercises required in bringing tuneful blasts from a horn are even superior to the skill required by the medical man in the midst of a major operation. Absolute muscular control of the fingers and their immediate response to mental suggestion are listed by the writer as paramount among the benefits derived from the musical sideline.

Oriental Term for Fate

Kismet is an oriental word meaning fate or destiny. It is the Turkish form of the Arabic "qismet." Mohammedans use "kismet" to express the idea that everything which occurs in the world is preordained and inevitable. In other words, "kismet" expresses a philosophy of predestination and fatalism.

Borrow Heads

Favored Settlement

After little Jimmy had listened to his older brothers saying the Lord's prayer, he felt that he, too, had attained the age at which he might discard his childish prayer for the Lord's prayer. With his mother's consent, he bravely started in. All went well until he came to the words "Forgive us our debts," then his memory failed. He considered for several moments and again bowing his head, he finished with, "Forgive us our debts and help us to pay them."

FOUR WINCHESTER RESIDENTS ON WRECKED S.S. ROBERT E. LEE

Winchester's interest in the fate of the Eastern Steamship Company's liner, Robert E. Lee, which went on the rocks off Manomet Point in a severe storm while on her way from Boston to New York last Friday night was increased considerably when it became known that four residents of the town were among the 150 passengers aboard.

Mrs. F. W. McLean of 9 Lewis road, Robert Apsey of 19 Symmes road, Jerome B. Foster of 1 Cliff street and Dean Symmes of 10 Madison avenue sailed upon the ill-fated steamer for New York and it was with relief that their respective families learned of their safe arrival upon shore.

Messrs. Apsey and Foster, members of the Winchester Chapter of the Gamma Eta Kappa fraternity, were on the first leg of a trip to Philadelphia where they were to attend the national convention of the order. The former is the son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Apsey of Symmes road and is associated in the insurance business with his father in Boston. Foster is the son of Mrs. Malinda A., and the late F. Jerome Foster and makes his home with his mother on Cliff street. He is employed by the Colonial Marble Company.

Both Foster and Apsey were among the last to leave the wrecked steamship. They were taken off by one of the power dories from the Manomet Light and Wood End Coast Guard Stations and transferred to the Revenue Cutter Bonham, in which they were taken to Plymouth. From Plymouth they returned to Boston by bus.

Mr. Symmes, who was going to New York to meet his mother, the latter returning from a cruise in the tropics, is a chemist and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Irving L. Symmes of Madison avenue. He was among the first to be transferred from the S.S. Robert E. Lee to the Revenue cutter Red Wing which then stood by until the very last moment to remove the captain and members of the crew from the wrecked steamship.

On the Red Wing was the body of the surfman from the Manomet Light Coast Guard Station who lost his life when the guardsmen's boat capsized during a trip to the wrecked ship. Surfman Clark, who was in a critical condition as a result of his immersion, was also on the ship, but was later transferred to the S.S. Paulding which rushed him to the Marine Hospital at Chelsea where he was pronounced dead from exposure.

The Red Wing did not leave the scene until 2 o'clock and Symmes was not landed in Boston until the middle of the afternoon. He was loud in his praise of the attention shown the passengers of the S.S. Lee by the officers and crew of the Red Wing. Many of these transferred from the big ship were made violently ill by the pitching of the smaller cutter and all were ministered to in the Red Wing's sick bay.

On the Robert E. Lee during the night and early morning conditions were not especially pleasant, according to accounts made public here. There were neither lights nor water, and very little food. What food was available was sold, it is said, at speculators' prices, one of the Winchester passengers paying 10 cents for a ham sandwich and an additional 50 cents for a bottle of ginger ale.

Efforts to reach Mrs. McLean at her Lewis road home were unavailing and the account of her adventures is not known. It is safe to say that none of the Winchester quartet would care to repeat his adventure.

Nomad Weavers

The inhabitants of eastern Asia are, generally speaking, a very ignorant class, education being almost unknown. From the top of a hill one may look down on a wide valley some 20 miles in width and observe a dozen or more black tents woven of goats' hair which are the homes of nomad weavers. These people, whose livelihood depends almost entirely on their flocks, are forced, and have been forced for untold generations to move about from place to place in search of pasturage, which is ever meager in this land of scanty rainfall. As one would expect, this mode of living has made these people a virile race, strong in body, but entirely devoid of culture.

NORAH A. FEEHENY

Following a two weeks' illness with pneumonia, Mrs. Norah A. Feeheny, aged 42, passed away Friday morning, March 9, at her home on Holland street. When stricken she had been recovering from injuries sustained about two months ago when she was struck by an inbound train at West Medford. It was necessary at that time to amputate one of her legs.

Mrs. Feeheny was born in Ireland but had spent much of her life in this country and had been a resident of Winchester for about 20 years. She is survived by her husband, Timothy Feeheny, a leather worker.

Funeral services were held from the late residence Monday morning at 8:15 with a solemn high mass of requiem celebrated in St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan was celebrant, Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merrit, subdeacon.

Edward Feeheny of Woburn, Edward Connors of Burlington, Mathew Sheehan of Everett and Martin Feeheny, Phillip O'Brien and Henry Noonan, all of Winchester, were bearers. There were many floral tributes. Interment was in Holy Cross Cemetery, Malden.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

"Lonesome Ladies," is the title of the screen feature the beautiful Granada Theater in Malden is offering the last three days of this week. It is a thoroughly satisfying picture presenting two stars, Lewis Stone and Anna Q. Nilsson at their very best. In addition to this fine screen feature the regular five-act bill of Granada vaudeville, selected by an expert will also be offered on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week.

Emil Jannings' latest American made picture, "The Last Command," comes to the Granada next Monday for a three days run, with the great European actor surrounded by the most imposing cast assembled for any of this season' picture. Evelyn Brent, the heroine of "Underworld," the ensational melodrama, is cast as Janning's leading lady, while William Powell, arch villian of the screen is seen as a scheming and sinister revolutionist that gives him scope for his unusual ability. "The Last Command," is still running on Broadway and bids fair to continue for many weeks to come. It is a big picture in every sense of the word and one that everybody will want to see. The vaudeville program, the Granada Symphony Orchestra and Roy Frazee, organist, are other features of every Granada program.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

Startling was the statement made by the National Secretary of the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U. at a recent regional conference, that 2,185,000 young men and women would reach voting age this year. Picture this long line of youthful citizens wending their way to the polls and depositing their ballots on that eventful Tuesday after the first Monday in November. How will they vote? How much of intelligence and conviction will be back of their ballots? What influences will determine their action on that momentous occasion? These are questions demanding careful and prayerful consideration. Many of these young voters are of foreign parentage, and may be influenced to vote for candidates who stand for policies inimical to the best interests of this country. Others may be ignorant of or have given little thought to the vital issues that are to be decided Nov. 6. If one may judge by past history politicians of the most undesirable type are already plotting how they may control these votes. But the Woman's Christian Temperance Union through its Citizenship department is reaching out a helping hand, by sending out helpful literature and information. Also through the Americanization and Young People's Branch departments, valuable work is being done among the young voters of foreign birth.

Many people know of the splendid work already accomplished by Dr. Louise Rand in the North End of Boston, and an opportunity to see and hear some of these young people, and know the high ideals and principles for which they stand, will be given on March 24, at 8 o'clock in the social hall of the First Congregational Church Parish House. Eighteen young Italian men and women, under the direction of Dr. Rand will present a three-act drama, "Commander-in-Chief."

A cordial invitation is extended to all. For further information see another column of this paper.

Richest Man of 300 B. C.

Interesting information about Croesus, famous rich man of ancient times, is reported by the Detroit News. The gift he presented to Delphi, 1000 years before Christ, would be valued at about $300,000,000 in modern currency. It included a statue of himself surmounted by a lion, both made of precious metals; two bowls of solid gold large enough to hold 5,000 gallons each, besides a present of $13 to every man in the city. And those were the days before there were oil wells or steel trusts and modern methods of getting rich quicker.

Fowls in Biblical Times

Partridges are noted in the 1104 Testament. The fatted fowl (1 Kings, 4:23) is interpreted as either goose or duck. Cocks and hens were brought from Persia two or three centuries before Christ. A tomb at Marissa of about 200 B. C. has a good representation of a crowing cock. Sparrows and other "twittering birds" were also used for food.

Drinking Flowers

Geraniums thrive if you feed them cold tea once in a while and hydrangeas seem to like weak coffee. Pour onto the roots only.

Where Swatters Are Taboo

In Ukrania, the southern Russia province, superstitious natives hold the common house fly in reverence and make no effort to kill the pest. Many persons regard the fly as a sacred animal.

Large Cheese Family

There are 18 distinct varieties of cheese and more than 400 names applied to these varieties—usually the names are adapted from the places in which the cheese originated—Limburger, Neufchatel, Roquefort, Camembert, etc. The milk of many different animals is used in cheese-making in various parts of the world. Cow's milk is by no means the only source. Goats and sheep give their milk for cheese.—New Age Illustrated.

Character Shown by Manner of Laughing

"People who laugh heartily may be trusted," said a student of psychology recently. "These people laugh with the eyes and the whole body as well as the vocal cords, and they are usually generous and sympathetic.

"Laughter is a sure indication of character. The man who laughs in his throat, with an almost straight face, for example, is generally shrewd and cautious, and not always overscrupulous in his methods.

"Inside laughters," whose shaking shoulders express their mirth, are good-natured, and make excellent parents, while those who laugh without a smile are hard-hearted and cruel. People with little jerky laughs are often of shallow character, and are unable to withstand temptation. They are, however, often mentally brilliant.

"People who laugh explosively and loudly are not the hearty, bluff creatures they are generally believed to be.

"The large-hearted souls are those who laugh but rarely, but whose joy is reflected in eyes, lips, and face."

Childish Fear Not to Be Roughly Treated

Fears are very crippling indeed. With wiser training our children might readily escape the specific fears and the general anxieties, timidities and self-doubts which so woefully hamper them. But you can never root fear out by brutal, radical or "the rule" measures. It is cruel to force a child, as is often done, to endure alone just what it most fears. You are not making him brave so, not even if he conceals his fears to please you. The fear pressed below the surface lives on and festers there.

Ridicule or honest amusement are likewise useless. Fear, no matter how foolish it sounds to the unfeeling, is too real a thing to be laughed off. It calls always for gentleness, sympathy, a serious effort to understand the cause, patient reassurance and, in many cases, skillful reeducation in which pleasant associations or better understanding on the child's part drive out the fear.—Edna Brand Mann in the New Age.

Unhappy Those Whose Hearts Are Wrinkled

A wrinkled face is often beautiful. In the old a smooth face looks unnatural. Wrinkles can tell life stories. They have a charm of their own.

"Never mind about wrinkles on the face," said an old French writer, "but take care that you have not a wrinkled heart."

That was a striking image, says the London Chronicle. The meaning is plain. We all know people whose hearts are wrinkled. They are not people we like or admire.

There is old Mr. Greedy, for example, whose heart has a deep furrow of selfishness across it. He has always thought of himself first; has sought his own advantage and cared nothing for the welfare of others. This is the result.

The heart of the cruel man is notched by a series of horrid marks, almost gashes; that of the lazy man has little flabby dents on it.

"Cubits," Queen Mary said, would be found on her heart. On the hearts of everyone of us our thoughts, our passions, our ideals, our endeavors, leave marks faint or strong. Let us beware they do not make ugly marks. A sorry burden is a wrinkled heart.

Privileges of Peers Growth of Centuries

In England there is always more or less objection to the house of lords, and efforts are constantly made in the direction of "reforming" it in one way or another. The word really means equals, and comes down from the Middle ages, when the great tenants in chief of the crown that is, those who held their land directly from the sovereign, were regarded as being all equal (or "pares" in the Latin) in law. Gradually a distinction arose between these direct tenants of greater barons and the rest. And so the old "pares" became peers. And as their first duty was to attend the king's courts, so bit by bit grew up the custom of attending parliament. Thus originated the house of lords.

The peers have always enjoyed certain privileges. The peer is exempted from serving on a jury, the theory however, being not so much out of any favor to himself as from a fear that the rank might influence his fellow jurors to his own point of view. And in addition, he has the magnificent—though never exercised—power of keeping on his hat in a court of law.

HARRY W. STEVENS

STEVENS WON ON RE-COUNT FOR SELECTMAN

As a result of the re-count held last Saturday afternoon in the Town Hall Harry W. Stevens of Winthrop street was elected to the fifth place upon the Board of Selectmen by one vote over Vincent P. Clarke of Church street, the former's margin being exactly the same as that by which Mr. Clarke was declared a winner at the election March 5.

The recount was petitioned for by a group of Mr. Stevens' supporters who felt that a single vote's difference without a check-up left the issue open to doubt. The candidate himself was content to allow the matter to stand as it was. Mr. Clarke welcomed the recount, showing himself a good sportsman. His attitude, both after the election and during the check up of votes lost him no friends.

Seldom has a re-count shown so little change as did that of last Saturday, the totals of only two candidates showing a difference of not more than two votes. The figures of Thomas F. Fallon were raised from 1521 to 1530 and those of William P. Callahan from 882 to 885. J. Harper Blaisdell dropped from 1619 to 1617. Joseph W. Worthen and Walter H. Dotten each gained one vote, the latter retaining his "high" ranking. Their new figures were repectively 1621 and 1651. The blanks showed a shrinkage from 3626 to 3619.

The recount of votes for Messrs. Stevens and Clarke kept the friends of both men in a state of excitement right up to the final block which was disposed of about 6:15 p. m. The two candidates were tied at the fourth block with Stevens leading at the 10th. Clarke pulled up onto even terms at the 16th and the two remained deadlocked until block 40. Here Clarke went into the lead only to have Stevens tie things up on the 51st. The final block decided the issue and Stevens was returned a winner 1190 to 1189. The analysis shows that Stevens gained 4 votes on blocks 4, 10, 51 and 56, and lost 4 on blocks 16, 32 and 40. His total remained the same as that originally credited him on March 5. Clarke gained 1 on the 56th block and lost three on blocks 16 and 32, leaving his total one less than his first figures.

Contributing largely to the discrepancy which had occurred in connection with the original counting of the ballots was the fact that in some instances ballots had been marked for six and seven candidates for Selectman instead of the legal five. These ballots instead of being thrown out had been counted and their totals added to those of the legally marked sheets. The fact that the recount showed so little change, however, is proof that Winchester is getting rather a high type of service from its ballot clerks.

The recount for assessor failed to make any material change. Mr. Cassidy lost but one vote, Mr. Hamilton's total remained the same and the blanks raised one. The new figures were John F. Cassidy, 1330; Robert M. Hamilton, 1297; blanks, 160.

ST. MARY'S CROWDED AT SERVICES FOR CATHERINE SULLIVAN

St. Mary's Church was taxed to its capacity last Saturday morning when a solemn requiem high mass was celebrated at 9:30 o'clock for Mrs. Catherine Sullivan, widow of Patrick Sullivan and for more than half a century a widely known and universally beloved resident of this town.

Rev. Fr. Joseph M. Fitzgibbons of St. Bridget's Church, Abington, formerly assistant pastor of St. Mary's in Winchester, was celebrant with Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley, deacon, and Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan, subdeacon. Rev. Fr. Charles H. Donahue of St. Bridget's Church, Maynard, was master of ceremonies. Seated within the sanctuary were Rev. Fr. Steven S. Moran of St. Peter's Church, Cambridge, and the pastor of St. Mary's Church, Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt. All of the clergy were present at the committal service in Calvary Cemetery where the interment was made.

The pallbearers were Chief David H. DeCourcy of the Fire Department, Charles J. Harrold, Edward Fitzgerald, Michael Crampton and Edward J. Maguire, all of Winchester, and William J. Fallon of Stoneham. Two open carriages were necessary to transport the profusion of floral tributes which indicated clearly the esteem in which the deceased was held by her many friends.

Mrs. Sullivan passed away last week Wednesday forenoon at her home on Spruce street where she had lived for the past 56 years. Four daughters, Mrs. Julia E. Lane, Miss Catherine T. Sullivan, Miss Nellie M. Sullivan and Miss Teresa E. Sullivan; and two sons, Eugene P., and Maurice J. Sullivan, survive her with a brother Jeremiah Breen, and three grandchildren John, Eugene and Robert Lane, all of Winchester.

FIRST ADJOURNED TOWN MEETING SESSION HELD

Article 10, pertaining to reports of committees was next considered. Under this head Whitfield L. Tuck first introduced a successful motion calling for a committee of three to be appointed by the Moderator to investigate and report at an adjourned Town Meeting upon the matter of enlarging the square at the junction of the Parkway, Washington and Winthrop streets by taking land from the high school lot, the same to be done in the interest of the safety of life and limb.

His second motion proved unsuccessful. Briefly it was that a committee of one be appointed to express suitably the community's congratulations to Maribel Vinson, the Winchester girl who reflected credit upon her town and country by winning fourth and second places respectively at the recent Olympic and London skating championships. Mr. Laraway did not feel that Mayor Thompson of Chicago would favor the motion inasmuch as a part of it referred to the approval showered upon Miss Vinson by the King and Queen of England.

Reporting for the Library Committee, Edgar J. Rich stated that his group was this year giving way to the committee upon increased secondary school facilities. It was felt that the library committee could do little of a constructive nature until the site for the proposed new junior high school was decided upon. In this connection it was voted to continue the library building committee for another year with the understanding that said committee should report its recommendations at the next Town Meeting.

Charles R. Main reported progress on the part of the Wyman School addition committee and the meeting voted to accept the report of the Highland District School building committee, ordering the committee discharged with the appreciation of the Town.

The long expected report of the committee on secondary school facilities was given by Chairman Willard T. Carleton. Briefly it boiled down to the committee's belief that the Town is badly in need of another school building to adequately house its grammar and first year high school grades.

At this point the meeting moved to the consideration of Article 13, inserted to see if, briefly, the Town will construct a school house for secondary school facilities, determine where and when it shall be constructed, acquire land, appropriate money, determine in what manner the money shall be raised and expended, etc.

Mr. Carleton offered the motion that the Selectmen be instructed to petition the General Court to authorize the Town to borrow not exceeding $250,000 in excess of the statutory limit of indebtedness for the purpose of constructing a school building and of originally equipping and furnishing same. Superintendent of Schools James J. Quinn spoke at some length upon the necessity of a school to relieve the congestion in the high school and Wadleigh buildings. In this connection the idea seems to be that the present Wadleigh building might be utilized as a lunch room to relieve congestion at the high school and as a housing for the School Department's proposed industrial education program. Mr. Carleton's motion was carried and the meeting took up at once Article 11.

In speaking on a motion introduced under this head to see if the Town would accept the Prince School site as a location for the new school building, providing it is decided to erect same, Mr. Carleton stated that though his committee had voted to recommend the acceptance of this site because it had appeared that to do so would be to acquire the necessary land in the cheapest way possible, his group had no desire to force the location upon the Town. The opposition to the plan, including Jonas A. Laraway, Sewell E. Newman, Edward S. Larned and Edward H. Kenerson, did not concur but felt that the grading necessary at the Prince School lot would more than offset any saving its choice might afford. It was also pointed out that in choosing a site on the other side of the railroad tracks Manchester Field would become better available for playground purposes and that a site adjacent to the high school might result in a central heating plant for both buildings at a substantial saving. Among the other sites which might be utilized and which were mentioned Monday evening are the triangular lot south of the high school building, the Corse lot, land adjacent to and including the Gifford School lot, land on Washington street between Winthrop street and Francis circuit and the lot at the junction of the Parkway and Washington street formerly owned by the Christian Scientists.

The motion to accept the Prince School lot was put and lost, 69 to 333. It was then voted that a committee of five be appointed by the Moderator to report at a special Town Meeting upon "other locations for a junior high or secondary school."

This brought the meeting to the consideration of Article 21 and under this head it was voted to appropriate $5250 in addition to the amount heretofore appropriated for the acquisition of land for the enlargement of the Town Hall lot, substantially for the lot owned by the First Church of Christ, Scientist at the corner of Washington street and the Parkway. There was no opposition.

It was then decided to take up Article 22, but because of a technicality it was tabled without a motion. In brief this article had to do with the disposition of the dwelling upon the former Joy property acquired by the Town at the last annual meeting.

Reverting to Article 11, inserted to see if the Town would authorize the Park Commissioners to acquire certain land near High street and adjacent to the old West Side High Service Water Supply Tank for the purpose of a public park, Mr. Parsons offered the motion that an appropriation of $7000 be authorized and that the commissioners be instructed to acquire approximately nine acres of said land by eminent domain or otherwise for the above stated purpose. There was no opposition and the motion was carried 350 to 3.

Skipping over to Article 40, inserted to see if the Town would accept the alteration of Main street by widening on the southwesterly side from Thompson street to Church street adjacent to the railroad crossing, it was voted to accept the layout as offered by the Selectmen and to appropriate $4500 for construction and land damages. This brought the appropriations authorized by the meeting to $16,750 which added to the $861,180.39 appropriated at the opening session brings the total to $877,930.39.

With the conclusion of Article 40 the meeting adjourned until next Monday, March 19, at 7:45 p. m.

WINCHESTER GIRLS WON FINAL GAME WITH MELROSE

Winchester High School girls' basketball team wound up its season Tuesday afternoon when it defeated the Melrose High girls at Melrose, 34 to 30. As the score would indicate the game, especially in the final quarter was close enough to be very exciting, despite the fact that Coach Wheeler's charges led all the way.

Capt. "Sunny" Davis put the locals out in front with a floor basket soon after the opening whistle and during the entire first half Winchester's superiority was rather marked.

The opening quarter ended 6 to 2 for Winchester and at the half the score stood 15 to 8. The clubs battled on exactly even terms during the quarter following intermission, each sextet adding 9 points to its total.

Winchester's early game lead came in very handy during the final 8 minutes when the locals were outscored by Melrose, 13 to 10, with Captain Colbert showing some real sharpshooting. The home team's rally, however, fell just a bit short of evening the count and when the referee's whistle ended the engagement Coach Wheeler's girls had a winning margin of a couple of baskets.

During the last quarter Beulah Kelley, Melrose crack right guard, sustained an angle injury and had to be removed from the game. She and Capt. Colbert were easily the stars for the losing club and the last named was the game's high scorer with a total of 25 points.

For Winchester Capt. Jean Davis accounted for 21 points with Virginia Merrill tallying 13. Margaret O'Donnell and Frances Pettingell played well on defense.

The summary:

Today's Chandler is one of America's Greatest Automobiles

AFTER carefully examining this year's automobiles of various makes—we are doubly convinced that the new Chandler offers more style and luxury—more real comfort—much livelier performance—than any other car within hundreds of dollars of the price.

Today's new Chandler is proving itself one of America's greatest automobiles. Chandler's Big Six can outperform any six it meets—and Chandler's Royal Eight will outperform any eight. And they also offer you the most important improvement in years . . .

Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes! As the first American car equipped with this development of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Chandler is absolutely effortless to control at any speed.

Just the softest, gentlest touch of your toe on the brake pedal brings the car to a quick, safe stop with marvelous "cushioned" smoothness.

And, say—if you have never driven a Chandler, drive one now. Step on the gas trigger—feel that irresistible, instantaneous surge of Pikes Peak high-velocity power.

And to lubricate the chassis from end to end, you merely press a plunger with your foot—and Chandler's "One Shot" centralized lubricating system does the whole job automatically. Saving money. Saving time.

And what a variety of magnificent models—thirty of them—$995 to $2195 f. o. b. factory. Come see—come drive—compare!

LADIES' FRIENDLY NOTES

The Ladies' Friendly Society held their monthly meeting in Metcalf Hall Tuesday. The executive board met in the morning and the whole alliance was served a typical New England luncheon at one by Miss Studley and Mrs. Robbins.

The program was again a home talent day and in recollection of the last one the ladies were present in large numbers to listen to their own ladies and pastor. Mrs. Gertrude Barnes, accompanied by Mrs. Alexander at the piano, carried the ladies back some years with the memories recalled with her sweet and true singing of "Grasses and Roses," "Good Night Little Girl, Good Night" and "The End of a Perfect Day."

Mr. Reed briefly congratulated the ladies on the morale of the church under the existing building program and in his subject, "The Test of the Gothic Arch," he gave many serious and humorous incidents surrounding his pastorate of the Roger Memorial Church at Fairhaven. He likened the reactions of the visitors to the beautiful cathedral as "The Test of the Gothic Arch on the American Heart." Mr. Reed classified the visitors into three groups, the mere sightseers, the beauty lovers and the worshippers. He told many of his personal encounters with each group and paid great tribute to the cathedral's Scotch sexton and aged Sunday School superintendent, recounting some of their tenderest, humorous and devout remarks. In summary Mr. Reed said the test was encouraging and showed the Cathedral's exalting effect on the little New England town.

Tickets for the Richard Halliburton lecture will be handled by the directors of the society as well as the special committee for the event.

ROTARIANS INVITED

President George of the Winchester Rotary Club received today from President Laurence Marshfield of the Salem, Mass. Rotary Club a cordial invitation in behalf of his club for every member of the Winchester club to attend the Spring Conference of the 31st District of Rotary International, which is to be held in Salem on Monday and Tuesday, April 23 and 24.

President Marshfield writes that the Salem Rotarians are making elaborate plans for the comfort and convenience of the visiting Rotarians and that they intend seeing to it that every man coming to the Conference has the time of his life.

Several of the local Rotarians have already expressed their intention of attending the Conference and by April it is probable that over half the Winchester club will be signed up.

Open Sesame

If we observe, soon we are able to perceive; if we perceive, soon we are able to understand; and if we understand, soon we are able to sympathize; and if we truly sympathize, all the doors of nature and human nature stand open to us.—Woman's Home Companion

Varieties of Canaries

Canaries were known in a domesticated state at the close of the Fourteenth century, though they may not have been common, as Gesner, who wrote in 1555, said that he had never seen one. Variation among them began early, as partly yellow birds were known at Nuremberg in 1614 and in 1677 wholly yellow canaries (also a white variety) were recorded from Augsburg. In Germany, an early center for the fancy, the various forms have had their origin in distinct geographic areas, and though some are almost extinct at present all at one time or another have had a devoted following of fanciers. At present at least 14 distinct strains with a large number of varieties, are known.

Dominant Traits Not Transmitted by Male

It is women, and not men, in the long run, who transmit family traits, points out Rheta Childe Dorr in an article in Liberty.

"Highly bred male lines run out long before female lines of equal rank," continues the author. "Constant wars account, in some measure, for this. In every great war large numbers of superior males are killed off, leaving inferior types to perpetuate the race. The superior women, however, are not killed off, and they not only transmit their heritage to future generations, but they educate and train the children born to the inferior male types.

"Even bearing wars out of the question, it is a strange fact that finest male lines disappear earlier than the female lines. Thus women are not only the physical carriers of the race but carriers also of its cultural heritage."

MRS. ALFRED T. SHERMAN

Funeral services for Wineva Colgate Sherman, 57, wife of Alfred T. Sherman of 542 Mount Auburn street, Watertown, were held Sunday afternoon at St. John's Methodist-Episcopal Church, Mount Auburn street, Watertown, with the Rev. Frank D. Taylor, pastor of the church, officiating. Burial was in Chestnut Hill Cemetery, Burlington.

Mrs. Sherman was an active member of St. John's Church. She was a member of the Guild class, treasurer of the Italian Mission Society of Boston, and also was a member of the Watertown Women's Club.

A native of Burlington, Mrs. Sherman for some years made her home in Winchester on Lloyd street and will be remembered by many older residents of the town. She is survived, besides her husband, by five sons, William Homer Colgate of Larchmont, N. Y.; Kenneth M. Colgate and Malcolm S. Colgate of Winchester, Arthur B. Colgate and Allan W. Sherman of Watertown. Two sisters, Mrs. Carolyn McLaughlin of Burlington and Mrs. Sarah Thuemel of Quincy, also survive her.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The public meeting sponsored by the Winchester League of Women Voters was held on Tuesday, March 13. The small Town Hall being filled by a representative audience. The speakers were introduced by the President of the League, Mrs. A. Beatrice Thompson. Representative Wadsworth was unable to be present as he was detained by unavoidable business, his place being taken at the eleventh hour by Ex-Representative Samuel Mendum of Woburn who spoke on the Republican possibilities for the next President.

Mr. Mendum gave a brief sketch of Hoover, Lowden, Curtis, Willis of Ohio and Dawes.

Senator Wm. I. Hennessey of Dorchester followed with the Democratic possibilities. He spoke in his usual vivid manner of Ritchie Walsh of Montana, Reed of Missouri and "Al" Smith. After a rising vote of thanks for the speaker of the evening the meeting closed at 9:15.

Defect in the Painting

Zeuxis, a famous Greek painter who lived in the latter half of the Fifth century, B. C., is reputed to have painted a bunch of grapes that looked so natural that birds came and pecked at them. This is said to have occurred during a competition between Zeuxis and a young rival named Parrhasius. Zeuxis admitted that his rival surpassed him when Parrhasius painted a curtain by which the older artist himself was deceived, says Pathfinder Magazine. Pliny gives a different version of the story. He says Zeuxis painted a boy holding grapes toward which birds flew. The artist commenting upon the incident, said that if the boy had been as well painted as the grapes the birds would have kept at a distance.

The "Seven Seas"

Col. G. E. Gerini in his "Researches on Ptolemy's Geography of Eastern Asia" traces the expression "seven seas" back to Indian and Chinese legend. From the "Periplus" Colonel Gerini has made the following list of seven seas: Sea of Salt Water, surrounds India; Sea of Sugar Cane Juice surrounds Burma; Sea of Wine surrounds the Malay Peninsula; Sea of Clarified Butter, surrounds the Sunda archipelago, Sea of Milk, surrounds Siam and Cambodia; Sea of Curds and Whey, surrounds southern China; Sea of Fresh Water, surrounds northern China and Mongolia. It is apparent, therefore, that the idea of the seven seas is of considerable antiquity and the original list may be older.

What Is the Ego?

When I lift my hand eight inches and turn a leaf of the novel I am reading, I put into operation more forces than science will ever explain. Indeed, they are so numerous and inexplicable that science will never complete the mere listing of them. The human individual cannot know much about the mysteries that are in the action of a muscle. All our philosophers, over 25 centuries of ardent analysis, cannot determine whether I resolve to turn the leaf or whether "I" is just a name for the joint action of some nervous forces. Our psychologists have no conception of what an "I" is. So nothing can be said of the origin of this motion of my arm. It simply appeared from a region as unexplored as heaven.—(From "Exploring the Universe," by Henshaw Ward.)

Fine Strand of Gold

A sample of gold wire drawn so fine that 3,500 yards weigh only one ounce attracted much attention at an exhibition of gold and silver wire drawers held not long ago in England.—Compressed Air Magazine.

Comparatively New Word

Nowhere has the practice of cheering taken such a place as in America. It has no real analogy at English schools and universities. English crowds. It is said, became familiar with it only about 20 years ago when the New Zealand football team introduced the cries of the Maoris into their matches there. The word cheer in the sense of shout of encouragement or applause is really of recent coinage. The meaning does not appear in Johnson, and Defoe speaks of it as a sailor's word.

Odd Sea Birds

Frigate birds or man-of-war are birds which are found on the island Ascension. The original species was named Fregata aquila by the naturalist Linnaeus in 1758. They are now known to be confined to this little oceanic rock. These odd sea birds have bodies about the size of those of ordinary barnyard hens, with enormous long wings, which spread as much as ten feet. Their bills are long with hooked tips, which make them dangerous weapons, and their feet are so tiny and so weak that they can scarcely waddle.

Nature's Eccentricities

Visitors to the Lake district of England are familiar with the disappearing island of Derwentwater, but few know that it possesses a mountain that rocks. The Napes Needle on Great Gable is loose, and may at any time came crashing down the mountainside.

Wastdale and Wastwater are at the foot of the Great Gable, which is rock ribbed the most perfect mountain form in Britain. Wastdale head a great center in the season for crag-climbers and hill-walkers has three well-known hostels—that it possesses the highest mountain, the deepest lake, and the smallest church in England. The roof of the church is said to be partly formed of the hull of a Norse galley.

Ape With Curiosity

A chimpanzee, a pet of a Berlin postman, amuses itself by turning in fire alarms and stirring by and watching the fire engines come.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Enough Herrings for All

That great sea bird the gannet or solan goose, requires a large amount of fish. There are not many breeding haunts in these islands, but the few that we have are wonderful nurseries for them, for the birds congregate in their thousands occupying every available ledge on the giant cliffs they choose for their home. The gannets of Great Britain alone consume not less than 600,000,000 herrings a year. Yet there appears to be plenty in the sea for them and us. If every gannet in the world were exterminated I doubt if it would make the slightest difference to the amount of herrings captured by our fishermen.—London Mail.

He Threw a Turnip

A society woman called on a famous painter who, when necessity arose could express himself with emphasis.

Her ceaseless chatter did not permit him to get in a word edgewise.

At length a pause to take breath allowed him to say, "We had boiled mutton and turnips for lunch today."

"What a strange observation!" the woman exclaimed.

"Well," he said, "it is as good as anything you have been saying for the last two hours."—London Tit-Bits.

The Strawberry Tree

The strawberry tree as distinguished from the strawberry plant is not a native of England, although it is to be seen occasionally in the parks and gardens of that country, but in Ireland it is frequently found growing wild especially in the neighborhood of Killarney. It usually bears flowers about the end of September or beginning of October, and along with the flowers are found the fruits of the previous year.

The fruit is a large orange-red berry, closely resembling the strawberry; hence the name of the tree.

Independent Cities

St. Louis, Mo., is not in any county. It is an independent city. There are 22 such cities in the United States.

"Your Button?"

Rev. W. G. Williams, vicar of Messing near Tiptree, Essex, has thought of an original method of shaming members of his congregation who put pearl buttons in the collection bag. The buttons are affixed to a card pinned on the church door in full view of the congregation as they leave after the service.—London Mail.

Wanted Plenty of Them

Little Frances had returned from a visit with her grandmother in the country. While there she had heard of flocks of sheep and flocks of chickens.

Her mother had taken her down town to buy a new dress, when Frances saw a large number of dresses for sale in the store and she said, "Oh, mother, please get me a whole flock of those pretty dresses."

Valuable Oil

Cod liver oil has long been popularly employed in northern Europe in rheumatic and strumous diseases. It was first brought to the notice of the profession generally by German practitioners and had acquired great reputation on the continent before it was used to any extent in Great Britain. At Manchester, in England, it was employed by the medical profession in the treatment of chronic rheumatism and gout as early as 1736, but it was not until the appearance of the treatise of Professor Bennett of Edinburgh 1841, that it came into general notice in Great Britain and the United States.

FINAL SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

Article on School Location Reconsidered—Action on Under-Pass Postponed

There was no danger of an overflow at the final session of the annual Town Meeting, held Monday evening when only 248 voters gathered in the Town Hall to pass upon the articles remaining in the 1928 warrant.

Article 12 was first considered. Inserted in the warrant to see if the Town would vote to purchase or take by eminent domain the land on the northeasterly side of Irving street as an addition and for the purpose of access to the land north of Irving street, purchased by the Town in 1916 as a source of road building materials it aroused little interest. The Finance Committee recommended an appropriation of $150 for its purchase and a motion to that effect was quickly passed with no opposition.

Article 15, pertaining to the closing of School street, was voted indefinitely postponed upon a motion offered by Willard T. Carleton. It was then voted to reconsider Article 14, relating to the locating of the proposed new school for "secondary facilities".

Under this head it was voted the week previous to have a committee of five appointed by the moderator report at a special Town Meeting upon locations for a junior high or secondary school building.

After voting to reconsider Article 14 it became necessary to reconsider Article 10 to alter the original vote upon the new school committee. Under Article 10, Mr. Carleton offered the motion that the number of the committee be raised to seven and that in addition to reporting upon the site of the proposed new school the second committee should also pass upon the necessity for increased accommodations at the William J. Noonan School. Jonas A. Laraway did not favor this plan and was especially opposed to having a single committee pass upon both projects. He wanted two committees and separate votes. William L. Parsons offered a motion that Mr. Carleton's original motion be tabled and that Town Counsel, Addison R. Pike, be instructed to prepare a new one for consideration. The thought was accepted by the meeting and while Mr. Pike was at work upon his motion it was voted, with reference to action upon the proposed secondary school, that the original committee be discharged and that a new committee of seven members be appointed by the moderator to consider locations for a new building to provide for secondary school facilities. It was further voted that the committee be requested to prepare a report describing and setting forth the estimated cost of acquiring such locations as it may deem suitable, to file its report in writing with the Selectmen and to have the same printed and distributed to voters in season for consideration at a special Town Meeting to be held in June.

STANLEY HIGH
World Traveler ... Lecturer

UNION SERVICE IN UNITARIAN CHURCH SUNDAY AT 4:30 P. M.

The Inter-Church Council considers itself fortunate in having secured for the monthly Union Service Sunday afternoon, Stanley High, who is just returning from a trip around the world.

Mr. High was connected with the Youth Movement in America and Europe, and has been its spokesman before audiences all over the United States. He is a young man of brilliant talent and has been a leader in church student activities. He should, therefor, be able to speak with authority on his subject, "As Youth Sees It."

It is expected that there will be a large audience to greet him at this service.

Robert V. Donaghey of Border street, Woburn, a former well known Winchester boy and the son of Mrs. Annie Donaghey of Water street, underwent a major operation at the Choate Memorial Hospital on Wednesday when he was stricken with a hemhorrage of the stomach while at the Woburn office of Dr. Vernon C. Stewart by whom he is employed as a chauffeur. Mr. Donaghey was rushed to the hospital where he was operated upon by Dr. Loter of Boston. The operation was said to have been very successful but Mr. Donaghey is still in a critical condition. His trouble is said to be the result of his having been gassed while serving with the American Expeditionary Forces in France during the World War.

CALUMET NOTES

The big event took place last Tuesday evening when the bowling dinner of the Men's Winter Tournament occurred. We had as guests members of the University Club of Boston who have so liberally entertained us on several occasions. A special table was reserved for them. The dinner was served by Fitzpatrick Brothers of Malden and they prepared a very sumptuous feast. Practically all of those who rolled in the tournament were present and the clubhouse was the scene of much life and activity. Chairman Pilkington and his committee awarded the prizes. Bowling matches composed of three teams of the University Club and three teams of the Calumet opposed each other, Calumet winning three out of four points.

GEORGE WILLIAM HARROLD

After a plucky fight of four years against the ravages of ill health, the result of having been gassed while serving in France with the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War, George William Harrold, a former well known Winchester boy and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Harrold of Washington street, died Wednesday morning at his home on Canal street in West Medford where he had lived for the past year. Following his discharge from the service his health became impaired and he was sent for treatment by the Government to the Veterans' Hospital at Rutland from which he was discharged two years ago. Since that time he had grown steadily worse.

Mr. Harrold was born in Winchester 29 years ago and was educated in the public schools of the town. On May 10, 1916 he enlisted in the National Guard at Stoneham and trained at Camp Westfield with Co. H, 1st Batallion of Infantry. He was transferred to Co. B, 101st Military Police and later to Headquarters Co., his regular assignment being with the 21st Regiment, 26th Division.

From Oct. 9, 1917 to April 18, 1919 Mr. Harrold served overseas, seeing action at Chemin des Dames, Toul, Chateau-Thierry, St. Mihiel and Meuse-Argonne. He was cited in General Order, Headquarters 26th Division, July 20, 1918. He was promoted to clerk before being honorably discharged April 29, 1919.

Following his discharge the deceased was employed for a time by the Winchester Water Department and later with the Beacon Oil Company. For the past four years he has been unable to work because of the state of his health. He was a member of Winchester Post, 97, American Legion, and a charter member of Winchester Lodge, 1445, B. P. O. E.

Surviving, besides his parents, are his wife, who was Miss CeCelia McCarthy of Medford, and two children, Natalie, aged 6; and George, Jr., aged 9 months. Three sisters, Mrs. Leo T. Hannon of Winchester, Mrs. Frank T. Hobley of Mobile, Ala., and Miss Eileen Harrold of Winchester also survive him with two brothers, Charles of Winchester and James Harrold of Linden, N. J.

Funeral services are to be held Saturday morning at 8:15 from the Harrold home at 241 Washington street with a solemn requiem high mass in St. Mary's Church at 9. The remains are to be accorded full military honors with a detail from Winchester Post, A. L., under Comndr. W. Allen Wilde, in charge of arrangements. The Elks' funeral ritual is to be exemplified this evening at the residence of Mr. Harrold's parents by the officers of Winchester Lodge, headed by Exalted Ruler George H. Lochman. Interment is to be in Calvary Cemetery.

THE HALLIBURTON LECTURE

A lecture by Richard Halliburton under the auspices of the Ladies' Friendly is scheduled to take place in the Town Hall on Saturday evening, March 31. Halliburton, at the age of 27 is already the author of two best sellers—"The Royal Road to Romance" and "The Glorious Adventure" founded on his unparalleled adventures while roaming the earth without a penny in his pockets during the three years after his graduation from Princeton.

The tale of the various stunts that he has done in the course of his wanderings will make a breath-taking evening for the younger people, while the older ones will take delight in his love of the classic lore of ancient Greece. Swimming the Hellespont climbing Vesuvius, Aetna, the Matterhorn and Fujiyama, running the Marathon over the original course and bathing in the sacred pool of the Taj Mahal were a few of his many-colored activities.

Halliburton is able to relate his doings in a humorous and whimsical style that is all his own, and there is no question that he will provide an evening of rare entertainment. It is a lecture for the whole town—old and young. Tickets may be procured from Mrs. Geo. Apsey, tel. 0615-M, or Mrs. C. E. Young, tel. 0805 and the proceeds will go to the new Unitarian Parish House.

A delightful bridge was held in the Masonic Apartments Monday evening by the local chapter, O. E. S., 22 tables participating in the play. There was a prize for each table and refreshments were served during the evening. Mrs. Grace Johnson and Mrs. Mary J. Wallace headed the committee in charge of the arrangements.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S INTER-CHURCH FEDERATION NOTES

The March meeting of the Young People's Inter-Church Federation will be held this Sunday evening at the Church of the Epiphany. Supper will be served to all the young people of the church in town at 6 o'clock in the parish house. At 7 o'clock a service will be held in the church. The speaker will be Baha Bakri, a young Mohammedan who was born in Damascus, studied in Egypt and is now a student at M. I. T.

The members of the various societies are asked to make a special effort to attend both the supper and the service as the supper is an experiment on the part of the council.

The Federation is planning to hold a Sunrise Service on Easter Sunday morning. Further plans will be announced later.

The members of the council are asked to attend a special meeting of the council directly after the service Sunday evening.

Junior Service League Notes

The league will hold no regular meeting this Sunday, but will co-operate with the other churches in the Inter-Church supper and service to be held at our church. The members of the League are asked to be present as we are the hosts of the other churches in town.

AT THE BAPTIST CHURCH

Next Sunday evening the Stanton Street Methodist Boys' Band of Dorchester, consisting of 22 pieces will be present and will show what the boys of a church can do. They will not only furnish music as a boys' band, but also will be heard as a boys' chorus.

On the following Sunday evening, April 1, "Gounod's Gallia" will be given by our chorus choir. On Easter Sunday evening, there will be an Easter pageant under the direction of Miss Eda Knowlton, Director of Young People's work.

The newly elected Finance Committee, whose object is to raise funds for the new Baptist Church buildings met at the home of its Chairman, Mr. Harry T. Winn, last Friday. It was the unanimous decision of the committee that $150,000 should be the goal.

The people of the local Baptist Church are marshalling their forces for a drive that will bring to their community a fine modern building which will be a source of pride to them all. They are behind their new pastor to a man and there is no doubt of the success of the undertaking. The people of Winchester will watch with interest and offer their best wishes to the Baptists in this worthy endeavor.

The officers at police headquarters were seriously considering setting up in the grocery business Thursday morning, following the arrival at the station of a large carton of corn flakes and a box of canned peas which had fallen from a truck in the square. The operator of the truck later discovered his loss and called at headquarters where his goods were delivered to him by Sergeant Cassidy.

J. ALBERT WILSON TO BE HEARD IN RECITAL AT METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Winchester music lovers will welcome the announcement that J. Albert Wilson, recently resigned after nearly 20 years' service as organist and choirmaster at the Church of the Epiphany, is to be heard in a recital of organ music on the afternoon of Palm Sunday at 4 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church. The new four manual organ at the church should lend itself admirably to Mr. Wilson's artistry and to make the program doubly attractive the latter will be assisted by Walter Kidder of Boston, known as one of the foremost bassos in New England. Mr. Kidder is no stranger to Winchester, his beautiful voice and remarkable interpretive power being remembered with pleasure by those who taxed the Church of the Epiphany to capacity on Palm Sunday a year ago for the presentation of Spohr's oratorio, "Calvary."

EMMA MARSHALL

Emma Marshall, 41, a domestic in the employ of Mr. Henry S. Chapman, passed away last evening at the Chapman home on Salisbury road, following an illness of only a few days with pneumonia. The deceased was a native of Cambridge, Md., where the interment will be made, following funeral services Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Columbus Avenue Church, Boston.

HIGH SCHOOL AWARDS SPORTS INSIGNIA

The awarding of insignia to members of the winter sports teams at the high school took place at assembly Thursday morning with Principal Wade L. Grindle presiding. An especial feature was the presentation of gold medals to the letter players of the boys' basketball team who this year won the championship of the Middlesex Basketball League. The medals are in the shape of a miniature basketball and have on the face a player in action and on the reverse, "Champions, 1928" and the player's initials. Along with the awarding of school letters the freshmen basketball group, winners of the recent inter-class competition, received numerals in recognition of their feat.

The members of the girls' and boys' first and second basketball teams with the freshman outfit and Coaches Wendell D. Mansfield and Priscilla Wheeler enjoyed dinner in Boston Tuesday evening at the new English type inn of Durgin & Parks, topping off with attendance at the Bruins-Toronto hockey game at the Arena.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB NOTICE

The annual meeting and election of officers will be held Wednesday, April 4, in Association Hall on Vine street. The change of meeting place from Fortnightly Hall is due to the need of a larger seating capacity. Two hundred new members having been added to the club since the last annual meeting.

Assessor Harry T. Winn of this town attended the recent annual meeting of the Middlesex County Association of Assessors held at the Cambridge City Hall. Mr. Winn at the meeting retired as president of the organization, having held that office during the past year.

EMBLEM CLUB SUPPER

As a testimonial to its drill team the Emblem Club is giving a supper and costume party next Wednesday evening, March 28, in Lyceum Hall. The supper hour is 6:30 p. m. and the following menu will be served promptly on time: Cold ham with potato salad, hot baked beans with cold slaw or relishes, apple pie with ice cream, butter, rolls, and coffee. The affair is open to the public and tickets may be obtained from any club member.

As most of the entertainment committee, who have charge of all club socials, are members of the drill team or officers for whom special tables are to be provided, the chairman, President-elect Anne M. Hanlon, has selected Mrs. Lilla B. Green as assistant chairman. Hostesses and waitresses include the Mesdames A. E. Vayo, M. E. O'Neil, G. Horn, L. F. McMullen, F. M. Mobbs, A. G. Fitzgerald, E. M. Johnson, M. E. Traynor, M. F. Flanders, M. E. Goodhue, E. C. McCarthy and D. C. Osborne. Mrs. Caroline L. Coakley and Mrs. Kathryn T. MacDonald will serve at the doors.

After the toastmistress, Mrs. Hanlon, passes around compliments with her usual aplomb to the drill team, comes the costume parade. And right here is where we expect to chop out a few laughs and thrills from the local scenery! And certainly it would be thrilling if some of our Elk brethren, Selectmen and ex-Selectmen, Mayors and ex-Mayors would appear garbed in the raiment of the early pioneers who were represented at Town Meeting as being the "preservers" of the Church street elm. And speaking of pioneers, how in the world did those supposed-to-be tree sentimentalists ever get rid of the forest that once must have been right in our center? Surely to goodness they did not desecrate the scenery by chopping down those trees! But perhaps they called the process "civilization and progress," and wasted their sentiment on giving their fellow-men work in times of stress, and a little amusement by way of variety.

Which brings us back to our party again! We are going to forget the long, hard winter and "make a night of it." And all would-be Pilgrim Fathers, and Puritan Fathers, and Pioneers are invited to rig up and compete for the prizes to be distributed for best costumes. Let's have a "George Washington" get away with first prize!

As a further inducement to bargain hunters, the management announces that late arrivals will be admitted at half-price for the after-supper dance. As for the music, good syncopation is always assured with John "Sonny" Coakley's orchestra.

Much more of praise might be bestowed upon the drill team at this time but we are afraid of infringing on Chairman A. M. Hanlon's eulogy. Needless to say, we will do our part next week when a group picture of the team in full regalia will appear in the Star.

This evening at 7:30 in the parish house of the First Congregational Church the Congregational first and second basketball teams will meet the fives of the Woburn Y. M. C. A. Two thrilling battles should result.

Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance

What It Is

Savings Bank Life Insurance is NOT STATE INSURANCE. The State's participation in it consists of a very careful supervisory and administrative control, and the furnishing to the Insurance Departments of the Savings Banks all the necessary policy forms, application blanks, premium rate sheets, surrender value schedules, books of account, and other forms necessary to secure uniformity of cost and procedure throughout all branches of the system. The State also employs two "Instructors" who devote their entire time to explaining the benefits of the plane to the people. The insurance policies are written by the Savings Banks which have established insurance departments under the Savings Bank Insurance Law. All the expenses incident to the physical examination of the applicant, the writing of the policy, the payment of death claims, and the general conduct of the business are borne by the Insurance Department of the Savings Bank.

WINCHESTER TEACHERS' CLUB

A very appreciative audience listened on Monday evening to Miss Mildred Bass Anderton in her reading of "Monsieur Beaucaire". All were pleased with her charming manner and delightful portrayal of the characters in Booth Tarkington's book. It requires a true artist to reproduce these various personalities so vividly before an audience.

Miss Anderton generously gave several short selections at the close of this reading showing again her ability to make her hearers feel the beauty of a choice selection or quickly sense the humor of something in a lighter vein.

This was Miss Anderton's first appearance in Winchester and those who were privileged to hear her Monday, through the Winchester Teachers' Club, will welcome any other opportunity to hear one of her play recitals.

ENTERTAINED AT TEA SHOWER

A tea-shower was given last Saturday afternoon by Mrs. Fred E. Hollins and Miss Eleanor Hollins at their home on Symmes road for Miss Elizabeth Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. S. Barton of Swan road. Miss Barton is to be married in the Unitarian Church, on March 30, to Mr. Stephen Barton Neiley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Neiley of Myopia road.

LEAGUE OF WOMEN VOTERS

The Winchester League of Women Voters takes pleasure in announcing that Prof. Clarence H. Haring of Harvard University has consented to speak at a Luncheon-Conference to be held at the Winchester Country Club on Wednesday, April 18, under the direction of the Committee on International Cooperation to Prevent War.

The wire crew of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway, after about six months of hard work, finally succeeded on Monday of this week in getting the new electric switches in operation in the center. The concensus of opinion seems to be that the automatic device will work nicely during the summer months but will need considerable attention during the winter.

UNITARIAN NEWS

Mr. Reed gave a very timely sermon last Sunday, taking for his subject "Item 15" referring to that item headed "Contributions" in the U. S. Internal Revenue Tax Acturn. "Few of us," he said, "realize how much or how little we deduct from Item 15 in our returns to the Government, until we begin to figure them out." The sermon was a very strong argument for the building of our parish house and the starting of it at an early date. It is regretted that there was not a larger attendance, the rain, evidently, having kept many at home.

The Metcalf Union was entertained last Sunday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert E. Stone, Edgehill road. There were about 30 present notwithstanding the inclement weather. Mr. Stone gave a talk on the various activities of a banking institution and the responsibility entailed. This was one of the regular meetings which are being held at the home of the various parishioners in view of the unsettled and inconvenient conditions in the church. This is just another reason why we need accommodations for our young people and a new parish house.

On account of the prevalence of so many youthful diseases in town at the present time, the picture which was to be shown in Metcalf Hall Saturday afternoon and evening will be postponed to April 21. The dance which was to have taken place in the evening after the picture has been cancelled also. It is hoped now that conditions will be such that we can have the picture and entertainment on April 21. Tickets already purchased will be good for that date.

Plans are now being formulated by the Sunday School for their Easter services which will take place on Easter afternoon.

Next Sunday at 4:30 p. m., the Inter-Church Council will conduct services in our church. This is a meeting of all the Protestant churches in town and their ministers take some part. We shall have as speaker, Mr. Stanley High, the well-known world traveler, newspaper corer-pondent and lecturer. He will have as a subject, "As Youth Sees It." It will be a lecture particularly for young people, but parents and older people will get lots out of the talk. It is hoped there will be a large attendance, especially of the young people. Mr. High is the author of "The Revolt of Youth," "China's Place in the Sun," "Europe Turns the Corner," etc. He has just returned from a 55,000 mile survey of the world.

Richard Halliburton, the play-boy adventurer and modern romanticist, author of "The Royal Road to Romance" and "The Glorious Adventurer," will give a lecture at the Town Hall Saturday, March 31st, at 8 p. m., under the auspices of the Ladies' Friendly Society. Mr. Halliburton, although a young man, has had a most remarkable trip of adventure around the world under extreme difficulties and danger-ous conditions. The trip placed him in the fore-front of public life. This, together with being the author of the two books mentioned above, both of which have been "best sellers," have made him a much talked-of personage.

THE FLORENCE CRITTENTON LEAGUE

There is great interest being shown in the concert to be held April 10 at the Hotel Statler, Boston, for the benefit of the Florence Crittenton League of Compassion at which Rosa Ponselle of the Metropolitan Opera Company is to be the chief attraction.

HOW THE RED CROSS HELPS FATTEN LITTLE CHILDREN

As we have told you before, the Winchester Red Cross continues daily to play its part in the life of the community. It helps those who are in need without giving any publicity to the individuals thus served.

Many persons think of the Red Cross as an organization that serves only in emergencies. As a matter of fact, its greatest work in many respects is done quietly and unobtrusively.

Here is a story of one of its accomplishments. The little inmates of a children's home were more than half underweight. A new board, composed of an intelligent group of women, made an investigation, found that food bills were heavy and the physical results poor.

Market orders, for instance, showed the purchase of large amounts of bologna and wiener sausages, while milk averaged only a pint a day for each child, and the amount of butter and other fats was inadequate.

To remedy conditions, a Red Cross nutritionist was called in to aid. The acting superintendent told this Red Cross worker that the children did not have hot suppers because the cook did not like to stay late in the afternoon. Hot cereals were not served in the morning because the cook did not want to give the time or bother to use the fireless cooker.

The nutritionist row took charge. A new cook was installed. When oatmeal was served for breakfast, some of the children did not like it because they had never tasted it before. One little boy cried at first because the superintendent insisted that he eat it, but later he was the first one at the table on oatmeal mornings. An explanation was also required to persuade the children to eat wheat cereals.

At the end of the second month of the rule of the Red Cross nutritionist, only one child was found to be underweight out of the 52.

The 17 children of school age in the home were instructed in nutrition and received their Red Cross certificates.

We members of the Winchester Chapter of the Red Cross are telling you these stories through the generosity of the Editor of the Star, because we want you to become better acquainted with the inner workings of the great national organization.

The Red Cross attracts national attention by the work it does when, for instance, a California dam breaks and the waters sweep down a fertile valley. In a less spectacular but equally effective manner it renders its own special service almost daily right here in Winchester.

LEGION NOTES

Our comrade, George W. Harrold, who had long been suffering from disease contracted during his service with the 101st Regiment in France, passed away at his home in West Medford, Wednesday morning. Services will be held at St. Mary's Church at 9 o'clock Saturday morning, and all members of Winchester Post are sincerely urged to join a funeral detail at the Legion House at 8:30 Saturday morning, in uniform if possible, but turn out anyway, uniform or not.

Bouncing balls at Wilsons.

During the 90 days from Dec. 15 to March 15 when the dogs of the town were ordered restrained the police shot 13 animals and held 46 at headquarters until the arrival of their owners. Of the 13 killed several were shot by request of the owners and in other instances only after the dogs could not be identified. It was stated at the station that Officer James P. Donaghey holds the record for captured dogs, though Officer John Noonan claims that the long distance record for out-of-town animals belongs to him.

LUNCHEON FOR PRESIDENT MARY T. MAYNARD

The Executive Board of The Fortnightly gave a luncheon in Fortnightly Hall Monday in honor of the retiring president, Dr. Mary T. Maynard. The delicious luncheon was served on tables which looked festive and springlike with decorations of yellow the club color. Mrs. Christine E. Hayden was toastmistress. She reported that 30 of the 34 members of the Board were present, and the remaining four were kept away by illness. Several members took part in the short program which was for the most part in a humorous vein although all mentioned the very happy relation which had existed between the President and the Executive Board. Mrs. Frances C. Breen then presented Dr. Maynard with a platinum bar pin set with a diamond, the gift of her Board family. Dr. Maynard, although completely surprised, responded very gracefully. The committee who so efficiently managed the affair consisted of Mrs. Christine E. Hayden, Mrs. Winifred A. Bennett, Miss Mary Hodge and Mrs. Lillian H. Ambler.

BOSTON Y. W. C. A.

Mrs. Kendall Emerson, president of the Worcester Y. W. C. A. was the principal speaker at Tuesday's report luncheon for workers in the building and maintenance campaign for $750,000 of the Boston Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Emerson said that in the first year of their new building there was a 96 per cent gain in the total service rendered the community by the Y. W. C. A. Approximately 50 outside organizations have used the Worcester building within the past year, she said.

Mrs. Robert G. Dodge, president of the Boston Y. W. C. A., stressed the point that the association is open to all women and girls regardless of creed and that, provided she believes in the purpose of the association, any girl or woman may be a voting member and is eligible to membership on the board of directors.

Mrs. Bertram Bernard, captain of the Winchester team, reports that the contributions received from interested residents of the town are fast nearing the $1000 mark.

NEW FUNERAL HOME DEDICATED

More than 100 guests were present at the formal dedication on Monday evening of Kelley & Hawes Company's new funeral home at the corner of Vine street and Elmwood avenue. The home had previously been opened to members of the Winchester Rotary, town officials and other invited guests at a banquet given in their honor by Mr. Daniel Kelley, but Monday evening's occasion was the first when the general public was privileged to enjoy the firm's hospitality and inspect the new plant.

No efforts were spared to make the evening a pleasant one. Both Mr. Kelley and Mr. H. W. Hawes were present with their assistant, Miss Isabel L. Andrews, to welcome their guests and to answer any questions about the home which incorporates all the newest and most improved facilities for dignified funeral service.

The home was artistically decorated with palms and cut flowers and a program of instrumental music was played throughout the evening by a stringed trio composed of Mr. Walter I. Rice, violin; Mrs. Helen Wood Smith, 'cello; and Miss Margaret Blair, piano. Two vocal solos were sung by Mrs. Helen Edlefson Barr who acted as her own accompanist.

Rev. George Hall Reed, minister of the Unitarian Church, officiated and offered the dedication prayer at the formal ceremony which was held shortly before 9 o'clock.

MRS. CHARLES F. GAGE DEAD

Word has been received of the death on March 11 of Mrs. Martha Adams Gage, wife of Mr. Charles F. Gage. Mrs. Gage was for many years a well known resident of this town, making her home with her family on Madison avenue. She died at Hollywood, Cal., where she had resided in recent years. She leaves four sons, Fred A., John H., Edward C. and Arthur T. Gage. The funeral services were held on Wednesday, March 14.

Recent dispatches from Palm Beach Fla., list Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Lord of this town among the late arrivals at the widely known hotel, "The Breakers."

WINCHESTER BOY RECEIVES LIFE SAVING MEDAL

Six Year Old Richard McCormack Honored for Rescuing Chum from Drowning

The final chapter in the history of a plucky rescue was written Wednesday morning when six year old Richard McCormack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. McCormack of Winchester place was awarded the bronze medal of the Massachusetts Humane Society in recognition of his heroic action on Jan. 20 when he risked his life to rescue Albert Cyr, 5, of Winchester place from death by drowning in the Aberjona river at the rear of the Central Fire Station.

Young Cyr who was playing with Richard, had crawled onto some thin ice at the river's edge and had broken through. The latter immediately went to his chum's assistance and crawling onto the ice, managed succeeded in getting Albert safely ashore. He was assisting his little friend to go to his home when help arrived and with boyish modesty made light of the whole affair.

The attention of the Humane Society was, however, attracted by Richard's heroism, and last Friday his parents were notified that their son was to be presented with the Society's medal for bravery in saving life. The award aroused unusual interest because of the recipient's extreme youth, it being said that the Winchester boy is the youngest ever to receive such a medal in the State.

Arrangements were quietly made and at 9:30 Wednesday morning in St. Mary's Parochial School where Richard is a pupil in the second grade the handsome bronze medal was pinned upon the breast of the youthful hero, in the presence of his proud parents and thrilled class mates, by Charles P. Curtis, vice-president of the Massachusetts Humane Society. Upon the face of the medal is the insignia of the society, on the reverse, the inscription "To Richard Mc. Cormack for bravery in saving life at Winchester, January 20, 1928." With the medal Richard received a recognition lapel button, also of bronze.

Mr. Curtis in making the award, told something of the work and purpose of the Humane Society, stating that it long had been in existence and that one of its founders had been Charles Warren, brother of the Patriot General, Joseph Warren, who fell at Bunker Hill. The speaker warmly commended young McCormack for his heroism and assured his hearers that the boy's name would remain upon the Society's records as long as the organization exists.

Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley, assistant pastor of St. Mary's Parish, presided at the exercises, assisted by Sister Mary Augustine, teacher of the second grade of the Parochial School. The school children greeted the visitors and also sang as a part of the program. They looked on with rapt attention while their little classmate was receiving his unusual honor. It is very probable that the others in the room enjoyed the whole proceeding fully as much as did Richard, who after all is pretty much a regular boy and as such would rather play ball or marbles than the role of hero in the presence of a large gathering.

TREMENDOUS INCREASE IN CADILLAC SALES

Production and sales of cars by the Cadillac Motor Car Company during the first two months of 1928 exceeded those of 1927 by more than 116 per cent and shipments were nearly 100 per cent greater than in the same period of last year, according to a statement released this week by Lawrence P. Fisher, president of the company. During each of the past three years, the company's production and sales have exceeded those of the preceding year by more than 25 per cent, the increase in the three years having totaled 98 per cent. The tentative schedule adopted Jan. 1 of this year calling for 50,000 Cadillac and LaSalle cars is a further 40 per cent increase over last year.

Mr. Fisher's statement follows:

"Comparing the first two months of 1928 with the same months of 1927, Cadillac sales show an increase of 116 per cent. Combined with LaSalle sales the increase is 116.8 per cent. In a similar comparison regarding production, Cadillac cars built show an increase of 66.1 per cent. Combined with LaSalle production the increase is 118.8 per cent. Cadillac shipments for January and February show a 30.7 per cent increase over the same period last year. Combined with LaSalle the increase is 96.7 per cent.

"During the first two months of 1927, the LaSalle car had not yet been announced. Sales of Cadillac cars during that period were 2632 as against this year's Cadillac sales of 3083, and LaSalle sales of 2754. Thus the Cadillac and LaSalle sales this year each exceeded the Cadillac sales for the same period last year. Sales of the two cars are running practically equal records showing 2754 LaSalle sales for this period as against 3085 Cadillacs.

"Total production, shipment and sales for the same periods of the two years show the following increases; shipments, 96.7 per cent; production 118.8 per cent; sales, 116.8 per cent.

"Demand for the five new LaSalle body styles introduced by the company Jan. 1 have outstripped production so that unfilled LaSalle orders have shown a steady increase since that date and are today 488 per cent greater than during the busiest period of 1927."

The W. C. T. U. is sponsoring a drama, "The Commander-in-Chief," presented by a group of Italian young people, under the direction of Dr. N. Louise Rand, in the Parish House of the First Congregational Church at 8 p. m., March 24. Tickets at 50 cents for sale at Franklin Barnes' Store or phone Win. 0253-M. mh16-2t

FEDERATED CHURCH MEN'S CLUBS

Delegates from the men's organizations of the various churches of Woburn, Winchester, Stoneham, Wilmington, Reading, Burlington and Lexington will meet next Tuesday evening at the Woburn Y. M. C. A. to complete the forming of the Federation of Church Men's Clubs.

This is the fourth preliminary meeting since the conception of the plan last fall and as all of the 39 churches have been informed of the Federation principals a decision of the individual organization is expected at this meeting, also it is hoped to have Mayor Johnson of Woburn address the gathering.

Briefly the Federation has for its basic principals the following: stimulate brotherly acquaintance, increase closer interdenominational fellowship discuss group problems, exchange social talent and create a wider interest in our programs.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

It is a real cruelty to the innocent not to punish the guilty.

One hour of pain is much longer than a day of pleasure.

The shame of those who have poverty is often no worse than the pride of those who possess wealth.

The man is to be pitied who feels that no matter which way he goes the wind is always in his face.

Most men are more willing to indulge in easy vices than to be put to too much inconvenience in obtaining virtues.

The Star was indebted to Tax Collector Nathaniel M. Nichols this week for a glimpse of a newspaper which on the 8th of next month will be 200 years old. Published on what was then known as Queen street in Boston it contained only two pages, more nearly resembling the present day flyer than the modern news sheets. A goodly part of the ancient paper's content was concerned with English news of the previous autumn, newly arrived by packet in Boston as the paper went to press. Among the advertisements lured were those of two negro girls offered for sale, both described as "likely and speaking good English". Another advertisement was that listing for sale a book dealing with the need for repentance, by a divine of the period who was impelled to offer his good advice because of a recent earthquake. It was of interest to note that the nature of the article accords it the position of prominence upon the front page of the publication. It was one taken from history and was, according to the editor, the first of a series dealing with philosophy, history and kindred subjects, published with the hope of appealing to, and furthering the education of the paper's readers. The wording of the various articles is quaint and old fashioned, though the grammar is meticulously correct. In common with other printing of the period a character resembling the present "f" is used in place of "s", adding to the unusual appearance of the sheet. The paper is intensely interesting, especially in comparison with the modern daily. It had been mounted upon glass and framed.

Winchester sports followers in common with other lovers of athletics throughout the entire district were gladdened by the news that Woburn is at last to provide its high school teams with a suitable playing field for their contests of various kinds. We can easily picture the delight of the Woburn boys and girls who for many years have been forced to practice and play football and field hockey upon a boggy meadow, menaced by rocks and entirely unfit for such use. The baseball diamond on Library field has of late years been in but little better shape than the high school playground and out-of-town high schools have been increasingly chary of scheduling games with Woburn upon the latter's home grounds. Matters were brought to a head last fall when several high school football teams refused absolutely to go through with previously scheduled games in Woburn, the tanning city boys being forced to go out of town to fill their engagements. There has been talk of repairing Woburn to play all its league games in football away from home with the alternative of resigning from the circuit. Such an event would have been regrettable from every angle and with the appropriation by the Woburn City Council of $27,000 to provide for a suitable athletic field the chance of its coming to pass is removed. Woburn has reason to be very proud of the high school athletes it has developed in the past and with the stimulus which an adequate playing field will provide it should continue to hold its place in the select circle. The wonder of it all is why action was so long delayed.

BELIEVES SCHOOL COMMITTEE UNFAIR

To the Editor of the Star:

I am at this time requesting space in your issue that I may say a few words about the school situation in our end of the town, namely, the North End.

First, I want to comment upon our wonderful school committee who cannot be improved upon (for unfairness).

A few weeks ago the chairman of the school committee was invited to have his committee meet our committee from the Noonan School district, composed of some 12 or 15 bright and intelligent mothers and fathers, to discuss the crowded condition of our William J. Noonan School.

He appeared as he agreed with one of his associates to meet with our chairman. During the conference different phases of the crowded condition of our school were discussed with the result that nothing was accomplished. The chairman of the School Committee assured our representatives that as far as he and the School Committee were concerned there would be no article inserted in the Town Warrant this year and nothing done in the near future about a secondary school.

We, as fair and law abiding citizens placed our confidence in what he had told us, but low and behold, when the warrant was distributed there appeared an article pertaining to a secondary school which was absolutely contrary to what he had promised us.

This goes to show that we have a school committee we cannot trust. They promise us one thing and then just turn about and do the opposite, which is in my estimation a very unbusinesslike procedure.

It is about time the citizens of this town became awakened to the unfair methods being used by this committee to gain their own objective and on the other hand turn a deaf ear to any or all requests or suggestions submitted by the residents of this end of the town.

The time is also near at hand when the School Committee of our Town shall be demanded to lay their cards on the table before us.

Now to get back to our crowded school. The building at the present time is over crowded and no one knows what will become of the pupils next September when schools open for the next term. Our first grade room has an overflow of some 20 or more pupils who are now sitting in a room which is entirely inadequate.

The sanitary accommodations at the school are certainly absurd in my belief. For instance a first grade girl in leaving her classroom is obliged to walk the length of the lower corridor in a southerly direction, up a flight of stairs and then on a northerly direction, the entire length of the upper corridor to reach the sanitary. To arrive at her classroom again she is obliged to cover the same course.

Now I ask the citizens of this town if this is not a frightful state of affairs existing at the Noonan School? Any citizen of this town who cares to check me up on these facts should pay a visit to this school, and observe for themselves.

Thanking you for space in your paper which enables me to present these facts and more facts in later issues, I remain

Truly yours,
William E. McDonald, Jr.
10 Hill street, Winchester

DID YOU GET THE RIGHT ACCOMMODATIONS TO EUROPE THIS SUMMER?

During the summer, many people said to Europe accepting inferior accommodations from the head offices on being told that the ships were booked full. Many times this is not necessary and if your interests are being handled by an office that represents all of the steamship lines, you might have your choice of several sailings.

The travel office of J. F. McGRATH 365 Main street, Woburn, is supported by all the steamship lines for your convenience and this office having no service of its own to sell can give you unbiased judgment, and use their influence of many thousand bookings to get what you want. This service is yours without charge and can be had by calling Woburn 1234 and making known your wishes. At this office you have every steamship line and tourist agency of the world and the expert advice of an experienced traveler at your command. Why take less?

All kinds of literature, passport blanks, steamship plans, etc., will be forwarded to you on request and foreign visas secured for you.

WYMAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The Wyman School Mothers' Association met in the assembly hall on Tuesday, March 20 with Mrs. Kenneth Young presiding in the absence of the president, Mrs. Henry Spencer.

A delightful part of the program which followed the short business meeting was furnished by the following children: piano solo, Jean Farnsworth; violin solo by Priscilla Danforth, accompanied on the piano by Virginia Danforth; piano solo, Anne Simpson.

Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott was then introduced and took as her subject, "Treatment of Problem Parents". She said in part: parents with the best intentions may not understand their own children and it is always easier to see the faults in your neighbor's child than it is to see them in your own. Adam and Eve were the first problem parents and they failed so in their parenthood that one of their sons became the slayer of his brother. Most people are willing to call in a physician for their children's bodilily ailments, but not for their mental. Here Mrs. Abbott warned parents to watch for tendencies in early childhood, for instance—excessive day dreams, good to a certain extent, but if not detected often leading to a form of insanity. The parents big problem here is to recognize a problem and deal with it. Then she emphasized the care and patience needed during the adolescent period, that most difficult time that is frequently accompanied by over physical development.

Mrs. Abbott then said that parents are often unwittingly at the base of their children's troubles and divided problems parents into the following types.

1. The ignorant and neglectful type which furnish the most pitiful and dramatic examples.

2. Nervous parents—those who have fears and project theme on their children.

3. Those who are all absorbed in their own interests.

4. Those more interested in other children than their own.

5. The over-indulgent parent.

6. Parents with discipline that varies.

7. Nagging parents—more dangerous than any other type.

8. Parents whose lack of companionship causes friction in the home.

9. The indifferent type.

10. Those whose punishment is not definite—punishment that fits the child often accomplishes much, but wrong punishment may act as a boomerang.

11. Parents who have too high standards and are too ambitious for their children.

12. The dominant type—those who try to gratify their own eye without recognizing their child's ability.

In closing Mrs. Abbott said that being a parent is the greatest job on earth, and that as parents we should take our responsibilities seriously, not allowing ourselves to forget that children will respond as is expected of them.

It was a most interesting and instructive talk and I'm sure every mother who heard Mrs. Abbott recognized the type to which she herself belonged, and determined that she no longer would be a "problem parent"

NEWSY PARAGRAPHS

On Wednesday Miss Marion Ladd was pleasantly surprised when Troop 2, Girl Scouts, of which she is captain, arrived at her home on Yale street to hold a handkerchief shower in her honor. Everything was planned and carried out by the girls themselves, even to the games and refreshments which were served during the evening. The party, which was in honor of Miss Ladd's recently announced engagement to Marshall Wyman Symmes, was delightfully concluded with a display of motion pictures.

The engagement has been announced of Miss Priscilla Wheeler, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Frank Wheeler, of Nine Acre Corner, Concord, to Mr. Wendell Mansfield, physical director in the public schools of Winchester. Mr. Mansfield received his training at Springfield College. Miss Wheeler is a graduate of the Sargent School of Physical Education in Cambridge and is also instructor in the Winchester Schools.

Word has been received by Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. McKenzie of Hemingway street that their son, John McKenzie, has been spending some time on business in Havana. Mr. McKenzie is associated with the United Fruit Company in business and is located at Preston, Cuba, about 485 miles from Havana.

ELIZABETH LUKE

Elizabeth Luke, wife of Frank Luke and for the past 15 years a resident of Winchester, passed away Wednesday afternoon, following a long illness.

Mrs. Luke was born 64 years ago at Fortune West, Buren District, Newfoundland. Her early education was received there, but much of her life was spent at Halifax, N. S., from which city she came to Winchester to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Frederick Stewart Mitchell of 13 Winchester place. The deceased was a member of the Halifax M. E. Church, but because of ill health had been unable to participate in either the social or religious life of this community during the last 10 years of her life.

Besides her daughter, Mrs. Elizabeth T. Mitchell, Mrs. Luke is survived by her husband and by one son, Frank Luke of East Boston.

Funeral services were held this Friday afternoon in the funeral chapel of the Kelley & Hawes Company and were conducted by the Rev. H. W. Hook, pastor of the Methodist Episcopal Church. The interment was in Wildwood Cemetery.

E. D. Boynton of this town was a member of the cast which recently sang Gilbert & Sullivan's "Yoemen of the Guard" at the Middlesex School, Concord.

There are two kinds of pride. One is that sort of false, puffed up bluff that the Book tells us about the kind that goeth before a fall.

The other kind of proper esteem is the well dressed pride that says, "I'll let my manner of clothes show the world that I'm a responsible citizen who believes that the appearance of a man or a thing is a label that shows what is on the inside."

Cleaning and pressing will do a lot to make you feel pleased with your appearance. We offer you a complete tailoring and cleaning, pressing and clothes repairing service. Phone us for speedy service.

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Several of our number have been on tours during the past fortnight, but they did not forget that they were Rotarians; they made it a duty to keep our attendance record clean and thereby profited.

George Welsch attended the National Flower Show as Louisville, Ky., and also visited his old home in Chicago. George reports that the Louisville Rotarians were most hospitable. "Pat" went to Chicago on a business trip, but strange to relate failed to meet George. We are told that Chicago is a large place. Others of our member, have been on shorter trips.

Jim's Clock—And now we know why Jim has felt so chesty about that clock of his. For today he kindly consented to let us hear it tick. And moreover it is a tuneful clock as is fitting. Seldom have we heard more melodious chimes. We readily understand why Jim is proud of it and we trust that it may be his lifelong companion.

At this session we were confronted with new song sheets; they are a distinct improvement over the old ones, and we note with pleasure that they bring several snappy songs which are new to us. We congratulate the music committee on having done a good piece of work.

This week we listened to a talk by Mr. John Hurlburt, Secretary of the Lynn Chamber of Commerce and formerly a Captain in the Army Air Service. His subject was "Aviation" and evidently it is a topic which is next to his heart. It is always a pleasure to listen to a speaker who is in earnest and who knows whereof he speaks. Captain Hurlburt entertained us with stories—he was at pains to correct many wrong impressions which may have been received in regard to our Air Service and he conveyed the thought that aviation and its future development is of vital concern to us all.

Three—meaning that we have had three 100 per cent meetings this month. Three up and two to go—and then some. You know what becomes of the hindmost.

LAST CALL TO THE WEST INDIES

The last West Indies cruise of the SS. "Yarmouth" for 1928 will leave New York March 30. This ship has already made five cruises in these waters; everyone of them booked to capacity.

The March 30 cruise is of 13 days duration, calling at Miami, Florida; Havana, Cuba; Kingston, Jamaica; and Nassau in the Bahamas, arriving in New York April 12. The rates are from $135 up, according to location. All first class, and free transportation from Boston to New York and return. A telephone call to Woburn 1234 will bring you literature, plans of the ship, and the official representative of the company, if you wish him.

Indoor baseball practise has been in full swing at the high school during the past week with about 50 candidates trying for positions on the nine. Coach Mansfield has been working the boys slowly and as yet has little to offer as to the probable makeup of his club. Ray Halwartz is captain this year with Edward Woodbury, manager. About an equal number of boys have signed up for track which is to be resumed at the school after a lapse of several years. Coach Mansfield is being assisted with his baseball coaching by Raymond V. Hayward of the school faculty, leaving the former free to devote a part of his time to track.

Some Side Lights

The food was delicious and plenty of it. Some of those below the breadline thought there ought to be enough.

Chairman Pilkington succeeded in making himself heard above the din with the aid of a megaphone.

There was an entertainment provided much to the enjoyment of some members.

It is worthy of note that the bowling committee did not take any prize.

Dr. Aikens led the singing. His renditions were vociferous and delicately sympathetic. He was greatly aided in the choruses by some of the lusty ones.

We were favored with the presence of two of our Reverend members, H. W. Hook and M. J. Butler.

The University members greatly enlivened the dinner and we think we made them feel right at home. Sewall Newman was in charge of them and introduced all to the audience. Other Winchester members in the group were A. T. Bond, Steve Ryan, John Maddocks and "Doc" Akins.

"Bart" Stephenson, former Calumet member, and George Owen football and hockey stars were to be present but found at the last minute that they were unable to join us.

Chairman Chase of the entertainment committee was an interested spectator and did not have any work to do—for once.

The first team prize went to team 25 composed of F. B. Sandberg, W. A. Palmer, K. M. Pratt, Alan Hovey and Dr. F. M. Blanchard. This is known as the Boat Club team. They not only know how to paddle but bowl as well.

The bowling scores were small, due probably to the big dinner and the excitement of the occasion. Ralph Purrington of the Calumet Club was high man with a three string total of 328. He also had high single string of 123. Sullivan of the University was high man for them with a three string total of 318, Nolan, however, taking the high single with 122.

The supper and bridge last Friday evening was a most successful affair. It was in charge of Mrs. Clarence H. Young and she was assisted by Mrs. John Maddocks, Mrs. Ernest Chase, Mrs. C. F. Winship, Mrs. George Purrington and Mrs. Dodge. The food was plentiful and appetizing. There were about 30 tables at whist. The first ladies prize was won by Miss H. Devin; Mrs. C. F. Winship, second and Mrs. Rouse, third. Mr. Sittinger took the first gentlemen's prize, Mr. Potter second and Mr. John H. Taylor, third.

These supper and bridge parties have been so successful that the entertainment committee has decided to have one in April which will be the last of the season.

On Saturday evening will occur the regular bowling roll-off for members only.

Next Tuesday afternoon, the ladies will hold their monthly bridge. This is the one event when members may bring guests.

Entries have closed for the Ping Pong Tournament and play has begun. The best two out of three sets will decide winners of matches. The games may be played at the convenience of the entrants but the first round must be completed by March 24. The following have entered for the tournament:

W. A. Palmer	Albert Allen
Hall Gamage	C. H. Browning
F. C. Priest	W. F. Caldwell
Walter J. Brown	P. S. Hight
F. B. Sandberg	A. E. Butters
Earle Goldsmith	Wallace Blanchard
F. M. Blanchard

W. A. Palmer is the chairman of the committee.

We anticipate there will be lots of fun and some hotly contested games as some of the entrants have been consistant enthusiasts.

NEW FRIEND'S BEAN BAKERY OPENED AT MALDEN

The new home of Friend's Beans was officially opened last Saturday evening when Friend Brothers entertained over 1000 employees and their families.

This new plant, located at 730 Eastern avenue, in the Maplewood section of Malden, is said to be the only one of its kind in the world. It is the last word in modern construction, much of the equipment and machinery being the invention of the Friend family. The brick ovens, which are largely responsible for the original New England flavor of the product, are of foreign importation.

This new bean bakery covers in all two acres of floor space and is of fireproof brick construction. The heart of the plant is of course the battery of 16 enormous brick ovens imported from England. In these the beans are baked for 12 hours. These ovens are so constructed that they give the absolutely uniform dry heat so necessary for proper baking. 3500 pots daily, or enough to fill 100,000 cans.

The entire process of canning the baked beans is patened by the Friends and is said to be the only one that is certain to ensure a product comparable with beans baked in the home. While Friend's Beans are a New England product, manufactured by New Englanders chiefly for the New England market they are shipped to all points of the country, even as far as California, the state in which the beans were originally grown.

ELLEN M. MORSE

Mrs. Ellen M. Morse passed away Wednesday March 21 at the Dearborn Hospital. She was in her 78 year. Mrs. Morse was a native of Southbridge, the daughter of George Boulton and Marcia (Howard) Boulton.

She was the wife of William B. Morse deceased of this town. Mrs. Morse is survived by two sons, William B. Morse of Providence and George H. Morse of this town. Two brothers also survive her, Frederick W. Boulton of Spencer and Elmer H. Boulton of Hollis, N. H.

Mrs. Morse was a member of the First Baptist Church. Private services will be conducted Friday by Rev. Benjamin Browne at the home of her son, at 9 Euclid avenue, this town.

AN APPRECIATION

The reception to visitors held at the funeral home of Kelley & Hawes last evening, March 19, was particularly satisfying to me. I know the Town will appreciate its quiet beauty and comfort in time of need. In the audience room, seating 70, a service was given for all present, with prayer by Rev. George Hale Reed and a beautiful program by the trio—Mr. Rice, Mrs. Smith and Miss McDonald. The singing by Mrs. Barr was particularly fine. Many congratulations to Kelley & Hawes.

WINCHESTER MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

The annual meeting of the Winchester Mothers' Association was held in the High School Assembly Hall last month. Reports were made by each chapter and much enthusiasm and interest was shown.

Mrs. Raymond, reporting for the George Washington School Chapter said that they had 166 members and met monthly. They had Mrs. T. Grafton Abbott address them, and were planning to have her again. Miss Knightly had given a musical assembly demonstrating the children's work.

Miss Regan, Principal of Lincoln School, reported for Mrs. McPartlin who was unable to be present. Plans were being completed for a concert. The assemblies held in school hours are always well attended by mothers who show an interest in the work being done by their children the majority of whom are of foreign parentage. Mrs. McPartlin wished to thank the mothers of the association who helped in giving the Americanization night.

Miss Spencer of the Wyman School said that owing to the alterations going on in the school building no meetings had been held since their annual meeting, but that a bridge party would be held in April, the proceeds to be used in the purchasing of flags for the assembly hall.

Mrs. MacDonald reported great activity in the Noonan Chapter. They have had speakers on civics, held bridge parties, food sales, pop concerts, and a pageant by the children. The proceeds from these entertainments are for the purchase of a motion picture machine for the school. So that they might serve refreshments following the meetings they have purchased china service for 50. Mr. Carl Shrader, director of athletics for the Department of Education of Massachusetts, was to address their next meeting.

For the Mystic School Chapter Mrs. Towner reported two fall meetings which took up the ways and means of purchasing a stage curtain. In December an evening concert was held. Silver plate for the teachers' luncheons was provided. These monthly luncheons are continuing for the second year. In January Mr. Quinn addressed the meeting. A food sale was planned for February.

Following the reports, Mrs. Conlon of Noonan Chapter gave two recitations, one from Dicken's "Dombey & Son," and the other an excerpt, "Guide in Genoa and Rome," from "Innocents Abroad," by Mark Twain. Mrs. Royal N. Hallowell of Mystic Chapter sang, accompanied by Mrs. Arthur Abbott, also of Mystic Chapter. Mrs. Hallowell's selections were, "Twickenham Ferry," "The Old Rocking Chair" and an encore, "Chrysanthemum."

The nomination committee's chairman, Mrs. Sache, offered the following slate which was unanimously accepted: For President, Mrs. Harold V. Farnsworth; Vice-President, Mrs. William P. M. deCamp; Secretary, Mrs. Clifford Towner; Treasurer, Mrs. J. J. Costello.

Mrs. Chester Porter, the retiring president introduced Mrs. Farnsworth who spoke a few words of greeting, and adjourned the meeting to partake of tea in the library.

Mrs. Hollis Nickerson has been appointed chairman of the hospitality committee.

for the
NEW LA SALLE
Five-Passenger Family Sedan

AFTER triumphantly establishing—in a single year—the definite vogue in motor car design, La Salle is now offered in a wider variety of models and at remarkably lower prices. The new La Salle five-passenger Family Sedan at $2350 stands as a matchless motor car investment. And, with substantial reductions throughout the entire line, La Salle ownership now becomes a reality for a great host of motorists who have long admired Cadillac distinction and aspired to Cadillac ownership.

If you prefer to buy out of income, as nearly everyone does today, the General Motors plan is very liberal. The appraisal value of your car is acceptable as cash.

Every La Salle is complete with all modern equipment, much of which is usually obtainable on other cars only at extra cost—such as winter front, Lovejoy shock absorbers, exclusively designed La Salle bumpers, cowl lamps, cowl band, ventilators, windshield wiper, cigar lighter, rear vision mirror, etc.

FINAL SESSION OF TOWN MEETING HELD

Mr. Pike had meantime prepared his motion which was offered as follows: That the members of the committee under whose direction the William J. Noonan School building was originally constructed be constituted a committee to consider and report at the next annual meeting upon the necessity for increased accommodations in said building with recommendations as to making provision therefor.

That section of the motion referring to the time for receiving the committee's report did not meet with the favor of Mrs. Frances T. Conlon who spoke at some length upon the need for immediate relief at the Noonan School. She offered an amendment to Mr. Pike's motion that the committee should report at the special Town Meeting in June. Mr. Carleton opposed the passing of the amendment, feeling that action at the Noonan School could well wait another year. The amendment was put and lost upon an aye and nay vote which was very close. Several voters who had supported Mrs. Conlon's amendment arose after Moderator Hayward had declared the amendment lost as if to question the vote. No specific request for a poll of the vote was made, however, and Mr. Pike's original motion was passed as he had presented it. Following the rejection of Mrs. Conlon's amendment Mrs. Lorence Woodside spoke upon the present poor conditions at the Noonan building and particularly felt that the school assembly hall should not be used as a class room.

While Article 10 was open Whitfield L. Tuck offered a motion that a committee of three be appointed by the moderator to investigate and report at the next Town Meeting upon the question of having the Finance Committee elected by the voters. The motion was vociferously rejected, though the thought is one often commented upon favorably about town.

Article 18, inserted to ascertain whether the Town would make unpayed water rates a lien upon real estate, was next considered. Mr. Kendall offered a motion that such action be taken and spoke at some length upon its advantages. Mr. Laraway was opposed and stated that with the adoption of such a plan a landlord might find the title to his property involved because of the delinquency of his tenant. Moderator Hayward gave a resume of what the passing of Mr. Kendall's motion would mean, and Ralph W. E. Hopper supported Mr. Laraway in opposition. The motion was put and lost without a count being necessary.

Under Article 16, referring to the under-pass at Winchester Station, President George F. Arnold offered the motion that inasmuch as the Town is now concerned with the Kelloway plan for the abolition of the present grade crossing, action upon the under-pass might well be indefinitely postponed. The motion proved successful, though Mr. Tuck felt that the pass was an issue which should be faced at once.

Ernest R. Eustis of the Board of Cemetery Commissioners spoke in favor of a motion inserted under Article 19 authorizing the Town to accept the sum of $4000 given under the will of Frederick O. Brown of Allentown, Pa., to be set aside as a fund of which the income is to be applied each year for flowers to be placed upon the graves of certain members of Mr. Brown's family. The motion was carried without debate.

Action upon Article 20 resulted in the passing of a motion offered by the Water & Sewer Board, providing that two-thirds of the actual cost of construction hereafter of any sewer or extension of any existing sewer or the doing of any other work in connection therewith, except particular sewers from common sewers from lines of ways, shall be assessed upon the estates especially benefited, thereunder and subject to the provisions of Chapter 180 of the Acts of 1927. The original motion had the word average substituted for actual but upon the insistance of Mr. Laraway the latter word was introduced. Town Counsel Pike spoke at some length upon the advantage to the Town of such a by-law and the motion was quickly passed.

Article 22, tabled at a previous session of the meeting, was next discussed, it being voted to authorize the Selectmen at any time after the title in question should be cleared to lease, sell or otherwise dispose of the dwelling upon the Joy property acquired by the Town at the preceding annual meeting.

The Insurance Committee had inserted a motion under Article 23 authorizing the School Committee to install an automatic sprinkler system in the high school building. The motion called for an appropriation of $7000 and was championed by Frank E. Rowe. There were no oppenents and the motion was passed without debate.

At this point it was voted to reconsider that part of Article 1 which related to the appropriation for unclassified accounts. Dr. J. Harper Blaisdell, in a manner which reminded us of his famous debate with Joseph W. Worthen anent the whys and wherefors of the Health Department's horse, stated that it was necessary to re-open the unclassified account in order that money might be appropriated to perform a surgical operation upon the Congregational Church Clock with a view to once more putting it in running order. The Doctor offered a motion that the sum of $625 be appropriated in addition to the previous sum to be expended under the direction of the Selectmen for several purposes, including repairs to the Congregational clock. Mr. Tuck did not favor the motion and felt that the original appropriation of $2975 was ample to include anything which might need to be done for the clock. Dr. Blaisdell did not concur and felt that inasmuch as the Town owned the clock it should be kept in running order. He introduced a bit of historical data, stating that when the Town had been given the clock in 1851 by a citizen who had withheld his name, the Congregational Society had given permission to have it placed in the church tower under the provision that the Town should assume the expense of its care. Mr. Tuck seemed to be the only one opposed to Dr. Blaisdell's motion and it was passed without further debate.

This brought the meeting to the article pertaining to street acceptances, usually resulting in mere routine acceptance according to the recommendations of the Selectmen. Objections were raised Monday evening to only two acceptances, those of Glenwood avenue and Madison avenue West. Both are dead-end streets and both Mr. Laraway and Charles A. Gleason felt that the Town should accept no such roadways. Dr. Blaisdell felt with reference to Glenwood avenue that the street had been in use for many years and that its residents were entitled to the privileges which its acceptance by the Town would guarantee.

The objections of Messrs. Laraway and Gleason were not sustained by the meeting and the 10 streets were accepted without further debate, with the following appropriations: Dunster lane, $8700; Glenwood avenue, $865; Hemingway street, $185; Lochwan street, $685; Madison avenue West, $2100; Marshall avenue, $2900; Oxford street, $3025.

Under Article 49 it was voted to accept the deed and conveyance from Emily A. Scholl of 36 sq. ft. of land at the northwesterly corner of Vine street.

The total appropriations authorized by the Town for this year amount to $828,351.45. Taking into account several transfers this amount is rather more than the figures recommended by the Finance Committee.

This year's meeting was officially adjourned at 10:21 p. m.

MANLINO G. MOFFETT

RESIGNS AFTER 22 YEARS WITH ONE FIRM

Manlino G. Moffett of 3 Watson place, this town, has tendered his resignation to the local firm of Kelley & Hawes, where he has been foreman for the past 22 years. He intends to devote his whole time to his undertaking business in Winchester and he will also establish a public taxi service and will have limousines for hire for funerals, weddings, etc.

Mr. Moffett started in the undertaking business several years ago and it has developed so rapidly that he found it necessary to resign from his other position.

He was born in Winchester and was educated in the public schools of this town. He entered the world war in October 1917 and served in the United States Navy for 14 months. He is a member of the B. P. O. E., K. of C., M. C. O. F., American Legion and the Holy Name Society. He is one of Winchester's most prominent undertakers, being connected with the firm of Moffett & McMullen. He is very popular among both younger and older sets of Winchester's townspeople. He is married and has one daughter, Rita.

Mr. Moffett's resignation took effect Saturday and his large host of friends wish him the best of luck. He is better known as "Joe" by his host of friends than by his first name.

NELLIE M. LOOMIS

Nellie M. Loomis, widow of George H. Loomis, suddenly passed away at the residence of her daughter and only surviving child, Mabel L. Kneeland, (Mrs. William A. Kneeland) 15 Oxford street, this town, last Sunday afternoon, March 18. She had enjoyed good health to the very hour of her death.

Mrs. Loomis was born 73 years ago in Somers, Connecticut. She was the daughter of Maria Gowdy and George Mixter, and a descendant of early settlers of Connecticut. She spent most of her married life in Westfield, Mass., and has been a resident of this town for the past 15 years at the home of her daughter.

She was a member of the Fortnightly, and an attendant of the First Congregational Church, although she had retained her membership in the Methodist Episcopal Church of Westfield. Her loss will be mourned by a host of friends in this town.

The funeral services, which were held at her late residence, on Tuesday afternoon, March 20, were conducted by the Rev. Howard J. Chidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church, and music was furnished by the Pilgrim Male Quartette. Interment was made in Pine Hill Cemetery, Westfield, the following day.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

On last Thursday evening a Shamrock whist and social was held at the home of Regent Ambrose, Vice Regent Anna DeCourcey and Sister Annie McDonald, acting as hostesses for the occasion. Tables comprised guests from Cambridge, Arlington, Woburn and Medford in addition to the many local friends and members.

The directors held their regular semi-annual meeting on Tuesday evening and found the financial condition and reports of the local branch most pleasing, with net receipts and payments for charitable purposes exceeding in many instances reports for the same period in other years.

The semi-annual concert at the Holy Ghost Hospital on last Sunday afternoon was very well attended by the members of the several branches. Talent furnished by the several branches certainly deserves all the praise the Guilds and their members, as well as the Sisters at the Hospital extend to them.

The next regular meeting will be held on Thursday evening, April 12 following the reception to new members and the installation of officers for the coming year.

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

An unusually dramatic picture, "The Leopard Lady", heads the program the beautiful Granada Theater in Malden is offering the last three days of this week. It is a tremendous picture in every way and the principal characterizations are in the capable hands of Jacqueline Logan, Alan Male and Robert Armstrong. The regular five act bill of Granada vaudeville headed by the High Steppers Revue will also be offered the last three days of this week.

Richard Dix returns to comedy in his newest vehicle "Sporting Goods", which will be shown at the Granada for three days starting next Monday. "Sporting Goods" is farce—pure and unadulterated farce of the kind he did in "Womanhandled" and "Let's Get Married". The star is cast as a golf-suit salesman, who finds himself mistaken for a multi-millionaire and is forced to sell a record order of golf-suits to make good the deception which he has continued to win a girl. How he does it provides two hours of genuine laughing entertainment. A five act vaudeville program, the Granada Symphony Orchestra under the direction of Chester Mason, together with organ novelties by Roy Frazee are regular features of every program.

A Little Journey Through a Famous Automobile Plant

Where the laws of quality rule every skilled step in building one of America's finest motor cars—

Today's Chandler

WELL, here's the huge $10,000,000 plant where today's Chandler is built . . . .

A guide meets us in the foyer of the main office building. We walk to the faraway north side of the plant's 31⅓ acres—and enter the first building. Big overhead cranes. A maze of whirring wheels. Huge machines that crunch and cut steel as easily as teeth bite through a banana!

On to the next building—the next—and the next. A million square feet of floor space.

Big multiple drills that bore 52 holes in a crankcase at one lick. Giant planers. Monster trip-hammers. Rows and rows of lathes. Battery after battery of automatic gear-cutting machines.

Electric heat-treating ovens. Machines that bore, ream, grind and hone cylinders to a mirror finish.

Sound-proof rooms for testing the silence of gears. Pikes Peak motors hooked up with dynamos in tests of power. Tests. Tests. Tests.

Woodworkers building the rugged body skeletons. Vivid flashes of electric flame as men weld on the outside armor of steel.

At last the long assembly lines. Watch the cars grow. Step by step. Dexterous workmen, each with a special task. No lost motion. No confusion.

A great automobile plant. Great automobiles. A great company. Independent of anybody and everybody. Powerfully financed. No mortgages. No bonded indebtedness. No bank loans. No outstanding notes.

Builds its cars from the ground up. Packs them full of Pikes Peak power. Endows them with luxury. Equips them with easy-acting Westinghouse Vacuum Brakes—"One Shot" centralized lubrication — feature after feature — everything.

It is only natural that today's Chandler is a decided favorite. See the new Sixes, and Royal Eights—$995 to $2195, f. o. b. factory.

MINERVA KITTREDGE CHAPMAN

On Sunday, March 11, 1928, Mrs. Minerva Kittredge Chapman died in Allston of Boston, Massachusetts. It was the conclusion of a beautiful career of motherhood, a record closed of eighty-three years of helpful and happy living.

Minerva Kittredge was born in Dracut, Massachusetts, December 14, 1844. She married Charles H. Chapman of Shirley, Massachusetts, and lived in Lunenburg, Shirley, Groton, and over 20 years in Winchester. Five children were born to her: first, two daughters, Alice E., with whom she made her home, and Cora, who is Mrs. Albert Farwell of Groton, Massachusetts, then, to her joy, arrived a son, Charles, followed by Frank and Fred. The years brought several grandchildren: Ray and Claude Farwell, Margery, Maxine Chapman, Hazel and Leland Chapman.

Her greatest bereavement was the passing of her husband Charles H. Chapman, June 30, 1916, and the untimely death of Ray Baldwin Farwell.

She loved her home and it was a great joy to entertain there her many friends who loved her and often spoke of her gracious hospitality. She had been very well, for years, with the exception of the difficulty of walking without aid, and her faltering speech that limited her communion with her friends. She said, however: "I'm not going to bemoan my lot". She was absolutely keen mentally to the end, always cheerful, wonderfully patient and devoted to her children to whom she was always a great blessing.

Services were conducted by Rev. Manley F. Allbright of the Congregational Church, Allston, on Tuesday, March 13. Maude Erickson, soloist of the Congregational Church, sang three comforting selections. The floral tributes were unusually beautiful.

Burial was in the family lot in Groton, Massachusetts.

LOCAL SECRETARY SURPRISED

Miss Ellen Anderson of Woburn, popular secretary for the R. M. Kimball Company on Main street, was pleasantly surprised on Monday evening when she was guest of honor at a dinner held at Glendale Farm Inn, Woburn.

Miss Anderson had gone to the Inn expecting to dine quietly with a small group of friends and was taken completely back when upon her arrival she found herself surrounded by 20 of her friends and business associates from various concerns about the center.

A delicious dinner was served and just before the arrival of the first course Miss Mary Crosby of Stoneham on behalf of the company presented Miss Anderson with a handsome table lamp for which that astonished young lady expressed thanks in a manner to leave no doubt of her appreciation.

In addition to the lamp Miss Anderson was presented with 20 humorous little gifts which she was obliged to open in the presence of the company, occasioning much merriment. Following the dinner games and music were enjoyed.

Miss Anderson, whose engagement to Clarence Hoagland of Concord, N. H., was announced last year, has chosen May as her wedding month, and Monday evening's party was in honor of the approaching nuptials.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

The March meeting of the W. C. T. U. held in the First Congregational Church parlor was largely attended. Guests from several missionary societies were present.

Miss Carolyn H. Sealey, in her usual bright manner told many interesting facts in regard to the liquor problem in India. She said the women in India were the leaders in Temperance campaigns. They also see that temperance instruction is given in the schools, but the people of India watch and imitate the Europeans. And the temperance work is greatly hindered by excessive drinking among the British.

On March 19, Mrs. Edna Bagnall and Mrs. Hamilton organized a branch of the loyal temperance legion in the New Hope Baptist Church. The young people were very enthusiastic and the following officers were elected: President Richard Barksdale; Vice-President, Ethelbert Griffeths; Secretary, Marie Logan; Treasurer, Andrew Smith.

EPIPHANY MEN'S CLUB

The next meeting of the club will be held at the Parish House, Monday, March 26 at 6:30 p. m. This will be "Games' Night". Bridge, Whist, Checkers, Dominoes, Chess and Indoor Putting Contest. Other games will be provided on request. Dinner will be served at 2:30 p. m.; cover charge $1. There will be no entrance fee for the games.

Prizes will be given the winners in all contests and a surprise is in store for the members. Will each member coming to the meeting urge another Epihany man, who may be in doubt, to come also. Guests are always welcome.

FOUR MOTOR ACCIDENTS OVER PAST WEEK-END

The week-end just past proved one of the worst from the stand-point of motor accidents which Winchester has experienced in some time. Fortunately none of the mishaps proved especially serious and no one was reported as badly injured, though there was considerable property damage involved.

A Ford sedan, owned by Martin Roache of 23 Harvard street and driven by Thomas H. Roache of the same address, was in collision at 1:35 Saturday afternoon on Washington street with a second automobile, owned by Emeline W. Ewer of 111 Cambridge street and operated by Donald Dalrymple of the same address. Both machines were going south and Roache was slowing down to stop when his car was struck by Dalrymple's machine. Roache's car was damaged about the rear-end.

At 2:30 o'clock Sunday morning a Ford sedan, owned by Robert J. Coughlin of 59 Winter street, Arlington, and driven by Rocco Lombardo of 41 Clyde street, Somerville, while going east on Bacon street was sideswiped and piled up in the gutter by another unidentified car which was headed west on Bacon street. The second car had no lights and its driver did not stop following the accident. Coughlin's car was badly smashed and was towed to the Central Garage. Fortunately he and Lombardo escaped injury.

At a few minutes before 11:30 Sunday forenoon a Mrs. Agnes E. Hargett of 50 Wendell street was crossing Washington street to enter St. Mary's Church she was struck by the right front mudguard of an Overland touring car, owned by William F. Bond of 8 Clarke street and driven by William C. Bond of the same address. Bond was driving out of Bridge street onto Washington street to go West. He was signalled to stop by Officer James Donaghey, on traffic duty at the church, and did so, Mrs. Haggerty running into his fender. The latter complained of injuries to her leg.

Shortly before midnight Sunday Selectman Joseph W. Worthen was aroused by the crash of glass near his home. He notified the police and Sergt. William H. Rogers and Patrolman William C. Cassidy were dispatched to investigate. Upon their arrival the officers found that a Buick coupe had crashed broad-side into a tree at the corner of Glen road and Cambridge street. The car was abandoned but the police discovered its owner, Allan P. Chase of 105 Governors avenue, Medford, the latter on the way to the house of a friend on Wedgemere avenue. Chase was accompanied by a man who had been riding with him in the car at the time of the accident. Neither was injured.

PUPILS OF MRS. LEWIS IN RECITAL

The pupils of Mrs. Annie Soule Lewis of Washington street appeared in a recital of pianoforte music last Friday evening in Fortnightly Hall. A goodly number of parents and friends of the youthful artists were present and evinced keen pleasure in the program which included solo numbers and selections for four, six and eight hands. The usual social hour was held.

Mrs. Lewis acted as mistress of ceremonies and also appeared in several numbers with her pupils. The program featured Miss Priscilla Frost who played twice as soloist and also assisted in two ensemble numbers. Miss Frost was playing in her final Winchester recital, a fact which will be generally regretted by those who have enjoyed hearing her for some years past. She is to be married in June and is to make her future home in Vermont. Pupils from Medford Hillside, Medford, Arlington, Woburn, Burlington and Winchester assisted with the program.

Among those who played were Ruth Preston, Norma Trout, Milton Heald, Jean Huckins, Richard Clarke, Betty Bezanson, Lorraine Hanson, Phyllis Draffin, Madeline Goddin, Mary Lynch, Eleanor McElroy, Lenna Hill, Paul Hill, Ruth Olinder, Elizabeth Gray, Doris Heald, Anna Smith, Elizabeth Symmes, Priscilla Richardson, Lester Goldstein, Evelyn Lord, Helen Smith, Beulah Hopwood, Dorothy Harrington Mary McKleny Dorothy Collins ,Amy Johnson an l Priscilla Frost.

WINCHESTER TOT FATALLY BURNED

Helen Tofuri, four-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Augustino Tofuri of 19 Spruce street, was fatally burned shortly before 10:15 last Saturday morning, while playing on the town dump.

In company with several other youngsters Helen was playing about a small fire when in some manner her clothing became ignited and she was quickly enveloped in flames. Her screaming playmates attempted to smother the flames, and nearby residents, attracted by the cries, rushed to the dump. The child's clothing was extinguished but not until after she had been seriously burned.

Helen was rushed in an automobile by two Nelson street young men, Robert Sullivan and Clarence Osborne, to the Winchester Hospital where she was attended by Drs. Allan R. Cuningham and Richard W. Sheehy. Medical skill proved unavailing and the little girl passed away at 3 o'clock Sunday morning.

Surviving, besides her parents, are three sisters, Mrs. Mary Maffei, Rose and Pauline Tofuri, and four brothers, Peter, Michael, George and Charles Tofuri, all of Winchester.

Funeral services were held Tuesday morning from the Tofuri residence with a mass of requiem celebrated at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's Church by Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley. Five little girls, playmates of the deceased, served as bearers. They were Eva Fiore, Rose V. Ozzella, Mary Tofuri, Frances Pearson, Angelina Maronie and Elizabeth Scaturo, all of Winchester. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery.

PLAY HUNT IS UNDER WAY

Chief of Little Theater Group in Provincetown Seeks Manuscripts

Are you writing a play? Most people are—or have been, or will be—engraved in this piquant pursuit. So the news that the organizer of the famous Wharf Players, of Provincetown Mrs. Mary Bicknell, of Winchester, Mass., has been in Washington on a play hunting expedition may be of general interest.

She combined the business of looking over the field here with the pleasure of visiting Miss Dorothy Trout at her home in Georgetown. This gifted artist, the daughter of the late Captain and Mrs. Harry G. Trout, is also one of the promoters of this picturesque little theater group, which is, of course, a summer-time activity. Mrs. Bicknell left today for Morristown, N. J., where she is to be for some time—at 7 Wendover road, in case you have a manuscript to submit.

It will be welcome, for the Wharf Players have a tradition of producing new plays, feeling that this is the true province of the little theater and their chief difficulty is to find enough that are worthy of presentation, judged by somewhat rigorous standards. Last summer, however, the company produced seven with gratifying success including a musical comedy, "God's Own Country", which "stood 'em up" during the entire run. This show was the work of Dan Walker and "Doc" Eisenbourg, of radio fame. The latter also contributed a drama of Polish life, "The House of One" and his name appeared on Wharf Theater programs as translator of "Servitude", a Spanish drama. William Faversham, Jr., is a member of the company, the backbone of which is professional; and either he or his distinguished father must be the "William Faversham" who wrote "His proper Peter", a comedy of manners, which was one of the most successful productions of last season.

Many Washingtonians have discovered Provincetown and the Wharf Players. "Bobby" Bell and his pretty wife, Josephine Hutchinson, worked with them summer before last, before Miss Hutchinson got her big chance with Eve LeGallienne's Civic Repertory Theater. The beautiful things done by the "Ram's Head Players", which Mr. Bell, one of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Bell, of Washington, organized and directed and in which Miss Hutchinson played the lead, are still remembered here, although the project eventually petered out. And Cleon Throckmorton, a Washington man, who has had considerable success as a designer of stage settings, helped decorate the old wharf house, which has been done over into a charming little theater, seating 225, and installed the lighting arrangements, which, with artistic handling, give effects rarely achieved short of the commercial theater.

Perhaps the chief claim to fame of the Wharf Players, however, is their boast that they have put on plays for five seasons and can show a balance on the credit side of the ledger. That, presumably, is due to the fact that, although they had small capital to start with, they had practical knowledge of the stage as well as abundant enthusiasm. Moreover, the Provincetown Players had made theatrical history, the Wharf Players, coming along a few years after they had disbanded, perhaps took over their "good will" and Provincetown, art center and charming Old World summer colony, provides appreciative audiences for their little theater. The company has, moreover, an experienced professional director.

Mrs. Bicknell is the wife of W. H. W. Bicknell, an artist of international reputation, who specializes in the delicate craft of the etcher. She is a dynamic person and, as she says laughingly, a "fast worker" when she gets started. She proved that the summer the Wharf Theater was built for the project only took shape in June and the theater was ready to open by July 15. Mrs. Bicknell and the builder having whipped into shape rather sketchy plans of Mr. Throckmorton's. The Players have been so successful that out of their organization has grown the Wharf Players' School, now entering upon its second year.—[Washington D. C. Times.

VISITING HAWAII

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Schraft of Myopia Hill arrived at Honolulu the first of the month after a speedy 4-day trip from San Francisco on the giant liner Malolo.

Malolo passengers arrived in time to attend the special Hawaiian program at the Queen Emma home, one of the historic landmarks of Honolulu. The home of the Dowager Queen, wife of King Kamehameha IV, has been preserved by the Daughters of Hawaii as a park and museum.

A hula dance interpretive of island legends and native music are features of the special program being enacted as an attraction for the many "malihinis" (newcomers) in Hawaii during the present tourist season.

Many of the arrivals from the Malolo are planning trips to the other islands in the Hawaiian group. To Kauai, to see Waimea, the "Grand Canyon of Hawaii"; to Maui to where the house of the sun, Haleakala, the world's largest extinct volcano crater is located; and to the island of Hawaii, land of steaming volcanoes and the home of Madame Pele, Hawaiian fire goddess.

DRAMA THRILLS AND ROMANCE IN STORY OF "THE YANKEE CLIPPER"

Theme Deals With Glorious Days Before Civil War When America Ruled Sea

Said to be one of the most unusual and thrilling photoplays produced in five years is "The Yankee Clipper," a sea picture featuring William Boyd, Elinor Fair, Walter Long and Junior Coghlan, which will be shown at the Regent Theatre, Arlington, for three days beginning next Monday. This is an absorbing dramatic story of the glorious days just before the Civil War when the American clipper ship reigned triumphant on the high seas.

Point Conception, the grave of six United States Navy destroyers which crashed into its menacing rocks several years ago, was selected by Rupert Julian as his principal location for the filming of sea scenes of "The Yankee Clipper," his latest production for Cecil B. DeMille.

The waters of this promontory are said to be the roughest on the Pacific Coast. As a result the most realistic storm scenes ever brought to the screen are seen in the picture.

The clipper ships "Indiana" and "Boremia," among the last of their type, were thoroughly reconditioned for the picture under the supervision of Leigh Smith, who was responsible in large measure for the success of "Down to the Sea in Ships." Both are as seaworthy as the day they were launched at Bath, Me., more than 50 years ago.

The story deals with Hal Winslow, a young seaman whose father had invented the design of a fast sailing "V"-shaped clipper ship. The son sails the vessel to Foo Chow, China, in search of a cargo of tea. Here Winslow meets Huntington, a British ship captain who is in China on a similar mission. Huntington is accompanied by his beautiful daughter, Jocelyn, and one day Winslow rescues her from a band of beggars. She is engaged to a bounder named Richard, who proves himself both a coward and cad.

At a dinner given by a Chinese merchant, it is agreed that both ships—"The Yankee Clipper," commanded by Winslow and "The Lord of the Isles," owned by Huntington, shall carry cargoes of tea to Boston and that the vessel winning the race shall have the monopoly of the tea-carrying trade. On the day when the race begins, Jocelyn and her fiance Richard go aboard "The Yankee Clipper," to bid Winslow goodbye. Winslow decides to keep both aboard the vessel so that Jocelyn may learn the real character of Richard and be spared the disgrace of wedding a scoundrel.

During the voyage, Richard causes much trouble among the crew and he is finally exposed by Winslow as a coward and traitor. The voyage to Boston is an exciting one filled with highly dramatic incidents. "The Yankee Clipper" reaches Boston harbor first and wins a gruelling race. Jocelyn has learned to despise Richard and love Winslow and at the finish of the ocean race, they plight their troth, and all ends happily.

The story was written by Denison Clift and the picture was directed by Rupert Julian under the supervision of C. Gardner Sullivan. William Boyd and Elinor Fair are seen together in this picture for the first time since "The Volga Boatman." Long is seen as the hard-boiled sailor. Julia Faye and John Miljan are in the supporting cast.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

Rehearsals for the first annual play of the Noonan Chapter have been held two or three times a week for the past three weeks with the "show" rapidly rounding into shape. All the parts are being taken by members of the Chapter and it is expected that first-class performance will be the result.

The play, called "Aunt Connie Sets the Pace—and How", is a semi-serious comedy in three acts. It is being coached by Mrs. Frances T. Conlon, Secretary-Treasurer of the Chapter. Mrs. Conlon will also take the leading part in the performance.

Before and after the show there will be specialty acts of an interesting nature. An orchestra has been engaged and some of the fathers in the district have very graciously consented to hadle the properties. Mr. Marchand will paint the scenery and Mrs. Louis Capone wil be in charge at the door. It is expected that the school will have a new curtain in place in time for the show, also some footlights and all the fix.n's.

The performance will be given on Thursday afternoon, April 26, for the children and on Friday evening, April 27, for the grown-ups.

Invitations have been sent to the presidents of the other chapters and to the present and past presidents of the Mothers' Association and to our founder, Mrs. Harrison Parker.

President Elizabeth C. McDonald, Secretary-Treasurer Frances T. Conlon and our Principal, Miss Mary A. Lyons represented the Noonan Chapter at the tea which was given this week by our retiring president, Mrs. Ruth Porter, on Wednesday of this week at her home on Norwood street to intrduce to the varius Chapter Presidents and Principals our new President, Mrs. Harold Farnsworth.

C. D. O FA. NOTES

It is hoped that we will have an unusually large attendance at the next meeting on Thursday evening of next week when the committee will be appointed for the Court's next big affair.

It is anticipated now that this will take the form of a "Supper and Entertainment of the Seasons", and with the interest which the members are already manifesting in our April social there is no question about its being as successful as the many splendid parties which have preceded it this year.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Arthur H Cameron, Robert M Hamilton and Arthur A Mallen, as Trustees of the Winchester Associates, to Rebecca A. Ayer, dated July 6, 1926 being noted as Document No. 69451, noted on Certificate of Title No. 20684 filed in the South Registry District for Middlesex County, in Registration Book 138, Page 433, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Monday, April 16, 1928 at nine o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein substantially described as follows:

"The land, together with the buildings thereon, situated in Winchester, Middlesex County, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being bounded and described as follows: Easterly by Main Street, ninety and 96/100 (90.96) feet; Northerly by Water Street sixty (60) feet; Westerly by Lot F, as shown on said plan hereinafter referred to ninety (90) feet; and Southerly by Lot B as shown on said plan hereinafter referred to, seventy-five and 41/100 (75.41) feet, containing six thousand, one hundred nineteen (6119) square feet of land, and being Lot A, as shown on plan of "Subdivision of lots, Winchester, Mass.", drawn by Parker Holbrook, Engineer, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in the South Registry District of Middlesex County as Plan No. 11066-B. The above described premises are a portion of the premises conveyed to us as Trustees as aforesaid, by Arthur H Cameron, by deed dated November 27, 1925, and filed in the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 138, Page 433, and noted on Certificate of Title No. 20,684 as Document No. 64,064. Said premises are conveyed subject to a building line on said Water Street, as shown on Document No. 66,203, noted on said Certificate of Title No. 20,684, and are subject also to a mortgage amounting to Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars, given by us as Trustees as aforesaid to George D. Leltie by deed dated May 19, 1926, and noted as Document No. 67,976 on said Certificate of Title No. 20,684, which said mortgage is now held by the Winchester National Bank."

Said premises will be sold subject to said prior mortgages, all unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments or other municipal liens.

$500.00 in cash will be required to be paid at the time of the sale and the balance to be paid within ten (10) days from the date of the sale at Room 1025, 100 Milk Street, Boston, Mass. Other particulars made known at time of sale.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS LAND COURT

To Anna Nelson, William M. Little, Estelle R. Little, of Winchester, in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth, and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by J. Reed Moss, of Newton, in the said County of Middlesex, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows:

Northwesterly by Sheffield Road; Northerly by the junction of said Sheffield Road and Alesworth Avenue; Easterly by said Alesworth Avenue; Southerly by land now or formerly of William M. Little et al; and Southwesterly by land now or formerly of Anna L. Nelson.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the sixteenth day of April A. D. 1928, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of March in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-eight.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

WOMEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB MEETS APRIL 4

The annual meeting and election of officers will be held Wednesday at 2:30 p. m. in Association Hall, Vine street. This change in meeting place has been occasioned by the need of a larger seating capacity to take care of the attendance expected. There has been a greatly increased membership during the year and a program of unusual interest for this day has been planned.

Association Hall is right off the center in line with the Congregational Church. It lends itself admirably to all club activities and has a seating capacity of more than 300.

The club is most fortunate in securing for its speaker, Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder, vice-chairman of the Republican State Committee and leader of the Republican women of this State. Mrs. Batchelder is a most interesting and pleasing speaker. She is also the mother of Roger Batchelder, the New York correspondent of the Boston Sunday Globe. The soloist, Mrs. Franklin, a noted soprano, is giving her services through the courtesy of Mrs. Edward Mudge.

The program follows:

Voting for Officers
Annual Reports
Two Groups of Songs — Mrs. Helen Franklin
Soloist County Road Congregational Church, Chelsea
The Political Situation of the Moment
Mrs. Frank Roe Batchelder
Vice Chairman Republican State Committee
Fashion Lecture — Jordan Marsh Company
Club Models

Mrs. Frank T. Barnes	Mrs. Walter Worship
Mrs. Clifton S. Hall	Mrs. Warren Maynard
Mrs. Bert F. Gage	Mrs. Rasmus Miller
Mrs. Charles Burnham	Mrs. Arthur Kelley
Mrs. H. Richardson	Miss Betty Fessenden
Mrs. Geo. S. Hamilton

The meeting will close with the announcement of the election, after which there will be a reception by the new officers, and tea will be served down stairs in the hall, by the social committee under the direction of Mrs. William F. Lefavour.

A daughter, Marie Elizabeth was born to Mr. and Mrs. T. J. O'Leary at their home on Nelson street Monday, March 26.

MISS ELIZABETH BARTON TO WED STEPHEN B. NEILEY

The first of Winchester's early spring weddings takes place in the Unitarian Church this afternoon at 4 o'clock when Miss Elizabeth Barton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. S. Barton of Swan road, and Stephen Barton Neiley, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Neiley of Myopia road, are to be united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. George Hale Reed.

Miss Barton is to be accompanied by Miss Dorothy Drowne of Newton Highlands as maid of honor and Mr. Neiley is to have for his best man his brother, Edward A. Neiley of Winchester.

Miss Margaret Bradlee of West Medford, Mrs. George L. Barton of Cambridge and Miss Alice Rogers, Miss Frances Gould, Miss Medora Gale and Miss Esther Hollins, all of Winchester, are to be bridesmaids, and the ushers include George Field Neiley of Bronxville, N. Y.; Godfrey C. Neiley of Winchester and Richard B. Neiley of Cambridge, brothers of the bridegroom; George L. Barton of Cambridge and Edward T. Barton of Winchester, brothers of the bride; and Donald C. Starr of Winchester.

The bride is to wear her mother's wedding gown of ivory satin in period style and is to carry a shower bouquet of bride's roses and valley lilies. Miss Drowne is to wear yellow chiffon with a leghorn hat and slippers to match her gown. The frocks of the bridesmaids are of orchid chiffon, worn with slippers to match and leghorn hats. All the bridal attendants are to carry bouquets of spring flowers.

Following the ceremony at 4:30 o'clock a reception is to be held at the home of the bride's parents where the guests are to be received by Mr. and Mrs. J. L. S. Barton, Mr. and Mrs. George Neiley and the bride and bridegroom.

Upon their return from a wedding journey Mr. and Mrs. Neiley are to be at home after May 1 at 3 Arlington street, Cambridge. Both are well known in Winchester's younger set. The bride is a graduate of the Cambridge Haskell School, class of 1927. Mr. Neiley prepared for college at Phillips Academy, Andover, and was graduated with the class of 1922 from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His fraternity is Phi Gamma Delta.

MRS. ANITA S. McGARAGLE HONORED AT A TEA

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Margaret T. Hinthan entertained at a tea at her home on Chestnut street in honor of Mrs. Anita S. McGaragle retiring chairman of dramatics for The Fortnightly. The invited guests were the 50 or more club members who had taken part in the plays put on by the committee during the past year. Mrs. McGaragle and Dr. Mary T. Maynard presided at the tea table which was decorated with a large bowl of spring flowers. The attractiveness of the table was further enhanced by the ices which resembled different kinds of fruit and were served from large baskets. Another springlike touch was added by the beautiful bunches of violets which the hostess gave to the pourers and to Mrs. Christine E. Hayden who had assisted in the plans for the afternoon.

At the conclusion of the tea, Mrs. Hintlian in behalf of the guests presented Mrs. McGaragle with a string of pearls from her "stars" as an expression of their love and their appreciation of the excellent and faithful work she has done for Dramatics this past year.

A WORD FROM MR. CHIDLEY

Editor of the Star:

Apropos of the drive for Scout funds in Winchester may I quote from one of the leading writers of England, L. P. Jacks, a statement which he made recently about the Scout movement at a lecture at Glasgow University.

"Among the efforts now being made to train the rising generation for the co-operative function, I know of none more promising than the great movement originated by Sir Robert Baden-Powell, "the Boy Scouts." It has the marks of a united effort that is destined to last and to grow. Already it has become worldwide and international, and the width of it is supported in the depth of it. It solves the antimony of work and play, of labor and leisure at the stage where such antimonies are apt to be most pernicious—in the life of the young. Playing the man is substituted for playing the fool, and mutual loyalty promoted by common participation in that splendid game. The ideal of service, translated from a moral generality into a skilful occupation, is present throughout and wisdom is taught by working contact with elemental things. Dark days, wet weather obstructions, difficulties and contradictions are freely encountered, the manful confronting of them being an essential part of the game. The sportsmanlike spirit, under a business like discipline has here been brought into the service of a moral ideal, and the spirit of youth rejoices in the combination. As a school for loyalty, competence and social good humor—the last of immense importance wherever co-operation is in question—I venture to predict that this movement is destined to play a beneficient part in training the citizenship of the future. That it has been extended to girls as well as boys is a further proof of its vitality and the soundness of its principles. Already the influence of it is beginning to be felt in the direction of educational reform."

Yours sincerely,
Howard J. Chidley

LOUISE PACKER SURVIVES EARLY ROUNDS IN GIRLS' NATIONAL SINGLES

After a close call in the second round when she defeated Charlotte Miller of New York, 7—5, 8—10, 7—5, Louise Packer, Winchester's southpaw tennis ace, survived the third round of play in the Girls' National Singles tournament on the Longwood covered tennis courts at Chestnut Hill yesterday afternoon. Her opponent in the third round was Rosamond Gariner of Boston who gave Louise a real battle in the first set of their match which the local girls' steadiness in the pinches gave her at 6—4. Louise won the second set at love and for the third successive year entered the semi-final round of the tourney, a fine record. The Winchester girl's win over Amy David in the first round matches on Tuesday was impressive, the score standing 6—0, 6—1. Among the other Winchester girls participating in the tournament were Mary Louise Carpenter, Deborah Gilbert and Catherine Boyden, none of whom survived the second round of play.

In the first round of the Girls' National Doubles play Mary Louise Carpenter and Deborah Gilbert were defeated, 6—4, 3—6, 9—7, by Louise and Dorothy Harding in a hard fought match. Louise Packer and Catherine Boyden, a Winchester team, eliminated Joanna Palfrey and Elizabeth Hearding, 6—2, 6—1.

J. ALBERT WILSON

Organist to be Heard Palm Sunday in Recital at Methodist Episcopal Church

The announcement in last week's Star that J. Albert Wilson, organist, is to be heard in a recital of organ music Palm Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the Methodist Episcopal Church aroused unusual interest. Music lovers generally are welcoming the opportunity to hear once more the former organist and choirmaster of the Church of the Epiphany who recently resigned after nearly 20 years of continuous service.

Assisting Mr. Wilson will be Walter Kidder, eminent Boston basso who is generally admitted to be numbered among the leading vocalists of New England. Mr. Kidder is no stranger to Winchester, having appeared here as soloist a year ago in the presentation of Spohr's oratorio, "Calvary" at the Church of the Epiphany and previously at the First Congregational Church with the Boston Square & Compass Club.

On Sunday he is to sing the beautiful aria, "Tears of Sorrow," from "Calvary" by Spohr and the universally beloved "Palm Branches" by Faure. His third number is to be, "God, My Father," the magnificent aria from Dubois' "Seven Last Words of Christ," all three selections being especially appropriate to this particular season of the church year.

Mr. Wilson has chosen his own selections carefully and is to present a program of unusual interest. Among others he is to play one of his own compositions and the lovely "Largo" from the New World Symphony by Dvorak.

The complete program follows:

Prelude and Fugue in F Minor	Bach
Allegro Vivace	Mendelssohn
"Tears of Sorrow" (From Calvary)	Spohr
"Palm Branches"	Faure
Distant Chimes	Shuckley
Caprice	Kinder
Pastorale	J. A. Wilson
Largo (From New World Symphony)	Dvorak
"God My Father" (From Seven Last Words)	Dubois
Finlandia	Sibelius

WINCHESTER ROTARY CLUB

Approximately one-half of the members of the Wakefield Rotary Club came to Winchester on Thursday as guests of our club. As anticipated we found them to be most congenial both individually and collectively and it is our intention to cultivate their acquaintance more thoroughly.

Reports from those who attended the Charter Night of the Chelsea Club indicate that it was a most interesting and highly dramatic occasion; we regret that so few of our members could be present. We are greatly pleased to know that Chelsea has started so auspiciously. As a matter of course they will function as a credit to themselves and to their community.

Spring was in the air again this week. This time it was interpreted for us by Miss Jergensen and her pupils from the fourth grade of the Mystic School. We wish to compliment both teacher and children on the exhibition which they furnished. Rarely have we seen a brighter class or one apparently more interested in the work at hand which suggests that instruction can be presented in fashion which is entertaining to the pupil and that this ideal is being attained in Winchester. We are indebted to "Jim" for allowing us to observe that which is being accomplished in his department.

Again we are privileged to chronicle the glad tidings of a 100 per cent meeting. Those inclined to be cynical might say that is easy for a small club to maintain an excellent attendance record but really is it? From what experience we have had in the matter it seems to us that such a record is achieved mainly by an extraordinary loyalty to his club on the part of the individual member, coupled with a constant vigilance on the part of suitable supervisors. It is apparent that the Winchester Club is uncommonly well endowed with both elements. We anticipate that the March lists will show our club at or very near the top. And we propose to stay there indefinitely.

FIVE FIRES WEDNESDAY

Starting at 2:10 in the afternoon the Fire Department was called upon to put out five fires during Wednesday. The first was a grass fire along the B. & M. Railroad tracks near Wedgemere Station. At a few minutes before 6, Box 59 was sounded for a fire in an oil burner at the home of Mr. P. B. Moulton on Salisbury road. At 6:17 the department was called to the home of Mr. J. M. McGaragle on Oxford street for a second fire in an oil heater and shortly after 8 in the evening a second run thither was occasioned by trouble of a like nature. The fifth run came at 6:38 o'clock for burning grass on Wendell street.

CALUMET BRIDGE

There was a large attendance at the afternoon bridge held for the ladies of the Calumet Club on Tuesday, there being 18 tables. A color scheme of violet was carried out both in decorations and refreshments, with violet crepe paper trimmings and a large bunch of violets in the centre of each table. Mrs. George F. Purrington was hostess.

The refreshments were particularly dainty and attractive, the ices being served in decorated paper cups and topped with a "C" for Calumet. Cakes and coffee were served in an equally attractive manner.

The prizes were taken as follows: Mrs. Kenneth Childs, first; Mrs. George E. Willey, second; Mrs. Harry Pilkington, third and Miss Friend fourth. What proved to be the high light of the party was withheld until the last minute and came as a complete surprise to all, when the lady having the highest score at each table was presented with a bunch of violets.

Massachusetts Savings Bank Life Insurance

What It Is

Savings Bank Life Insurance is NOT STATE INSURANCE. The State's participation in it consists of a very careful supervisory and administrative control, and the furnishing to the Insurance Departments of the Savings Banks all the necessary policy forms, application blanks, premium rate sheets, surrender value schedules, books of account, and other forms necessary to secure uniformity of cost and procedure throughout all branches of the system. The State also employs two "Instructors" who devote their entire time to explaining the benefits of the plane to the people. The insurance policies are written by the Savings Banks which have established insurance departments under the Savings Bank Insurance Law. All the expenses incident to the physical examination of the applicant, the writing of the policy, the payment of death claims, and the general conduct of the business are borne by the Insurance Department of the Savings Bank.

MILITARY FUNERAL FOR GEO. W. HARROLD

Funeral services for George W. Harrold, World War veteran who passed away March 21 at his home in West Medford after a long illness, were held on Saturday morning from the home on Washington street of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Andrew P. Harrold.

A military escort from Winchester Post, American Legion, under the leadership of Comm'dr. W. Allen Wilde and a firing squad from the Army Base in Boston escorted the flag draped coffin from the house to St. Mary's Church where a solemn high mass of requiem was sung at 9 o'clock.

Rev. Fr. John P. Sullivan was celebrant, Rev. Fr. George H. Quigley, deacon; and Rev. Fr. Nathaniel J. Merritt, subdeacon. The honorary pallbearers were Exalted Ruler George H. Lochman, Exalted Ruler-elect Thomas F. Fallon and Frank McNeil, Charles Farrar, John Hanlon and Andrew Flaherty, representing Winchester Lodge of Elks, of which the deceased had been a charter member. The active bearers were George J. Barbaro, Patrick T. Foley, John Nowell, John Cullen, Vincent P. Clarke, Joseph McManus, Thomas J. McKee and John Ledoux.

The church was well filled with relatives and friends of the deceased and there were many beautiful floral tributes. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery where the committal prayers were read by Rev. Father Haney of Montvale. Following the interment the firing squad fired three volleys and taps were blown by a bugler.

George William Harrold was born in Winchester 29 years ago and was educated in the public schools. He was a member of the old 6th Regiment, M. V. M., and was badly gassed while serving over seas with the American Expeditionary Forces during the World War. He is survived by his parents, a wife and two children, Natalie, aged 6; and George, Jr., aged nine months. Three sisters, Mrs. Leo Hanlon and Miss Eileen Harrold of Winchester and Mrs. Frank Hobley of Mobile, Ala., also survive with two brothers, Charles J. Harrold of Winchester and James H. Harrold of Linden, N. J.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Francis Merenda of 95 Sylvester avenue are the parents of a son, Charles, born March 18 at the Winchester Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Marchesi of 72 Swanton street are the parents of a daughter, Frances, born March 18 at the Winchester Hospital.

Paradox

Back in 1880 man rushed along on horseback or in horseless carriages at five or ten miles an hour. And in thirty-odd years he reached his final destination—the grave.

Nowadays by auto and airplane man dashes along at one to two hundred miles an hour. But it takes him, on an average, about fifty years to reach his final destination—the grave.

SCHOOL DEPARTMENT NOTES

The Winchester Evening School closed Friday, March 23. There were three Americanization classes. The introductory class was taught by Miss Elizabeth L. Naven, the advanced and citizenship classes were taught by Miss Mary A. Doherty.

The class which is finishing the grammar school studies was taught by Miss D. E. Houston.

In these classes were pupils from Italy, Ireland, Norway, Sweden, Spain and America.

In the introductory class were two pupils who came from Sweden last August. They finished their course successfully. Most of the pupils in this class have been in this country only about a year.

Four pupils from the citizenship class passed the Naturalization examination successfully receiving citizenship diplomas, and are now citizens of the United States.

At the close of the exercises, Mr. James J. Quinn, superintendent of schools gave the certificates to the pupils who had finished their courses. After complimenting the pupils on the progress they had made, he gave a most interesting talk in which he spoke encouragingly to the foreign born, and impressed them with the value of an education, and good citizenship. Then all enjoyed a social hour with dancing.

Class History

On Oct. 17, 1927 our citizenship class came together for another year. We had people from five different countries, Italy, Sweden, Norway, Ireland and England. We had many pleasant hours talking over customs in the different countries. I learned about the constitution and how to be a good citizen.

Night school is keeping me out of trouble and bad company, so I like night school. Next year I'll come back to learn more about the constitution and history.

During our school year we had three parties at school. We had music furnished by some members of our class and Miss Marrone, who is always kind enough to offer her services. We invited our friends and everyone enjoyed the moving pictures and dancing.

Four of our class expect to be called in for examination before we meet again. We wish them good luck.

We are very proud of three men in our class who passed their examinations this year: Anthony Amico, Nicola Avelino, Antonio Rubino. We extend congratulations to these new citizens.

A Glimpse of Sweden

During the World War any one could make all kinds of money in Sweden.

After the war, there was not enough work in Sweden. The market was very poor because Germany was able to produce their stock half as cheap as Sweden.

In 1923 the newspapers said that America needed men, so I decided to go to this country and thought of making a better living here.

In the very first days I could see the difference between Sweden and America. A person gets more for his dollar here than he does there. It is not as hard to make a dollar here as it is there.

If you have never been in Sweden you will find it is a beautiful country. During the months of May and June you will find the most wonderful scenery you ever saw. After a hot day you go out to the parks or woods and you will be surprised to see how good the air is. There is a certain kind of flowers growing wild, which fills the air with such a wonderful perfume, you can sit for hours and enjoy yourself. Besides that there are different kinds of birds singing, with a voice so beautiful you would never be tired listening to them.

In the northern part of Sweden you can see the midnight sun. In the middle of the night you have enough light from the sun to read and write.

Swender has a lot of natural resources. There are plenty of rivers and waterfalls which are used to produce electrical power.

Sweden is shipping a great deal of lumber to England and France. There is a large saw mill there—the third largest in the world.

Sweden has many ore mines of silver, copper and iron. The iron ore is considered the best in the world. Some of it is exported to this country. It has been found 90 per cent pure iron. They produce the iron with the help of charcoal.

The farmers in Sweden raise sugar beets, wheat, rye and oats. Oats is the most common crop there.

On the 19th day of April, 1923, I left Gothenburg, Sweden, for this country. I came on a Swedish steamer called Kingsholm. I had a very nice trip over. After a few days you get acquainted with everybody on the boat. We were like one big family.

When I left Sweden, the weather was cool and raw. The ground was frozen and almost like winter. Before I arrived in New York harbor I saw the grass at shore was green, so I thought this must be a wonderful country.

One morning about 4 o'clock the night men woke us up and told us to look at the Statue of Liberty when the light was on. I will say it is a wonderful thing to see from the sea. All the skyscrapers they have in New York make a wonderful scene from the sea.

Rudolph Swanson,
Citizenship Class

A Little Bit of Ireland

The climate of Ireland differs greatly from that of America. There is a great deal of rain in Ireland and it is not as cold as this country.

The shamrock, the national plant, is grown only in Ireland. There are no snakes to be seen there.

Gossiping people say that there are fairies to be seen there, but I have never met one face to face.

Irish people make their living by plowing their own lands and planting their own vegetables. It is harder to make a living in that country than it is here. I came here to make my own way through life.

There are many points of interest over there. The Blarney Stone and the old Castles attract many from all over the world by their beauty.

On the 17th of August, 1926, I stepped on board the Celtic leaving Ireland behind me. I was on the water seven days. On the 27th of August I landed in Halifax, Canada. I was met by my uncle with whom I went to live. He helped me secure a position. I worked there until work got slack. It was then I decided to come to Winchester.

I secured my passport and on Jan. 10 I left Canada. I arrived in Winchester the next day and went to live with my aunt.

When I was four months in Winchester I took out my first papers. I started going to night school three nights a week. I like it very much. I am learning about the Constitution and history which will help me in getting my second papers. I am learning how to be a good citizen of the United States.

We enjoy coming to Evening School because everyone is friendly. We have had many good times together this year.

I like this country very much. It is the best country in the world.

Stephen Connolly
Citizenship Class

A Glimpse of Italy

I left Italy in the year 1923 for America. I left Italy to seek adventure to get a better education, and to see the life of others so as to better my own.

I left my family over there. My family consists of two children and my wife besides my father and mother, sisters and brother. They are all in good health.

Six months after my arrival in this country I got my first paper because I wished to become an American citizen and have a chance to call my family over here. I do this to better the life of my children for their future days and for myself.

My voyage across the ocean was a great one because of good weather, and it was a short one.

I arrived in the greatest country in the world being welcomed by the "Statue of Liberty" one of the marvelous statues in the world which was done by a French sculptor. The "Statue of Liberty" is in the harbor of the largest and greatest city in the world, New York, where I landed to enter the United States of America.

America is a greater country than Italy because it has conveniences and accommodations as the telephone, telegraph and radio and good transportation of all kinds.

Laboring conditions are different than in Italy.

Newspapers are printed all over the country two or three times daily to get quicker news everywhere in the United States. Italy has not these accommodations. In the big cities the newspapers circulate just the same but in the country or town they are slowly circulated.

The climate of Italy is mostly mild. They don't have the cold weather that we have in the United States.

Most of the people of Italy work on the farm and raise olives, grapes, mulberries, figs, lemons, oranges and all other kinds of fruit.

The people are dressed in common clothes because of lack of finances.

The people of the United States are dressed well because of social life and good financial condition. That is the truth.

I love Italy because it is my Fatherland. I did the best I could for her.

Of course she raised one of the greatest men in the world, who was the first to come here and discover this country. Who is he? Christopher Columbus. We cannot forget his name.

The Italian flag is red, white and green with the Italian emblem in the middle of it, which represents the nation.

Now I stand for the United States flag with 13 stripes, and 48 stars in the field of blue which represents 48 States joined together in one nation. I give my salute.

"I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America and to the Republic for which it stands—one nation, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

Substantially Lower Prices on Entire LaSalle Line

MATERIAL reductions on all LaSalle models have opened the door wide enough to admit to LaSalle ownership thousands who have long aspired to the distinction and prestige of a Cadillac-built car.

At $2350 the new LaSalle five-passenger family sedan is something to kindle amazement—as are all the other LaSalle models at their reduced prices.

When you inspect this Cadillac-designed and Cadillac-built car; when you observe the beauty that has created a veritable vogue; when you recall that its famous 90-degree, V-type, 8-cylinder Cadillac-built engine has proved—in the hands of 275,000 owners—its inexhaustible capacity for the severest service—then the full measure of this opportunity is brought home to you.

Other models up to $2875 f. o. b. Detroit. Only a small initial financial outlay required under General Motors liberal payment plan. Appraisal value of your present car acceptable as cash.

Every LaSalle is complete with all modern equipment, much of which is usually obtainable on other cars only at extra cost.

DAILY PHILOSOPHY

The very best way to destroy your enemy is to make him your friend.

It is not your position but your disposition that makes your life worth living.

The determination to have, not what we need, but what others have, will ruin most anyone in the end if not sooner.

How gladly any of us would be willing to pay a larger income tax, yet we actually hate to pay the sum we owe.

Just a little cabin, where the flowers twine and cur, can hold enough of happiness to stretch around the world.

The fact that the Mystic Valley Baseball League, of which Winchester High School is a member, has practically decided to keep the paid coaches of the several teams off the bench during the coming season, thus heeding the admonition of Dr. Frederick R. Rogers, supervisor of physical education in New York State, to "give sports back to the boys", is interesting. In general the STAR is just a bit chary of having high school teams directed during their games entirely by student captains. Several objections occur to us off hand. The thought is not a new one and the science when previously tried at several schools in New England proved a failure. We understand that the system is in operation at present in New York. Our objection to taking the direction of the teams away from the professional coaches hired to handle the job is chiefly based upon the belief that few boys are capable of assuming the responsibilities entailed. He would be an exceptional captain who could exact implicit obedience to his orders from teammates with whom he is on terms of the freest intimacy. We can not picture a batter of the slugging type agreeing to sacrifice at the behest of a fellow player in whose judgment he has but little confidence. Our imagination will not stretch to permit the belief that a boy will remove from a game one in whom friendship has inspired confidence to insert another whom the prejudice of youth has branded a dub. It would be fine, if allowing boys to run their teams could decimate these weaknesses, but we do not believe that the absence of the coach from the playing bench can make for much of anything but trouble. Student captains are too easily influenced by self-appointed coaches whose advice is seldom impartial and rarely of any value. It seems hardly fair to expect results from a coach while at the same time handicapping him in his efforts to produce them. Few coaches, we believe, will favor the new idea and any athletic instructor has plenty of worries as things now are without adding to them the necessity of ironing out internal dissension which is rather apt to occur when the ideas of the schoolboy captain and his team-mates are at variance. Then too, if the new scheme were to be extended, as there is some talk of doing, to include football and basketball, parents would be looking to the coach to protect the physical well being of their off-pring when in effect he could not remove a boy from play even if he would. We are absolutely opposed to the idea of a schoolboy running a football team while in action. The game has progressed altogether too far in recent years to make such procedure safe. No player is in any position to know when a fellow player has had enough, He himself is too busy, and few teams have squad doctors to assume this all important responsibility. Finally, one of the strongest points which proponents make for school athletics is the benefit which participants derive from the discipline to which they are thereby subjected. It is in the actual games that obedience to orders means most. We believe that the average schoolboy capain is for a whole lot of reasons going to be unable to maintain any sort of discipline worthy of the name. It is unfair to expect him to. At present about the only healthy restraint to which the young idea is at all subjected is that imposed by the physical directors and coaches. Everywhere, except upon the athletic field, the youthful will is allowed unusually free scope. The STAR favors this restraint as a steadying influence in the whirlwind of present day youthful freedom, and would preserve it. Boys and girls have plenty of opportunity to display initiative under the present sports system which it would seem has been proven a good one.

TO CORRECT MIS-STATEMENT

Winchester, Mass.
March 28, 1928

Editor of the Star:

We have seen the letter from Mr William E. McDonald, Jr., of 10 Hill street, Winchester, published in your issue of March 23. It is not our purpose to answer the defamatory accusation against the School Committee which that letter contains, but only to correct a mis-statement by which, if it were ignored, a few of our citizens might possibly be misled.

The conference to which the letter refers was attended by us at a private house between regular meetings of the School Committee, as a courtesy to the committee from the Noonan School district. Five members of that committee were in attendance, and the situation was thoroughly and courteously discussed. With reference to the statement in the letter that on that occasion "the chairman of the School Committee assured our representatives that, as far as he and the School Committee were concerned there would be no article inserted in the town warrant this year, and nothing done in the near future about a secondary school."—no such assurance whatever was given, either at that conference or elsewhere. In view of the almost unanimous vote of the town a year ago, providing for the appointment of an independent committee to consider that matter, and to advise the town this March concerning it, such an assurance by the School Committee, which was not given, would have been obviously absurd. If there has been one subject of town affairs more talked about than another in recent months, it has been the proposal of the Committee on Secondary School Facilities to take this year the necessary steps preliminary to obtaining a new secondary school or junior high school at the earliest possible moment;—a proposal which has now been undertaken.

With the construction of the Noonan School, to which Mr. McDonald refers, the School Committee as such had nothing to do. It has, however, carefully watched and studied the situation there at all times. It recently reported to the town,—as indeed we had previously stated at the conference above referred to—, that the next elementary school construction problem was to be met in that district. As, however, six out of eight rooms in the Noonan School have 35 pupils or less, and only one has 40, we would have been in no way justified in going to the town for action this year. Whether action should be taken next year will doubtless appear from the report of the special committee, for the appointment of which, with our cordial approval, the voters have recently and wisely provided.

As the conference above referred to was attended by only two members of the School Committee, this letter is signed only by them, but is published with the express approval of each of the other members.

Very truly yours,
Robert M. Stone

Homes Are Cheap

It isn't so much a matter of what a home costs in comparison with rent costs, since the satisfaction of home ownership so far exceeds living in rented property.

Whatever you put into a home—in money, in improvements, in comforts—is yours. And all these things have a cash value if you ever want to sell.

The satisfaction of living in your own home is purchased very cheaply, everything considered.

We help in financing home ownership. Ask us for particulars.

KWANTUNG, THE PROVINCE THAT EXPORTS CHINESE

The single Chinese province of Kwantung, of which Canton is capital is motherland to a majority of the 60,000 Chinese now resident in the United States, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society. Canton was first Chinese seaport to come in contact with the outside world. Her people in the earliest times became sailors, traders and adventurers, so it is natural that from this southern city should have started that Chinese exodus which has populated the shores of the Pacific.

From this same region some 85,000 Chinese have gone to the Philippines, about 25,000 in Hawaii, and more than a million each in Java, Siam, Formosa and Singapore. For most of these emigrants Canton was port of departure on their great adventure and most of them came from the surrounding district.

Canton the Eye of China

Arabs traded extensively by sea with Canton in the Middle Ages. Portuguese traders arrived at the mouth of the river during the first quarter of the 16th century, bringing, it is said, a cargo of pepper. English ships and traders did not come upon the scene till more than 100 years later, but from that time until after the Opium War Treaty of 1842 Canton was the only Chinese port permitting foreign trade. It is said that the Manchu dynasty favored this arrangement since Canton was the farthest great seaport from their capital.

Thus, for more than 300 years Canton alone of Chinese cities came in touch with Western lands. Her people grew accustomed to foreigners and their methods and were the first to emigrate in large numbers.

Chinese emigration to America began with the discovery of gold in California in 1848 and Chinese labor was in further demand on the transcontinental railroads. By 1880 there were 105,465 Chinese in the United States. Then came the first of the exclusion measures in 1862. Since that time America's Chinese population has decreased some 40 per cent. More than half of American Chinese live on the Pacific coast. In all the United States there are fewer than 8000 Chinese women.

Coming from the neighborhood of Canton, American Chinese largely use the Canton dialect, which so differs from the spoken language of the rest of China as to be totally unintelligible to a native of Peking. Cantonese speech has a range of eight tones while in Peking but four tones are used. Written symbols are, however, the same and can be readily comprehended in any part of China, as the same musical score can be played in Italy and Russia. The American sojourner in China, who, as a rule, learns the Peking or Mandarin dialect finds upon his return to the United States that he cannot converse with the Cantonese laundryman or restaurant waiter, but if he has learned to write Chinese characters communication can be carried on in this medium.

One-Fifth Laundrymen

According to the census of 1920, of the 42 races and nationalities in this country the Chinese population is 28th. There are about one-half as many Chinese as Japanese in the United States. Although mining first attracted the Chinese to America only 150 Chinese miners exist here today. Some 12,000 Chinese, one-fifth of the total population in America are in the laundry business. About the same number are restaurant keepers, waiters and servants. On the Pacific coast are many Chinese truck gardners, small farmers, and nurserymen. San Francisco, New York and other large cities contain Chinese merchant and banking firms which carry on extensive business operations.

Some of these importing and exporting houses have a steady trade in such staple products as silk, tea, porcelain, dried eggs, bristles and wood oil. Other Chinese products, such as hair nets and Ma Jong sets follow the whims of fashion. Chinese rugs, embroideries, and objects of art have increased greatly in Western demand during the last decade.

Nothing quite as good. Darwin English cobalt steel, high speed, rustless razor blades. Cost more. Worth it. Wilson the Stationer.

There are two kinds of pride. One is that sort of false, puffed up bluff that the Book tells us about, the kind that goeth before a fall.

The other kind of proper esteem is the well dressed pride that says, "I'll let my manner of clothes show the world that I'm a responsible citizen who believes that the appearance of a man or a thing is a label that shows what is on the inside."

Cleaning and pressing will do a lot to make you feel pleased with your appearance. We offer you a complete tailoring and cleaning, pressing and clothes repairing service. Phone us for speedy service.

THE FORTNIGHTLY NOTES

The program for Monday afternoon was presented by Mrs. Elizabeth Poole Rice of the faculty of the Leland Powers School and assistant principal of the Phoebeah Rice School at Oak Bluffs, Martha's Vineyard. Mrs. Rice has previously appeared before Club audiences and has always delighted her hearers. Monday she certainly added more admirers of her talents.

The play for the afternoon was "Mr. Pim Passes By". The scene is laid in the morning room of a country house in Buckinghamshire, England. The actors are as follows: Mr. George Marden, a country gentleman; his wife Olivia, widow of Jacob Tell-worthy, once of Australia; his niece Dinah, impulsive and delightfully in love with Mr. Brian Strange, an artist who has hardly had time to find himself; Lady Marden, aunt of George, 65, but hale and hearty; last but by no means least is Mr. Pim with an easily confused memory for names.

Incidentally the futuristic curtains in process of construction for the 300 year old morning room, and the rugs which furnish many excuses for opportune departures, add many humorous touches.

The play is divided into three acts in each of which appears Mr. Pim, best to listen to the news of Dinah's engagement, then to complicate the plot by apparent reports of Mrs. Marden's first husband, supposed to be long since dead. By his propensity to substitute one name for another he winds up a plot, which threatens at different minutes to separate or unite the Marden family. The scenes between Mrs. Marden and her husband furnish plenty of humorous contrast between the conventional and the unconventional and between "right and wrong as they appear in the eyes of the law". With the intuition and skill of a clever woman Mrs. Marden has soon involved her husband in such helpless confusion that he is only too glad to welcome the news that Mr. Pim has again appeared and explained his first confusion of names, a story which Mr. Marden accepts as "innocent deception" of his niece and her lover. However, this report is quite true and in his relief that no crime has been committed and that he need not send his wife back to her convict husband he hugs the much-distressed futuristic curtains, promises to purchase new carpets and furniture covers, and consents to the marriage of his niece and the artist. At the end Mr. Pim finally "passes by" to correct quite unnecessarily another mistake in a name.

Mrs. Rice's presentation was a delight to the ear and the eye. With the most natural grace and the slightest apparent effort she changed from one character to another. Her impersonations were so real and so cleverly identified by little mannerisms and tricks of speech that one was never at a loss as to the speaker. Withal it was so natural that one felt that "the greatest art is the concealment of all art". The performance was highly appreciated by the audience.

The musical numbers for the afternoon were harp solos delightfully rendered by Mrs. Leah H. Haynes of the Fortnightly. Her selections were as follows: Pierre by Hasselmans; Romance by Holy, Chi Mi Frena by Cheshire.

Literature Committee

The final meeting of the Literature Group for this season will be held on Monday, April 2, at 2:30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. Mrs. Edith C. Newell who is in charge of the program has chosen for her subject "The Poet's Garden". There will be flower tableaux and Mr. C. E. Newell will speak on "Flower Arrangement". Mrs. Martha Kelley will read garden poems and Mrs. Marion P. Gale will read some of her own poems. Suzanne Hector will sing a group of songs. Mrs. Blanche S. Barnard is in charge of the tea which follows the program.

There will be an adjourned meeting of The Fortnightly immediately preceding the Literature Group meeting.

Dramatics Committee

The many club members who have enjoyed the monthly programs by the dramatic committee will regret that the series will come to an end for this club year with the meeting on Tuesday, April 3, at 2:30 p. m. in Fortnightly Hall. The program which is in charge of Mrs. Elizabeth C. Davis and Mrs. Anita McGarraghe will consist of three one-act plays, "The Trysting Place" by Booth Tarkington; "What They Think" and "The Importance of Being Clothed". Tea will be served under the direction of Mrs. Anna T. Putnam.

Club Luncheon

Club members are showing a good deal of interest in the luncheon and the sale of tickets so far has been very satisfactory to the committee. The affair promises to be a very enjoyable occasion and those who do not attend will undoubtedly regret it. There are still some tickets in the hands of the committee and they may be purchased at the close of the Literature and Dramatics meetings next week or by telephoning to any of the following committee: Mrs. Helen S. Parsons, Chairman, Win. 0173; Mrs. Beatrice M. Dabney, Win. 1282-M; Mrs. Elizabeth M. Estabrook, Win. 0514-L; Mrs. Mabel H. Gage, Win. 0705-W; Mrs. Mildred E. Gray, Win. 1047; Mrs. Anna T. Hatch, Win. 1332-W; Mrs. Anna T. Richardson, Win. 1589-M; Mrs. Josephine Shepard, Win. 1987-W; Mrs. Florence E. Stone, Win. 0928; Mrs. Cora M. Wadleigh, Win. 1279.

HIGH SCHOOL BASEBALL CANDIDATES OUT

The warm weather of Monday and Tuesday made it possible for the high school baseball candidates to get in a couple of good workouts on Manchester Field, a welcome change from the cramped quarters of the gymnasium.

One of the largest squads ever has reported to Coach Wendell D. Mansfield and Captain Ray Halwartz, prospects appearing rather better for a winning team than was the case a year ago.

While it is as yet too early to get much of a line on the new material Coach Mansfield has a fair nucleus of letter men to build around, including big "Archie" Amico who turned in a lot of good pitching during 1927. The other letter men include Captain Ray Halwartz, "Livie" McNeil, "Hemie" Knowlton, Harold Ambrose, "Barney" Murphy, "Arbie" Taylor, "Jerry" Ghiradini and "Bo" Franklin. Halwartz, McNeil, Murphy and Ambrose are infielders, Knowlton and Ghirardini, outfielders and Franklin and Taylor, catchers.

With the first game scheduled for next Wednesday with Lexington on Manchester Field considerable work will have to be done. Godfrey, "Pete" Foss, "Ollie" Lee, Neil Kerrigan and "Skinny" Kendrick are recruits who are showing well, "Johnny" Murphy, of last year's second team, who was expected to put up a real fight for an infield job this spring, is suffering from a football injury and may be lost to the club.

The complete list of candidates follows:

R. Lee	Joyce
Dan Smith	E. McHugh
Nowell	Kerrigan
Barry	Taylor
Berza	Simonds
Rossetto	R. Whiting
H. Melvin	A. Ghirardini
R. Ambrose	Davis
Edw. Lynch	Ellsworth

John Murphy	D. Emery
C. O'Neil	Cross
Walker	Hesson

The wanted sponge rubber return balls are at the Star office.

TRACK CANDIDATES REPORT

After a lapse of several years Winchester High School is again to foster track athletics this spring in an effort to provide competition for a large group of boys not attracted by baseball.

Faculty Director of Athletics Wendell D. Mansfield is to have charge of the track men, dividing his time so far as possible between the cinder path and the diamond.

A new 1-5 of a mile track is to be laid out by Assistant Town Engineer John Sharon at the Bridgemere end of Manchester Field, the same to have a 100 yard straightaway and to include the gridiron for field hockey.

This lay-out will necessitate changing the football gridiron so as to have it extend diagonally across the field, roughly from east to west. The baseball diamond will remain substantially as it is now.

Little is known of the track ability of the boys who have thus far reported for the team and it is unlikely that much of any interscholastic competition will be indulged in this season, aside from individual entries in the Mystic Valley and Harvard Interscholastics. An inter-class meet will be arranged and possibly one dual meeting scheduled.

The complete list of candidates follows:

W. Callahan	Hayden
H. Child	Bennett
L. Knowlton	Wilson
Anderson	Belden
Shaw	P. Smith
Gibson	Barnes
Morrison	Hill
Mooney	W. Brown
N. Whiting	Boddy
Johnson	Gillette

Women Favored Secession

"Civil War and Reconstruction in Alabama" says of all the women were well informed in all questions of the day and especially in the burning sectional issues that affected them so closely. They were strongly in favor of the secession after the event, if not before; they were even more quarrelsome than the men, feeling that they were more directly concerned in questions of interference with social institutions in the South."

Honor Accorded Physician

During the American occupation of Cuba, following the war with Spain Maj. Walter Reed, of the United States Medical corps, demonstrated that both ordinary malaria and deadly yellow fever were spread by the bites of mosquitoes. In recognition of this contribution to mankind the army hospital in Washington was given his name.

Wasps in Wood Leg

A wooden leg now reposing in the Natural History museum in London, England, has a queer history. It was worn by a wounded soldier. It began to irritate him. At last he took it off—and out came a dozen wasps. Analytical-minded experts discovered that eggs, from which the wasps hatched, lay in the wood before it was made into an artificial limb.

Made Name Immortal

The name "Green Mountain Boys" was given to the soldiers of Vermont in the Revolution, originally organized in 1775 by Ethan Allen to oppose the claims of New York state to the Vermont territory. The band held the Canadian passes against the British during the Revolution.

Early Sealing Wax

Common beeswax was first used as a sealing wax, being mixed with earthy materials to give it consistency. The Venetians brought the Indian sealing wax to Europe. The Indian wax was made only of shellac, colored with vermilion or some other pigment, and this has been found superior to all other materials.

Army's Staple Food

The common field pea, which was one of the mainstays of the Southern people, was known as "Speckled Jack" in Civil war days. General Lee is said to have called it "the Confederacy's best friend."

Name of Scottish Klan

It is not possible to say who was the first person named Jones. Jones is a Scottish Klan name. It is derived from the Christian name John, which is of Hebrew derivation and means "Grace of the Lord."

WINCHESTER HOSPITAL NOTES

There have been held at the Winchester Hospital two lectures for the student nurses. Miss Marjorie Stimson, field representative of the National Red Cross in Massachusetts and Rhode Island, spoke to our girls and the nurses from Woburn on Rural Red Cross work.

Miss Bertha Ridley, of the State Department of Tuberculosis spoke to the Winchester nurses on tuberculosis work in Massachusetts. Miss Ridley was formerly Visiting Nurse in Winchester.

Each student nurse of the Senior and Junior class is being sent for one day to the eye and ear clinics at the Massachusetts Eye and Ear Infirmary. There the doctors in charge have taken great pains to explain the cases and thus have made the visits to these clinics of the greatest value.

C. D. OF A. NOTES

This year marks the 25th anniversary of the founding of the National Order of the Catholic Daughters of America.

Consequently all over the United States and in our Island possessions many affairs are being planned in honor of this silver jubilee.

The order was founded in 1903 with a membership of 60. It now has almost 200,000 members.

The local Court has planned for April a "supper and entertainment of the Months," and an efficient committee is sure to make a splendid success of this undertaking.

In May the local Court will celebrate the 17th anniversary of its founding with a Communion on Mothers' Day and a Silver whist later in the month.

Mrs. Ethel Smith Robinson, who passed away last week Thursday at her home, 35 Cambridge street was the wife of Willard E. Robinson, former Alderman of Malden and at present manager of the Belmont Spring Country Club. The deceased was a native of Malden and held membership in the Center Methodist Church of that city. Surviving, besides her husband, are three children, Virginia, Willard Jr., and Margaret Smith Robinson, the latter of Boston. Two stepchildren Ward and Genevieve Robinson, also survive her.

WADLEIGH PARENT-TEACHER ASSOCIATION

The Wadleigh Parent-Teacher Association will hold its next meeting on Monday, April 9, at 8 p. m. at the Wadleigh School where lack of an assembly hall makes for crowded fort in seating adults, but in the High School assembly hall. Here it is hoped officers will be present in force as well as mothers.

The speaker, Mr. Harry E. Gardner will attract all parents. He is a townsman who needs no introduction. His official position of supervisor in charge of the Teachers' Registration Bureau of Massachusetts—indeed, school principals says, "He is the Registration Bureau"—assures expert knowledge of the subject on which he has kindly consented to speak "Modern Educational Objections".

It is to be "Fathers' Night", but that does not disqualify mothers. All Wadleigh parents are cordially urged to be present.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY EXTENSION SERVICE MEETING

All those interested in the projects of the Middlesex County Extension Service will be interested to hear of a meeting to be held in the assembly room of the Second Congregational Church, corner of Washington street and Kenwin road, on Tuesday, April 3 at 2 p. m.

The discussion will be on, "What To Feed the Family". Miss Regina M. Feeney, demonstration agent for this work, will lead the meeting and demonstrate some simple, wholesome dishes which may be easily prepared.

The meeting is sure to prove interesting to all home-makers and a cordial invitation to attend is extended to everyone.

All permanent employees of the Water Department have been furnished by the Town with badges embossed with the Town seal. The badges were issued with the idea of giving the men who are obliged to enter private homes in the course of their work some means of identification for the householders' protection.

BOARD OF SURVEY

Winchester, Mass.
March 19, 1928

Notice is hereby given that the Board of Survey of the Town of Winchester, Mass., will give a public hearing, in the Selectmen's Room in the Town Hall Building, on Monday, the 2d day of April, 1928, at 8:00 o'clock P. M., upon the petition of Caroline H. Dow for approval of certain plan, filed with said petition of a way called Madison Avenue Extension, said road to extend northerly to a dead end for a distance of about 100 feet, said way being shown on plan thereof drawn by A. C. Peters, Civil Engineer, dated July 1, 1927.

After which hearing the Board may alter said plan and may determine where said way shall be located and the width and grades thereof.

Prior to the hearing the plan may be examined at the office of the Town Engineer.

By Order of the Board of Survey, this 19th day of March, 1928.

EMBLEM CLUB DRILL TEAM

EMBLEM CLUB SUPPER-DANCE

The supper and dancing party, testimonial to the Drill team of the Emblem Club in Lyceum Hall, Wednesday evening proved to be a real homey affair and everybody mixed right into festivities and seemed to enjoy the excellent spread served by the members under the direction of assistant Chairman Mrs. Lilla B. Green.

At the guest table, presided over by President-elect Anne M. Hanlon, were Drillmaster Martin McDonough of Stoneham, and the following members of his team: Mrs. Elizabeth Hines, Mrs. Josephine Power, Mrs. Ethel A. Horn, Mrs. Emma Cullen, Mrs. Mary McHugh, Mrs. Kathryn Donahue, Mrs. Kathryn Griffin, Mrs. Doris Fitzgerald, Mrs. Bernice Gorman, Mrs. Mae Fitzgerald, Margaret Sullivan and Elizabeth Fitzgerald. Two members, Mrs. Harriet Cleary and Alice F. Sullivan, were unable to attend.

As toastmistress, Mrs. Hanlon shone with her customary brilliancy, giving a resume of her efforts in forming the team. At the roll-call introductions in verse form were contributed by Mrs. Frances Sullivan, and a most fitting toast to our "Finest" was rendered by Mrs. Hanlon.

Among the speakers of the evening were Exalted Ruler George H. Lockman, whose remarks were of a facetious character; Mr. Joseph N. Shafer, Editor of "The Eastern Elk", who spoke to "The Good of the Order"; Drillmaster Martin McDonough who complimented his team of willing workers, Ex-Selectman J. A. Laraway, after much urging, responded to the toast "Our Only Mayor" in his usual genial style, receiving quite an ovation for avoiding "Tree-Politics". Mr. Edward McKenzie of "The Woburn Times" was also called upon for a speech but cautiously "declined to make a statement at this time".

On an urgent request of Mr. Shafer, the team gave the Flag drill exercises under the direction of the Drillmaster and even lacking uniforms the exhibition went over big. The visitor voiced his praise of the floorwork in no uncertain terms and predicted a great future for the team, expressing a desire to have the performance repeated at the Elks Home in Boston where the No. 10 Emblem Club is forming.

The grand march was led by Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Lockman, preceded by the little Misses Dorothy and Myrtle Goodhue in fancy costumes. All joined in the parade and in the general dancing which followed.

The next regular meeting of the Club will be held on Wednesday evening, April 11, at which time the newly elected officers will be installed. A class initiation is being planned for May with many candidates in view. Members are urged to bring in all application papers at this time.

German silver is an alloy of copper, nickel, and zinc. It is largely used in the manufacture of spoons and forks, teapots, and similar articles. It is readily attacked by vinegar and other acids, and for that reason forks and spoons made of this material are usually silver plated.

WOMAN'S CHRISTIAN TEMPERANCE UNION NOTES

On the evening of March 21 in the Congregational Church social hall a large and enthusiastic audience greeted Dr. N. Louise Rand and her group of 18 young people from the Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U. of the North End of Boston. The Commander-in-Chief a drama in six acts, which they presented was well received. Thomas Kean, a man of affairs and Mrs. Kean, the parts taken by John Santoro and Nicolina Scarinci were very realistic.

Jennie Comperchio as Ruth, their daughter delighted the audience as Commander-in-Chief. In fact, too much credit cannot be given to all the cast as all parts were well taken. Two piano solos were beautifully rendered by Miss Tomasina Grana a master and even lacking uniforms the exhibition went over big. The visitor voiced his praise of the floorwork in no uncertain terms and predicted a great future for the team, expressing a desire to have the performance repeated at the Elks Home in Boston where the No. 10 Emblem Club is forming.

Catchy was sold between the acts by a group of young ladies led by Miss Mary Alice Speedie. A goodly sum was realized for Doctor Rand's work.

HENRY CLAY COBURN

Henry Clay Coburn, a former widely known and universally respected resident of Winchester, died Saturday, March 24, at the Masonic Home at Charlton where he had been living for the past two years. He had been for some time in failing health.

Mr. Coburn was 80 years of age and a native of Maine. He came to Winchester about 50 years ago and was first employed in the tailoring establishment of E. C. Colombo on upper Main street next to the site now occupied by the Colonial Filling Station. Later he conducted his own business in his home on Grove street until he was forced by the state of his health to give up active work. His business brought him in contact with many of the town's people and his sterling character never failed to win him the friendship of all who knew him. He was a member of the First Congregational Church, the William Parkman Lodge of Masons and also was affiliated with the Royal Arch Chapter and the Commandery, Knights Templar. Only his wife survives him.

A Masonic funeral service was held Tuesday afternoon in the chapel of the Kelley & Hawes Company, conducted by Worshipful Edward B. Smalley, master of William Parkman Lodge, and Worshipful R. D. E. Hopper, chaplain. A brief committal service was held at Wildwood Cemetery where the interment was made.

MISS MAIN HEARD IN RECITAL AT FIRST CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH

Miss Alice A. Main of Herrick street delighted a good sized audience last Friday afternoon in the parish house of the First Congregational Church where she appeared in a recital of pianoforte music for the benefit of the No. 2 group of the Congregational Woman's Guild. Miss Main's program was especially interesting and well chosen, those present evincing the keenest pleasure in her performance.

Following the recital tea was served in the ladies' parlors with Mrs. Clarence E. Ordway and Mrs. Maurice F. Brown pouring.

The new "flapper" pocketbooks are at the Star office.

EPIPHANY MEN ENJOYED "GAME NIGHT"

One of the largest gatherings of the season turned out for the annual "game night" of the Epiphany Men's Club, held on Monday evening in the church parish house.

A delicious chicken dinner, southern style, was served by a committee of ladies under the personal direction of Mrs. Preston S. Cotton who was given an ovation after the final course by the members and guests. During the dinner community singing was enjoyed with Dr. "Charlie" Kelley as leader and Mrs. A. B. Corthell as accompanist.

President E. S. Larned presided at the business session which was chiefly concerned with the report of the committee working upon plans for a church memorial to a former Epiphany rector, Rev. Murray W. Dewart.

Following the business session the meeting was given over to sports of the better known "indoor" variety, including cribbage, bridge, golf putting and whist. Donald Heath emerged victorious from the cribbage tournament with Marcus May and "Ed" Smalley showing the way to the bridge experts. "Jack" Eaton proved the best of the indoor golfers and George Tilley played them just closely enough to win the whist. Especial mention should be made of the quartet members at odd times during the evening by "Doc" Kelley, "Rus" Wiggen, George Leghorn and Preston Cotten.

NOONAN SCHOOL MOTHERS' ASSOCIATION

On last Tuesday evening a rehearsal for the play was held at the home of Mrs. Harry Lindmark on Russell road. Mrs. Lindmark succeeded in making each member feel at home and a most enjoyable evening passed all too quickly.

Tonight the members of the cast and also the members of the play committee will be the guests of Mrs. Mary Lucy at her home on Canal street. Mrs. Lucy is not a member of the cast but will do her bit for the cause, by contributing to the Enter-Act vaudeville an Irish dance in costume. Mrs. Lucy is a graduate of Brighton Academy and while a student there she achieved much success as a dancer.

Plans for the play are moving along rapidly and many tickets have been disposed of. We expect a record attendance and feel that all who attend on April 27 will feel amply repaid.

An interesting play before and during the show during which time many novelties will be introduced.

M. C. W. G. NOTES

Plans for the joint installation of officers and reception to new members are now in the hands of Sisters Carroll and Callahan which insures all that everything that should be done will be done to make it a social success. This will be held in Lyceum Hall, April 12.

Mrs. Rose Meehan and her staff from Watertown will preside as Installing Officers.

The following officers are to be installed:

Regent Mrs. M. C. Ambrose
Vice-Regent Mrs. Anna DeCourcey
Secretary Mrs. Alice Fitzgerald
Financial Secretary Mrs. Mary Dewar
Treasurer Miss Ruth M. Ambrose
Sentinel B. Young
Prophetess Mrs. Ella Eder
Members Mrs. Susan Quarley
Organist Mrs. Mary McGrath
Pianist Mrs. Katherine Callahan Mrs. Mary Gould

GOVERNOR SIGNS WINCHESTER LIMITED TOWN MEETING ACT

Last Monday Governor Fuller signed the Winchester Limited Town Meeting Act. The law as enacted is in substantially the same form as the draft of bill presented to the Town and printed in the report of the Town Meeting Committee a year ago. The Act is entitled "An Act to establish in the Town of Winchester representative town government by limited town meeting." It will be submitted to the voters for acceptance or rejection on the ballot at the Presidential election next November. If a majority vote in favor of the Act, town meeting members will be elected and the Limited Town Meeting will be in operation in Winchester next March.

EMMA MARSHALL

[An Appreciation]

When so kindly, faithful and loving a soul as that of Emma Marshall passes it is fitting that one who knew her well and who owes much to her devoted service should say a word in tribute to her memory. The keystone of her character—a character solid enough and strong enough to bear cheerfully all the vicissitudes of life—love. Outwardly her warm affectionate nature expressed itself in a wide, generous friendliness and in a constant willingness to give faithful service, up to the limit of her strength, to those to whom she was attached.

None of the families with whom she lived thought of her as a servant or an employee, but as a friend. Years after she had left them to go elsewhere they remained in correspondence with her, and welcomed her affectionately when the opportunity came to see her again. Hundreds of people here in Winchester have come in contact with her more or less frequently. Everyone who knew her, even casually carries today the memory of her kindly, cheery, friendliness, her infectious laugh, her wholly unaffected, wholly sincere interest in, and good will toward those she met.

Her faithfulness, her loyalty, her unselfish devotion, only those can appreciate who knew her best. It is enough to say that those beautiful qualities are rarely seen in so high a degree as in her. And to them were joined other virtues no less worthy courage, patience, and unfailing cheerfulness.

If the keystone of her character was love, its foundation was a perfect Christian faith. It was a simple, trusting faith, that continually manifested itself in her walk and conversation. She loved her Bible, she loved her church and she loved above all her divine Master. Her whole life bore testimony to the sustaining and joy bringing power of a sincere Christian faith.

We may surely believe that she has already met with her reward and has heard the voice saying, "Well done, Good and Faithful Servant. Enter Thou into the Joy of Thy Lord".

WINCHESTER BOAT CLUB

With more and not less joy the departure of the last of the ice was witnessed at Mystic Lakes this past week-end.

After one of the best winter's for ice boating, "Ken" and Roy Pratt were again forced to float their ice boat into the clubhouse. Since the aqueduct and the "cut" have been wide open practically all winter it was necessary to keep the boat some where outside of the "narrows" on the big lake.

With the thermometer at 70 degrees last Saturday afternoon, the boys were reminded that spring was here again and the lure of the paddle and the water gave them the necessary urge to head for the lake.

Captain "Ed" Saudberg sent all hands out in the "Leviathan". He himself took the bow position and with a slight change in the scenery and setting, one might have mistaken it for "Washington Crossing the Delaware". The crew was composed of "Jim" Fitch (and dog), Harry Gardner, Arthur Downer, "Bob" Breen, "Phil" Hight, "Win" Palmer, "Allah" Hovey, "Ferd" Hawley, Lars Sandberg and "Dan" Barnard. What a crew they were! Armed with oars of varying sizes and length, paddles and staves.

They would get the huge "tub" underway with a big splash and a whoo-oo-p-eee, and then go crashing into a sheet of half rotten ice. The "Leviathan" would shake and slow down and then stop-up short nearly pitching out the whole bunch.

The carsmen would back away again and go crashing in again on a new attack at the ice.

It wasn't what you would call very finished paddling but it made good limbering up exercise for the boys.

MOTORCYCLIST CAME TO GRIEF

Leo Kerrigan of 30 Porter street, Woburn, was painfully injured last Saturday afternoon about 2 o'clock when he was thrown from the motorcycle he was riding at the junction of Wildwood street and Woodside road, following a collision in which his machine figured with a Pierce-Arrow limousine, driven by Thomas P. F. Glynn of 16 Bellevue street, Lowell.

Glynn was driving south on Woodside road while Kerrigan was riding from Wildwood street onto Woodside road to go north. The latter was thrown from his cycle and pinned under the falling machine.

He was extricated by passing motorists and taken to the Winchester Hospital where he was attended by Dr. Richard W. Sheehy. The injured man was found to have sustained a badly bruised left side and a fractured left leg. His motorcycle and the Pierce-Arrow were only slightly damaged.

DAUGHTER OF FORMER WINCHESTER MAN ENGAGED

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Brainard A. Rowe of Walpole of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Ruth Bemis Rowe to Gerald G. King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. King of Norwood. Miss Rowe was graduated from Wheaton College in 1926, and from the Prince School in Boston in 1927. Her fiance is a graduate of Dartmouth College, class of 1924, and is at present connected with Bird & Son, Inc., of East Walpole. The engagement was formally announced at a bridge party given by Miss Rowe to a number of friends. No date has yet been set for the wedding.

Smallest Photograph

So small that it cannot be seen with the naked eye save as a tiny speck in the middle of a piece of glass a photograph was recently on show in London one hundred of these would occupy about the space of a pin's head.

BAPTIST NOTES

The men and boys of the First Baptist Church held a "Get-together meeting" at the church last Friday evening, March 23. A very fine supper was served by the E. P. H. Class to whom many thanks were extended.

The speakers of the evening were the pastor, Rev. Benjamin P. Browne, Rev. Charles L. Page, Mr. Arthur Winn and Mr. Clarence Warren. Mr. William Wood of the Unitarian Church also gave a brief talk on the men of his church.

Interesting talks were given on the best methods of getting men organized and functioning as a dominant body in the church.

One of the largest gatherings of the year was present last Sunday evening when the boys' band of the Stanton Avenue M. E. Church of Dorchester, played a concert program in the local church auditorium. The boys were accompanied by their pastor, Rev. Robert L. Taylor, and by several members of the latter's congregation. Rev. Mr. Taylor was the preacher of the evening, taking as his subject, "How to Put Religion into Practise." He was introduced by the pastor of the First Baptist Church, Rev. Benjamin Patterson Browne.

The evening service was opened with the singing of "Onward Christian Soldiers," accompanied by the band and organ, the latter played by Mrs. Edna Sherman of Dorchester. The church organist, Mrs. Laura A. Pinfield, played the instrumental prelude.

Under the direction of its leader, Edward Dale, the band played several selections which included "The Bells of St. Mary's" and "Organ Echoes." Edward Dale, George Dale, George Taylor and Marvin Hubin appeared in a selection arranged for four cornets and Messrs. Taylor and Hubin played a quartet number with Albert Jaeger, alto horn, and William Dompster, baritone. Miss Blanche Kelley of Dorchester, played a violin solo, accompanied on the organ by Mrs. Sherman.

Concluding the service was the singing of the doxology, accompanied by the band and organ.

BOSTON MUTUAL LIFE HAS PROSPEROUS YEAR

The Boston Mutual Life Insurance Company has just completed its 28th year and its annual report recently submitted to the Insurance Department shows that the Company has made substantial gains during the past year in every department and is in a sound and satisfactory condition.

This company is one of the youngest among Massachusetts life insurance companies, and its progress during the preceding years has been steady and healthy. Its present condition is evidence of the careful and conservative management which has built its business year by year to its present commendable volume, with nearly 200,000 policy-holders on its roll of membership.

The assets of the Company at the close of business on Dec. 31, 1927, were $8,958,210, liabilities $8,400,789 and a net surplus of $557,422. In addition to this net surplus the Company has appropriated $131,000 for policy dividends for 1928 which made the general surplus on Dec. 31, $688,422,000. The net surplus does not include the market value of securities owned by the Company over the book value, amounting to $143,000 nor does it include premiums in transit amounting to over $56,000.

During the year 1927 the Company paid to its policy holders in death claims and disability benefits $484,728; in matured endowments $248,263; in dividends and other payments $400,587, a total of $1,133,580.

The securities owned by the Company are well diversified, consisting of 259 different investments, and the cash profit during the year on sales and maturities of securities was over $50,000.

The Company writes a large variety of policy contracts applicable to the needs of the applicant. It operates in Massachusetts, Maine and Rhode Island and maintains 28 district offices located in the principal cities in these States.

The president of the Company, Herbert O. Edgerton, is an experienced insurance man of over 25 years of service with the Company. The secretary and treasurer, Edward C. Mansfield, became connected with the Company at the termination of his service as postmaster of Boston 13 years ago, while the board of directors includes men who are prominent in financial, business and legal circles.

SHOWER FOR MISS HAMILTON

After the regular meeting of Victoria Rebekah Lodge, March 22, the members gave a shower for their Noble Grand, Miss Mildred Hamilton, whose engagement to Mr. Elon Winters of Beverly has been recently announced.

The occasion was a very happy one in charge of Miss Agda Lundburg who surely knows how to give everyone a good time.

The presents were so numerous that power seems rather inadequate to describe the event and deluge seems more appropriate.

Readings by Mrs. Gertrude Lindberg, a Past Noble Grand from Jamaica Plain, added much to the pleasure of the evening.

Dainty refreshments were served in Gorham Hall, refreshments and table decorations carrying out the Rebekah colors, pink and green. A huge wedding cake graced the center of the table.

Victoria Rebekah Lodge is in a thriving condition. Much credit is due Miss Hamilton who is the youngest Noble Grand of the 210 lodges in Massachusetts.

History From New Angle

It was the anniversary of the discovery of America. The primary room was decorated for the occasion and much was said during the day about Columbus and what he discovered. Bobby was relating at dinner the events of the day and said: "I know why we have Halloween. We find it at school. Columbus found Indians with false faces."

GRANADA ATTRACTIONS

Do your own wooing is the love lesson taught by "The Secret Hour", Pola Negri's intriguing screen romance which is the current feature at the beautiful Granada Theatre in Malden. Something of a parallel could be drawn between the loveless fate that befell Captain Miles Standish when he sent John Alden to do his courting for him, and the situation that develops in Miss Negri's latest story. The picture, in brief, concerns the infatuation of Jean Herholt, a wealthy, middle aged orange grower, with Pola Negri, a waitress.

Zane Grey, the best known writer of western and pioneer books alive today, has written a new one entitled "Under the Tonto Rim", and this new production will be shown at the Granada next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. "Under the Tonto Rim" is the story of gangsters and outlaws who infested the small towns of the West at the time gold was discovered in the Tonto Basin in Arizona, before that territory had become a State. Richard Arlen and Mary Brian, two of Paramount's young stars, are the featured players. Throughout the story, which contains all of the thrills of a Zane Grey tale, there is a tender thread of romance in Arlen's love for pretty Mary Brian.

The regular five act bill of selected Granada vaudeville is offered as usual.

ICE WENT OUT MONDAY

The ice went out of Mystic Lake on Monday morning March 26, 11 days later than last year, when the month was much warmer. Although the ice appeared very thin this season and there was hardly any ice boating, it would seem that there was more ice than was apparent, probably due to the snow piling up on it and then freezing. This year's ice-boating season was the poorest in years, there being very few days when there was any sailing at all and only one or two when the ice was in really good condition.

A table of the dates of the ice going out of the lake follows:

April 22	1918
March 9	1919

FOUR FIRES OVER WEEK-END

The Fire Department was called upon to put out three grass fires and one brush fire during the week-end just past. At 2:52 Friday afternoon there was a grass fire on Sheffield road and at 12:55 Saturday a second on Brooks street. At 2:14 Saturday afternoon there was a brush fire along the tracks of the Boston & Maine Railroad near Holton street. The final run was made at 3:40 p. m. Saturday for burning grass in the rear of the residence of Mr. Roger V. Pettingell on Rangeley Ridge.

SEAL OF THE TOWN OF WINCHESTER MASS. WATERFIELD 1638 WINCHESTER 1850

Form of notice as prescribed by me for the year 1928, pursuant to the provisions of Section 5, Chapter 58, General Laws.

HENRY F. LONG,
Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation

Town of Winchester, Mass.

ASSESSORS' NOTICE

Pursuant to the provisions of Section 29, Chapter 59, General Laws, all persons, firms, and corporations, domestic or foreign, subject to taxation in the town of Winchester are hereby notified and required to bring in to the assessors of said Town ON OR BEFORE THE 15TH DAY OF MAY NEXT, true lists. In case of residents a true list, containing the items required by the commissioner in the form prescribed by him under section five of chapter fifty-eight of all their polls and personal estate not exempt from taxation, except intangible property the income of which is included in a return filed the same year in accordance with sections twenty-two to twenty-five, inclusive, of chapter sixty-two, as amended, and in case of none-residents and foreign corporations such a true list of all their personal estate in said town not exempt from taxation, and all persons, firms and corporations, domestic or foreign, are hereby notified and required to include and set forth in said lists their real estate subject to taxation in said town, which lists must be verified as required by Section 31 of Chapter 59, General Laws. (See Chap. 187, Acts of 1926.)

Under provisions of Sections 29 and 30, Chapter 59, General Laws, the above mentioned lists must be in form prescribed by the Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation. These blank forms may be had at the assessors' office, or will be mailed to any address upon application.

Section 34, Chapter 59, General Laws. A mortgagor or mortgagee of real estate may bring in to the assessors of the town where it lies, within the time prescribed by the notice under section twenty-nine, a sworn statement of the amount secured thereon or on each separate parcel thereof, with the name and residence of every holder of an interest therein as mortgagee or mortgagee. If such property is situated in two or more places, or if a recorded mortgage includes two or more estates or parts of an estate as security for one sum, such statements shall include an estimate of the interest of the mortgagor in each estate or part thereof. The assessors shall, from such statement or otherwise, ascertain the proportionate interests of the mortgagor or mortgagee respectively in said estates, and shall assess the same accordingly. If, in any year, such statement is not brought in, the tax for that year on such real estate shall not be invalid merely for the reason that the interest of the mortgagee therein has not been assessed to him.

In accordance with Section 29, Chapter 59, General Laws, all persons, except corporations making returns to the Commissioner of Insurance as required by Section 38, Chapter 176, General Laws, are hereby required to bring into to the assessors, on or before the 15th day of May next, true lists of all real and personal estate held by them, respectively, for literary, temperance, benevolent, charitable, or scientific purposes on the first day of April, in the current year, or at the election of such corporation on the last day of its fiscal year last preceding said April first, together with statements of the amounts of all receipts and expenditures for said purposes during the year last preceding said day; such lists and statements to be in accordance with blanks furnished by the Commissioner of Corporations and Taxation.

WINCHESTER RED CROSS

Provides Home Hygiene Class for High School Girls

There are 11 girl students of the Winchester High School who will have a splendid working knowledge of home hygiene when the school year of 1927-28 comes to an end. These girls are the members of the class in home hygiene which is provided by the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross and which meets at the Winchester High School every Friday afternoon under the direction of Miss Franchere, R.N.

The course consists of 16 lessons, and among the subjects studied are: personal hygiene, care of sleeping rooms, indications of sickness, prevention of sickness, baths, babies and their care, diets, and first aid. Upon completion of the course each girl is presented with a Red Cross certificate.

The 11 members of the 1928 class are Hazel Ayer, Marguerite Baker, Mildred Benson, Olive Boutillier, Melia Dempsey, Eleanor Hanley, Dorothy Johnson, Gladys McMillan, Edna Rossley, Mary Tucci and Helen Wells.

This class for teaching future home makers the hygiene care of the home and the family is only one of the many ways in which the Winchester Chapter of the American Red Cross serves its community.

CALUMET NOTES

Special

Friday, April 27—In place of the Mixed Bowling Dinner which will not come until May, we will present the famous Cinema masterpiece, "Behind the Front". Members and their families. (No charge.) 8 p. m.

Please note the annual dinner and election will take place on Saturday, April 28, instead of April 21 as announced in the calendar card which has been sent.

This is the last calendar of the season, as the only event of much importance occurring in May will be the Mixed Bowling dinner, date of which will be given later.

The ladies 'afternoon bridge on last Tuesday was very well attended, being one of the largest we have had this season. There were 18 tables. Prizes were won by Mrs. Childs, Mrs. Willey and Mrs. Pilkington.

The Ping Pong Tournament is now in full swing. Butters beat Sandberg 6—0 and 6—3; Blanchard beat Hovey 6—1, 6—0; Browning beat Hight, 6—4, 6—2.

The Mixed Bowling Tournament is now about half over and all bowlers will be re-rated after the eighth match. This also includes the new members who were previously re-rated after the third match. The tournament will close on May 7 and it is expected that the bowling dinner will be held soon thereafter.

Here follow the mixed bowling scores:

Tuesday night's matches on the Calumet alleys again resulted in straight wins, teams 8, 7 and 4 taking all the points from 3, 11 and 6. Again the ladies rolled exceptionally well, scoring some fine figures. The best individual work was as follows:

UNIVERSITY THEATRE

The feature pictures at the University for four days beginning Sunday are "Doomsday" with Florence Vidor and "On to Reno" with Marie Prevost.

"Doomsday" was written by the author of "Sorrell and Son" and as a story has been deservedly popular. Florence Vidor takes the part of the toil weary girl who has worked so hard and so long that she feels escape from dradgery is worth any price, even the sacrifice of love. Then comes realization of her tragic mistake and an effort to win the happiness she has cast aside through fear.

When a pretty stenographer impersonates a wealthy woman who is seeking a divorce, almost anything may happen. And almost everything does in "On to Reno" in which piquant Marie Prevost stars as a stenographer. This comedy of divorce, provides one hilarious episode after another, and brings about a remarkable tangle of husbands and wives.

For the last three days of the week the features are "The Secret Hour" with Pola Negri and "Almost Human" with Vera Reynolds.

Already Scalped

Bobby had a new Indian suit and was begging to go ask Tom to come play with him. But Bobby's father said it was too near bedtime. "I'll play Indian with you, though," said the father. "Aw, I can't play Indian with you. You have been scalped already," replied disgusted Bobby.

Canada's Red Pine

The total uncut stand of red pine (Pinus resinosa) in Canada of sawtimber size probably amounts to 4,000,000,000 feet board measure, the greater part of this being in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. The average annual cut amounts to about 95,000,000 feet board measure.

MORTGAGEE'S SALE OF REAL ESTATE

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain mortgage deed given by Arthur H Cameron, Robert M Hamilton and Arthur A Mullen, as Trustees of the Winchester Associates, to Rebecca A. Ayer, dated July 6, 1926 being noted as Document No 69451, noted on Certificate of Title No. 20684 filed in the South Registry District for Middlesex County, in Registration Book 138, Page 433, for breach of the conditions of said mortgage and for the purpose of foreclosing the same will be sold at public auction on the premises hereinafter described on Monday, April 16, 1928 at nine o'clock in the forenoon, all and singular the premises conveyed by said mortgage deed and therein substantially described as follows:

"The land, together with the buildings thereon, situated in Winchester, Middlesex County, Commonwealth of Massachusetts, being bounded and described as follows: Easterly by Main Street, ninety and 96/100 (90.96) feet, Northerly by Water Street sixty (60) feet, Westerly by Lot F, as shown on said plan hereinafter referred to, ninety (90) feet, and Southerly by Lot B as shown on said plan hereinafter referred to, seventy-five and 44/100 (75.44) feet, containing six thousand, one hundred nineteen (6,119) square feet of land, and being Lot A, as shown on plan of "Subdivision of Lots, Winchester, Mass.", drawn by Parker Holbrook, Engineer, filed in the Land Registration Office, a copy of which is filed in the South Registry District of Middlesex County as Plan No. 11060-B. The above described premises are a portion of the premises conveyed to us as Trustees as aforesaid, by Arthur H Cameron, by deed dated November 27, 1925, and filed in the South Registry District of Middlesex County in Registration Book 138, Page 433, and noted on Certificate of Title No. 20,684 as Document No. 64,061. Said premises are conveyed subject to a building line on said Water Street, as shown on Document No. 66,203, noted on said Certificate of Title No. 20,684, and are subject also to a mortgage amounting to Ten Thousand ($10,000) Dollars, given by us as Trustees as aforesaid to George D LeDuc, by deed dated May 15, 1926, and noted as Document No. 67,976 on said Certificate of Title No. 20,684, which said mortgage is now held by the Winchester National Bank."

Said premises will be sold subject to said prior mortgage, all unpaid taxes, tax titles, assessments or other municipal liens.

$500.00 in cash will be required to be paid at the time of the sale, and the balance to be paid within ten (10) days from the date of the sale at Room 1025, 100 Milk Street, Boston, Mass. Other particulars made known at time of sale.

REBECCA A. AYER, Mortgagee

For further information apply to Curtis W. Nash, 100 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

No. 12,600

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS
LAND COURT

To Anna Nelson, William M Little, Estelle R Little, of Winchester in the County of Middlesex and said Commonwealth; and to all whom it may concern:

Whereas, a petition has been presented to said Court by J. Reed Morss, of Newton, in the said County of Middlesex, to register and confirm his title in the following described land:

A certain parcel of land with the buildings thereon, situate in said Winchester, bounded and described as follows:

Northwesterly by Sheffield Road; Northerly by the junction of said Sheffield Road and Alesworth Avenue; Easterly by said Alesworth Avenue; Southerly by land now or formerly of William M Little et al, and Southwesterly by land now or formerly of Anna L. Nelson.

The above described land is shown on a plan filed with said petition and all boundary lines are claimed to be located on the ground as shown on said plan.

You are hereby cited to appear at the Land Court to be held at Boston, in the County of Suffolk, on the sixteenth day of April A. D. 1928, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to show cause, if any you have, why the prayer of said petition should not be granted. And unless you appear at said Court at the time and place aforesaid your default will be recorded, and the said petition will be taken as confessed, and you will be forever barred from contesting said petition or any decree entered thereon.

Witness, CHARLES THORNTON DAVIS, Esquire, Judge of said Court, this twenty-first day of March in the year nineteen hundred and twenty-eight.

Attest with Seal of said Court.

JOSEPH F. BENNETT, Deputy Recorder
